HUGHES SEEMS NOW ASSURED OF 270 ELECTORAL VOTES

TOTAL FOR THE G.O.P. NOMINEE MAY GO OVER THREE HUNDRED.

Democratic Gains Materially Reduced in the Past Fortnight by a Reaction in Favor of the Republican Standard Bearer and Offset from Start by Swing of Wilson Support to the Ticket—Only a Miracle Likely to Alter Situation.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 4.—Hughes and Fairbanks will be elected next [illegible], according to the surface [illegible], as viewed by the Chicago Tribune, of the prevailing political sentiment in the forty-eight [illegible].

If Wilson and Marshall should win it would be because of a [illegible] greater shifting of Republican voters to the Democratic [illegible] in closely-contested States [illegible] has been detected by painstaking investigation.

Democratic gains have been reduced materially in the last fortnight by a reaction in favor of Hughes and have been offset to some extent from the start by the swing of Democratic votes to the Republican national ticket.

The Chicago Tribune has obtained detailed reports upon the [illegible] in every State on the eve of the election.

The reports were prepared by unprejudiced political experts whose [illegible] of election results have proved reliable in the past.

There are 531 votes in the Electoral College, and 266 constitute the majority necessary to election.

Analysis of the reports shows that Hughes appears to be assured 270 votes; that he probably will receive 324 votes, and that he may receive 363 votes. Wilson is sure of 139 votes, probably will receive 168 votes and may receive 207 votes.

SUMMARY.

(Summary of the analysis fol- [illegible] electoral votes:)

probably for Wilson	29
	531

[illegible] list of States regarded as sure for Hughes there are only two which the Democratic managers seriously profess hope of carrying for Wilson. These are South Dakota with five and Utah with four votes. This hope, however, does not seem to be substantiated by the Tribune's reports.

DOUBTFUL LIST.

In the list of doubtful States classed as probably Republican is Connecticut, which the Democrats have begun to lose hope of carrying. Likewise the chances of a Republican victory in Ohio and Wisconsin have improved so much in the last ten days that the capture of their forty electoral votes by Wilson is now deemed distinctly improbable.

The only State of those classed as sure for Wilson which the Republicans profess hope of carrying is Arizona, but the nonpartisan reports received by the Tribune do not bear out this expectation. In the list of doubtful States that probably will be carried by Wilson Maryland and Nevada are claimed by the Republican managers, but the reports give the Democrats the decided advantage in both.

WILSON ARGUMENTS.

In all of the States approximately the same forces are operating to decide the election. President Wilson has won thousands of Republican votes by the arguments, "Let prosperity alone" and "Wilson kept us out of war." The effect of these arguments has been more noticeable in the West than in the East.

The Democratic gains from this source have been offset to a considerable degree by the defection of Democrats who repudiate and fear the "peace-at-any-price" tendencies of the Wilson administration—Democrats who condemn the Mexican fiasco, Democrats who believe that the country will need a protective tariff after the war, and those German-Americans and Irish-Americans, normally Democratic, who regard Mr. Wilson unneutrally favorable to the allies in dealing with the European belligerents.

Next in importance is the Adamson law, raising the wages of train-operating railroad employees 25 per cent. This has won thousands of votes for Mr. Wilson among the trainmen, who are normally Republican, and among other workingmen enrolled in the ranks of organized labor, which hitherto has been reckoned about 25 per cent. Republican.

The drift to Wilson from this cause, however, is less than it first appeared to be. The Republican leaders have stemmed this tide of defection by a remarkable campaign of education, demonstrating the falsity and the danger to union labor of such legislation as the Adamson law, which takes from labor the right to bargain with capital for its pay.

Finally, the Democratic gains credited to the Adamson law have been offset largely by the defection of thousands of small tradesmen and farmers, normally Democrats, who are alarmed by the spectacle of the government bowing to organized labor and by the assurance of increased freight rates which the President gave the railroads.

BID FOR WOMAN VOTES.

Both parties have made a special bid for the votes of the women in the ten equal suffrage States. With tons of literature and lurid pictures of war scenes the Democratic managers have played upon the fears and sympathies of women to the tune of "Wilson kept us out of war." The effect has been gratifying to the Democratic leaders, for the response of women to this appeal furnishes the chief basis for placing several of the Western States in the Wilson column.

This movement among the women has been offset by the defections from the Democratic party of some women and many men who have not been able to stomach the Democratic preachments of the gospel of fear.

In every State there is a varying proportion of Republicans and former Progressives who will vote for Wilson because of his theoretical altruism and his "passion for humanity." But there also is a varying proportion of Democrats who will vote for Hughes because of the conviction that the President is impractical, vacillating and generally incompetent in handling the affairs of the United States.

SOCIALISTS SPEND SNUG LITTLE SUM.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—A campaign financial statement for the Socialist party filed with the clerk of the House today showed contributions of $24,558 up to October 1 and expenditures of $18,483. The report showed most of the expenditures had been in Oklahoma, Wisconsin, New York, Indiana and Nevada. All contributions were in small sums.

REPUBLICANS CLAIM WILSON HOME STATE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEWARK (N. J.) Nov. 4. — A claim that New Jersey, President Wilson's home State, would be carried by the Republicans on Tuesday by 45,000 votes, was made here today by Newton A. K. Bugbee, Republican State chairman. Mercer county, in which the President votes, will return a Republican plurality of 4500, he predicted.

TAFT DENOUNCES TRAINMEN'S THREAT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

RUTLAND (Vt.) Nov. 4.—Speaking at a political meeting here yesterday, former President Taft referred to the foreign policies of the administration, and said:

"We will stand behind the President when he makes an assertion of our rights, but to refrain from proper criticism of a public official is to subvert public policy."

Taking up the Adamson eight-hour bill, Mr. Taft said:

"I don't care what the merits of the case were; I don't care whether the men were or were not entitled to more pay. A bill passed under a threat of force without debate or proper consideration is a humiliating disgrace to the nation."

NEW YORK "TIMES" ELECTION FORECAST.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 4.—Here is a summary of the prognostications made by the New York Times correspondents in their dispatches, after interviewing political leaders of both the leading parties and making a survey and analysis of the situation in their respective States:

Electoral vote from "safe" Wilson States	207
Electoral votes from "safe" Hughes States	158
Vote from ten doubtful States	121
New York, unassigned	45
Total	531
Necessary to a choice	266

From the dispatches of the Times correspondents it appears that the truly pivoted States in Tuesday's election are Ohio and Illinois. Both are in the doubtful column.

COMMENT ON THE SITUATION.

Italian troops continue their offensive in the Carso region and have advanced nearly a mile toward the Wippach River and have taken 553 prisoners, says the Italian War Office. In the zone east of Gorizia, Austrians are maintaining an intense barrage fire.

Italians report the capture of an observatory on the slopes of Cima Bozche. Several battles are being stubbornly fought south of Brzezany in Galicia near Michishou and Lipnicudolna, where the Germans launched an attack with considerable forces. German troops occupied part of the advanced Russian trenches on the heights east of Lipnicudolna. The battle is continuing.

Continuation of German successes by the capture of additional parts of the Russian main position on the left bank of the Narayuvka is claimed from Berlin. The pursuit of the Austro-German forces west of the Jiul River is continuing and there has been bombardment all along the Danube River. The occupation by the Rumanians of Bosca Height on the Hungarian-Rumanian front is admitted by the German War Office, which, however, aserts that the Teutonic allies have recaptured a Rumanian position and 250 prisoners southwest of Predeal.

The Mexican situation is still worse. Villa appears to have captured Santa Rosalia, where he killed an American physician and gave others of the population the choice of being killed or having their ears cut off by his ferocious bandits. Meanwhile the policy of "watchful waiting" remains in full force and effect in Washington.

CLOSE FINISH IS INDICATED IN ELECTION NEXT TUESDAY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 4.—The betting odds do not indicate the closeness of the election which is to be decided by 16,000,000 American citizens on Tuesday. Hughes is a ten to seven favorite. But, to continue in sporting parlance, he and Wilson have turned into the stretch almost neck and neck.

Not even the seventh son of a seventh son, aided by all the polls which have been taken, a perfect stack of straw votes and an inside knowledge of the desires of the politicians could with safety predict the result.

SURFACE SIGNS.

All surface signs indicate a finish so close, according to the New York Tribune, that it is quite possible for Mr. Hughes to win by as small a margin as a majority of one in the Electoral College. He would have just 266 votes if he carried New Jersey and all the States which seem surely his.

After all is said, there are this year only two guides to an opinion—and these may turn out less certain than they seem—as follows:

The fact that Mr. Hughes has a far greater number of certain electoral votes than has Mr. Wilson, and the second fact that there are about 1,500,000 fewer Democrats in the country than there are Republicans and Progressives.

The consideration of alleged facts and figures which lead to remarkable conclusions in a score of States, all of which claim the honor of being "pivotal," may be good mental exercise, but the inevitable result is bewilderment.

Hughes has a tremendous lead,

FIVE MILLIONS BET IN GOTHAM; ODDS FAVOR HUGHES'S CHANCES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 4.—It was estimated today that $5,000,000 has been bet in New York City on the outcome of Tuesday's election and it was predicted that Monday would see at least $1,000,000 wagered in Wall street. About $3,000,000 was bet in Wall street approximately, $1,000,000 at the Waldorf Astoria and an equal amount in Brooklyn and other parts of the city. Bets of slightly more than $100,000 were recorded today. In the two hours of the business on the curb $50,000 was wagered through betting commissioners. The prevailing odds on the curb were 10 to 7 on Hughes to beat Wilson, while most of the bets at the Waldorf were made at 10 to 8. The largest bet on the curb was $15,000 on Hughes at 10 to 7. One bet of $1200 to $1000 was made on the curb today that Wilson would carry Ohio. At 12 to 10, $10,000 was offered on Wilson to win that State. The Wilson supporters are demanding 10 to 6½ and better for their money. Despite the half-holiday and the absence from the markets of several of the prominent commissioners, approximately $50,000 was wagered at the odds quoted.

One firm is credited with holding $400,000 to be placed on Hughes and there are a number with sums on deposit ranging from $50,000 to $200,000, all of it awaiting the arrival of odds that will bring Wilson money in satisfactory quantities into the street. Wilson supporters show more confidence in the Ohio result than in the general outcome.

Another commissioner offered $10,000 at the odds of 6 to 5 that Wilson will carry Ohio. The Waldorf crowd took $900 of the Hughes end of this money just before the market closed.

Odds of 5 to 3 were offered that Hughes will carry New York, while even money was bet that he will not get 100,000 plurality in the State. Another bet of $3000 to $1000 was made that Hughes will carry New York, Indiana and New Jersey. A bet of $2000 against $5000 was made that Wilson will not receive 75,000 plurality in New York City, while 6 to 5 was offered that the President will carry Kings county.

Charges flew thick and fast Saturday morning that the odds were "rigged" by the Republican National Committee. The charges were dismissed as absurd by members of the committee, who declare that the present odds on Hughes reflect accurately his chances of defeating Wilson. It was rumored in the street that the heads of several stock exchange firms, supporters of Mr. Hughes, had received word to flood the market with their money. Many commissioners were of the opinion after the rousing welcome New York gave Hughes last night and in view of the newspaper polls published this morning, that Wilson supporters will demand 2 to 1 for their money Monday morning.

The election betting fever has spread rapidly in the last two weeks and hundreds of bets have been placed.

One commissioner declared today that more money had been bet this year than all of the combined Presidential election betting since Lincoln's time.

MONEY IN WALL STREET.

More than three-quarters of the bets placed have passed through Wall street but a large amount of the money is owned by outsiders who believe they see an opportunity for a clean-up. A large part of the Wilson money has come from the Middle West and the South.

Arrangements are being made by a number of brokerage houses to keep their up-town places of business open election night for the receipt of the returns. Elaborate preparations for handling the election news and providing comfort and refreshment to their customers during the hours they wait, are being made.

VAST IRRIGATION PLAN TO REDEEM AN EMPIRE.

Imperial and Yuma Valley Project would Solve Water Problem for All Time.

BY LEWIS HAVERMALE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

YUMA (Ariz.) Nov. 4.—Yuma Valley and Imperial Valley people will be deeply interested, as also will practically every man and woman in Southern California who feels the urge of great development plans, in the new plans for a proposed Greater Yuma project.

These plans include the following points:

They would unite the Yuma and Imperial valleys in one reclamation service project. They would create a great storage dam and reservoir at Yuma, reaching from the Speese mesa, in Arizona, to the Pilot Knob mesa, in California, with the dam bulwarks to include Prison Hill, in Yuma, and Indian Hill, or old Fort Yuma Hill, in California; a spillway for the waters to Mexican lands that would generate vast electrical energy and provide power for pumping waters to the mesa lands and also for commercial purpose. The proposed project is estimated to cost from $20,000,000 to $25,000,000.

The proponents of the plan claim for it the following advantages:

It would settle an all-American route for waters running to Imperial Valley.

It would bring under cultivation more than 1,000,000 acres of rich land in the United States that now lies barren desert.

It would settle the vexed question of what quantity of Colorado River waters shall be allotted to Mexico, as ample waters would have to flow over the dam to generate the required electrical energy.

It would do away with the silt problem, furnishing practically clear water to the canals.

It would give Imperial Valley people connection with a project backed by the government, and maintain the stability of rights to the waters of the Colorado River.

It would solve the problems of controlling the flood waters of the Gila River.

It would provide for the reclamation service an opportunity to make a wonderful showing of its ability in handling great projects.

YUMA (Ariz.) Nov. 4.—Stupendous in its scope; marvelous in its possibilities, which have for their motive the reclamation of more than 1,000,000 acres of arid lands, is a project that today, through The Times exclusively, is first given publicity.

This project, which is certain to engage the serious attention of the entire Imperial Valley and the Yuma Valley, as being the sections directly affected, and all of Southern California, through its corelated interests, has for its purpose the placing under cultivation of thousands upon thousands of acres of land now forbidding desert, but holding the potential richness of the choicest areas of the Nile; only awaiting baptism of water and labor of husbandmen to become reincarnated as lands of fatness and prosperity.

INITIAL MOVEMENT.

Today The Times chronicles the narrative of the initial movements. Its purpose is to create a dam four miles in length, reaching across the Colorado River, and from Prison Hill, in Yuma, to Indian Hill, in California, with the wings on the Arizona side stretching forth to Speese mesa and on the California side to the San Pasqual mesa. It is proposed that the top of this dam shall be seventy feet above the low water stage of the Colorado River, and that it shall conserve the vast flood waters of the Colorado and Gila Rivers, thus creating an abundant supply for irrigation of all the areas now irrigated and for immense areas of mesa lands heretofore considered doomed to be forever barren.

This project is one to excite imagination. The romance of redemption on a magnificent scale finds here a wide field for its visualization. The practical empire builder will pause to grasp the marvelous prospect should this project become a reality. Its proponents declare that it not only would add the wealth of a Croesus to California and Arizona, in crop-producing acres, now entirely worthless, but that it would for all time solve water problems for lands already reclaimed and proved as to their splendid fecundity.

LIFE-GIVING WATER.

The Midas-touch of life-giving waters to a parched and thirsty land has been given graphic illustration in the Imperial and Yuma Valleys. There, in all the areas that can be reached by gravity flow, has been created an oasis far-famed. Yet alongside these fertile acres lies the Glamis or Pilot Knob mesa, in the Imperial Valley, equally inviting, provided the water for irrigation becomes available. The same is true of the mesas adjacent to Yuma, and to lands below the Mexican border in Sonora and Lower California. These thousands of acres are held in the mind's eye of the proponents of the Greater Yuma Project.

The great storage basin project was conceived by Charles Meadows, a pioneer of Yuma, a few days after the disastrous flood of last January. He stood on the top of the Speese mesa and viewed the waste of waters, and there it was the idea of a great impounding basin arose. Since that time Mr. Meadows has presented the subject, in its various phases, to thoughtful men, until now it has reached the point where it is being seriously discussed.

Of course, a vast amount of detailed investigation would be necessary before the completed plan is in condition for presentation to the public; but so far has the interest advanced that within the past few weeks members of the board of directors of the Imperial irrigation district, large land owners of the Imperial Valley, and others directly interested, have visited Yuma and viewed the possibilities of the proposed great project.

VAST POSSIBILITIES.

So vast in its possibilities, should it prove thoroughly feasible, is this Greater Yuma Project plan that it would throw into comparative insignificance the Laguna Dam Project, upon which the government has already spent more than $2,000,000. Yet the proponents of the newer plan declare that the government could afford to abandon the Laguna work and put its energies and capital into the large project if it proves that there are no insurmountable engineering difficulties in the way.

No statement is forthcoming from the attaches of the Reclamation Service. It is natural that they should be chary about expressing any opinion that would be in conflict with the Laguna Project. But the idea advocated is of such vast proportions that, should the Reclamation Service finally conclude to take hold of it, this would be the most extensive work of its history. It is probable that efforts will be made at once to secure the necessary engineering data to be presented to that department of the government, with the purpose of creating a direct interest of the Reclamation Service in the new project.

STORAGE BASIN.

It has ben suggested by competent engineers that a dam seventy feet higher than the low water mark of the Colorado River at Yuma would create a storage basin of more than 300 square miles, with an average depth of thirty-five feet of water. One plan being discussed is to run in the base of the great dam with silt to approximately the height of the Laguna Dam, and then give it a rock top, with adequate spillways, to open two great channels—one through the regular bed of the Colorado River, and another on the California side—so that excess of waters could be readily handled; to have the base of the dam honeycombed with sluiceways for the purpose of flushing out the silt near the dam.

At the main spillway, the plan proposes, would be an electric power plant, operated by the waters flowing over the spillway and onward for irrigation of Mexican lands. They declare that this would be a means of generating such a vast amount of cheap power that there would be ample for pumping waters upon the higher mesa lands and for commercial purposes.

One of their arguments is that the proposed project would provide an all-American way for the waters carried to Imperial Valley. They propose that with the energy to be created by the power plant waters be raised to the northeasterly lower spur of the Pilot Knob Mountains, which is on American soil, and from there they would have a gravity flow for the mesa lands along the easterly side of Imperial Valley, for the main basin of the valley, and for the westerly side of the valley, if the project is made extensive enough to carry a canal around the upper end of the Imperial country.

HOLD BACK THE SILT.

Another argument that is propounded in favor of the new scheme is that by creating the vast storage basin the silt would be precipitated in storage, and practically clear water would be drawn off for the irrigation canals, thus solving the present constant problem of getting rid of the silt.

As to waters for the Mexican lands, the proponents of the plan declare that, of necessity, there must be provided an ample supply through the great dam, as this would be imperative in order to produce the necessary electrical energy, and that through this means the vexed question of Mexico's proportion of the Colorado River waters would adjust itself.

The vast bulk of water that could be conserved by this project, pro

"WHEEL OF FLAME" IN GOTHAM WITH NINE PYROTECHNIC SPOKES

Fifteen Thousand Men and Women in Madison Square Garden Set a Punctuation Mark Forty Minutes Long to the Confidence of the Candidate that He will be Elected Next Tuesday President of the United States.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 4.—Cheered by vast throngs and acclaimed "Our next President," Charles Evans Hughes made five speeches to Manhattan audiences this afternoon, rode at the head of a torchlight parade, and wound up his campaign at a mammoth Republican rally which jammed the historic Madison Square Garden and overflowed for blocks into the surrounding streets and park.

The head of a great torchlight procession was called a "wheel of flame," the "nine spokes" of which converged upon Fifth avenue. Many thousands of men, each carrying a flaming torch, were in line as the processions came together, one after another. So long was the parade that it was split into two sections, one of which marched up Fifth avenue and the other up Madison avenue to the garden.

The broad avenues were filled with long ribbons of light as the Republican cohorts moved onward. Interspersed at frequent intervals were bands which played martial and patriotic airs. The car in which the candidate rode was the only automobile in line.

Much excitement was caused by an explosion in North street, only a few feet from Mr. Hughes as he sat in his automobile waiting for one of the divisions of the parade to start. It was believed at first that a bomb had been hurled at the nominee but Inspector Egan of the bureau of combustibles declared a photographer's flashlight powder caused the explosion. The only persons injured, the police said, were two newspaper men, who were slightly hurt.

With Mr. Hughes in his car were A. B. Hepburn and two detectives. The nominee did not seem perturbed by the incident and smilingly acknowledged the plaudits of the crowds through which he passed as the paraders moved on, fourteen abreast.

THOUSANDS THERE.

The swelling, surging cheers of 15,000 men and women in Madison Square Garden set a punctuation mark, forty minutes long to the confidence of Charles E. Hughes that he will be elected President of the United States next Tuesday.

A short while before he had been acclaimed as "Our next President," from a few blocks north of City Hall on past Fifty-seventh street by uncounted thousands who lined the streets while he rode at the head of one of the greatest political parades on record.

It would have taken more than the drizzling rain, it seemed, to dampen the intense ardor of New York Republicans when their candidate led his triumphant march up through the city. And nothing short of exhaustion seemed likely to stop the garden cheers when Mr. Hughes stepped into the great assemblage for the grand finale of the Republican campaign in the State and nation.

Somebody must have sensed his coming. A voice in the gallery interrupted Gov. Whitman's speech to shout "Three cheers for Hughes," just as the crowd in the rear of the garden parted for Mr. Hughes and his party.

GLIMPSE OF HUGHES.

Every man and woman in the place stood up on chairs to catch a glimpse while testing his or her lung power in a mighty roar that for forty minutes knew no let-up. In a jiffy Mr. Hughes was in his place beside Gov. Whitman, William M. McCalder, Chairman Willcox, Oscar Straus, Comptroller William A. Prendergast and other celebrities. It was just a bedlam after that. It swelled of its own accord, was still swelling when Mr. Prendergast tried to stop it to introduce Mr. Hughes. "He will now address you." Began Mr. Prendergast, continuing with difficulty because of the interruptions. "Needs no introduction. The nation knows him, I, however, shall take the liberty of addressing him as the nation will address him on March 4, next." Then turning and bowing to Mr. Hughes he said: "Mr. President," and the crowd went at it anew. "Our next President," yelled a galleryite. "Charles E. Hughes."

Through the speech the enthusiasm knew no bounds. It was a glorious windup to the former Justice's magnificent campaign.

MRS. HUGHES THERE.

Mrs. Hughes, accompanied by her three daughters, Helen, Catherine and Elizabeth, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Hughes, Jr., and several friends, were among the early arrivals at the garden. They occupied a box in the center of the garden.

The Columbus (O.) Republican Glee Club of 100 voices entertained the crowd inside the garden prior to the arrival of the Presidential candidate.

William A. Prendergast, comptroller of the city of New York, formally opened the meeting at 7:50 o'clock. Speaking of a reunited Republican party he referred to that "wonderful American," Theodore Roosevelt. Instantly the crowd began to cheer and the demonstration lasted several minutes.

Mr. Hughes entered the hall at 9:15, while Gov. Whitman was speaking. The Governor's speech was abruptly ended by a prolonged roar by the audience. The crowd then began to shout, "Hughes, Hughes, Hughes," "We want Hughes." The nominee waved a small flag. The crowd settled down after fifteen minutes to a steady rhythm of "Hughes, Hughes, Hughes." The cheering had been going on twenty-six minutes when Mrs. Hughes was escorted to the balcony beside her husband. At this the audience redoubled its noise. Charles E. Hughes, Jr., and his wife followed, then the nominee's daughters, so that the nominee's entire family was grouped around him.

At the end of thirty minutes the crowd had settled down to a steady stamping of feet in unison. A band played a verse of "Auld Lang Syne," and when it stopped, the cheering and stamping began again.

A mammoth flag was unfurled from the ceiling, the band played the "Star Spangled Banner," and the audience ceased cheering to sing.

Mr. Hughes was introduced at 9:55 o'clock, after the demonstration had lasted forty minutes.

"My voice is worn, but my heart is stout and my confidence is complete that we are marching to a triumphant victory next Tuesday."

THE LOS ANGELES ADVERTISING SCORE.

In printing the advertising records of all the daily and Sunday newspapers in Los Angeles every day The Times does not attempt to mislead or deceive its readers by using figures that concern only certain kinds of advertising. It boldly publishes the figures of all classes of advertising printed in each local newspaper.

The juggling of figures is left to those newspapers that dare not tell the whole truth and that have not the courage or fairness to make honest comparisons.

For the week ending Sunday, October 29, the Los Angeles newspapers published the following number of lines of advertising (300 agate lines make one column:)

Proposed Great Storage Basin.

Another view of the Storage Basin.

To impound water for Imperial and Yuma valley.

Above are photos of the dam and basin in which it is proposed to store water for irrigation purposes in the Imperial and the Yuma valleys. The upper panel, a view just above Laguna dam, where the new project would raise thirty-five feet above the low-water stage. The other two panels contain views of the upper end of the proposed great storage basin, several miles above Laguna dam. The plan is so to store water as virtually to take out of it the silt before it reaches the canals in which it is conducted to the magnificent farms where two crops of most everything are raised every year.

Discussion.

OPINIONS SPLIT ON BIG RECLAMATION PROJECT.

Wide Discussion Certain to Result from the Publicity Given Plans—Imperial Valley People Question Practicability of Proposed Greater Yuma Enterprise, but Agree Ends Sought Merit Thorough Investigation.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL CENTRO, Nov. 4.—As is natural, there is a diversity of opinion among Imperial Valley people as to the merits or advisability of the proposed greater Yuma project. That publicity on the general plan will bring forth widespread discussion is evident from expressions heard in the valley cities today.

In Calexico this morning, one well-known engineer who has spent years in considering the water problems of Imperial Valley said:

"The entire scheme is chimerical. In the first place, the Southern Pacific Company has been making deep borings to ascertain the character of the earth conditions at Yuma and has determined there is no suitable stratum for the holding of a great dam. A dam such as proposed would have such enormous pressure placed upon it that it would not hold.

"With the use of Hanlon Heading for power generating purposes, we could get practical results in pumping the water onto new highlands.

"The proposed scheme at Yuma I consider entirely impracticable and not worthy of attention. It would not settle the silt problem nor could it settle the all-American route without excessive expense of construction and maintenance. The time may come when we shall have to hook up with the Laguna Dam, but it is probable that even that will be brought about simply as a matter of political expedience and not as an actual engineering need."

MR. ALLISON'S VIEW.

On the other hand, K. Chester Allison, formerly chief engineer of the California Development Company, said:

"My scheme for the future supply of water for the Imperial Valley is governed by our past experiences and the experiences of other projects on the Colorado. This valley has demonstrated that it can take care of itself in the future, as in the past, by more or less temporary measures. When the time comes for permanent work on the Colorado River to supply areas of land in the Imperial project, the solution of our water and silt problem must be wholly and not partly attained.

"I sincerely hope all interests can be brought together to the end that such a dam and such a works can be constructed at the natural site for such a dam, between Prison Hill and old Yuma, with extension to the mesas on the California and Arizona side."

VIEW IN CALEXICO.

J. M. Edmunds of Calexico, one of the directors of the Imperial Irrigation District, said:

"While the greater project is so immense in its scope that we over in Imperial Valley can scarcely grasp it, as yet, if it proves practicable from an engineering standpoint, undoubtedly it will be given most serious consideration. The proposed reclamation of new land would create an empire of itself. So far, the sentiment for joining the Imperial and Yuma projects has comparatively few advocates in this valley. Were the greater project determined practicable, doubtless there would be a careful consideration that might markedly change public sentiment."

Leroy Holt, another director of the Imperial district, said:

"Directors of this district who have visited Yuma and have had the big project outlined to them, have done so merely as individuals. The project has not been discussed in any meetings of our board. I have been aware of the plan for some little time, but upon engineering reports depends how seriously the whole plan should be considered. It is undoubtedly immense in its scope and, if practicable, would open up wonderful development possibilities.

"But, in any event, the directors of this district believe they should go right ahead with plans for the creation of a new intake above Hanlon Heading. We have asked our engineers to prepare the plans for vided engineers find it a practicable one, would create an immense lake that would submerge the basin of the Gila River and the lands around Bard, including part of the Yuma Indian Reservation. In such case, the government doubtless would issue lieu land scrip and take the mesa lands.

It is argued that the proposed plan is one of vital importance to Yuma as it would be the means of solving the problems of Gila River floods. The proposed storage reservoir would reach out to include the Gila basin, and would conserve these floods. It is the Gila River that caused the flood troubles on the Colorado River. Engineers declare that they are able to handle the high water stages of the Colorado itself, but it is the tempestuous Gila that pours down its torrential floods, without check or hindrance. Yuma has deeply suffered from the Gila floods in years past, and its most disastrous experience was that of last January.

COLORADO'S FLOW.

The average flow of the Colorado River is 17,000,000 acre-feet per year, and the flow of the Gila River is from 0 to 3,000,000 acre-feet per year—some years being so dry that there is practically no flow, while in other years disastrous floods charge down its course. The irrigation areas now use approximately 4,000,000 acre-feet of water. The limit of expansion, based on the average low water stage of the Colorado River, has already been reached. Yet, with the proposed conservation of waters, it is claimed that more than 1,000,000 acres of virgin lands in the United States alone, could be brought under semitropic verdure.

There is a growing sentiment in the Imperial Valley that its irrigation system must go under the Reclamation Service. The new project would not in any sense interfere with that idea, but would be of such proportions that the cost per acre would be comparatively nominal, say the proponents of the new idea. It is interesting to note, in this connection, that the government does not demand payments on lands under its irrigation projects until the project work is completed, so that, were the great Yuma projects plan taken up, it would be several years before the payments would become due, while, in the meantime, it is believed that service would be given to an extent possible with the advancement of the work. Imperial Valley people, it is claimed, would have their present water rights credited to them on the new system, were it carried through.

QUESTION OF CAPITAL.

The question of capital for such an enormous proposition as that entailed by the plans discussed, has also been given some thought by the new project's proponents. They declare that Los Angeles and San Diego alone could well afford to provide the necessary means for the work, because of the vast acreage of lands that would be brought into productivity and that would find their markets in these cities; but they also declare their belief that the government itself, should it become convinced of the practicability of the plan, would readily provide the necessary funds, in order that the Reclamation Service might make a magnificent showing in the greater Yuma project. They estimate that the proposed work would require an outlay of from $20,000,000 to $25,000,000, but that so vast would be the acreage to be brought under irrigation the cost per acre would not exceed $15 or $20.

While the project which was first evolved in the brain of Charles Meadows is still in the stage of discussion and "figerrin'" so deep is the interest that it has evoked that there is every reason to believe its merits will be gone into closely by competent engineers, and should the final investigations result favorably a strong movement will be started to interest the Reclamation Service in the plan.

ATTRACTION.

Naturally, there are many persons who do not look upon the proposed plan with favor. As one engineer has expressed it, "There are almost as many plans for the control of the Colorado River and the handling of its flood waters as are the number of the engineers who have studied its phases." Yet the very bigness of the Meadows scheme makes it attractive, and it is certain to create wide discussion and careful investigation.

An interesting and sentimental little feature of the proposed project is the fact that if the great storage basin is created it will cover the picturesque point of Prison Hill that juts out into the Colorado River and on which is located the prison cemetery. The Yuma prison was built in 1875, and maintained until a few years ago, when the prison was removed to Florence. During its history at Yuma the prison housed numerous noted criminals. The cemetery, which would be submerged, contains the graves of men who died natural deaths in prison or who were executed. The bodies were buried in quick lime in the outstanding promontory that overlooks the swiftly-flowing Colorado.

The Yuma Commercial Club, the live booster organization of the Yuma Valley, held a meeting at its headquarters on Thursday evening of last week, and adopted the following resolutions:

"Resolved, that it is the sense of the Yuma County Commercial Club that the proposed plan for a greater Yuma project, whereby a dam to reach from the Speese Mesa in California, to the San Pasqual Mesa, in California, would be built, with Prison Hill and Indian Hill as portions of the dam, is of such vast importance, in view of the possibility of bringing under irrigation fully 1,000,000 acres of American land, and vast thousands of acres located below the international boundary, that it deserves the serious consideration of the engineers of the United States Reclamation Service.

"Resolved, that it is the sense of this club that steps should be taken at once to secure, through some practical source, investigations of engineers for the purpose of ascertaining definitely the practicability of this plan."

WILSON CLOSES HIS CAMPAIGN.

POLL BY NEW YORK "HERALD" GIVES WILSON A SLIGHT LEA

For the First Time in the History of the New York Paper's Enterprise the Promot It Refuse to Make a Definite Statement — Straw Ballots by States Held to b Entirely Insufficient in View of Conditions.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 4.—The Herald presents herewith the final installment of its national straw-vote canvass on the Presidency. In the 250,000 votes cast, President Wilson is in the lead.

The situation rests on a balance so delicate that a hair's weight may swing it in either direction.

IFS AND ANDS.

From the straw vote it might be inferred that with a little added impetus the drift which has been steadily moving in the President's direction might grow into what political writers have termed a "landslide."

On the other hand, a back drift at the eleventh hour might result in the election of Mr. Hughes by a small margin in the popular vote of important States, giving a preponderance of votes in the Electoral College.

The Herald has taken its straw vote with customary care. In some instances the conclusions which might be drawn from the figures are contradictory to the opinions of leaders of both parties, are at variance with the personal judgment of the correspondents who have so recently visited different States. The Herald presents the straw-vote figures for precisely what they are worth. They speak for themselves, as they have in all previous campaigns.

THE FINAL ESTIMATE.

The straw ballots would apportion the 531 electoral votes as follows:

VIEW OF THE HERALD.

The Herald has been told that there has been a recession in the swing toward the President; that Republicans who were alarmed ten days ago have every reason now for a feeling of confidence. The straw vote has not registered a marked drift toward Mr. Hughes, although there are indications that there has been a slight check in the vote of the President's gain. Of the total votes cast up to and including the seventh week of the canvass Mr. Hughes received 48.2 per cent. In the first week's totals he received 51.6 per cent. In the final week President Wilson received 49.2 per cent. In the first week he received 46.4 per cent. In other words, the President has climbed steadily in the straw vote.

In the latter part of September Mr. Hughes was getting 80 per cent. of the Progressive vote and the President 17 per cent. In the final week, which, for the actual casting of test ballots, ended on Thursday, Mr. Hughes was receiving 73.6 per cent. and the President 25.1 per cent. The remainder went to Benson, the Socialist nominee.

States which, in the test voting, have given 50 per cent. or more to the President have a total of 193 electoral votes. The solid South—the States of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas—which will be for the Democracy, has 114 electoral votes. These two figures make a total of 307, which is forty-one more than the 266 necessary for election.

States which, in the test balloting, have given 50 per cent. or more to Mr. Hughes have an electoral vote of 182, with Pennsylvania (forty-eight) and Utah (four) added to this, the total is 224. In the first week of the straw vote campaign, out of 14,592 votes, Mr. Hughes received a majority of 1649. By using only a third of California's top-heavy vote in the tabulations—California giving an overwhelming majority for the Republican ticket — Mr. Hughes would have had a plurality of 775.

In the second week, by figuring California the same way, Mr. Hughes would have a lead of 1461 instead of 381. In the third week the figures would have been 1250 instead of 4184.

THE FOURTH WEEK.

In the fourth week the figures would have been 1132 instead of 4926.

In the fifth week there would have been a Wilson majority of 335 instead of a Hughes majority of 3727.

In the sixth week there was a Wilson plurality of 6793 instead of a Hughes lead of 722.

In the final week the Wilson plurality would have been 7472 instead of 2672.

The Herald makes these comparisons because it would seem fair to incorporate in the tals what amounted to a the total vote cast in the States. California's share was one-tenth and it showed whelming majority each week the Republicans.

Likewise, if the votes of Ca were reduced two-thirds, as it have been, the percentage of tal vote, as the canvass closed, ing to the President, would per cent., and to Mr. Hughes per cent., Mr. Benson getting difference.

In all the Republican estim linois and Michigan are pl the Republican column, unreservedly; Illinois with th mission that the women may turn it. With the twenty-nine from Illinois and the fifteen Michigan the figures 224 w increased to 263, two more th number needed to elect.

BRITISH PATROL BOAT SINKS GERMAN DIVER.

Berlin Reports that English Vessel was Flying the American Flag.

[BY WIRELESS AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Nov. 4 (via Sayville.)—The German Admiralty has furnished to the Associated Press correspondent the details of what is characterized as a second Baralong case, in which a British patrol ship flying American colors, it is declared, after destroying submarine U-41, deliberately ran down a lifeboat with the only two survivors of the undersea boat in an endeavor to remove the only witnesses and has thus prevented the intended victims, who were almost miraculously saved, from communicating the news to their own government.

FACTS JUST LEARNED.

The incident, according to the Admiralty, occurred on September [illegible], 1915, and has only just been learned of through an invalid prisoner transferred to Switzerland. The submarine, according to the Admiralty account, had halted in the neighborhood of the Scilly Isles for examination of a steamer under the American flag, apparently an innocent merchantman. The steamer ostensibly prepared to lower a boat, but when the submarine had approached to within 300 yards the supposed merchantman suddenly opened concealed ports and began firing from two cannon and also with rifles, the American flag flying the whole time, the account continues.

DIVER LOST.

The submarine, irreparably damaged, went under, but was able to come to the surface later for an instant and Lieut. Crompton, severely wounded, and Petty Officer Godau, managed to crawl out through an open hatch before the submarine sank forever.

The sole survivors ultimately managed to swim to an empty boat. The steamer, observing this, according to the Admiralty details, headed full speed for the boat, not to save, but to ram it, placing a lookout in the steamer's bow to facilitate accurate steering. The Germans at the last moment sprang from the boat and clung to the wreckage of it for a half-hour, when the steamer finally picked them up.

The wounded lieutenant, Crompton, and his comrade were left without the slightest medical attention in a small cage on the steamer's deck until her arrival at Falmouth the following day, it is declared, although the lieutenant had a double fracture of the jawbone, a broad wound across the nose and cheek, wounds in the left temple and on the finger, and an eye shot out. It was not until September 29 that the lieutenant was transferred to a shore battleship, clad at the time only in his underclothing, being transferred on November 6 to the military prison in York Castle, whence the officer, whose wounds were still open and who was threatened with the loss of the other eye, was sent in mid-December to Dyffryn, Wales, the account states.

An Admiralty officer, recalling the newspaper reports of some time ago that the British government, having been forced by German retaliatory measures to abandon drastic treatment of captives from submarines, had given orders to take no submarine prisoners, but to send them to the bottom with their vessels, declared to the correspondent, this case with that of the Baralong, should be considered as furnishing all necessary proof that the undenied story regarding the government order, was true.

TWO BRITISH SHIPS LOST WITH A HUNDRED LIVES.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Nov. 4, 3:50 p.m.—In one of the worst gales ever known in the Irish Sea, the British steamship Connemara, with passengers and a cargo of cattle from Greenore, Ireland, for Holyhead, Wales, collided last night just outside the Carlington bar with the steamship Retriever, laden with coal. Both vessels sank immediately with an estimated loss of life of about 100.

Of the fifty passengers and crew of thirty-one aboard the Connemara, there is only one survivor. It is virtually certain there were no Americans on board. The entire crew of the Retriever were lost.

Many bodies are being washed ashore on the Irish coast. Numbers of cattle also are being washed up, some alive.

The weather was so rough that it would have been impossible to launch any boats, even had time permitted.

A dispatch from Newry, thirty-four miles southwest of Belfast received by the London Press Association, says there were about forty passengers from Newry on board the Connemara.

A Lloyd's distpatch from Belfast says the collision occurred off Carlingford Lough, an inlet on the Irish coast between the counties of Down and Louth. The Retriever was inward-bound.

A few bodies have been washed ashore on the county Down coast. A dispatch says it is feared 300 lives have been lost.

The marine superintendent of the London and Northwestern Railway said that so far as he knew there were only fifty passengers on the Connemara. Her crew numbered thirty-one.

The Connemara, 1100 tons gross, and 272 feet long, was built in Dunbarton in 1896.

The Retriever was 190 feet long, of 674 tons gross, and was built in Goole, Eng., in 1909. She was owned by the West Coast of America Telegraph Company of London.

A steamer service is maintained by the London and Northwestern Railway between Holyhead, Wales, and Grecnore, Ireland a distance of about eighty miles across the Irish Sea.

HUGHES ON THE WAVE PROMISES TO LAND HIM.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 4.—The campaign of 1916, which has had no counterpart since 1896, came virtually to a close here today, with Charles E. Hughes, the Republican candidate, apparently on the crest of a wave which, it is believed, will land him a winner at the polls next Tuesday. Although this view of the outcome is hotly disputed by the Democratic campaign managers, it is manifest that only an abnormal turnover in the voting strength of the contending parties can produce any other result. And, notwithstanding the personal popularity of the President with many classes of voters, it is doubted among the most conservative of his own followers that this handicap can be overcome.

THE TRUTH.

Somewhere between the publicly-expressed estimates of the two campaign managers lies the truth. An effort has been made to obtain the facts through the private judgment of the managers and experienced political observers who get reports at first hand. There are more than a score of such persons here today who have traveled over the country for two months, talking with the leaders, meeting with the voters and appraising such conditions in each State as have a bearing on the Presidential contest. Two-thirds of these men today expressed the opinion that Mr. Hughes stands the best chance of being elected. A consensus of their opinion is represented in the following table of votes:

States which will go Republican:

New Hampshire	4

STATE ASSIGNMENTS.

There is no doubt that the assignment of some of these States to one side or the other is more or less arbitrary, especially from the point of view of those who believe that Wilson will win. The eastern Democratic managers object to giving Mr. Hughes Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, where, in their judgment, Mr. Wilson actually will win this election. They object to classing Ohio as Republican and with some basis of reason. Ohio is undoubtedly the surprise of the campaign and it was the Ohio scare of two weeks ago that encouraged the Democrats most. If it were not for their belief that they may carry Ohio the Democrats would not today claim any of the Midwestern States. By the same token, believing the balance of the Middle West is going for Hughes by reduced pluralities the impartial observers believe they cannot consistently exclude Ohio entirely from the Hughes column.

It is patent that if New York should be carried by Mr. Wilson, Mr. Hughes might be defeated unless he made an unexpected gain elsewhere. At this writing the loss of New York by the Republicans would be a greater surprise to both sides than an unexpected gain in a border State. From indications Mr. Hughes will win in this State, notwithstanding the fact that the ovation given President Wilson on Thursday was greater than Tammany expected or planned for. There is much the same feeling among the voters here that obtains in most of the Northern States. The President has a following in many unexpected quarters, but the belief prevails among political leaders that while the Republican normal plurality may be greatly reduced the Wilson vote will fall short of a victory. Generally speaking, this feeling among those who have studied the political situation also applies to Connecticut, Delaware, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota, which are regarded as important States in this contest. The Democrats believe they can win the election without New York, but not without the big Middle West States. The Republicans believe they can win without Ohio, but must have the other States named.

MAIN RELIANCE.

A readjustment of campaign lines by both parties during the past week shows in part where both sides are placing their main reliance to win. In all of the big Northern States the Republicans are giving the closest possible attention to the vote outside of industrial centers. The result in Connecticut and New York depends largely on the rural vote, although the foreign elements in New York City are changing sides in many instances. The same thing is true in Michigan, where it is Detroit and other manufacturing cities against the country. In Ohio, where it is Cleveland and Toledo and Columbus against the rural districts and the smaller cities and towns. Cincinnati, which has a large German population, like St. Louis and Milwaukee, presents an aspect somewhat outside the general rule. In Illinois the Democrats lay special stress on Chicago.

Illinois also presents another phase upon which the Democrats are laying the greatest possible emphasis—the woman vote. They honestly believe they will get 60 per cent. of that vote wherever cast and for that reason decline to relinquish hope that they will win in the twelve suffrage States of Illinois, California, Colorado, Idaho, Utah, Washington, Wyoming, Arizona, Kansas, Montana, Nevada and Oregon, with ninety-one electoral votes. Voting does not substantiate the Democratic claim for any such swing of votes, either among the women or any other class of voters. No suffrage State has changed its politics since suffrage became a fact.

The same conditions prevail relative to the labor vote, for which President Wilson has made a special bid. His recent speeches have been well calculated to draw that vote to his support, but the Republicans have not been idle. Apparently, the Republicans and Progressives are going to the polls to vote for Charles E. Hughes. The success of the amalgamation of the two parties has been one of the outstanding features of the campaign.

SAN DIEGO COMPANY MUST REDUCE RATES.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4.—The State Railroad Commission ordered the San Diego Consolidated Gas and Electric Company today to reduce its residential and commercial electric light rates from a minimum meter rate of $1 to 75 cents. There were no changes ordered in the company's gas rates. The commission's decision came as the result of a petition made by the gas and electric company asking the commission to fix the company's rates, rules and regulations.

Municipal street lighting rates for San Diego and other communities in San Diego county served by the company were also reduced by the commission.

The reductions in all instances are those offered by the company and all such reductions were accepted by the commission.

COMFORT & CONVENIENCE

COUNT FIFTY! NO RHEUMATIC PAIN

Don't suffer! Instant relief follows a rubbing with "St. Jacobs Oil."

Stop "dosing" rheumatism.

It's pain only; not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" right on the "tender spot," and by the time you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain and distress. "St. Jacobs Oil" conquers pain! It is a harmless rheumatism liniment which never disappoints and doesn't burn the skin. It take pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, backache, neuralgia and reduces swelling.

Limber up! Get a small trial bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and in a moment you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer! Rub rheumatism away.

TRY THIS FOR A COLD—IT'S FINE!

"Pape's Cold Compound" ends severe colds or grippe in few hours.

You can end grippe and break up a severe cold either in head, chest, body or limbs, by taking a dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" every two hours until three doses are taken.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharge or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffing! Ease your throbbing head—nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice and causes no inconvenience. Be sure you get the genuine.

MAN DISCOVERS CAUSE OF FALLING HAIR

Thought It Was Dandruff, but Prof. John H. Austin, Bacteriologist, Hair and Scalp Specialist of Chicago, Showed the Ailment to be "Alopecia Pityrodes."

Prof. Austin, who has had 37 years' experience in conditions of the hair and scalp and is now at Hamburger's, says there are about sixty different ailments to which the hair and scalp are subject. For instance, there is the above mentioned common scalp trouble, Alopecia Pityrodes—it starts with a scaling of the scalp, sometimes slight, called "dandruff," sometimes abundant—producing thick, grayish-white dry or greasy scales—which leads to falling hair. This stage lasts from two to seven years, as a rule.

At first, when the hair starts to fall, it is hardly noticeable, but as this ailment, "Alopecia Pityrodes," becomes more deeply seated, and the germs multiply, as they always do, the falling of the hair increases rapidly and in time the top of the head becomes entirely bald. Both men and women of all ages are subject to "Alopecia Pityrodes," but particularly those between the ages of 20 and 35 years.

Then, there are different stages of itching scalp, falling hair, excessively oily hair, dandruff, split hair, dry and brittle hair, and so on.

Prof. Austin has found that only the most powerful microscope can determine the exact trouble with which your hair is afflicted.

Prof. Austin says that the use of mange cures, dandruff cures, hair tonic, vaseline and elixirs is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure.

The right remedy at the right time is a certain cure. Guesswork is of no practical value concerning hair troubles.

During the past 22 months, Prof. Austin has taught thousands of people how to stop falling hair, grow new hair, remove dandruff, and relieve itching scalp.

See Prof. Austin any day this week—both men and women are invited to take advantage of this Free Microscopic Examination of the hair and scalp. Prof Austin's private office, Second Floor, Hamburger's. Hours 10 to 12 and 2 to 4 daily.

HELD ON SUSPICION OF REDDING MURDER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

REDDING (Cal.) Nov. 4.—Alexander V. Naimes was arrested on suspicion here today after he had informed the police that two unidentified men had come to his residence last night and murdered Rosetta Durbin, his housekeeper, and John Pollock, his guest. Subsequent investigation resulted in the finding of the pair's decapitated bodies lying in the opening in front of Naimes's residence.

Names told the authorities that he fled in fear late last night when two men called at his house. As he was fleeing, he said, he heard cries for help from the Durbin woman and Pollock. A broad ax, according to the police, was the murderer's weapon.

The dead woman had been housekeeper for Naimes for some time, but Pollock had been visiting him for only a few days. The police stated tonight that Naimes had a criminal record.

A GUST OF WIND BETRAYS A CONVICT.

SAN QUENTIN, Nov. 4.—A vagrant gust of wind today frustrated a daring attempt of E. G. Stackpole, serving a life term for murder committed in Los Angeles in 1907, to escape from San Quentin. Stackpole, who has been employed as a caretaker around the officers' headquarters, secured a key to the quarters of Captain of the Guard Charles Gulliver.

Watching his opportunity, Stackpole slipped unobserved into the officer's room, donned his uniform and proceeded to "make up" as Capt. Gulliver. He manufactured a mustache out of mattress shoddy and appropriating one of the officer's cigars, tilted it at the proper angle and walked without difficulty past the guards at the gate of the outer wall. ust as the gate swung open and freedom was within easy reach, a gust of wind swept the mustache from the prisoner's face. Guard Thomas Pacheco saw the mustache drop and captured Stackpole, who surrendered without resistance.

FRIEND OF EDWARD IS DEAD IN PARIS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Nov. 4, 4:35 p.m.—The Marquis Henri de Breteuil, a famous personage in Parisian society and intimate friend of the late King Edward of England, is dead.

Marquis de Breteuil married Miss Garner of New York twenty-five years ago. He enjoyed the friendship of many members of the royal family of England and frequently entertained them, in France. He served with distinction in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, was a Knight of the Legion of Honor and twice was a member of the Chamber of Deputies.

THE WEATHER ELSEWHERE.

Temperatures Through Middle West are Unseasonably Warm.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 4.—Middle West temperatures continue unseasonably warm. The maximum in Chicago today was 64 deg. and minimum 51 deg. The Ohio Valley was ten degrees above these figures, and St. Louis rose to 80 deg., the same temperature as in New Orleans. Eastern States showed little change from yesterday, with light, scattering rains. Western Canada is warm, averaging around 60 deg., but the eastern provinces are cool. Medicine Hat reported 68 deg. today.

Other temperatures, reported by the United States Weather Bureau, were as follows:

THINK EIGHT MINERS ARE STILL ALIVE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BIRMINGHAM (Ala.) Nov. 4.—The Federal and State rescuers who tonight penetrated the Bessie mine of the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Company, near here, where early today eighteen negroes and nine white men were entombed as the result of a gas explosion believe at least eight of the miners are still alive. This belief is strengthened by the discovery that air is coming through a pipe from the part of the mine in which it is believed the men are trapped.

None o fthe victims has been removed since thi sforenoon, when two unidentified bodies of white men were brought to the surface. They had been decapitated by the explosion.

Three hours after the explosion Birmingham felt an earthquake tremor. The shock lasted thirty seconds and rattled windows and knocked china from cupboards of several homes.

ACTOR IS HELD AS BLACKMAILER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—George Bush, an actor, arraigned in Federal court yesterday charged with blackmailing a prominent Cincinnati businessman, admitted he was the person named in the warrant which led to his arrest. Bush was held in $10,000 bail for hearing on November 10.

According to the complaint, Bush conspired with other members of an alleged band of blackmailers who victimized wealthy men and women throughout the country for "violations" of the Mann act.

AMERICAN STEAMER WILLAPA IS SUNK.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 4.—The American steamer Willapa bound from Bluefield for New Orleans, sank Thursday night off the Nicaraguan coast, according to a cablegram received today by her agents. Capt. Johnson and his crew of twenty-two men were rescued, the message said.

The Willapa was of 752 tons gross and was owned by the Frieberg Lumber Company of Cincinnati.

GLEN LINE STEAMER GLENLOGAN IS SUNK.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Lloyd's reports that the Glen Line steamer Glenlogan possibly has been sunk.

The Glenlogan was a vessel of 3838 tons gross. She was built in 1896. The last report of the Glenlogan shows her as sailing August 22 from Yokohama for London and calling at Colombo, Colon, October 9.

REJECT APPEAL OF LIEBKNECHT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Nov. 4 (via London.)—It was officially announced today that the imperial military tribunal has rejected the appeal of Dr. Karl Liebknecht, the Socialist leader, from the sentence imposed upon him by the court-martial at Berlin.

Dr. Liebknecht was sentenced by a court-martial at Berlin to four years and one month imprisonment for military treason.

GERARD INDORSES PLAN FOR AID TO GERMANS.

Declares in Telegram to Gen. Otis that Idea of Special Appeal on Thanksgiving Day for Starving Women and Children is a Noble One and will Create Better Feeling Between Two Peoples.

FOLLOWING the publication of an earnest statement by Ambassador James W. Gerard in behalf o fthe starving women and children of Germany in The Times, Dr. Dudley Fulton of this city wrote a sympathetic letter to The Times appealing for subscriptions to a fund in behalf of these sufferers. The Times heartily indorsed the idea editorially and a movement was at once organized in Los Angeles by prominent citizens for carrying out the suggestion. The work has been placed in competent hands.

Gen. Harrison Gray Otis wired to Ambassador Gerard, who is now in Washington, outlining the plan of action and indicating that a special appeal would be made on Thanksgiving Day. Gen. Otis suggested that the movement might be made nation-wide and asked for an expression from Ambassador Gerard as to methods of procedure and hope of co-operation. Yesterday Gen. Otis received the following handsome response from Ambassador Gerard:

"NEW YORK, Nov. 4.

"Gen. Harrison Greay Otis,

"Los Angeles Times:

"Thank you for your telegram of the second about the work you are doing to help the widows and orphans of Germany. Your aid is a great encouragement and is characteristic of your well known generous public spirit. I feel that if I can go back to Germany in December taking with me a substantial sum for the widows and orphans that it will do much to help to a better feeling between the people of Germany and America. Your idea of a great Thanksgiving Day appeal is a splendid one, what better time can there be for an appeal to those enjoying the blessings of peace to help the innocent victims of war? I hope you will keep a list of all contributors. Best wishes. Your co-operation means success.

"JAMES W. GERARD."

PLAN WHOLESALE FRAUD IN ARIZONA ELECTION.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Nov. 4.—Hundreds of illegal registrations have been found in many counties of Arizona by detectives of a Los Angeles agency that lately has combed the State. Particularly the detectives have found many cases where men, and even women, have registered as voters after a residence within the State of very much less than the required year. Some have been in Arizona only three months. Also, it has been found that scores have been registered who can neither read nor write, requirements of the State law that should be enforced rigorously.

These irregularities were found on the return to the State Central Committee of undelivered letters, which had been addressed to registered voters. In a single precinct 150 pieces of campaign mail lay undelivered. The addresses could not be found. In a number of instances persons to whom the mail was addressed had not been known in that neighborhood for a year or more.

As completely as possible, all irregular registrations have been checked up and have been placed in the hands of Republican committeemen. All who attempt to vote these names will be arrested at the polls or arrested after they have cast their vote. Conditions are said to be especially bad in Clifton, Morenci, Globe, Miami, Bisbee, Lowell, Ajo, Hayden, Winkelman, Christmas, Jerome, Clarkdale and the Oatman district.

Those arrested for illegal voting may be sent before the United States court, as the Federal Corrupt Practices Act covers an unlawful ballot at an election for any representative to Congress. It is a violation of the United States laws for any person to do any unlawful act to secure an opportunity to vote for himself or any other person, and a punishment is prescribed of fine and imprisonment. The Arizona law in this respect has a penalty up to five years in the penitentiary and also covers the special offense of attempting to vote when not entitled so to do.

NOTED ELECTION EXPERT SAYS IT'S HUGHES, SURE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

M'ALESTER (Okla.) Nov. 4.—For the past twenty years William Noble, former postmaster at McAlester, Okla., delegate to the Progressive National Convention in 1912 and assistant sergeant-at-arms of the Republican National Convention at Chicago in 1916, has guessed correctly the results of Presidential elections of both Republican and Democratic and one year ago predicted that Charles E. Hughes would be nominated by the Republican National Convention and elected President of the United States.

"After a careful canvass and analysis of the Progressive situation I am satisfied that Mr. Hughes will receive not less than 85 per cent. of the Progressive vote throughout the Union, a very large number of women, railroad and independent votes," says Mr. Noble, and that "Mr. Hughes will be overwhelmingly elected, together with a Republican Congress."

LOADING DEUTSCHLAND WILL BEGIN TOMORROW.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW LONDON (Ct.) Nov. 4.—Capt. Paul Koenig of the undersea merchantman Deutschland said tonight that the loading of crude rubber and nickel for the return trip of the submersible would begin Monday morning.

Capt. Koenig gives no credence to continued rumors that the long overdue submarine Bremen will appear at New London. "The Bremen is lost," he said.

Despite denials by Commander Yates Stirling of the submarine base here that orders had been given to patrol the three-mile limit, reports persisted tonight that this was being done by government submarines. Of several of these boats in the outer waters today, two returned tonight, one later leaving for Boston, it was said. The others, it was reported, were still off Block Island.

Services for the crew of the Deutschland will be conducted tomorrow on the North German Lloyd steamer Willehad, which is serving as a quarters ship for the men while the Deutschland remains in port.

BELFAST, Nov. 4.—The loss of life in the disaster to the steamers Retriever and Conemara aggregates ninety-two. Only two persons are known to have been saved.

The crew of the Retriever numbered thirteen, one of whom and also one passenger of the Connemara were saved. The two vessels lie partly submerged within sight of land. Heavy seas are breaking over them.

GERMANS REGRET AIR CRUISE OVER HOLLAND

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The German government has expressed regret for the action of a German airship in cruising over Dutch territory Oct. 22, says a Reuter dispatch from The Hague. The note, according to the correspondent, said that owing to a defect in the motor and the steering gear the commander was compelled to throw out two benzine reservoirs when he thought he was over Belgium.

An Amsterdam dispatch October 23 said a Zeppelin the previous day had dropped a bomb near Gorkum, 22 miles southeast of Rotterdam. A London dispatch October 27 said the Dutch government had protested to Berlin against the violation of Holland's neutrality by the Zeppelin.

DOLLAR WORTH A THIRD LESS THAN IT WAS A YEAR AGO.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 4.—The American dollar has lost 31 cents in purchasing power in the last year. One dollar goes no farther now than 69 cents went a year ago when it comes to buying food, according to an investigation which has been made by the district secretary of the United Charities. The investigation began with the comparison of the government table of food values in calories, a table prepared by scientists of the University of Chicago, and another table worked out by the United Charities. From these tables the district secretaries listed all staple foods upon their proper nutritive basis. The same officials are now considering the relative costs of clothing and household furnishings. Five cents apiece for eggs and 50 cents a pound for butter next month is said to be the prediction of James E. Wertz, a Chicago produce broker, who is reputed to be the largest owner of eggs in the world. Wertz also declares that there is no corner in eggs and that the present and anticipated high prices depend entirely upon the relation of the supply to the demand.

began Mr. Hughes in his Madison Square speech.

"When I first heard your greeting it seemed to sound like a convention, but after a while I thought it sounded like an election."

Mr. Hughes said he desired to express appreciation of the endeavors of those many agencies which have co-operated to bring about the result "to which we look forward so confidently," mentioning some of the agencies by name.

"How about Teddy?" shouted a man in the audience.

A general laugh followed.

"And I include, of course," the nominee said a moment later, "both of our distinguished ex-Presidents who have in their earnest support aided this cause by presenting once more a reunited Republican party as the agency of national service.

"It has been quite apparent for some time that the American people were about to record a very decisive conviction. I think I can forecast the determination which is to be recorded next Tuesday. I believe that the American people have determined that this nation shall regain its international prestige and the rights of American citizens shall be protected throughout the world.

"Every four years we take an account and we do not propose that the politics which endanger the peace, the security and the prosperity of this country shall be removed from the just criticism and reprobation that they deserve. While we are devoted to the interests of peace, we understand very well what are the indispensable conditions of maintaining a permanent peace. It does not aid us in the safeguarding of our security and to have our indomitabel spirit in maintaining our nation's rights.

"The way to preserve peace is to deserve respect. It is idle for anyone to say that a criticism of the policies of the present administration implies either a desire for war or a tendency to war. We propose that this nation shall stand erect before the world with conscious self-respect, prepared for every emergency, devoted to the ideals of justice, not truculent, not threatening, but exhibiting firmness and consistency and indomitable spirit which will show that we mean what we say and that we say what we mean.

"We cannot maintain our peace if we let any nation be under any misapprehension as to the true sentiment of the United States. We ought not to permit misunderstandings of our true intentions and firm convictions. We should in that way merely aid in the creation of feelings which would indubitably breed resentment and in critical emergencies out would flame that old spirit of American patriotism.

"It is better that America should be understood in the beginning and then our nation's truest worth, as well as our respect for ourselves, would never be doubted or misunderstood by any people.

"I believe that the American people are to record in this election an expression of their opinion with respect to the necessity for proper preparation to maintain our national defense. We believe in preparedness, but we do not believe in paper preparations.

"I say to the American people that they cannot trust an administration which has permitted itself to place at the head of our great bureaus of administration men conspicuously unfit to discharge the duties thus devolved upon them.

"I think that the American people are about to record their disaffection with the state of our industrial preparedness. I think that they are alive to the very serious situation in which we are placed. It will not do to make light of it. It will not escape attention by various animadversions and destructive criticisms with regard to American business men."

Mr. Hughes referred in detail to the situation in Europe, reiterating his conviction that a protective tariff would be necessary to aid American industry in meeting comercial competition with Europe after the war.

IDLE HELLO GIRLS ARE GIVEN JOBS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4.—Nearly 200 idle "hello" girls were given temporary employment here today by the Law and Order Committee of the Chamber of Commerce "in a telephonic campaign in support of one of the proposed amendments to the city charter which will be voted upon at next Tuesday's general election.

A temporary "central" with its large switchboard was installed in the assembly hall of a downtown office building and by nightfall tonight it was estimated that 40,000 telephone subscribers had been verbally advised to vote for the adoption of the measure.

The campaign will continue Monday and it is expected that more than 90,000 persons will be talked to in all.

Analysis.

MAJORITY IN THE HOUSE, CLAIM OF REPUBLICANS.

Chairman of Republican Congressional Committee Believes His Party will Have at Least Twenty-seven Lead. Democrats are Making Sweeping Claims, but Give Out no Figures—Situation in Senate is Reviewed.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 4.—The rock bottom number of Republicans in the next House will be 217, compared with a possible 215 Democrats, two Progressives and a Socialist, according to carefully revised figures in the hands of the New York Tribune correspondent. This list concedes to the Democrats virtually every district about which, so far as reliable information can be obtained, there is any reasonable doubt. It claims for the Republicans only those districts which in many instances the Democrats themselves concede, or about which they are admittedly very doubtful.

This is not the claim of the Republicans. Frank P. Woods chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, confidently predicts a majorit" of at least twenty-seven. Working on the same sort of reports, two years ago, Mr. Woods publicly predicted within one of the Democratic majority of the present House.

CLAIM OF DOREMUS.

Representative Doremus of Michigan, chairman of the Democratic National Congressional Committee, tonight issued a sweeping statement claiming the House for the Democrats, but not giving any particulars whatever, not even the majority he thinks his party will have.

Mr. Woods considers the Republicans have an even chance, or better, to obtain control of the Senate. The best information the Tribune can obtain is that the Republicans will cut down the Democratic majority in the Senate to almost eight, and probably less, but that there is practically no chance of the Republicans capturing the Senate.

The present Democratic majority in the Senate is sixteen (figuring that the Republicans hold the one seat from Maine of the late Mr. Burleigh.) The Maine election reduced this majority to fourteen, so that the Republicans would have to gain seven more seats to equal the Democratic strength in the upper house. This result, should they also elect Hughes and Fairbanks, would give them control of the Senate through the deciding vote of the Vice-President

DEMOCRATIC GAINS.

Democratic gains in the House are conceded, according to the tabulation printed below, in three States, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, two seats in each State. Republican gains are expected as follows: Illinois, 5 seats; California, 3; Colorado, 1; Iowa, 1; Kansas, 1; Kentucky, 1; Louisiana 1; Maine, 1; (Already obtained)—Maryland, 1; Massachusetts, 1; Missouri, 1; Montana, 1; Ohio, 1; and Utah, 1; a total of 20.

STRAW-VOTE RESULT IN THE SOUTHWEST.

More than 23,000 straw votes, covering the whole of California, indicate that the State will go for Hughes by a majority of not less than 50,000. Two-thirds of the votes come from Southern California, which is the admitted Hughes stronghold. These show Hughes leading by more than two to one. This section casts nearly one-half the total vote of the State. Wilson is strong in Northern California, especially in San Francisco, Sacramento and the mining counties. Votes of the last two weeks, however, show a swing from Wilson to Hughes in San Francisco among the laboring classes. Six weeks ago these were very strong for Wilson. In Southern California this week Wilson received 332, Hughes 804; Benson, 42. They voted in 1912, Wilson, 314; Taft, 45; Roosevelt, 138.

The vote among the women in California shows that Hughes is a strong favorite. In fact, the votes of the women will increase the totals without affecting appreciably the result. In but a few instances are families divided in their politics. Either the wife follows the husband or the husband follows the wife.

Present indications are that the Republicans will elect eight Congressmen in California.

Arizona — While the straw votes for the whole term give Wilson a lead of 300 votes, that for the last week is in favor of Hughes. This is occasioned in part by the fact that most of the votes come this week from the agricultural districts, where Hughes is strong. The Socialist vote seems to be increasing. This is hurting Wilson. The total vote for Benson in this State, as in California, New Mexico and Nevada, would be greater but for the fact that during the first two weeks no Benson votes were counted, the poll being confined to Wilson and Hughes.

New Mexico — Hughes maintains his lead in this State. The administration's Mexican policy has made Wilson unpopular along the border and the Republican strength is growing as the date of election approaches. Only the main centers of population have been covered in the canvass. The Democrats claim that the mining districts will give a big vote to Wilson, but this is not borne out by the straw vote, which included three big mining camps.

Nevada — Despite Democratic claims, the straw vote continues to show Hughes leading in this State. His lead is slight, but it has been maintained all through the canvass. The Socialist campaign continues to be a feature. Here the Socialists of the whole country have centered a forlorn hope to capture a United States Senatorship and to secure some Socialist votes in the Electoral College. The straw ballot indicates that they will succeed in neither; but it shows clearly that the anti-Hughes vote is divided between Wilson and Benson. This State like Arizona, is in the doubtful class. Indications are that the vote for United States Senator will be very close between the Republicans and Democrats; a few hundred votes may decide. There are two Socialist colonies in the southern part of the State that are reported to be almost unanimous for Benson. These were not reached by the straw ballot.

MASKED BANDITS BLOW OPEN SAFE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

CALGARY (Alberta) Nov. 4.—Two masked highwaymen blew open the safe of the Merchants' Bank of Canada at Oketoks, thirty miles south of Calgary, at 2 o'clock this morning and escaped, presumably in an automobile, with the cash that was in the safe, about $7000. The robbers, before going to the bank, cut the telephone and telegraph wires at each end of the town, and the authorities here did not learn of the crime until a motor car arrived here from Oketoks with the news. A member of the staff who slept in the bank was held up at the point of a revolver and gagged and bound. The robbery was exactly the same in method as that committed at Caron, Sask., recently.

GREEN RESIGNS ROCKEFELLER JOB.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Jerome D. Green has resigned as secretary of the Rockefeller Foundation, it was learned here today. He announced his purpose to withdraw, it was stated authoritatively at the last meeting of the board of trustees, and his resignation is to take effect "at his own pleasure."

No explanation was available at the Foundation's offices as to Mr. Greene's reason. It was said that his action was voluntary and that an explanation might come from him. He is in Washington, it is understood.

It was definitely stated that Mr. Green's withdrawal did not carry with it a retirement from other Rockefeller business and philanthropic interests.

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff.

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three of four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

Close Finish.

to begin with. There are more Republicans than there are Democrats. Those two facts and nothing more induce one observer to say with confidence:

It will be Hughes!

Twenty States, casting 252 votes in the Electoral College, may be counted as surely for Hughes. He must have fourteen more votes to win. New Jersey, with just that number, is almost certain to go Republican. There are also West Virginia, with 8; Connecticut, with 7, and Wisconsin, with 13—all of which lean toward Hughes. Twenty States, casting 197 votes in the Electoral College, may be counted as surely for Wilson. He must have sixty-nine more to win. If Colorado with 6, Delaware with 3, Ohio with 24 and Washington with 7, swing in behind Wilson—and the surface indications in all these States indicate a leaning toward the Democrats—still the President is 29 short of the required 266.

He might carry West Virginia, Connecticut and Wisconsin, put down in the Hughes doubtful column, and then taste the bitter cup of defeat, but if Hughes carries New Jersey—an extremely probable outcome—or any other two of the States in the Hughes doubtful column, he will win.

OHIO DOUBTFUL.

Ohio is certainly doubtful and probably for Wilson, judging on conditions which were true one week ago. Since then the Republican managers report a change for the better, but probably not more than enough to elect Herrick Senator and Willis Governor.

If Ohio is doubtful, people ask, why is Indiana, a neighboring and sympathetic State, certain for Hughes?

The answer would require too detailed an explanation, but things are different in Indiana.

In the great Republican State of Illinois (twenty-nine votes) approximately 500,000 women are qualified to cast ballots for Presidential electors. The women of Illinois never before have had a voice in a national campaign. It is said that this tremendous feminine influence, about which nobody pretends to know, makes Illinois a doubtful State. If that be true, and if the doubt finally be resolved in favor of Wilson, the twenty-nine votes might be just enough to win, provided he also carries Colorado, Delaware, Ohio and Washington.

NEW YORK.

Hughes could not possibly win without the forty-five votes of New York. Wilson could, but probably wouldn't, for the opinion of the voters of this State, comprising 10 per cent. of the voters of the nation, is probably typical.

It is just as true this year as it has been in a score of campaigns, that, "as goes New York so goes the election." This makes it most important to know what the apparent conditions are in the biggest State.

"Hughes will "come down to the Bronx" with at least 125,000 plurality. That appears to be the irreducible minimum. In their sane and sober moments Democratic managers here do not venture to predict or hope for a majority in the five counties of the city greater than 90,000. The most confident whisper heard in Tammany now is less than that.

If 90,000 is the best "below the Bronx" can do and 125,000 is the worst "above the Bronx" can do, then that little difference of 35,000 becomes a mighty fortress, against which the unterrified will strive in vain.

Any one who attempts to say within 50,000 how the State of New York with its more than 5000 voting precincts and its more than 1,600,000 registered electors, is going, ought to apply for a padded cell. It is not possible to say; and the practical certainty now stated that New York is safely in the Hughes column is asserted only because the writer believes that an up-State Republican plurality of 125,000 is at least 50,000 too low.

In Monroe county, the Democrats privately say the majority against Wilson will be 12,000 or more. It is more accurate to call it a majority against Wilson than a majority for Hughes. The special reason for that is that George Eastman, in the opinion of all Rochester, has been persecuted by the Wilson administration. Mr. Eastman's friends are not limited by the boundaries of the city of Rochester.

In addition to the special reason for a big Republican majority in Monroe county there is the Aldridge organization, which in efficiency is comparable to that of William Barnes and to Charles F. Murphy's phalanx.

Northern New York is counted on for a comparatively small plurality. Mr. Barnes of Albany has no doubts about that county and in the past he never has suffered any delusions as to his own bailiwick.

Repeated Public Demand Brings Back
The Great Godowsky

LEOPOLD GODOWSKY, who appears in concert next Thursday evening, Nov. 9, at Trinity Auditorium, is proclaimed by his confreres "Supreme Master of the Piano."

Josef Hofmann said:

"I doubt if there are any pianists today that have not learned from Godowsky. I know that I did, and I am thankful for it."

De Pachmann said:

"I have known, adored and idolized Liszt and Godowsky. Which shall I say is the greater, where both have surpassed all others?"

GODOWSKY generously gives the KNABE PIANO credit for a large part of his great success.

Godowsky writes:

In the midst of my extensive and strenuous American tour I must express to you my hearty appreciation of the noble qualities of your instruments.

The requirements of modern piano playing are so great and manifold, demanding of the instrument orchestral volume and variety of color as much as utmost delicacy, clearness and that pearly quality peculiar to the piano passages, that it is a most perplexing problem to the piano manufacturer to satisfy all the demands of the XXth century pianist.

You meet every conceivable wish of the most exacting artist, and to me your instrument is a most desirable companion on my tour.

Cordially yours,
LEOPOLD GODOWSKY.

We cordially invite your inspection of this truly wonderful piano, in its various styles.

DIABETES MAY BE DRIVEN FROM THE SYSTEM BY GOOD WHISKEY, SAYS SCIENTIST

Two or Three Ounces a Day in Severe Cases Will Eliminate Troublesome Sugar from System.

Prof. Von Noorden, the eminent scientist, advocates the use of whiskey in the treatment of severe diabetic cases. The Rockefeller institute also reports several patients relieved of this dread ailment through the use of whiskey.

From what is known to the Medical World as the Allen Treatment in this country come reports that whiskey helps relieve the body of excess sugar and serves to keep the percentage of sugar in the blood normal, thereby bringing about a pronounced betterment in diabetic cases.

The use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is of essential value in diabetes because it is an absolutely pure distillation of thoroughly malted grain, and is made for medical purposes only. Through its use as directed, the different functions invariably acquire a normal, healthy and harmonious condition. The successful use of Duffy's Malt Whiskey in the treatment of Diabetes has been called to our attention by grateful users and we reprint below their sworn statements:

"I have used "Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey and recommend it highly to anyone afflicted by diabetes. It does me a great amount of good."—Mrs. Therese Winterstein, 189 E. 100th St., New York City.

Pancho Villa—once Mr. Wilson's pet bandit.

Penalty.

TRIO OF VILLA BANDITS EXECUTED AT JUAREZ.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

EL PASO (Tex.) Nov. 4. — Col. Rosario Garcia, Villa commander from Sonora, and two of his men were executed in Juarez early today, after being convicted by a military court on charges of treason. They were captured at Hacienda Santa Ana, near Namiquipa, and were brought to Juarez yesterday.

Col. Garcia weakened when the moment of death came. After marching to the Juarez Cemetery in front of a guard of eleven Carranza soldiers and an officer, Col. Garcia asked permission to write a last letter home to his family in Sonora.

Seated on a log in front of the sexton's house, the Villa commander wrote a long letter, which he read aloud to the group of witnesses. In this statement he declared he was not a Villa bandit, but was a Consitutionalist and said he had been forced to carry papers to Villa.

Tied to Col. Garcia were two others of his command. One was a beardless boy of 17 years, who licked his dry lips continually and wiped the tears from his eyes with a soiled handkerchief. The other was a Mayo Indian, who sat and smoked a cigarette while Garcia wrote his statement.

After delivering this statement to the officer, Col. Garcia made an impassioned plea for his life in a voice which broke with emotion and ended with a request that his family be cared for after his death.

"Shoot me through the heart," he said, sitting down in front of an adobe wall, pock-marked with the bullet holes of other executions. The boy next him also sat, while the Indian squatted against the wall, smoking.

The execution squad fired. Garcia and his companions rocked violently from the force of the fusillade. Garcia's knees doubled up with pain, he motioned to his heart and begged the squad to fire again. This was done deliberately, the bandit commander's body quivering in the agony of his wounds. The second volley failed to end his suffering and it was not until the captain of the guard had fired two "mercy shots" point blank at his head that the bandit's body stilled.

A "mercy shot" each dispatched the boy bandit and the Indian, the boy still clutching his soiled handkerchief and the Mayo his cigarette.

MORE APPOINTMENTS MADE BY JOHNSON.

HOW WILSON PAVED WA FOR VILLA'S OUTRAG

Author of Volume Issued by Chicago Publishers that President Gave Moral Support to Pancho Held the Murderer in Position of Power; then D crossed Him.

HOW Woodrow Wilson gave the moral support of this government to a bloodthirsty bandit and virtually held him in a position of power that enabled him to commit horrible crimes against helpless American women; how the President then treacherously double-crossed this bandit; how, in the face of conditions of horror that staggered the civilized world, Mr. Wilson refused to send an armed force to the relief of thousands of helpless and tortured Americans; how he falsified his reason for this inquity by a misleading statement of military conditions: these facts are set forth in a stinging volume just issued by Laird and Lee of Chicago. The author is Henry Morris, who says he has been a close student of Mexican affairs for many years.

The author asserts that the Madero regime, far from being worthy of the lengths to which Mr. Wilson went to avenge its fall, was financed by Gustavo Madero with $375,000 misappropriated from the Paris branch of a Spanish bank. With this loot was brought about the revolution that unseated Porfirio Diaz.

"Madero was an agent of the United States, and without American aid Diaz would have remained the President of Mexico," the author quotes a well-known war correspondent as saying.

EVICTION OF HUERTA.

Madero was followed by Gen. Huerta. "Whereupon," says the author in his introduction, "Mr. Wilson set himself diligently to the task of driving Huerta out of power. Finally, by waging a personal war against Huerta—and the President candidly admitted that the Vera Cruz affair was 'a difficulty between his government and a person calling himself the provisional President of Mexico'—the 'usurper' was eliminated.

"Now, it so happened that Huerta was eliminated during the early summer of 1914, and Villa and Carranza became estranged immediately thereafter. At the same time, important elections were to be held in the United States during November of the same year. We were about to elect Governors, United States Senators and Congressmen. Political Washington was apprehensive, even alarmed, for it was feared that actual outbreak between Villa and Carranza would injure the chances of the Democratic candidates. Hence it was very necessary to prevent hostilities between the 'first chief' and the 'pet' bandit.

"Mr. Wilson dispatched two confidential agents to Mexico. He assigned a man named Carouthers to Villa and one named Silliman to Carranza.

"Messrs. Silliman and Carouthers were successful in preventing open hostilities between Villa and Carranza prior to the elections. As the two leaders found it difficult to secure arms and munitions at this time, and as it is a fact they were permitted to obtain such without check after the elections were held, we naturally infer that they were promised this privilege as a reward for remaining dormant prior to the elections.

"At all events, the first battle between the forces of Villa and Carranza took place the day after the elections were held.

"Now it is a fact that Mr. Wilson has never shown that he had what may be termed 'a Mexican policy' of any kind. Lacking in decision of the practical sort, he was, nevertheless, decided in desire and intent to run Huerta out of Mexico. After eliminating Huerta, he lapsed into a state of innocuous desuetude."

VERA CRUZ SUBTERFUGE.

The author charges that the attack upon Vera Cruz was undertaken by President Wilson under a subterfuge. Mr. Wilson made the people of the United States believe our soldiers were sent into this bloody and costly little war in order to revenge an insult to our flag by Huerta. The author charges that the real purpose of the Vera Cruz expedition was to stop a shipment of ammunition which German merchants were sending to Gen. Huerta.

"In the case of the Vera Cruz affair, no warning was given, or declaration of war made," he writes. "Many unarmed Mexicans were killed.

"In the case of the punitive expedition, much delay was occasioned, due to red tape and parley with the Carranza government, and the expedition was withdrawn after the Carrizal affair, when Carranza's soldiers ambushed and killed some of our best officers and a troopers.

"But Vera Cruz was for the purpose of 'proc ration' from Huerta. Washington never comp warrior to do its biddi way. Vera Cruz was one purpose only, viz: the landing of arms tion which was consign —and the arms were lan ready stated—at Puerta,

"Had Huerta been rec Americans would have tected, and, most likely, still be engaged in business in Mexico.

"But Mr. Wilson did continues to favor, the which slaughtered uncou icans. Are we so indiffer matters that we propose each and every offense?"

INSISTS WILSON STARTED WARS.

Mexican Woman Declares He is Her Country's Foe.

Appeals to American Voters to Elect Hughes.

Daughter of Former Governor Makes Pathetic Plea.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 4.—President Wilson's plea of justification for his Mexican policy that it was intended and has served to prompt friendship with the Mexicans themselves, receives a sharp contradiction in an open letter to the women voters of the United States, written by Niufa Garza-Galan, a Mexican woman, who is now a fugitive from her own country, finding refuge with her friends in Texas. She is the daughter of former Gov. Garza-Galan of Coahuila and a member of one of the oldest and most prominent families of Northern Mexico.

Surely there are not two men in the United States, says Miss Garza-Galan, who would misunderstand and misuse Mexico and the Mexicans as Mr. Wilson has done. She makes a final appeal to the women voters of this country for help and says that the hope of her people for the salvation and reconstruction of their country lies in a new administration in the United States.

LETTER IN FULL.

The letter in full follows:

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.

An Appeal to the Women Voters of the United States by a Mexican Woman:

Have I, a foreigner, any right to interfere in American politics?

I am a refugee from my own country, along with many thousands of my countrywomen.

Is it proper for me to try to influence your votes?

You say Mr. Wilson has kept us out of war. You dread war with all its horrors. We Mexican women are experiencing these horrors. Our homes are deserted and our country is in ruins. Our only hope for the future is in the conduct of your country toward ours.

Have I the right, as a guest, to appeal to you for help? If you dread war between our countries, what must we feel with it hanging over us?

Your President has started war upon us twice, has threatened us with war many times and now is holding an army in Mexico and a greater one upon our borders. He has taken your flag from every building and consular office in Mexico and it flies nowhere in Mexico except in your army camps.

Our American neighbors and friends have all been called away by your government.

Most of us believe that the chaotic and ruinous conditions of Mexico are a result of your President's mistakes. While he has no doubt desired to be our friend, he has done us irreparable injury. We feel that his re-election would be a calamity to our country.

No party or faction in Mexico will ever again be guided or influenced by any words from him. A new man as President might restore confidence and we believe that he could reunite our people and save us.

I do not charge Mr. Wilson with bad motives, but he has made so many mistakes and gotten our affairs in so bad a tangle that we don't believe he can untangle them. Surely Mr. Hughes does not want war with my poor country any more than Mr. Wilson does. While nearly all of us believe that war will surely come under Mr. Wilson and dread his re-election, we shall have hope for the salvation and reconstruction of our country under a new administration.

There surely cannot be two men in the United States who would misunderstand and misuse us as Mr. Wilson has done.

VILLISTA BANDITS KILL AN AMERICAN PHYSICIAN.

Terrible Outrages at Santa Rosalia Committed by Gen. Uribe and His Cutthroats—Carranza Troops are Sent North After Robber Gang Which Held up the Mexican Central Train at Laguna Station.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHIHUAHUA CITY (via El Paso Junction) Nov. 4.—Dr. Fisher, an American physician living at Santa Rosalia, was killed by the Villa bandits under Gen. Baudelio Uribe, according to the statement of a Mexican refugee who arrived here from Santa Rosalia late today. Dr. Fisher was one of the few Americans known to have been in Santa Rosalia at the time the Villa bandits captured the town.

Jimenez, the junction point on the Mexican Central Railroad of the Parral line, has been evacuated by Carranza forces under Gen. Fortunato Maycotte, who has fallen back upon Escalon, about eighty miles south of Jimenez on the same railroad, a semiofficial report received here from the south states.

QUIT SANTA ROSALIA.

According to this report, Villa forces abandoned Santa Rosalia and proceeded south to Jimenez, using a railroad train which had been captured from Gen. Maycotte's forces north of Jimenez after a brief skirmish between the Carranza train guards and rebel vanguard. As Jimenez was not considered of especial strategic importance, and as it was not thought suited for defensive action, it was evacuated by Gen. Maycotte's forces, which fell back upon Escalon as a base, according to this same report.

At Escalon, it is said that a junction will be effected with Gen. Murguia's division of 6000 troops and the forces of Gen. Domingo Arrieta and those of Gen. Herrera.

AFTER THE BANDITS.

A detachment of 600 Carranza troops has been sent north from Chihuahua City after the bandit band of Juan Murgia and the Quevedo brothers, who held up and robbed the Mexican Central train at Laguna Station Monday evening.

A troop train with light artillery mounted on flat cars is being held in the railroad yards here ready to proceed north at a moment's notice should bandits appear along the main line of the Mexican Central Railroad.

Villa bandits in command of Gen. Uribe executed a number of Chinese and Arab residents of Santa Rosalia on October 26, refugees arriving from Santa Rosalia overland reported here. Gen. Uribe, in a speech delivered after the capture of the town, accused foreigners of being enemies of Villa's cause and then ordered the summary executions of the Chinese and Arab residents, the refugees added.

It is not known whether foreigners of other nationalities were executed.

GEN. URIBE'S ORDER.

After capturing the town, Gen. Uribe gave all prisoners the choice of having their ears severed from their heads, or of being executed, the refugees stated. Many of the prisoners are said by the refugees to have accepted death rather than lifelong mutilation.

The town was then looted, the refugees reported, and the women camp followers of the Carranza troops there were mistreated by the bandits, according to eyewitnesses who arrived here.

They reported Uribe's command had moved south toward Jimenez and Parral.

NEWS AT EL PASO.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

EL PASO (Tex.) Nov. 4.—Government agents here received what they claim to be reliable information today that Santa Rosalia, Parral and Jimenez have been taken by Villa bandits. It is not known whether these towns were held by the bandits after their capture. American mining men also received what they claim as additional confirmation today of the report that Parral was taken on Tuesday.

The government agents claim to have reports showing that Gen. Luis Herrera moved out of Parral before the approach of the Villa bandits and retired to San Francisco del Oro, in the mountains near Parral. It is believed by State Department officials that the Americans in Parral accompanied this column.

An employee of a Parrael mining company arrived here today by way of Torreon, Mex., and Eagle Pass, Tex., and said Parral was in the hands of the Carranza forces when he left there on October 27. He said he had talked with Carranza soldiers at Jimenez who had had their ears cut off by Villa bandits at Santa Rosalia. The mining man added that the soldiers reported that the bandits had unspeakably mutilated at least ten of the Carranza soldiers at Santa Rosalia.

REPORT FROM PERSHING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) Nov. 4.—Gen. Funston received a report from Gen. Pershing today on the recent engagement at Santa Ana between 110 cowboys doing guard duty on the Babicora and Namiquipa ranches and a band of about fifty Villa soldiers. The report said several of the bandits were killed in addition to those taken prisoner and turned over to the Carranza military authorities, at Juarez.

Railway Record.

CAR SHORTAGE IS MORE ACUTE.

Formal Investigation Coming by Federal Authorities.

New Tariffs on Demurrage Filed by the Carriers.

Proposals for Relief Made by State Commissioner.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The nation-wide shortage of freight cars, the most acute for many years, will be the subject of a general formal investigation, covering every part of the United States, the Interstate Commerce Commission announced today. The commission announced the investigation would go into questions of supply, exchange and return of freight cars "with the view of issuing such orders as the commission may deem appropriate."

A copy of the order was served upon representatives of all interstate carriers and the first hearing was fixed for next Wednesday at Louisville, before Commissioner McChord.

The action in extending the informal conference at Louisville into a sweeping general investigation of a formal character, with hearings probably in such shipping centers as New York, Chicago, Omaha, St. Louis, Kansas City and others, is the result of complaints filed with the commission.

Traffic committees may be organized to cope with the situation as was done last spring when a serious congestion of freight in the East was threatened.

The railroads already have filed tariffs increasing the demurrage charges on cars remaining over the time allotted to shippers for either loading or unloading. They want this increase effective December 1.

The car shortage is felt in some degree in every State, according to reports to the commissioners. Elevator and warehouse facilities also are overtaxed. The railroads point to the unprecedented traffic requirements owing to the European war and other factors and contend that the commission has not been sufficiently liberal in allowance of rates to permit them to spend much money in new equipment.

PROPOSALS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

LOUISVILLE (Ky.) Nov. 4.—Proposals that for the immediate relief of the country-wide railroad car shortage, the Interstate Commerce Commission call off a conference of the executive heads of the railway companies of the East, South and West, were communicated late today to Commissioner C. C. McChord, who has been presiding over the informal inquiry held here.

The communication was formulated at a conference of railroad representatives as a result of the suggestions by Commissioner McChord that they endeavor to agree among themselves regarding car distribution which would tend to speedily improve conditions.

As outgrowth of the informal inquiry, which ended late today, the Interstate Commerce Commission, on McChord's recommendation, has ordered a formal investigation of the situation to begin Wednesday in Louisville. It will cover the supply, exchange, interchange and return of freight cars, together with all practices and regulations relating thereto.

F. B. Dow, attorney for the Interstate Commerce Commission, announced just before the adjournment that when the formal investigation is convened he will seek to develop the manner in which cars are being used on the various railroads. He also will ask, he said, for data as to the nature of the loads, the average time under load and the situation as regards congestion of terminals.

OFFER BALLOONS FOR THE ARMY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Offers of rubber companies to construct four balloons which will be the first equipment of the recently created balloon division of the army's aviation corps, were taken under consideration by the War Department yesterday. Two of the balloons will be of the ordinary free-flight type and the other two kite or captive balloons for observation purposes. Satisfactory prices are said to have been quoted but awards will not be made until all the proposals have been examined.

The department also is considering specifications for several smaller types of rigid and non-rigid dirigible balloons, but as yet no steps have been taken toward the construction of huge craft similar to the German Zeppelins. Eventually balloon squads will be added to the mobile units of the aviation corps.

Quick Cold Relief

is usually found through the prompt administration of a mildly laxative, dispersive tonic—one that will scatter the inflammation, remove the waste, and help Nature to build up resistance.

Peruna is That Tonic.

Its action is prompt, usually very effective, and its use is without harmful effects. Every household should keep it at hand for this purpose, and every catarrhal sufferer should regularly use this reliable remedy.

The tablet form will be found very convenient. A tablet or two at the very beginning of a cold will frequently prevent its development, and these tablets may be taken regularly with beneficial results.

LOS ANGELES ASTONISHED BY SIMPLE MIXTURE.

Los Angeles people are astonished at the INSTANT action of simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-i-ka. ONE SPOONFULL removes such surprising foul matter it relieves almost ANY CASE constipation, sour stomach or gas. Because Adler-i-ka acts on BOTH lower and upper bowel, a few doses often relieve or prevent appendicitis. A short treatment helps chronic stomach trouble. 20 MILLION PEOPLE USE CASCARETS—WHY?

Only True Tonic for Liver and Bowels Costs 10 Cents a Box.

Cascarets are a treat! They liven your liver, clean your thirty feet of bowels and sweeten your stomach. You eat one or two Cascarets like candy before going to bed and in the morning your head is clear, tongue is clean, stomach sweet, breath right, and cold gone and you feel grand.

Get a 10 or 25-cent box at any drug store and enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced. Stop sick headaches, bilious spells, indigestion, furred tongue, offensive breath and constipation. Mothers should give cross, peevish, feverish, bilious children a whole Cascaret any time.

TAKES THE PLACE OF DANGEROUS CALOMEL

New Discovery! Dodson's Liver Tone Acts Like Calomel, but Doesn't Gripe, Salivate or Make You Sick—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Harmless Liver Medicine for Men, Women, Children—Read Guarantee.

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated, or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore, it cannot salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

NAMELESS, SHE FEARS A PLANT

xperts Declare the Evidenc Refutes Confession.

ttorney Says Mrs. Barret Dead or Captive.

But Admits She Threatene Old Man's Life.

The Barrett "murder" myster as further entangled yesterday hen a woman, whose name ha een connected with the case in egative way, sought legal advice eclaring she feared she would b rosecuted for her connection wit he case. What that connectio ight be is as mysterious as the murer itself. The woman is alarmed ecause, her attorney said, she fear plot has been hatched to involve r in assisting in framing a murer plant. Other than this statement the attorney refused to b uoted.

Barrett, who confessed to killing is wife and stepson after they had ttacked him with deadly weapons aid he burned the bodies in a small re in the rear of the ranch where e resided at Santa Monica. To the ost prejudiced person it is apparent that instead of burning the odies in the fire, he would have extinguished the flames had he dumped he two bodies in the small fire. This successfully refutes his confession. Experts declare he could ot have disposed of the bodies in he way he said he did.

OTHER SIDE.

Yesterday A. C. Reilly, personal ttorney for Mrs. Barrett, advanced new theory, after carefully and houghtfully reviewing all of the nown facts. In an interview he aid:

"I shall go into court on the 8th nst., and declare in the suit of Mrs. arrett to quiet title to her undivided one-half interest in the Santa Monica ranch, that in my belief he woman is dead. Then I shall ask ermission to substitute an administrator in place of the dead woman. shall take the depositions of the efendants, including Benton L. Barrett, and at that time demand that is attorneys produce any evidence they may have relative to the woman eing alive.

"It is my theory there are only wo things that would keep Mrs. Barrett from communicating with me. The first is that she is dead. The second is that she is held captive to prevent her appearing in court the 8th inst. I am convinced the bones found at the Santa Monica ranch are not the bones of Mrs. Barrett or her son. After careful study I know the woman could not have been killed and the bodies destroyed in the manner in which Barrett said he killed them. I am of the opinion that Mrs. Barrett and her son were either killed and after the bodies had been dismembered, thrown in the ocean, or else she is held a prisoner in the neighborhood. It is quite as reasonable to believe the bones were placed in the fire by Barrett or his friends for the purpose of creating a suspicion of murder on which a conviction could never be obtained, as it is to think a murder plant was placed there to involve the old man and send him to the gallows or an insane asylum.

"THREATENED LIFE?"

"I will probably be the best witness the old man has in the event he pleads self-defense. I have heard Mrs. Barrett threaten her husband's life many times. She has threatened in this office to kill the old man unless she received what she declared was her just due."

Mr. Reilly bitterly condemned the prosecution for being dilatory in the work of tying up evidence. He said there was reason to think the bodies were either thrown into the ocean from the Santa Monica pier, or else buried in the sand under the stable. This place has been neglected so far.

Yesterday the fireplace gave up additional bones, parts of the missing skulls and vertebrae being found. The District Attorney's office now has nearly enough bones to complete an entire skeleton and part of another one. If bones continue to turn up at the fire and in the outhouse the prosecution will go into court with all the bones needed to make two skeletons.

MANY AT WORK.

In addition to a score of detectives employed by the county and the defense, it is probable a third contingent of sleuths are at work employed by relatives of Mr. Barrett. Relatives of Barrett, who left Indiana more than a week ago, have never officially arrived in this city although they are known to have left home. The appearance of a number of additional investigators yesterday lent weight to the supposition that these relatives have employed detectives on their own account and are seeking to unravel the knot.

Surrounded by alienists and psychologists, Benton L. Barrett passes his time pleasantly in the County Jail, never referring to the double murder he confessed to. He likes to talk and likes to be questioned by the experts who are trying to solve the riddle of his confession. So far the men who have examined him have refused to express an opinion other than that he seems to be sane now.

TOO MUCH.

The blood-stained manger, floor and walls of the stable and the fences on the Barrett farm were examined by detectives yesterday who made the declaration that there is "too much murder in sight." Every place there is a blood stain will be found sand. The blood is full of bright sea sand like that found in the stables. The detectives declare the blood was placed on the walls and fences by someone with a blood-soaked bag who smeared the sack in the sand and blood and then daubed it on the walls. Not a single stain but contains sand, the officers say.

TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY SACKS HARVESTED.

Total Value of Crop Placed at Six Hundred and Ninety Dollars, Which is the Main Point to the Story and Exceeds Anything Heretofore Accomplished.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VAN NUYS, Nov. 4.—Six hundred and ninety dollars' worth of potatoes from one acre of land in the city limits of Van Nuys is the record of H. C. Woody, who lives at No. 814 St. Andrews avenue. Mr. Woody purchased two acres here last October.

His first crop on the one acre produced 142 sacks, which he sold at $1.60 per hundredweight, netting $240. His second crop was planted on July 1 and was irrigated once with a one-inch pipe. The new crop made 150 sacks, which are worth $3 each at the present time. Mr. Woody says his crop is all the more wonderful, in that the land had never been cultivated.

It was planted to peach trees this spring and the crops were grown between the rows.

MUSIC STUDENTS' CONTEST.

Ruth Hutchinson Winner in Local Federation Contest.

Miss Ruth Hutchinson of No. 510 Westmoreland avenue was winner in the local contest for vocal students held under the auspices of the National Federation of Music Clubs yesterday afternoon at the Ebell clubhouse. Her success in the competition will afford her an opportunity of entering the State contest, and if she is successful here, the district contest. The winner of the district contest will be given an opportunity to take part in the students' programme at the biennial convention of the national federation at Birmingham, Ala.

The judges of the local contest were Florence Macbeth, Carrie Jacobs Bond, Mrs. Jane Catherwood, Miss Katherine Stone and Horatio Cogswell. Mrs. Hennion Robinson assisted as accompanist. The contest was conducted by Mrs. A. N. Jamison, vice-president of the national federation. There was no competition in violin and piano, as only one student of each instrument was entered. The names of these will be made public after the State contest. There will be a competition for students in the northern end of the State at Oakland the 10th inst. Four vocal contestants were entered here.

Miss Ruth Hutchinson is known locally from her exceedingly successful appearance here during Trinity anniversary week. She is a soprano of unusual gifts, and excellent training. She is an artist pupil of Mrs. Emma Porter Makinson.

WANTED AT FRESNO.

Commission Broker, Under Indictment, is Arrested Here.

With two grand jury indictments against him in Fresno Peter Malian of No. 1011 East Twenty-fifth street was arrested early last night at his home by Police Detectives King and Vernand. He was locked in the City Jail and officers will be sent from Fresno some time today.

According to the prisoner, who is a commission broker, the charges are the outcome of his being elected president of a new fruit company some time ago. He stated the company got into trouble a short time ago and the indictments were returned against him only because he is president of the concern.

WELDING OF TELEPHONE COMPANIES AUTHORIZED.

State Railroad Commission Grants Application of Southern California Corporation to Take Over Home and Pacific Systems in Los Angeles District—Conditions as to Rates and Service Imposed.

THE State Railroad Commission yesterday at San Francisco unanimously authorized the consolidation of the two telephone companies of this city, their sale to the Southern California Telephone Company, a new corporation, and the issuance by the purchaser of $14,000,000 of securities in payment for the properties.

The Home Telephone and Telegraph Company is authorized to convey its entire property in its Los Angeles and Eagle Rock exchanges, with the exception of toll lines. Of the $14,000,000 in securities to be issued by the new company, $9,330,000 or less are to be 5 per cent. thirty-year bonds and the remainder stock. The Home and Pacific companies asked the Railroad Commission for authority to receive from the new company $16,098,500 of stocks and bonds, of which sum $9,927,000 was desired in bonds and $6,171,500 in stocks. The commissioner's order allows for $4,670,000 in stock and no more.

The order, which is written by Commissioners Max Thelan and Alex Gordon, is subject to a number of important conditions. It is not to become effective until the new company shall secure from the commission a supplemental order declaring it has filed with the commission a stipulation agreeing as follows:

"During the next five years the Southern Company will make no request for any increase in the telephone rates at present charged by the Home company and the Pacific company in the territory affected.

"The Southern Company will install for each subscriber, present and future, the type of telephone instrument, whether automatic or manual, desired by the subscriber, and in its solicitation for business and in all other respects, will act with absolute impartiality as between the automatic and the manual instruments."

OTHER CONDITIONS.

The Southern Company is also called upon to stipulate that all subscribers will receive long distance connections without discrimination, will not change its principal office from Los Angeles, will never claim for the franchises to be acquired by it from the Home and Pacific companies any value in excess of the amounts originally paid, and that the consent of the city of Los Angeles and the city of Watts and the city of South Pasadena is necessary to a transfer of existing franchises to the new company if the plan of consolidation presented to the Railroad Commission is effected.

The Railroad Commission, concluding its decision, says:

"In the present case the evidence shows that if the consolidation is effected, the people of Los Angeles and vicinity will immediately save the sum of $483,000 per year from the elimination of duplicate telephone stations."

Consent of the Federal government must be obtained before the consolidation becomes effective, the commission ruled, as the Bell Telephone system, it was said, was under agreement not to consummate any further consolidations without the permission of the Department of Justice.

Further conditions imposed by the Railroad Commission in its order include that the Pacific company shall stipulate never to claim for the franchises to be acquired by it from the Sunset Telephone and Telegraph Company any value in excess of the consideration originally paid; the Pacific company and the United States Long Distance Telephone and Telegraph Company to stipulate agreeing to accord all telephone companies in Los Angeles county, and elsewhere, to which their long distance lines extend or may extend, access without discrimination to their respective long distance lines; the Southern Company to file with the commission monthly progress reports of the consolidation.

ABOUT RATES.

The commission refers to the agreement between the Pacific company, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and the Western Electric Company, with reference to the lease of telephone instruments and the purchase of materials and supplies by the Pacific company, and states that in establishing rates, it will allow only reasonable payments under the head of capital account and operating expenses.

The decision points out that the existing telephone systems will be combined and operated in such a way that each subscriber, whether his telephone instrument be manual or automatic, will be able to converse with each other subscriber of the Southern company, and that each subscriber will be able to converse over the long-distance telephone lines of either the Pacific company or the United States Long Distance Telephone and Telegraph Company. The commission points out that under the decision each subscriber will have absolute choice with reference to the type of his telephone instrument, whether manual or automatic, and that the result would be the survival of the type of instrument which is the best for the public. The commission says in its opinion that the results secured from this telephone experience of Los Angeles should be of great value in solving telephone problems all over the United States.

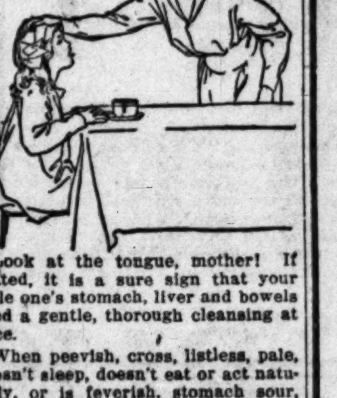
The commission draws attention to the fact that if the plan of consolidation is effected, the Southern company will operate in the city of Los Angeles under the Home company's present franchise, which will expire in 1952.

INTERCHANGE VIEWS.

The commission discusses in considerable detail the respective merits of a consolidation of the two telephone systems, as authorized, and an interchange between the Home company and the Pacific company, by which each company would retain its separate identity and property rights. The commission points out that a system of interchange would result in a larger investment and larger depreciation annuity, larger maintenance and operating expenses, and consequently in higher rates than would be the case under a system of consolidation. In referring to the saving to the people of Los Angeles and vicinity, the commission say:

"In the present instance, the evidence shows that if the consolidation is effected, the people of Los Angeles and vicinity will immediately save the sum of $483,000 per year from the elimination of duplicate telephone stations, and will be relieved from the nuisance of a dual telephone system. Their rates will not exceed the former rates under a condition of competition, the consolidation telephone company receiving the entire gross revenue from telephone service within the area affected without corresponding increase in maintenance and operating expenses, will be a stronger company financially than either of the existing companies, as far as their operations within this area are concerned, and ought to be able to borrow new moneys on favorable terms, to accord reasonable rates to its customers and to make such extensions of service as the interests of the public may require."

With its decision on the Southern company's application, the commission issued similar orders authorizing the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company to do business under a franchise granted by the city of Vernon and by the city of Watts.



LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE IF SICK, CROSS, FEVERISH

Hurry, Mother! Remove poisons from little stomach, liver, bowels.

Give "California Syrup of Figs" at once if bilious or constipated.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

A Laxative for Babies Good for Everybody

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin a Safe and Efficient Family Remedy.

Every member of the family is more or less subject to constipation and every home should always be supplied with a dependable remedy to promptly relieve this condition. Whenever the bowels become clogged and the natural process of elimination thereby disturbed, the entire system is affected, and readily subject to attack by disease. Constipation is a condition that should never be neglected.

Mrs. E. R. Gilbert, of Millbro, Va., says that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a splendid laxative for children because they like its pleasant taste, and it acts so easily and naturally, without griping or strain, and she finds it equally effective for the rest of the family.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that contains no opiate or narcotic drug. It is mild and gentle in its action, and does not cause pain or discomfort. Druggists everywhere sell this excellent remedy for fifty cents a bottle.

To avoid imitations and ineffective substitutes be sure you get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. See that a facsimile of Dr. Caldwell's signature and his portrait appear on the yellow carton in which the bottle is packed. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 455 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

HELP! HELP!

This is an S. O. S. call! I want $30,000 and I want it quick. They say that every Banking institution in this city is overflowing with money, so it looks like I might get what I want when it is known what I have to offer.

I don't care whether I get this money from one man or six or a dozen men. The protection is the same for the little fellow as for the big one.

LISTEN!

I have buyers ready—orders signed—amounting to $150,000. I guarantee to fill them for $30,000—and do it in five months. If you will advance the money for that length of time I will return every cent of it to you out of the first returns, and give you one-half of my profits besides—That's two for one, or $60,000 velvet and your money back. Sounds too Good?

Well, I can show you!

Here are the fellows I don't want to hear from: The one who has a "Friend who might be interested." The would-be promoter who is looking for information. The one who wants more than a half interest. That's absolutely my limit and I won't listen to anything else. The one who wants the best chance of his life to make big money and a mortgage on half the county besides. Applications from pawnbrokers not desired.

What I do want is a fellow of the fifty-fifty sort who has some money and is willing to take a reasonable chance with big returns in sight. How much can you put in if it looks good to you? For interview address

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; your head dizzy and aches; belch gasses and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Diapepsin and in five minutes you will wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women today know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps the stomach regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight so gently and easily that it is astonishing. Please don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.

GIRLS! LOTS OF BEAUTIFUL HAIR

25-cent bottle of "Danderine" makes hair thick, glossy and wavy.

Removes all dandruff, stops itching scalp and falling hair.

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair, soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance, freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and luster, and try as you will, you can't find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp—Danderine is, we believe the only sure hair grower, destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits every one who tries this.

PINK BOLL WORM DOWN IN MEXICO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CALEXICO (Cal.) Nov. 4.—Following a recent visit of a number of the Federal Horticultural Board to Calexico, the local customhouse was notified by telegraph today by C. L. Marlatt of Washington, D. C., chairman of that board, that a quarantine on all cotton from Mexico, except from the Imperial Valley, in Lower California, had been established.

The pink boll worm has been found in the Laguna district, in Mexico, Mr. Marlatt telegraphed, and for that reason entry of either cotton or cottonseed through any port of entry but this is prohibited. Growers are warned here that introduction of cotton or cottonseed from other Mexican districts than Lower California will result in an immediate embargo being placed on all Imperial Valley cotton.

ELECTRIC WINKS IF HUGHES WINS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, Nov. 4.—Five "winks" of electric lights in the homes in Venice and Santa Monica will announce the election of Charles Evan Hughes to the Presidency. The Southern California Edison Company, desiring to serve its consumers, will "wink" the electric lights. It was announced that Sherman, Sawtelle and The Palms would also be included in the service.

So as to be nonpartisan, the company has agreed to flash the lights three times if Wilson is elected, and in that way the Democrats will have a chance to count to three anyway.

WHO'S THIS STRANGER?

Soft-footed Person Haunts Courts: Rouses Curiosity.

Said one of the judges of the Superior Court last week:

"I felt like inviting him to have a seat in the front pew."

This remark seems cryptic, but it expresses the feeling of officials around the Courthouse, who are very much exercised over a mysterious man who seems to have no particular business in the courts, but is almost omnipresent. He is a soft-footed, close-mouthed individual, and whether he is an innocent party or is snooping around to pick up information to be used against the judges and the other officials is a serious question and causing no little feeling.

NEW PROCESS TO MAKE COAL.

Waste of Paper Factories Basis of the Idea.

Norwegian Interests Plan an Exploiting Company.

Thought to be Practicable by Capital Experts.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Manufacture of coal from waste materials of paper factories—an industry which holds forth promise of reducing the cost of paper and furnishing, at small cost, an excellent substitute for coal as fuel product, is described in a report made public today by the Department of Commerce from American Consul General Dennison at Christiania, Norway. The project is said to be practicable and an exploiting corporation already has been formed by Norwegian interests.

Department officials were keenly interested in the report and discussed whether such a project could not be undertaken successfully in the United States, particularly in paper-producing localities, and pointed out that if this were done it might provide some relief from the theatened coal famine and prove valuable to paper manufacturers.

The inventor of the coal is named by Consul Dennison as R. V. Streienert, a Gothenburg engineer. The process is said to be that of producing coal in powder form from sulphite lye.

"It is stated that this process," the report says, "produces a 'coal powder' almost equal in calorific value to first-class coal—namely 6900 calories against 7000 in the case of the best English coal. The process has been tested and proved to the satisfaction of Norwegian interests. A company under the title of Sulphite Coal Limited has been formed with a minimum capital of $428,300 to exploit it.

"It is estimated that if the coal powder is made of all the sulphite lye refuse of Norway 30 per cent. of the imported coal will be replaced."

PINK BOLL WORM IS NOW WITH US.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—A pink boll worm, most destructive cotton pest known, has appeared for the first time in North America. The Department of Agriculture announced today that worms had been discovered in Northern Mexico, where their presence, the department says in an official announcement, "constitutes one of the greatest menaces which has come to the American industry in its history."

Importation from Mexico of cottonseed, cottonseed hulls and seed cotton is prohibited under an order issued late today.

Plans.

FIRM FOR DIVORCE.

Mrs. Robert P. Troy Declares She has Sufficient Grounds, and Son Adds Denial of Alleged Conspiracy to that of Mother and Sister.

The divorce suit of Mrs. Robert P. Troy against her husband, a San Francisco attorney and former secretary of the Democratic Central Committee, will be filed Wednesday, according to present plants as announced last night.

William S. White, son of Mrs. Troy by her former marriage to the late Senator Stephen M. White, returned from San Francisco and added his denial to that of his mother and sister, Hortense S. White, as to the alleged conspiracy. He will leave today for the north to confer with Mr. Troy.

Mrs. Troy is firmly resolved to secure a divorce from her husband, who was formerly a stenographer employed by Senator White. It is understood San Francisco attorneys are working with Mr. Troy endeavoring to convince him of the advisibility of letting the suit proceed without vigorous contest.

"If Mr. Troy fails to see the light," she said last night, "and desires publicity in the matter, it will be a comparatively easy matter for my attorney to amend the complaint. I do not care to state anything further about that part of it, however, other than to say I have sufficient grounds on which to base my suit."

MUSIC TEACHERS MEET.

Plan for Southern California Association is Launched.

A meeting of the Los Angeles County and City Public School Music Teachers' Association was held last evening at Christopher's. Vernon Spencer and Miss C. Otten were guests. Miss Groves of Manual Arts, chairman of the Music Committee for the teachers' institute, gave an outline of the musical events. A movement was started looking toward a Southern California public school music teachers' association to include the eight counties.

Prof. Dykema of the music department at the University of Wisconsin has accepted the invitation of the members of the association to be their guest institute week. Prof. Dykema has charge of the music for that event.

DINNER FOR OFFICERS.

Col. Lankershim Entertains Cavalrymen of State Service.

Officers of the First Squadron of Cavalry, N.G.C., were guests of honor at an informal dinner tendered them by Col. J. B. Lankershim last night at the Lankershim Hotel. Col. Lankershim, who was formerly connected with the adjutant-general's office, takes particular interest in the cavalry service as he was the first captain and a charter member of Troop D, the local cavalry organization.

Attending the banquet were Maj. A. B. Dockery, commanding the First Squadron; Capt. C. E. Turner, M.C., N.G.C.; Lieuts. D. E. Barney and H. R. Gimble, Veterinarian J. P. Nichols and officers of Troops A, B, C and D, including Capts. H. H. Sydenham, E. J. Hardy, James Gunn and Lieuts. E. L. Burns, G. S. F. Davis, C. S. Pixley, Ray Rogers and L. A. Bowland.

Opinions Split.

this and believe that it can be put in during the ensuing winter. It is estimated that this will require an outlay of approximately $300,000. In this connection, a silt basin below the new intake is proposed, with a plant for pumping out the settled silt into the Colorado River. In the event this district should find it advisable to connect up with the Laguna Dam, we believe we should still have to maintain the proposed new heading, as a matter of safety. As to the greater Yuma project, undoubtedly it will cause much discussion, and some good may come of this."

BY BANK PRESIDENT.

Frank B. Fuller, president of the El Centro National Bank:

"It's an old saying that with money, mules and hoboes you can build most anything. This project sounds so big that it certainly will require a lot of consideration before all its details can be grasped. The proposed opening of such a vast area of new lands, however, is highly appealing and I hope it will be fully investigated."

M. W. Conkling, former attorney for the Imperial irrigation district:

"If the plan proves practicable, after engineers have made thorough investigation, then Yuma Valley and Imperial Valley, and not the Reclamation Service, should carry through the project. If it is as big as is indicated by the superficial plan, then it is well worth serious consideration, from the viewpoint alone of the big area of lands it would bring under irrigation—but if it is practicable, the people ought to build it themselves. A $20,000,000 outlay for the reclamation of such an area of land as is suggested is well worth while."

J. B. Parazette, one of the pioneer realty men of Imperial Valley:

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE AT BOELKE FUNERAL.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Nov. 4 (via Sayville.)—In its account of the funeral of Capt. Boelke, Germany's most famous aviator, the Lokal Anzeiger says that at the grave, Lieut.-Col. Thomsen, chief of the German aerial fleet, made the solemn promise in the name of his comrades and the disciples of the dead aviator, "I shall become a Boelke."

The streets of Dessau, Capt. Boelke's home town, were thronged. A squadron of aviators flew along the route of the funeral procession to the cemetery.

An eyewitness account of the death of Capt. Boelke was given out today by the Overseas News Agency, as follows:

"Capt. Boelke met with the accident in which he was killed at 5 o'clock on the afternoon of October 31. He had just disabled a hostile machine in a fierce aerial combat. At the conclusion of the battle another German airplane touched Boelke's machine and a part of a plane of the latter was torn off.

"Capt. Boelke descended swiftly in a narrow spiral for some distance, but when at the height of about 200 yards his machine suddenly fell. The body of the aviator was not touched by projectiles. After having defeated forty adversaries, an accident terminated his life. He died unvanquished."

BEAUTIFY CULVER CITY.

Give Masquerade Ball to Awaken Enthusiasm Among Its Residents—Pepper Trees to be Planted on Highway to Los Angeles.

With the object of unifying the residents of the section and bringing about a city beautiful, the women of Culver City last night gave a masquerade ball at the Beardsley Automobile Company Building, with more than 500 persons in attendance. Approximately $250 was raised and will be expended in planting trees and flowers about Culver City.

The ball was the first of a series of affairs which will be given by the women to aid in the beautifying of the little town. Practically all of the people residing in the district between Los Angeles and Venice attended the affair last night and a great deal of enthusiasm was aroused. A movement will soon be started to plant large pepper trees upon each side of the highway from Los Angeles to Venice, as it runs through Culver City.

"We are trying to make the city more attractive," said Harry H. Culver last night. "We hope shortly to have trees and flowers planted through the city, our intention being to make the place as handsome as possible through the employment of natural plants and flowers."

Confidence Man Demands Money for Home Products Week.

Taking advantage of the exhibit of Home Products Week, to be held from the 13th to the 18th inst., some unknown crook has been visiting the various manufacturers passing as the representative of the Chamber of Commerce and making money demands for their window space.

Through the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce the merchants of the city offered their windows free to the various manufacturers in which to exhibit their wares, and it was not until late yesterday that it became known at the Chamber of Commerce that some crook was trying to work a game on the manufacturers. The matter probably will be reported to the police, and if the man is caught, Francis Marshall of the Chamber of Commerce last night said, he will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

GIGANTIC HUGHES CROWD PARADES IN CHICAGO

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 4.—Republicans gave Chicago her greatest political demonstration this afternoon. Twenty-five thousand supporters of Hughes and Lowden paraded through the loop to the music of half a hundred bands, in a whirl of star spangled colors and before what was estimated the greatest crowd that ever turned out in Chicago during any campaign in the history of the city.

The procession left Grant Park at 2:30. As the head of the column emerged over the Van Buren street viaduct, preceded by a line of mounted policemen, there was a shout from the throngs that lined the curbings and sidewalks on both sides of the street.

Due to the forewarning received by Chief of Police Healey, exposing a plot of the Democratic leaders to send thousands of bearers of Wilson banners into the loop as a counter demonstration, no trouble marred the proceedings. There were hundreds of police reserves on hand, but the Democratic mobs failed to appear.

A moving tableau of "the spirit of '76" acted by two men and a garbed in the uniforms of Wa ton's army led the procession. carried a banner saying: "We not too proud to fight."

ILLINOIS LABOR VOTE PREDICTED FOR HUGHES

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 4.—Neither the labor vote nor the women's vote is to change Illinois from a strong Republican State in the opinion of William G. Edens, secretary of the Central Trust Company of Illinois, who called at Republican headquarters today. Mr. Edens, who, at one time, was an official of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and has a wide acquaintance among labor leaders in different parts of the country, declared that there has been a strong swing towards Hughes in Chicago and Illinois within the last week, which will land the Republican candidate safely Tuesday.

"The attempt of the officers of the railroad brotherhoods to deliver the votes of the railroad men to W is reacting," said Mr. Edens. "T may be some slight defection the trainmen as a result of Adamson law, but it will have effect on the result of the camp I have talked with a number of ficers of railroad unions in the week or so and I find that they up in arms against the national ficers for attempting to de them politically. They are picious of the so-called eight- law, but are more resentful over way their officers have attempted deliver them to Wilson.

RUSSIAN LOAN NOW COMPLETED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The completion of negotiations with the Russian government for a $50,000,000 five-year 5½ per cent. loan by a banking syndicate headed by the National City Company, which is controlled by the National City Bank, brings the total borrowings here of foreign countries with the exception of South America to more than $2,000,000,000.

Negotiations for the present Russian loan covered a period of more than three months and at one time, it is said, a loan of as high as $150,000,000 was considered by American bankers. The former Russian loan established a credit in this country, for $50,000,000 which was to run for three years. Simultaneously the Russian government established a Petrograd credit of 150,000,000 rubles in favor of the banking group at a fixed ratio of three rubles to $1.

Part of the present loan, it is understood, will be used in paying for a portion of the $50,000,000 railroad equipment order placed with American manufacturers about two months ago.

Associated with the National City Bank in the negotiations are J. P. Morgan, the Guarantee Trust Company, Kidder, Peabody & Co., and Lee, Higginson & Co. The loan will be a direct obligation of the imperial Russian government. Among the details yet to be completed is the price at which the loan will be offered to the public. The yield on the last loan was a little more than 6½ per cent.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 4.—Making a "corkscrew" high in the air with his eroplane in which he has electri- ied thousands with his flights at the xposition here, Joe Boquel, dare- evil aviator, fell to his death short- y before 4 o'clock this afternoon hen his machine plunged to earth rom an altitude of one thousand eet.

Boquel fell inside the exposition rounds just north of the Cabrillo ridge. Guards and spectators ushed to the spot and found the aviator's body crushed badly. Death as instantaneous.

Opinions differ as to cause of ac- cident and it will never be known ust what caused his fall. He had inished writing "Farewell" in the ky and then made about a dozen orkscrew turns downward over a anyon.

He seemed to be preparing to give he crowd another thriller by going own into the canyon and out of it nd may have not gauged his dis- ance correctly.

Army aviators who saw the flight nd examined the wrecked machine fterwards could not determine the eason for the fall. Whether the ngine, which had given trouble be- fore, failed him, whether he became izzy and lost his bearings or wheth- r it was the suction of the air in he canyon that drew the machine own out of his control, will never e known.

Lieut. H. A. Dargue, aviation in- structor at North Island, Lieut. Seth Cook and Lieut. W. C. Ryan, ll aviators, saw the accident and were among the first to examine the machine. Dargue believes that Boquel became dizzy, lost his bear- ings and was unable to right the machine.

In five minutes more Boquel would have been presented with a old medal by President Davidson who was standing on the field wait- ing to give the aviator the medal as he greatest aviator that had visited the fair, when he fell to his death.

Boquel, known as the "sky dragon" on account of his specta- cular and hazardous performances in the air, was 32 years of age. He was born in Normandy, France.

Boquel took up flying first in 1912. Silas Christofferson, the aviator, who fell to his death in Northern California just a few days ago, was his instructor. Last sum- mer Boquel began exhibition fly- ing at Seal Beach, Los Angeles.

Boquel was from a section of France which produced many avi- ators. He was recognized as the most daring flyer in America and predicted a few days ago that a triplane would soon be driven from an Diego to New York City in orty hours.

Boquel was married, his wife and a young daughter residing in San Francisco.

J. Robinson Hall, the aviator, who some time ago returned from Germany, last night stated that of he five aviators who were with the an Francisco exposition, Smith was he only one remaining alive.

"Tony Janus," said Hall, "is gone, Silas Christofferson met his fate at Redding, Beachey ended his career arly in the days of the exposition, and Petrixino, another daring stunt man, is no more, having lost his life ay before yesterday at Buenos Ayres, South America.

"It is all the result of performing unts. In the war not to exceed 2 per cent. are killed, while in the xhibition game the loss will run 0 per cent. Police are Baffled as to Ocean Surf Mystery, in Which Body of a Man Believed to be Kerolsky is Found—Had Two Bank Books.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, Nov. 4.—Did a man, believed to be Stanley Kerolsky, end his life rather than face trial in Los Angeles on a charge of vagrancy?

That is a question the police of Santa Monica are unable to solve, though the body of a man believed to be Kerolsky was found floating in the surf south of the Long Wharf this morning by A. P. Young, manager of the Topango stage line. He notified the police.

According to information obtained by the police Kerolsky was arrested in Los Angeles Tuesday in a raid on a rooming-house. He is said to have put up $500 bail and retained an attorney.

In the man's pockets were two bank books, one showing deposits in the Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank for $3100 and the other on the First National Bank for $1000.

Attorney Frank Rouse of Los Angeles, whose business card was found in the man's clothes, said that he had a client by the name of Kerolsky. On the reverse side of the card was the notation, "November 9, 2 o'clock," which is believed to be the date of the trial.

The man weighed about 180 pounds, was 35 years old, 5 feet, 7 inches tall and wore a blue serge suit of good quality. The coat of the suit was missing, but no importance was attached to this. There were no marks of violence on the body.

The Sheriff's office and the Coroner were notified and an inquest will probably be held Monday.

MASCOT FOR WETS.

They Secure a Goat Named Hilda, Who has the Added Feature that Under no Circumstances will She go "Dry."—Gives Two Quarts.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, Nov. 5.—Just at the last moment of the campaign when the local "drys" are feeling confident of victory, "wets" come forward with a dark-horse mascot in the form of a goat—Hilda, by name—which, they claim, will turn the tide. The goat is peculiarly fitted to be an emblem of the "wets." She won't go dry.

"You are kidding us," one of the "drys" exclaimed yesterday when informed of the "wets'" coup de maitre.

"You'll see the seriousness of this when the returns come in," was the reply.

According to all of the laws of nature Hilda should be "dry" at this time. Her persistence in remaining in the column of the "wets" is regarded as prophetic of what California intends to do.

Hilda is a prominent member of a goat colony belonging to Mrs. A. L. S. Hansen of No. 251 North Craig street. It was after Mrs. Hansen had told neighbors of the goat's peculiar persistency, that a faction of the "wets" conceived the idea of adopting the animal as their mascot and emblem of victory.

"Hilda has been a precocious animal from the first and manifestly ambitious," Mrs. Hansen said last evening. "Although I was convinced some time ago that she would achieve prominence, of course I had no way of knowing along what channel fame would come. In becoming aligned with a great political movement she has more than come up to our expectations. She is now giving two quarts a day when it should not be so."

Van Nuys Workman Proves that There is Good Money in Chickens.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VAN NUYS, Nov. 4.—That a man can profitably raise poultry on the rear of a lot and care for them himself, in addition to working at his regular employment, has been conclusively proved by C. C. Campbell at Van Nuys. Mr. Campbell is employed nine hours a day at a local lumber yard. During his spare time he and his wife had been caring for 100 pullets, which were just six months old on the first day of October. From that day to the first day of November they laid 1476 eggs or an average of fifteen each.

These eggs were sold for $54.12 in addition to what had been consumed for table use at the Campbell home. The cost of feed for that period was $16.53, leaving $37.59 net for the month.

"This egg money," said Mrs. Campbell, "pays for the daily newspaper which we take, the grocer for his provisions, the merchant for clothes and in fact takes care of all of our current bills. That leaves us the wages to take care of our investments."

THREE MILLION DOLLAR CROP.

November Sunshine Rapidly Ripening Oranges.

Crop Gives Indication of Being Bumper One.

Medium-sized Fruit Prevails in Pomona District.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Nov. 4.—With a magnificent crop of navel oranges changing from green to gold in the November sunshine, the citrus fruit growers of the Pomona Valley are looking forward to a $3,000,000-harvest this winter.

During the year which closed September 1, the seven co-operative associations in the San Antonio Fruit Exchange, which has its offices here, gathered and marketed $2,615,600 worth of oranges and lemons. Conservative estimates place the crop which is now on the trees at an advance over the last year crop both in quantity and price.

It now appears that the packing associations will not have to contend this year with the handicap of large sizes which interfered seriously with marketing last year's crop. There are abundant indications that the fruit which is now approaching maturity will be of medium size. In some instances there are over-sizes in evidence, but it is not likely that the growers will have more large-sized fruit than the market will want. Few dealers want big oranges—the demand being for a small or medium size—but what big sizes there are on the trees in remote groves will find ready sale among the retailers who are in a position to handle that grade.

H. E. Walcott, manager of the Pomona Fruit Growers' Association which has two orange packing houses and a lemon house here, says he has looked the valley over quite carefully and he believes that there are more oranges on the trees this year; also that the tonnage will be greater than last year even though the fruits are not going to be so large.

SMALL ONES SELL BEST.

"The small orange outsells the big size right along," says he. "The fruit is turning yellow very rapidly under the influence of the favorable weather we have been having, and it looks as though it will mature a little early. We may be able to pick some during the first week in January, although we didn't pick last winter till the 15th or 20th of January. It is my opinion that the fruit will be of splendid flavor this winter. It has been one of the most favorable seasons in recent years. The lemon outlook is excellent and the fruit ought to bring big prices. The crop will be large.

"It looks like the growers ought to clean up a bunch of money this year. If the price of oranges and lemons goes up in proportion to the cost of other fruit, and in keeping with the price of everything to eat, we may expect to rake in a pot of gold before the present citrus crop goes to the ultimate consumer's table."

POCKETS WERE PICKED.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, Nov. 4.—Alfred Steiger, who came to Los Angeles recently from Mexico, had his pockets picked while on his way to take a steamer for San Francisco today. Steiger left Los Angeles with $28 and hi ssteamer ticket to board the steamer Rose City. When he got off the car he discovered his pocketbook was gone. Police officers believe his pockets were picked.

Are Possible If Stuart's Calcium Wafers Are Used for a Short Time After Each Meal.

Many people have been heard to say that they used creams and lotions for years without effect, yet after five or six days of Stuart's Calcium Wafers their complexions were perfectly clear.

"I Got Rid of Blackheads in a Jiffy by using Stuart's Calcium Wafers."

They contain no poisonous drugs of any kind, are perfectly harmless and can be taken with absolute freedom, and they work almost like magic. Calcium Sulphide, their principal ingredient, is the greatest blood-cleanser known to science.

No matter how bad your skin may be, Stuart's Calcium Wafers will quickly work wonders with it. It's goodby to blackheads, pimples, acne, boils, rash, eczema and a dirty "filled-up" complexion. You can get a box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers at any drug store at 50 cents a box, and you will be positively delighted with their wonderful effect.

Canadian Wheat

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

The war's fearful devastation of European crops has caused an unusual demand for grain from the American Continent. The people of the world must be fed and there is an unusual demand for Canadian wheat. Canada's invitation to every industrious American is therefore especially attractive. She wants farmers to make money and happy, prosperous homes for themselves while helping her to raise immense wheat crops.

YOU CAN GET A HOMESTEAD OF 160 ACRES FREE AND Other lands can be bought at remarkably low prices. Think of the money you can make with wheat at its present high prices, where for some time it is liable to continue. During many years Canadian wheat fields have averaged 20 bushels to the acre—many yields as high as 45 bushels to the acre. Wonderful crops also of OATS, BARLEY AND FLAX.

MIXED FARMING is fully as profitable an industry as grain raising. The excellent grasses full of nutrition are the only food required either for beef or dairy purposes. Good schools, markets convenient, climate excellent.

Military service is not compulsory in Canada, but there is an extra demand for farm labor to replace the many young men who have volunteered for the war. The Government this year is urging farmers to put extra acreage into grain. Write for literature, and particulars as to reduced railway rates to Superintendent Immigration, Ottawa Canada, or Gilbert Roche, Canadian Government Exhibit, San Diego, Cal., Canadian Government Agent.

EVENTS BRIEFLY TOLD

On Occult Biography.

A lecture on "Occult Biography" will be given in Blanchard Hall this evening by Dr. J. Henry Orme, under the auspices of the Theosophical Society.

Back to Kansas.

The body of Mrs. Ann Jones, who died at her home, No. 3725 South Grand avenue, yesterday, will be shipped to Reserve, Kan., tomorrow for interment. Draper & Dellenbaugh have charge of the arrangements.

Illinois Society Meeting.

There will be a meeting of the Illinois State Society next Wednesday evening. Dr. and Mrs. B. F. Rattray will be the honor guests of the evening, as it will be their fifty-seventh wedding anniversary. A splendid programme has been arranged. All are invited.

L.A.A.C. Barn Dance.

The entertainment commissioners of the Los Angeles Athletic Club yesterday announced an old-fashioned dinner and barn dance will be given Thanksgiving Eve, the 29th inst., at the clubhouse. "Hick" costumes will be in order and an "evening of music, melody and merrymaking."

New Pythian Temple.

Lilly Samuels of Oakland, Supreme Chief of the Pythian Sisters, will preside at the services incident to the institution of a new Pythian Sister Temple at Huntington Park next Thursday. The services will be at the Woman's Club House. Many officers and members of sister lodges will assist.

On Japanese Prints.

The students and friends of Cumnock School heard an interesting lecture by Miss Dorothea Jaep, a member of the school faculty, recently. Miss Jaep has a valuable collection of Japanese prints. She lectured on the work of the Japanese artists whose pictures are included in her collection.

At the Jonathan Club.

The Entertainment Committee of the Jonathan Club has made arrangements to install a special wire in the club's main dining-room for the receiving of election returns. Special attention will be given to ladies in the ladies' dining-room. Reservations for Thanksgiving and New Year's Eve tables are being received.

Election Returns.

The First Methodist Church of Hollywood will have a special wire service installed at the church and will give the election returns as they come in hot off the wire. The church has invited the members of all other churches to be their guests. A musical programme will be given between the returns. First reports at 5 p.m., last at 2 a.m.

Mt. Lowe Excursions.

The cheap excursions to Mt. Lowe will be continued through the month of November, according to an announcement made by D. W. Pontius, traffic manager of the Pacific Electric Railway Company. There will be five trains each day, except Saturdays and Sundays, when special trains will be in service to take care of the increased traffic.

Dr. Shiels to Speak.

Superintendent of Schools Shiels will speak at a reception which the mothers of the Avenue 62 Parent-Teacher Association will tender the fathers and teachers Thursday evening in the auditorium of the Avenue 62 school. There also will be a musical programme, including a vocal solo by Miss Priscilla Butterfield and a violin solo by Harold Walberg.

Informal Tea.

The Women's Catholic Club, recently organized, will give an informal tea at the Knights of Columbus Auditorium, No. 612 South Flower street, next Friday at 2 o'clock, which all members are urged to attend. Miss A. Kavanaugh, Mrs. Dorothy Busher Edwards, Nicholas W. Devereux and Ralph W. Laughlin will give a literary and musical programme.

Combine Business Colleges.

For a more modern and larger school a consolidation of C. A. Grommet's Modern Business College and Mrs. C. E. Bean's Business School for Young Women was effected last week. The name of the new school is the same as the one conducted by Mr. Grommet for the past year at First and Broadway, but will be located at Mrs. Bean's stand in the Metropolitan Building, Fifth and Broadway.

New Officers Named.

At the first meeting of the board of directors of the reorganized St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Company, held at St. Louis October 24, the following officers were elected: W. C. Nixon, St. Louis, president; W. B. Biddle, St. Louis, first vice-president; E. D. Levy, Springfield, Mo., second vice-president; N. W. Rice, third vice-president; C. W. Hillard, New York, fourth vice-president, and F. H. Hamilton, secretary-treasurer. W. E. Fessenden is local agent.

The statement of Fred F. Wheeler yesterday in The Times in which he denounced Prohibition Amendment No. 2, which is to be voted upon next Tuesday, fel as a bombshell among the proponents of the two "dry" amendments and they took quick steps to correct a possible impression that the author of the article is the superintendent of the southern department of the Dry campaign. The author of the article is not H. A. Wheeler, the department superintendent. He is the latter's father.

Fred F. Wheeler, however, is more widely known as a Prohibitionist than his son. The father has been fighting the liquor traffic for many years and at one time was at the head of the prohibition movement in California. A few months ago he was prominently mentioned for nomination for President on the Prohibition ticket.

H. A. Wheeler, the son, is an ardent advocate of both of the amendments.

Another prominent Prohibitionist who is bitterly opposed to Amendment No. 2 and will not vote for it is Charles R. Burger, former chairman of the Prohibition County Central Committee and known throughout the nation as a Prohibitionist.

Signed statements were issued yesterday by D. M. Gandier, State Superintendent of the California Campaign Federation, E. E. Taylor, State chairman of the Prohibition party and Earl H. Haydock, secretary of the Prohibition State Central Committee, "regretting" the action of the pioneer Prohibitionist, Fred F. Wheeler, in denouncing Amendment No. 2 as "monstrous and damnable."

—I Would Not Spend the Money This Advertisement Costs Me if —I was not positive I had a good proposition and I want you to know about it also.

—I "know" houses—that's my business—have been selling property in the "Wilshire District" for the past seven years, and during my seven years' experience I have never had an opportunity to offer such a high class bungalow, as elegant and "nifty" as this one, at the price asked, $6750. Only $2000 cash required to handle it.

—It would be impossible for any human being (outside of Elbert Hubbard, and he is dead) to fully describe this beautiful, sunny bungalow. The following is a slight description:

> Exterior, "Colonial" in design; painted (not stained) light cream color, with lead and oil; eight large, well arranged rooms and sun room or fern room; living room 18x24 feet; living and dining room finished in Juana Costa; three large bedrooms, one of which can be used as a dandy sleeping porch; also maid's room or sewing room; large tile bath; new gas heating system; the breakfast room is "a dream;" a $20,000 house could not have a more complete kitchen; very dainty electric fixtures throughout; hardwood floors in every room; large clothes closets; garage 12x18 feet, full cement driveway; new lawn and shrubbery; even the fence is artistic; street paved with asphalt; no extra assessments to come later.

—Location, 112 N. Serrano ave., two blocks east of Western ave., two blocks from the public school, stores, churches, fire house, etc. To go by auto, out Wilshire to Serrano, go north to First street; to go by street car, take West Seventh-Western ave. car, get off at Serrano, north two blocks.

—Drive out and look at this "Beauty" today or Sunday; it is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. (will show it at night if you will phone 568738.)

THE WEATHER.
[Official Report.]

LOCAL OFFICE, U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, Nov. 4.—[Reported by Ford A. Carpenter, Meteorologist.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 30.06; at 5 p.m., 30.00. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 52 deg. and 58 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 86 per cent.; 5 p.m., 75 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., northwest, velocity 3 miles; 5 p.m., east, velocity 2 miles. Highest temperature, 59 deg.; lowest, 49 deg. Rainfall for season, 3.48 inches. Barometer reduced to sea level.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.—The pressure increased generally over the greater part of the United States during the past twenty-four hours. The northwestern area of low pressure moved eastward along the Canadian boundary and is now central over Alberta. This depression resulted in moderate precipitation in Washington, Oregon and Central California. The greatest amount, 1.52 inches, fell at North Head, Wash. Freezing temperatures are common to Nevada, Utah, Arizona, Colorado, Nebraska, Iowa, the Dakotas and Minnesota. The sky is overcast in Southern California, and fog conditions are reported from the majority of stations. The observer on Mt. Wilson reports this fog belt as extending to the San Bernardino Mountains and that it is 1000 feet deep.

LOCAL FORECAST.

HOT TEA BREAKS A COLD—TRY THIS

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacupful at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

THE MARCH OF EVENTS.

XXXVth YEAR. SUNDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 5, 1916. POPULATION By the Federal Census (1910)—[illegible] By the City Directory (1916)—[illegible]

Voters: Amendment No. 5 (the Single Tax—putting all the taxes on land owners and taking them off the railroads—) would bring ruin to California. Vote NO, and get your neighbor to vote NO.

Go to the Polls!

NO ELECTION IN THE HISTORY OF CALIFORNIA IS MORE IMPORTANT TO THE WELFARE OF EVERY CITIZEN THAN THAT OF NEXT TUESDAY.

Local, State and National Issues Combine in an Aggregate of Importance Which Should Bring Out a Tremendous Vote to Restore Stability and Prosperity of Republican Rule at Sacramento and Washington and to Crush the Attempt at Confiscation in the Prohibition and Single Tax Amendments.

CALIFORNIA'S 1,000,000 or more electors never participated in a more important general election than that to be held next Tuesday. Upon its result depends to a larger degree than ever before the future progress and prosperity of the State. The propositions of greatest interest include the Presidential contest, the two prohibition amendments, which, if ratified, would destroy one of California's greatest industries, and the contests for seats in both houses of the Legislature and Congress.

No State is more vitally interested in the question of a protective tariff, and for that reason voters throughout California are expected to give overwhelming support to the Republican ticket. There are nearly one hundred California products affected by the tariff. Under Democratic rule Californians have no protection, and having suffered four years of business reverses, they are eagerly awaiting the opportunity to repudiate the policies that mean disaster to them. Further, to give a Republican President a free hand it is necessary that Congress be composed of representatives who are in accord with Republican principles and policies. In Southern California the lines are sharply drawn. The voters in both the Ninth and Tenth Congress districts must decide between Republican and Democratic nominees. The political destiny of the nation may depend upon the selections in these districts and there is no reason to assume that the people will not decide the question properly and most decisively.

Approval of the State roads bonds and defeat of the iniquitous and ruinous single-tax measure are also of great importance to the prosperity of the State.

Despite the fact that the Progressive-Republican machine is in control of the State political situation, there is more than an even chance for the regulars to reverse conditions next Tuesday. In nearly all the Senate and Assembly districts there are tried and true Republicans, many of whom have Progressive opponents who are masquerading under the G.O.P. cloak.

Declaring that control of the Legislature is almost as important to Southern California as the election of Hughes and Fairbanks, Chairman P. Doherty of the Republican County Central Committee is directing the efforts of that organization in the interests of the legislative ticket. Yesterday he announced that prospects are bright for the regular Republicans.

THIRTY-FIRST SENATORIAL.

In the Thirty-first Senatorial District there is practically no contest. Harry A. Chamberlin, a regular Republican, whose record in the Assembly is all the recommendation he could desire, is expected to smother Arthur G. Kuck under a landslide of votes. Kuck is the man who had an awful time getting out of the scandal that arose a short time ago when Whiffen accused him of offering to secure his election as Mayor if he (Whiffen) would come through with a certain sum of money. Even the Progressives have deserted Kuck.

THIRTY-THIRD.

Joseph A. Rominger of Long Beach stood loyally by the regular Republicans during his term in the Assembly and has the indorsement of all the leading political organizations in his district and the county for the Senate. He is honest and fearless, with no taint of Progressivism.

THIRTY-FIFTH.

Egbert J. Gates made himself strong with the regular Republicans during the last primary fight, when he came out enthusiastically for the straight Republican candidate. He has many personal friends in the Thirty-fifth District and they are working zealously for him.

ASSEMBLY CONTESTS.

In nine of the fifteen Assembly districts regular Republican candidates have received the unqualified indorsement of the Republican County Central Committee. In two districts Independent-Republicans are in the race. They have been indorsed by the local members of the County Central Committee.

SIXTY-SECOND.

Charles W. Lyon is expected to sweep the Sixty-second District. He more than made good during his incumbency, fighting all the time for regular Republican policies, notwithstanding the efforts of Henry Lyon, his brother, who can always be depended upon to do anything and everything the machine wants. Charles Lyon has a bright future in California politics and gives every assurance that he will ever remain loyal to the dominant party.

SIXTY-THIRD.

Alfred L. Bartlett is the one man who above all others whom the administration forces would like to crush. They have fought him as bitterly as he has fought them, but he has invariably come out victorious. During his term in the Assembly he has made courageous battles against the iniquitous machine and won many important measures despite the organization of reactionaries. He is a candidate for re-election in the Sixty-third District. His opponent is a Progressive who has been beaten by Mr. Bartlett so much and so decisively that it has almost become an indoor sport for him.

SIXTY-SEVENTH.

A. Burlingame Johnson is the Republican candidate in the Sixty-seventh District. He is a big man in every respect. In fact, the party is honored by having a man of such caliber in the race. He has held diplomatic positions with credit to himself and the nation, and his friends are confident he will slaughter the administration pet next Tuesday.

SIXTY-EIGHTH.

E. R. Shepherd, the Republican candidate in the Sixty-eighth District, was chosen by the people in and about Pomona as a worthy successor to L. L. Lostutter. He lives at Whittier and is very popular among the people who know him intimately. His Republicanism is above reproach.

SEVENTIETH.

When J. A. Rominger decided to make the race for the Senate Republicans in the Seventieth District he began scouring the territory for a man who could reasonably be expected to as well represent his district in the Assembly. They finally decided upon Frank Merriam, who is a hard worker and a good Republican.

SEVENTY-FIRST.

Bert L. Farmer is making a house-to-house canvass in the Seventy-first District. He is covering the territory by foot and is making a most successful campaign. To admire Mr. Farmer it is only necessary to meet him, and he is expected to be elected by a big majority. He has been indorsed by all the individual Republican organizations and the County Central Committee.

SEVENTY-THIRD.

Henry H. Yonkin is well known

REPUBLICAN STALWARTS!

Do you want in?

A letter from Republican National Committee headquarters in New York, dated October 18, 1916, has been received at this office, containing the following pertinent inquiry:

"Will you join the 'Big Drive' which we start this week to elect Hughes and Fairbanks and a Republican Congress?"

In response to this call, considerable sums have already been received by Gen. H. G. Otis and wired to national headquarters.

More money can be used by the committee for legitimate election purposes, and further contributions will be welcomed if received at The Times office as late as next Monday noon. The money will be immediately wired to national headquarters, and will be received there some hours before "Der Tag." No officeholders need to respond.

Strict accountability (not of the Wilsonian brand, however,) will be rendered in each case.

Marked Ballot of Propositions

Following are the propositions on Tuesday's ballot and the recommendations of The Times thereon:

1	PROHIBITION. Initiative measure adding Article XXIV to Constitution. Defines alcoholic liquor. After January 1, 1920, prohibits the manufacture, sale or possession of same, except for medicinal, sacramental, scientific and mechanical purposes under restrictions prescribed by law. Prescribes and authorizes penalties. Declares payment of Internal Revenue tax prima facie evidence of violation. Declares this amendment shall not affect prohibitory liquor laws, or ordinances, enacted before such date, or be construed as in conflict with Article XXIV-A of Constitution if latter article is adopted, and that this amendment supersedes that article on that date. THE REEDCRAFT CO. Inc.

Paying for a name is often a good investment, if nothing else than that it assures a standard of value beyond question.

A painting by Whistler, a statue by Rodin, a book by Bennett, or a composition by Tschaikowsky, each brings its price, not because of the name, but because of the known value which it attaches to the name. So it is with REEDCRAFT. Every piece of REEDCRAFT is the finely finished product of years devoted to the consummation of an artistic ideal, which was to make reed furniture so chaste in design, so sound in construction, and so permanent in character, that it would be accepted as the standard of reed furniture making throughout the United States.

That "people who know" have seen fit to praise REEDCRAFT unreservedly indicates how close we have come to the mark set by our eminent staff of designers. It is quality of this kind that the name REEDCRAFT represents.

"REEDCRAFT" is the German reed furniture and is on sale only at our shops. 937-939 South Broadway.

Here We Tell You Why You Should See the Apollo Before You Purchase—

¶ If all musical instruments and all voices were pitched in the same key the Transposing feature of the Apollo would be unnecessary.

¶ With the Apollo you can omit the melody and play only the accompaniment and through the use of the Transposing Device you can play this accompaniment in any desired key to perfectly harmonize with other instruments or the voice.

¶ One of the charms of owning a player piano lies in being able to accompany your friends when they want to sing or play. Do you want an instrument with which you can't do this?

¶ The above is but one of the many features which make the Apollo the ideal player piano for you to purchase.

¶ The Mentronome Motor which rewinds the music rolls without pedalling—the Dynaline which gives perfect control of dynamics with out the use of levers—the Solo which accents the melody or any single note of it—the Direct down touch on the keys—these are a few of the fundamentals which make Apollo music human.

PROPOSED SINGLE-TAX SHOWN TO BE POOR MAN'S NEMESIS.

League Opposing Amendment Five Demonstrates Its Adoption would Mean Tie-up of Capital, Less Expansion, Fewer Jobs and Speculation in Foodstuffs.

WITH practically every civic, business and commercial organization condemning Amendment No. 5, abolishing all taxes except those on land, as confiscatory and the most vicious piece of legislation every projected on any ballot, the campaign that has been vigorously waged against it by nearly every reputable interest in the State will be continued until midnight tomorrow night.

Although the executives of the People's Anti-Single Tax League believe that the voting public has been thoroughly warned against the iniquitous measure by the general campaign of education that has been waged, there will be no let-up today and tomorrow in the battle against the proposition.

Those in charge of the campaign believe that their efforts during the past month to show the amendment in its true light to the voters will be crowned with the success of a majority of 150,000 against it, which they believe will cause the backers of such freak, loosely-constructed and harmful legislation to seek virgin fields upon which to hurl their theories and leave the State of California to peace and prosperity.

All the rival interests, representing the biggest industries of the State, have combined against this common enemy. Bankers, real estate dealers, farmers, fruit growers, mining and oil men, workers in practically every legitimate field of endeavor operating in California have worked tirelessly to educate the voters to the direful possibilities sure to follow in the train of the passage of such a law.

Labor and capital have each put a shoulder to the wheel together to defeat this proposed enormity, for the workingman with his humble dwelling on a small plot of ground, which he is paying for in installments, realizes that he would suffer more in proportion than the man of wealth, whose bonds, stocks, mortgages and money in the banks will be immune from taxation.

Philip D. Wilson, secretary of the People's Anti-Single Tax League, stated last night that he fully believed the measure would be decisively defeated, but urged that no voter fail to cast his ballot against the proposition under the impression that there was no chance of such a ridiculous measure being carried.

This is the latest eleventh-hour bulletin issued by the People's Anti-Single Tax League to explain to the voters the direful possibilities that the amendment entails:

WHAT IS SINGLE TAX?

(1.) It is a political theory by which it is proposed to increase taxes upon land until equal to the full annual rental value, thereby destroying its selling value.

(2.) To abolish and prevent all other forms of taxation, such as the license, occupation and income tax, taxes on money, stocks, bonds, buildings, cars, monopolies, trusts and all personal property, leaving land the principal source of revenue.

(3.) To confiscate without compensation the savings invested in land.

WOULD THE TAXES OF THE HOME OWNER AND SMALL LANDOWNER BE REDUCED BY SINGLE TAX?

No. Because if taxes were raised from no other source than the land, then taxes would be put so high on unimproved and poorly improved land, that no one would hold it, and all of the taxes would have to be collected from the improved land.

IF THE SINGLE-TAX FORCED THE LANDOWNER TO SELL, WHO WOULD BUY?

No one. Because if the burden of owning the land were too great for the wealthy to own, how could the poor carry the burden the wealthy are glad to be rid of?

WOULD SINGLE TAX REDUCE RENTS?

No. Because the construction of a building upon land on which the taxes were "equal to the full annual rental value of the bare land," would make such an unsafe investment that it would be necessary to charge a very much higher rental for the building. Hence, single-tax would not reduce rents.

WOULD SINGLE TAX STIMULATE BUILDING?

No. Because building will continue only so long as it is profitable and a careful man would not build upon land to which he had an uncertain tenure. It would be impossible to get loans for further improvements or for building cottages or houses. A large part of the capital for such purposes comes from outside the State and the single tax would force this supply into other States where the security was not endangered. Investors would not go where there is a penalty for holding land vacant until they have the means to improve or until there is a demand for improvements.

WOULD SINGLE TAX ENCOURAGE LOANS FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OF LAND?

No. The security for the loan would be destroyed because if the "full annual rental value" is taken by taxation, the land would have an uncertain and diminishing selling value. A loan would be a second mortgage—because the State has a first mortgage upon the land and improvements as security for the payment of the taxes.

WHAT WOULD BE THE EFFECT UPON THE LOANS NOW IN EXISTENCE?

When due, payment would be demanded and unless the owner were able to pay, the land and building would be sold to satisfy the mortgage. The owner's margin or equity would be wiped out by the decrease in selling value.

BUT THE SINGLE TAXERS SAY, "LAND OWNERS WILL HAVE TO IMPROVE OR SELL." WHAT ABOUT IT?

Land will not be used and improved unless profitable. Suppose they are forced to sell—the land still remains there and would not be improved unless there is a demand for the improvements. It is folly to argue that you can continue building houses, office and store buildings unless there is a demand for them. If the single tax destroys the selling value of the land (which they admit) who will lend money to improve the land? It is unreasonable to advocate and attempt to improve and bring to a state of perfection the entire resources of the State at once.

WOULD THE SINGLE TAX ENCOURAGE THE USE OF LAWNS?

Under the operation of the single tax, the people in moderate circumstances would be heavily fined for owning a few extra lots on which to raise their garden truck or have a playground for their children. Take the widow, for instance, who has a few lots for either of these purposes. Her taxes will be greater, not less. Those who have large lawns to make their home more pleasant and agreeable, their taxes would be greater. The whole tendency of the single tax is contraction, and not expansion.

HOW WOULD THE SINGLE TAX AFFECT THE POOR MAN?

Suppose a poor man, with his savings, erects a modest cottage upon his lot. Suppose also that upon the adjoining lot a large and costly improvement were erected. The effect of this would be to raise the tax. Under the single tax both men would be equally taxed. Now, if, as the poor man grew old and less able to earn, there should come more and still more costly improvements in his neighborhood, then the single tax would constantly increase until he had been taxed out of his home and savings.

WOULD FREE LAND DESTROY PAUPERISM?

No. For how could a man who had no capital (machinery, horses, cattle, plows and supplies,) be able to do anything with free land if he could not sell it to anyone? It would not have a loan value, and, therefore, money could not be borrowed to carry on the improvements or production.

WOULD THE SINGLE TAX HELP THE LABORING MAN?

No. Because it would stop the flow of local and outside capital for loan, building or industrial purposes and therefore make less work for the laboring man. It would increase the cost of food supplies—because it would discourage production by the farmer. It would force speculation in the necessities of life and the instruments of production and the laboring man would be the sufferer. It would increase rents because it would discourage building operations, confiscate vacant property for taxes, and increase the burden upon the improved land, until taxes would absorb the full rental value.

WILL THE SINGLE TAX INCREASE WAGES?

No. Because it would discourage industry and lack of industry means fewer jobs, and fewer jobs men lower wages.

WOULD THE TRUSTS AND MONOPOLIES BE TAXED?

No. Because their wealth is represented by personal property, which would be exempt from taxation under the proposed amendment.

WHO WOULD BENEFIT BY THE SINGLE TAX?

Only the loan sharks and the wealthy and the privileged classes who would be able to take advantage of the people suffering from the hardships inflicted by the single tax.

WOULD SINGLE TAX ENCOURAGE MANUFACTURES?

No. Because mere tax exemption is not sufficient inducement to encourage manufacture. The taxes of a manufacturer are an insignificant part of the cost of doing business. We cannot lift ourselves by our own boot-straps. The things that bring manufactures are: Cheap raw material, efficient labor, cheap fuel, a market for the finish product, and, most important of all, cheap transportation charges. We might have all except the last, and until placed upon a competitive basis with other manufacturing States we could not hope to grow in this respect. We will, of course, continue to grow and progress without the single tax to the same extent as we have in the past.

WOULD SINGLE TAX INCREASE THE NUMBER OF MERCHANTS?

No. Some people say we now have more merchants than are needed. In any event, the number of merchants that can profitably conduct a business depends upon the size of the community. A merchant does not precede population. A merchant is the result of population.

By abolishing the license and occupation tax, local merchants would have to compete with the itinerant bankrupt merchants and peddlers.

WOULD SINGLE TAX INCREASE THE POPULATION OF THE STATE?

No. Because capital would be forced into other States, where it would find secure investments. Security of land tenure is the foundation of all property rights. No new industries would spring up in this State and there would be no work and employment to encourage immigration.

WOULD SINGLE TAX PREVENT SPECULATION?

No. It would have a tendency to destroy speculation in land, but would encourage and increase speculation in the instruments of production and the necessities of life. It would place a premium on gambling in foodstuffs. This would cause great hardship upon the laboring man and the poor people.

HOW TO CAST HUGHES VOTE.

Stamp in Box Opposite the Republican Electors' Name Does It.

Because the sample ballots mailed out to registered voters do not contain the names of Charles Evans Hughes for President or Charles W. Fairbanks for Vice-President, the Republican State Central Committee headquarters during the last few days has received hundreds of inquiries from Republican voters as to how they shall mark their ballots in order to vote for President.

Instead of carrying the names of candidates for the Presidency the ballot contains in lieu thereof, the names of the thirteen Presidential electors of each party.

To cast a ballot for Charles Evans Hughes, a voter should stamp a single cross in the square box after the names of the thirteen Republican Presidential electors.

Because the separate headings over each group of party Presidential electors states only that they are Presidential electors and fails to set forth their party, the Republican electors can be determined by looking at the party affiliations set forth after each elector's name. All of the Republican Presidential electors are defined individually as Republicans, all the Socialist electors as Socialists, etc.

Only one mark must be made upon the ballot in voting for the group of thirteen Republican electors—this mark to be in the box set opposite their names.

Bad.

SINGLE TAX ALLOWS ANY ALIEN POWER.

NEWCOMERS CAN DISPOSSESS EVERY LAND OWNER.

If Vicious Amendment Carries Property will Go to the Highest Bidder and Californians will Have no More Claim than Japs or Europeans.

California has a State law prohibiting Japanese from purchasing and owning lands. Japanese may rent or lease land, however. The purposed single-tax State constitutional Amendment No. 5 on the ballot is intended to put every white man in the position the Japanese are now in.

The purpose of this amendment is that no one shall have no real ownership of any land, but that all shall be tenants of the State. In the language of the amendment itself, "The intent of this provision is to take for public use the rental and site values of land."

The theory of single tax is that the bidder, who will offer the State the highest rental for a piece of land, shall get it, and the former occupant, unable to pay the last rent offered, must move on.

If the single-tax amendment carries, the present owners of land in California will have to bid not only against Japanese but against any other newcomers, and whoever bids the highest gets the land. The people of California will have no more claim on it than the people from back East or from Europe. Under the single-tax amendment the State is to tax each piece of land its full rental value. The highest bid that anyone will make determines its rental value. Under this scheme of taxation newcomers from Europe or Asia can dispossess every owner of land in California.

The amendment seems to have been drawn up ignoring the fact that, while it applies to the land in California only, it is open to the people of the whole world to take advantage of it.

UNLOADING

I will place on sale Monday, Nov. 6th, the last 25 lots in Windermere Park, at a reduction of from $500 to $2000 on each lot from present prices.

Windermere Park is a tract of 58 acres divided into 213 lots; lies in the heart of the WILSHIRE DISTRICT halfway between North Wilshire and Hollywood. All of the lots except these 25 are sold to private individuals. No one owns two lots. The tract is wisely restricted and these restrictions are rigidly enforced.

More improvements have been made in this section the last two years than in any other part of Los Angeles and more will be made in the next two years than elsewhere, including—

Second Street Tunnel;

Silver Lake Park;

Beverly Boulevard.

Improvements We Have.

Every improvement to be found in the best residence district of Los Angeles.

Six of the best schools;

Six new churches; all English-speaking denominations.

All within easy walking distance.

In the past few years every lot in the tract has advanced from 150 to 400 per cent. which is more than any other residence tract in Los Angeles ever did in the same time.

This is the first reduction ever advertised or made in Windermere. When the above improvements are started all lots will double in price; many cannot be bought at all.

We have the best climate and the best street car service in Los Angeles. Every two minutes. This reduction gives you a large, high east front lot for $1500. Our neighbors ask $4800 for a similar one.

No trades; no commissions. As long time as you want.

I Offer For Sale:

The handsomest 42 acres of land in Los Angeles in the highest point between Los Angeles and the sea on the best avenue in the city.

At a reduction of $1500 per acre. This land faces 1600 feet on Vermont Ave., running from 117th to 120th street.

Known for over 50 years as Vermont Summit and is as level as a billiard table. From it you can see every prominent building in Los Angeles and the ships sailing in our harbor. Every inch of it is as high as the tops of the Hollywood Mountains.

Three years ago our School Board paid $9000 an acre for 7 acres at First Street and Vermont Ave. Why is my land not worth as much now, and if not why will it not be worth more a few years hence and yet my price is $2000 per acre.

I have held it firm at $3500 per acre the past five years.

It is ripe for subdivision.

It is the handsomest site in California for a palatial mansion.

It is the best site in the United States for a large college.

4 street car lines, 25 minutes to Los Angeles, 18 minutes to the ocean.

I will give a new hat to be shown 42 acres equal to it or better, with same facilities in Los Angeles County.

The City's best appraisers have raised the value of these 42 acres the past year 327 per cent. Why did they do it?

No trades; no commissions; as long time as you want.

The Best Speculation in Los Angeles Without Risking One Cent.

I own 40 acres facing on Main Street 1600 feet, (132nd to 135th St.) running back to Moneta avenue the same distance, or 1600 ft. square.

On this 40 acres the best geologists in the State say lies the largest body of oil in Los Angeles County. I have refused to lease it to several people who wanted it; one of them, worth millions, and said to be one of the best business men in this city, said to me: "So firmly have the best geologists convinced me there is a large body of oil here, if you lease it to me I will put down two test wells at a cost of over $50,000. If we find oil in paying quantities, I will put down 6 more wells, or say 8 wells in all, at a cost of over $200,000, all out of my own pocket."

I have had these 40 acres carefully surveyed before the oil excitement by two of the best surveyors in Los Angeles and laid out into 186 lots (all 50 feet or over.) (I can sell it in 6 months;) after making very low prices and deducting all expenses I will make a handsome profit on $100,000.

Honest real estate men will tell you the Courts are the lowest valuators of real estate. Adjoining me, but not near as well located, being much lower and not as good car service. A tract is being laid out. A street car company took three acres. After a bitter fight before a Judge and Jurors, the lot owners were awarded $2400 an acre a month ago.

I will sell you my 40 acres for $2400 per acre and throw in my prospects for several hundred thousand dollars worth of oil.

No trades; no commissions; all the time you want.

Bewitching Dance Frocks for Girls' and Juniors' Wear

Georgette, crepe de chine and taffeta in shades of rose, blue, green and apricot are as charmingly made for girls as are our elaborate gowns for their mothers.

Heavily smocked blue and rose crepe de chine dresses with puffy, smocked sleeves and tucked, full skirts. One of white Georgette and taffeta with two flounces. Trimmed with band of rosebuds over arms. A touch of pink velvet at the neck.

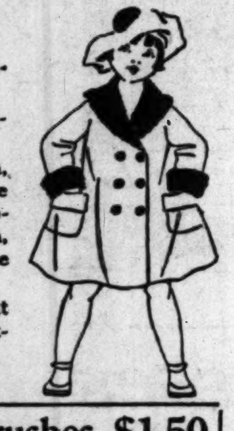
Modish blue and rose Georgette crepe frocks with picot ruffles around collar and skirt. Cuffs and long sleeves.

For Juniors are dresses of blue Georgette, hemstitched back and front. Ruffle edged sailor collar. Seven small ruffles at bottom of skirt.

Beautiful dancing frocks of taffeta. Close-fitting bodices and bouffant skirts. Here and there a dainty touch of gold or silver or perhaps a tiny flower. All desirable shades.

Hats Designed to Meet Children's Approval as Well as Mothers'

Some for as little as $1.50, $1.75 and $2.95. Others at $4.50 and $6.50. Colors or black; sailor, mushroom and bonnet styles and irregular brims. Each hat daintily trimmed—every one essentially childish.



New Coats for Tots

Clever cuts, pretty cloths, seasonable colors.

Real boy-coats for boys and real girl-coats for girls.

Belted and semi-belted styles; plush, velvet and fur trimmings. Handsome fabrics, including velour, velvet, Bolivia, broadcloth, chinchilla, plush, homespun mixtures and herring-bone weaves.

At $6.50 and $7.50 are coats that every mother will take pride in putting on her children.

Infants' Wear Dept.—1st Floor.

Waterproof "Ideal" Brushes $1.50

An improved rubber cushion hair brush. You may wash it in water as often as you wish and bristles will not come out nor water penetrate the cushion. And in addition to this advantage "Ideal" brushes now have four bristles instead of three to each tuft. Each brush guaranteed.

This price is the manufacturer's special introductory offer. After December 1st, the price advances.

Toilet Articles Dept.—1st Floor

Japanese Wool Challis—30-ins. wide

WHO IS HE?

The dispatches say that "among the visitors to Shadow Lawn was Alton B. Parker." Bless us, merry-men, who is Parker?

THE WHEAT BOOM.

Never before in the history of this country has wheat been at its present high price. Almost every day it advances a small farm per acre. Who wouldn't be a farmer?

A BIT EARLY.

The New York Y.M.C.A. has instituted a course of training to make boys better. It is quite a job in any event, but we would suggest that the week before Christmas is the proper time to try out the experiment. Then the result is bound to be gratifying.

A LESSON IN ECONOMY.

Why kick on paying a nickel for talking through a public telephone? It enables many a young man to send stuff over the wire that if put in a letter would make him liable for a breach of promise suit. On the score of economy it is all to the good.

WHY WORRY?

Stories of negroes coming North to vote are again filling the souls of the Democratic machinists with worry and consternation. It is the old story that appears about this time in every national campaign. Perhaps they want to come where their vote will be counted.

PROPOSED EXPOSITION.

John Wanamaker suggests that Philadelphia hold an exposition in 1926 to celebrate the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Ten years is none too long for Philadelphia to prepare for such an event. Other towns would not require so much time.

A POINTER.

The fact that we have a foreign trade balance of $4,000,000,000 is the sole reason why money is now so easy and work so abundant in some parts of the country. Yet the party in power has done nothing to increase our export trade as a whole. It has increased only with the warring countries and is therefore an incident of the war with which governmental policies have had nothing more to do than the man in the moon.

LIVING ON LOVE.

Those Indiana girls who have formed themselves into a "Can't Live on Love Club," and whose frank intention is to marry a good income or remain single, are likely to find that it is pleasanter to live on love than without it. It is now up to the young men to form a "Shan't Live Without Love" club and bestow those "good incomes" with discrimination. It might prove useful in the conservation of alimony.

RELICS OF HATE.

A London firm offered the Belfast Corporation a number of relics of the recent Irish rebellion for their municipal museum. But the Belfast Corporation decided not to purchase these relics of hate, such memories being all too well perpetuated without such aid.

However, that example won't prevent the four brotherhoods treasuring their Presidential pens as relics of their successful hold-up of the nation under a Democratic administration.

POSTERITY'S CHILDREN.

There has just died in Dumfries, Scotland, Mrs. Burns Brown, granddaughter of Robert Burns, the famous poet, at the age of 85. She was the daughter of the eldest son of the poet, who was a stamp clerk in a government office, and she married Thomas Brown, a foreman carder in the tweed mills of Dumfries. There has never been a poet in the family since, nor have any of the family achieved distinction in any career. "Just good steady people of the working class," as a literary journal has it. But a man's a man for a' that.

"LEST WE FORGET."

Not forgotten by the American people will be the sacred memories of the nation's dead soldiers who fell on the international border line at the hands of Mexican bandits of both the Villa and Carranza brands. "While glory guards the bivouac of the dead," their grateful countrymen will see to it that other American soldiers shall not die to no purpose, as they did; that military preparedness shall be the rule in the land henceforth; that the world shall know that the American people (outside of New Jersey) are not "too proud to fight;" that no future Cabinet officer shall dare to sneeringly compare the barefooted heroes of Valley Forge with the bloody bandits of Mexico and get away with the sneer; that Europe shall be so thoroughly taught by the future President of the United States in the school of mutual and international respect as to henceforth refrain utterly and entirely from insults and the commission of lawless and contemptuous acts against America and the American people; that law-defying conspirators, whether of labor or capital, shall nevermore be permitted to succeed against the peace and dignity of our country; that the whole people, and not a mere segment of them, shall govern the country under the rule of law and within the scope of the Constitution of the United States.

Why?

I. The Times champions the election of Charles Evans Hughes because he is a great jurist, a great statesman, a great orator, a great patriotic American, and the captain and leader of the Republican party—the grandest organization of freemen that the world has ever known.

II. The Times supports the Republican party because its history is the history of the growth, the greatness and the freedom of our nation; because its purposes are patriotic; because, while it opposes class legislation against capital, it is the best and truest friend that labor ever had; because its restoration to power will, when the European conflict ceases, keep the furnaces glowing, and the spindles humming, and the land filled with the music of contented and well-paid toil.

III. The Times favors the Republican party because under its wise guidance star after star has been added to our flag, factory after factory has been added to our resources, billions have been added to our wealth, city after city has been developed from villages, the land has been laced with a network of iron rails, and the grand diapason of free labor has been made to sound throughout this great nation.

IV. The Times favors the Republican party because, under its inspiration, these United States, once a collection of wrangling and discordant commonwealths, once shamed with slavery and decrepit with the disease of secession, have become a country where no slave's presence dishonors labor, where no freeman's utterances are choked by the hand of power, where no man doffs his hat to another except through the courtesy of equals, where education is free, where manhood is respected, and where toil is protected.

V. The Times favors the Republican party because, under its patriotic rule, the United States has become a nation whose name is now proudly spoken in the singular and not in the plural number; whose credit rules at the head of the world's finances; whose policies gave land to the landless, work to the industrious, freedom to the slave, and armies and treasure for the preservation of the nation whose existence was imperiled by the Democratic party.

VI. The Times favors the Republican party because, under its guidance, the United States has become the greatest, freest and most prosperous nation under the light of the sun.

Macaulay said that "history is philosophy teaching by example." May we not profitably study the lesson of our own history during the last half-century? It is true that the issues of fifty years ago are as live questions politically dead; but, on the other hand, they are as dead questions politically alive. The Times does not claim that the Democratic party, if in power, would retrograde so far as to put the northern and southern armies again in the field, in order that Secretary Baker might order a Union general to follow up a new Joseph E. Johnson for the purpose of catching him in order to surrender to him, nor that Woodrow Wilson might command a Union general to tunnel into Appomattox in order to surrender to a new Lee. But though the issues of the Civil War are dead, it is not yet time to forget what was the attitude upon those issues of the parties which now ask the confidence and support of the American people.

What has been the attitude of the Democratic party for sixty years? Has it ever favored a fair or noble policy?

The Democratic doctrine in 1860 was that there was no difference between slave property and other property, and that under the United States Constitution, as construed by the Dred Scott decision, a slaveholder had a right to take his slaves into the Territories and be protected in their possession by Federal power. Many southern statesmen went further and claimed a similar right in the States. Senator Toombs said that the time was coming when he could call a roll of his slaves at the foot of the Bunker Hill monument. The time had arrived in 1856 when slavery, aggressive by that very necessity of its nature which demanded expansion as a condition precedent of continued existence, sought to make slave States out of Kansas and Nebraska Territories.

The Republican party did not propose to interfere with slavery where it existed as the creature of local law, but utterly denied that it was national or entitled to protection or recognition from the Nation outside of State boundaries, except merely to aid the return of fugitive slaves. The southern Democrats attempted to force their atrocious doctrines upon the Nation. They mistook the temper of the people of the free States. They might have continued to insult those people and belittle their united power, as they had done for years, but when they fired upon the Flag of the Union at Sumter, they played with northern fire, and the Republican masses, aided by loyal Democrats, united in the defense of their country.

What was the attitude of the Democratic party of the North three years after the beginning of the war? What Democrat can recall it now without the blush of shame mantling his cheeks? Let the waters of Lethe flow over it!

What was the attitude of the Republican party when the war drums ceased to throb and victory perched upon the Nation's banner?

Republican statesmen legislated to meet the conditions. They had no thought of vengeance and no wish to oppress the vanquished. They desired only to remove the ravages of war from the fair face of the South, to open her ports to commerce, to restore her great marts to thrift, her fields to opulence, her people to prosperity and contentment, her sons to representation, to citizenship, to equality in the councils and place in the government of the Nation. They effected this by the war amendments to the Constitution, each one of which was fought by the Democratic party, and each one of which contributed to the recuperation of the South and the peace and safety of the Nation.

The Democratic party is now, as it has ever been, a party of retrogression. It opposes Preparedness, Protection and Prosperity because the Republican party favors them. Its purpose is to build up that which Republicanism has torn down, to tear down that which Republicanism has built up, to undo that which Republicanism has achieved, to achieve that which Republicanism has refused. If some scientist were to successfully demonstrate that by retrogressive chemical action man could be remitted backward through quadruped, bird, reptile and fish until he should become a polyp, clinging in glutinous unconsciousness to a Devonian rock—that scientist would take high rank in Democratic councils.

What Republican but rejoices in the history of his party? That history was written not alone on fields whose surface men's feet shook like thunder and whose turf was their last pillow. It was written on fields where weary feet followed the plow and in shops where strong arms hammered the forges to furnish food and shelter for the wives and children of the absent soldier. It was written where trembling fingers wrote the checks that Capital gave to Country. It was written in the hospitals where patriotic women nursed the wounded. By the midnight watch-fire and amid the roar of battle, wherever the heart of the Nation throbbed, wherever the sword of the Nation gleamed, there, upon the parchment of the eternal ages the Republican party wrote its title to rule the land which it saved!

TO YOUNG MEN.

It may not be expected that Democrats who voted three times for Bryan and three times for Cleveland will now be patriotic enough and wise enough to cast their ballots for Hughes. It is useless to waste time with them. "Ephraim is joined to his idols; let him alone." Anyway, the hide-bound Democrats are too few in number and too feeble in influence to do much mischief, and, after Tuesday next, they will probably be interesting only as specimens of an otherwise extinct political species.

It is to the young men of the country that The Times appeals. It appeals to the bright, brave boys who are ascending the uplands of life, with the sunlight still in their faces and who will possess the glories and the achievements of this young century when the present generation shall have journeyed on into the hereafter. The Times urges them not to stumble amid the rocks and brambles along the Democratic road and at last end their journey in a swamp. It beseeches them not to link their future with that record of past blunders and promise of future mistakes which calls itself the Democratic party, but which is as far from the Democracy of Thomas Jefferson as darkest Africa is from brightest California. The Democratic temple today has degenerated into a deadfall within which there is death to patriotism, to progress and to prosperity. Its priests teach false philosophies that entangle the reason, misguide the action and disappoint the ambitions of those who listen to them. The feet of our youth should be turned away from its delusive door.

THE BAKER MARE'S NEST.

What has become of the alleged plot exposed by Secretary Baker, in regard to a wicked drive somebody was about to make on the line at the Mexican boundary? When "Pansy" Baker loses his job as secretarying about the War Department he ought to go into the game of writing dime novels.

SINISTER GROWTH.

There has just died in Dumfries, Scotland today listed under "controlled establishments," meaning direct government supervision. And there are several hundred uncontrolled establishments of private firms. All these are working day and night turning out death-dealing munitions twenty-four hours a day.

And the working people of England have never known such high wages as they are making today. They are being admonished on all sides for their extravagance; luxuries are being indulged in as never before. Many are tasting the joy of spending for the first time and scorn to be thrifty. The well-to-do are poorer, but the poor are rich.

It is ironical that such conditions, so satisfactory to Socialists, should come out of war, against which the Socialists never cease to harangue, and ironical indeed that England's poor should wax prosperous on England's misery. It is safe to say that when peace is declared, no matter what the terms of settlement, the majority of the working classes of Great Britain will regret it.

THE BACK-YARD ASSET.

The London Times is authority for the information that workingmen of Belfast, who cultivated their garden plots in their spare time during the past year, added $520,000 worth of vegetables to the supply of the city food and aided materially in keeping down the high cost of living. The cultivation of back yards in California would go far to relieve the cost-of-food situation which is proving such a problem to the housewife. And our climate is much more responsive than the Irish climate, vegetables maturing much earlier here than elsewhere. It has been proved possible again and again in this vicinity to keep a family of five provided with fresh vegetables the year around on an ordinary city lot. It only requires real interest and reasonable attention.

THE RETREATING DEMOCRACY.

As the closing days of the campaign approach, the irresistible force of the Republican movement is everywhere felt. Republican voters often stray far afield in midsummer, the sweets of the wild flowers wooing them away from the clover; but as election day approaches they come swarming home, like bees returning at nightfall to the hive. It is this independence of thought and movement but unity of action that often raises so high Democratic hopes in October, and shatters them so rudely in November.

During the early days of the campaign the Democrats centered their attack on New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Connecticut. Their chief argument was war prosperity. This has been answered so clearly and so forcibly by the campaign of education conducted by the Republican speakers and Republican press that it has lost its force.

Beaten back, like an army in retreat, mid-October found the Democrats clamoring and campaigning in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Here, too, the Republican forces quickly assumed the offensive. Two weeks ago the Democratic prognosticators were claiming that Ohio was won. This claim, sent broadcast through the nation, started inquiries pouring into Republican headquarters in Cleveland and Cincinnati, "What is the matter with Ohio."

Promptly the message was flashed back, "We'll show you on the seventh of November what's the matter with Ohio." So vigorous was the awakening of the latent Republican spirit that the administration propagandists moved on farther west. As the campaign closes they are making a blanket claim of Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, the Dakotas and Kansas. They must have five of these seven States, either New Jersey or Indiana and the "Solid South" in order to win. They are abandoning New York, as did Bryan in 1896, as "the enemy's country."

Reports from States along the old Mason and Dixon line indicate, however, that a dark cloud is hovering over the northern border of that "Solid South." Missouri is wobbling in a northerly direction. The Champ Clark forces are sulking; St. Louis is reported to be hopelessly Republican and Hughes is slight favorite in the poolrooms. Kentucky, too, is requiring attention. That "kept us out of war" campaign cry has not made much of a hit among those militant sons sired in the "dark and bloody ground." Kentucky still retains a flavor of that land of romance—

"Where the mocking bird is singing in the genial southern morn;
Where the corn is full of kernels—and the colonels full of corn."

Kentucky would have rallied manfully to the support of Champ Clark; but that anemic, peace-loving', psalm-singin' college professor—Fall huntin's too good to waste a day goin' to the polls.

In the Far West, which includes our own bailiwick, there is but cold comfort for the shivering Democracy. This territory includes thirteen States; it has sixty votes in the Electoral College. Forty of these are admittedly Republican. The Democrats are figuring on picking up three votes in Arizona, three in Nevada, four in Washington, four in New Mexico and six in Colorado. We of the West know, however, that if Wilson wins half these he will be exceedingly lucky. Straw votes in New Mexico indicate that it is easily Republican; the Socialist campaign seems to be cutting deep enough over in Nevada on the Wilson vote to assure a Republican victory. In assuming a conservative mask to capture Republican votes Wilson has turned away thousands of Socialists who voted for him four years ago.

Viewed as a whole, the campaign is closing as a national campaigns generally close in a normal Republican year. The Democrats have claimed everything from the Atlantic to the Pacific; but their vacillation indicates that they are certain of nothing outside the Solid South. The Republicans are not predicting a landslide; but the leaders are claiming 300 votes in the Electoral College, and a careful survey of the field seems to justify fully this assumption. The Times bases its conclusions on the most authoritative advices from the seat of war and heartily believes that Hughes and Fairbanks will be elected.

APT SCRIPTURAL QUOTATIONS—SEE?

"Thou hast forsaken me," O Woodrow, saith the American people; "thou art gone backward; therefore will I stretch out my hand against thee, and destroy thee."—[Jeremiah, xv: 6.

"Behold my servant," Charles Evans Hughes, "whom I uphold; mine elect, in whom my soul delighteth; I have put my spirit upon him; he shall bring forth judgment"—to the Democrats—See?—[Isaiah, xlii: 1.

Said Woodrow: "I looked on all the works that my hands had wrought, and on the labor that I had labored to do; and behold, all was vanity and vexation of spirit, and there was no profit under the sun. Yea, I hated all my labor which I had taken under the sun, because I should leave it unto the man that shall be after me.—[Ecclesiastes, ii: 11, 18.

The thoughts of Woodrow are an abomination, but the words of Charles (Hughes) are pleasant words.—[Proverbs, xv: 26.

Let another take his (Wilson's) office. —[Psalms, cix: 8.

Woodrow was exalted for a little while, but on November 7th he will be brought low. He will be taken out of the way and cut off as the top of the ears of corn.—[Job, xxiv: 25.

And there was a great cry of the people and of their wives against Woodrow.—[Nehemiah, v: 1.

There was great joy in the land over the election of Hughes, for since the time of Lincoln there was not the like of him in the White House.—[II Chronicles, 26.

So Hughes was President over all the United States.—[I Kings, iv: 1.

HIS BURCHARD.

There is quite a list of leading Democrats eligible for entry in the Burchard class, affecting President Wilson. There is Chairman Vance McCormick, of the National Committee, who is delivering views every day that are chiefly known as hocus-pocus; Secretary of War Baker who insulted the intelligence of the American people when he said the Revolutionary patriots were in the same class as the Villa bandits; "Gum-Shoe" Bill Stone, who made the famous beer-garden flunk, and there are others who belong in the Hall of Fame.

VOTE NO ON NUMBER TWO.

The Times is for temperance, if it is only of the practical kind, and always for sincerity. This journal has no idea that No. 1 on the ballot for next Tuesday can possibly carry. It is not our opinion that either of the prohibition propositions can secure a majority of the votes of the people of this State. But it is sure that No. 2 will get many more votes than No. 1. There is some sincerity about the No. 1 proposition, which carries the courage of conviction on its face. No. 2 aims at practically the same thing, but does it in a surreptitious way. While prohibition comes out without a mask in the open daylight in No. 1, it is masquerading in No. 2.

Anyone who will take the trouble to read the literature put out officially by the State in connection with these amendments to the Constitution will be convinced that No. 2 is not a sincere, open and aboveboard proposition. The argument in favor of No. 2 printed in this literature begins with this phrase: "This amendment will close saloons." Now if that is exactly what the amendment proposes to do, The Times is with it heart and soul. That would be a real temperance measure easily put into effect and efficacious in the highest degree. It would cut at the root of intemperance and carry it away root and branch.

But No. 2 goes much farther than the initial phrase quoted above in the argument in favor of the amendment. It forbids the use of wines, no matter how light, not only in saloons but in restaurants, hotels, at banquets, in fact everywhere except in private houses. It forbids the sale of these wines except at the place where they are manufactured, and they must be conveyed directly to the home of the consumer. They must be bought in quantities above the reach of the average citizen. The proponents of this amendment knew they were striking a body blow at the wine industry when they concocted this insincere pretense of closing the saloons. It was put on the ballot in the fear that No. 1 could not carry, but in the hope that this masquerading substitute might slip through. It was a cunningly-devised measure, and we fear will be effective in winning the votes of many good citizens who think it a wise and moderate measure, and who would not vote for extreme prohibition.

One of our main objections to the first amendment is that it will confiscate the property of many citizens of California who have invested $150,000,000 in the wine industry under the protection of the law. The proponents of Amendment No. 2 claim that if this should carry it would work no hardship to the vineyardists whatever. It cuts off every selling agency, forbids the soliciting of liquor traffic by any one, even the owner of a winery, and would do infamous mischief to the vine-growers of the State. It would be a confiscation of property without any recompense whatever. How the wineries are going to dispose of their product without soliciting trade is difficult to conceive. How the average householder is to get wine in a big jug from the winery to his household is a puzzle unsolvable.

No. 2 also forbids the use of wines at hotels, restaurants, or at banquets given under any auspices, under any circumstances, in the State. This would work great hardship on the hotels, wineries and on the restaurants, and would keep a great many tourists from visiting the State, or from remaining in it long under such restrictions.

The insincerity of the proposition ought to be evident to all voters from the very fact that it aims at cutting off Californians from the privilege of using their own products.

If the temperance people will take up a crusade to close every saloon in the State we will join them heart and soul, for it will be an honest temperance movement, an efficacious movement, and prompt of application. But however much we may regret opposing our good friends, we must absolutely refuse to support any measure insincere or masquerading in its nature. Really, we would rather see No. 1 go through than No. 2. There is the merit of sincerity in No. 1 which No. 2 lacks.

BONDS FOR GOOD ROADS.

With the leading civic and business organizations of Southern California lined up solidly in its support, there is every reason to believe that Amendment No. 3 on next Tuesday's ballot, providing for the issuance by the State of $15,000,000 in bonds for the completion of California's great highway system, will carry overwhelmingly in the Southland. Less is known of the sentiment in the north, although all reports indicate a most favorable attitude toward the proposition above the Tehachepi. The proponents of the measure in this part of the State declare they have encountered little opposition to the amendment upon the part of those who really understand its provisions.

The first and only real objection to the bond issue that will occur to the average voter is the cost to the people of California of putting the thing through. It is an objection, however, that is offset in more ways than one. The financial end of the undertaking as contemplated in the measure appearing on the ballot is not nearly so formidable for the individual taxpayer as might on the face of it appear. The almost incalculable benefit certain to result from the new highway programme constitutes an argument that Southern Californians in particular cannot afford to ignore.

Under the plan to be voted upon, the first bonds would not mature until 1923, by which time the State is bound to be much more densely populated and to have a much greater wealth. Of even greater interest to the average taxpayer, perhaps, is the provision calling for the payment of the entire principal out of State revenues derived through corporation and inheritance taxes, instead of by direct taxation. The principal payments are to be made at the rate of $375,000 annually for forty years. Voting for the bonds, therefore, means merely to authorize the State of California to expend $375,000 a year for good roads, beginning in 1923, by which time the highways themselves will have been completed and put in service. Only the interest on the bonds would come out of direct taxation, and no county would be compelled to pay interest excepting on money expended for roads within its own bounds.

The whole thing resolves itself into something like a "gift" from the State in so far as Los Angeles county is concerned. This county already has its own magnificent good-roads system linking up nearly all parts of its territory and is traversed by portions of the State highway system that have already been completed. If the new highway bonds carry, Los Angeles county will be called upon to pay a proportionately small part of the actual interest charges, while realizing more actual benefit from the completion of the State system than probably any other county in California. The bonds will bring highways from every direction to connect with the existing good roads of this county, automatically making Los Angeles the hub of a gigantic system of paved travel arteries. Other counties will pay the greater part of the cost.

This is, on the face of it, an extremely selfish argument, but it must be remembered that Los Angeles county has already made heavy expenditures for its good roads and that the adjacent counties that have lagged behind in this respect really need the highways on which they would be compelled only to pay bond interest charges and would really be getting off easy. It is a good bargain all around, but it is so good a bargain for Los Angeles county that it is hard to understand how anyone in the county with a knowledge of the situation could vote against the bond amendment.

Los Angeles, so far as that goes, need have no scruples against getting anything it can out of the State as a whole, and this can be said with no thought of raking over any old differences with San Francisco and its part of California. As has been said, the reports all indicate that the northern part of the State is keenly alive to the benefits to all of California to be derived from the completion of the State highway system. This city and its section have never fared as well at the hands of the State as has the bay district, having, as everyone knows, more than once co-operated heartily in getting important improvements for San Francisco and the north only to be denied a reciprocal co-operation in getting something for the south.

Southern California as a whole will get the lion's share of the benefits from the new highway issue from the very fact that Northern California somehow succeeded in getting more than its share of the original $18,000,000 State highway appropriation that has now all been expended, leaving most of the unfinished work in this end of the State. The south paid its full share of the cost of the system as it exists today and now has the opportunity to get the best of the new deal, even as the north had the best of it before. The State Highway Commission has been foremost in recognizing the justice of the south's claims.

No other county in the Southland, or in California for that matter, is in quite the peculiar position of Los Angeles county to profit by the carrying of the bonds; but Riverside, San Bernardino, Santa Barbara, Ventura, San Diego and Imperial counties all have, under the Highway Commission's plans, opportunities that may never come to them again to secure vitally-needed highway connections with the rest of the State. They would not be able of themselves to construct some of the highways provided in the State plan, which offers a comparatively easy solution of their present good roads needs.

The benefit of good roads in California has already been so convincingly demonstrated as to require no argument. For the south the success of the bond issue is only a question of getting out the necessary votes, for it is certain there is no opposition in the north sufficient to overcome anything like a solid approval from this section.

THE WORLD MOVES.

Once in twenty years or so a political party may stand against the age, as the Democratic party did in 1892 and again in 1912, but in the end it goes by the board as the Democratic party did in 1896 and will again go in 1916. Natural philosophers tell us, that, if you will only multiply the simplest force into enough time, it will equal the greatest. So it is with the intellectual movement of the masses. It can scarcely be seen, but it is a constant movement; it is the shadow on the dial; never still, though never seen to move; it is the tide, it is the ocean, gaining on the proudest and strongest bulwarks that human art or strength can build. It may be defied for a time, but in the end nature always triumphs. Who shall doubt that the aroused common sense and revivified patriotism of the American people will on Tuesday next replace the Republican party in power.

By throwing his hat into the ring the race for Congressman for the rt term in the Tenth District, Joy rk, one of the city's most promi nt young business men, has ex ded a bomb in the political field ich local prognosticators declare ll upset all the "dope." Many are eady predicting a victory for the rprise candidate.

As football fans flocked into Fiesta rk yesterday afternoon to witness California-U.S.C. game, they greeted on all sides by men h dodgers announcing the candi cy of Joy Clark to fill the unex red term of ex-Congressman W. Stephens.

The assembled thousands were made aware that Joy Clark was t for office by a huge sign erected t to the scoreboard, announcing candidacy.

HIS RECORD.

The many friends of Mr. Clark clare that there is not a man in race so well fitted as their favor to be sent to Congress for the rt term. He is a young man of rling worth and unusual business lity, occupying one of the high t pinnacles in the realm of Los geles advancement. He is also iliar with all matters pertaining Los Angeles Harbor and is a rare dent of the people.

Joy Clark was born in Omaha, later moved to Chicago, where attended the public schools and University of Chicago for four rs.

Under appointment by the gov ment he went abroad with Dr. arles R. Henderson of Chicago iversity, the world-famous sociolo who had a Federal commis to investigate the immigrant ditions in Austria, Italy and the lkan states. It was during his years' work at that time that Clark gained his wide under ding of the masses and their eds.

On his return from his European bors, Mr. Clark came west, locat g in Los Angeles and here he has nce resided, making for himself enviable record.

Three years ago he married Miss orence Wood, and Mr. and Mrs. ark with their two children, a son a daughter, reside at No. 1 Ches r place.

WHO HE IS.

Joy Clark has shown unusual busi sagacity in his ventures in this y. Among his business connec ns since the beginning of his reer in Los Angeles are the fol ing:

President of the Los Angeles Pub Market Company, which was re ntly merged into the Wholesale rminal Company, of which Mr. ark was a director.

Director in the Western Union Oil mpany, one of the largest concerns its kind in the State.

Convincing.

PROHIBITION FAILS.

Polytechnic High School Debaters Win by Citing Case of Vermont that Voted for Saloons After Half Century of Dry Years.

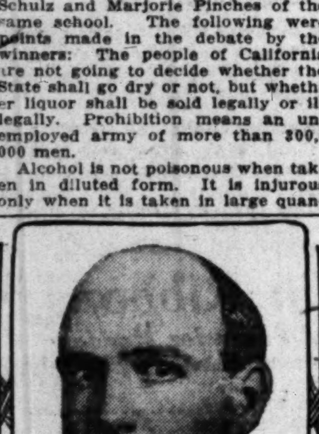
The fact that the State of Vermont, after fifty years of prohibition, last year returned to the open saloon system is cited as proof of the falsity of the drys' arguments and is one of the points that won a debate against prohibition for two members of the Polytechnic High School student body last Friday evening.

Frank Merriam,
For Assembly, Seventieth.

The boys of the winning team are Louis F. d'Elia, Jr., and Grant Stewart. Their opponents were Carl Schulz and Marjorie Pinches of the same school. The following were points made in the debate by the winners: The people of California are not going to decide whether the State shall go dry or not, but whether liquor shall be sold legally or illegally. Prohibition means an unemployed army of more than 300,000 men.

H. H. Yonkin,
For Assembly, Seventy-third.

Alcohol is not poisonous when taken in diluted form. It is injurous only when it is taken in large quantities. Salt, soda and numerous other valuable materials would poison humanity if they were used in excessive quantities. "The most important point to be considered," said Mr. Stewart, "is that prohibition is not a moral question but a political question. Prohibition is the platform of a political party. It must be met as political issue. Drunkenness does not cause poverty, but poverty causes drunkenness."



George C. Watson,
For Assembly, Seventy-second.

NO MORE CONVENTIONS.

Conventions will be a thing of the past in Los Angeles if the State goes dry, say big hotel men. Shriners, Elks, Knights of Pythias and other big orders have spent fortunes here in past years. Are they coming here or going elsewhere if the State goes dry?

Minus "Progressives."

CONGRESS RACE IS CLEAN-CUT.

Republican Versus Democrat in Ninth and Tenth.

Osborne has Strong Support and a Good Record.

Bell, "Independent," Choice of the G.O.P. Forces.

While many of the election contests are between Progressives and members of other parties, those in the Ninth and Tenth Congress Districts are marked by exclusively Republican and Democratic issues. In each there is one Republican and one Democrat seeking election. Southern California is overwhelmingly Republican. It needs the support of a Republican Congress and no doubt Los Angeles county will make certain that representatives of the dominating party are victorious.

In Capt. Henry Z. Osborne the voters of the Tenth District have put forward as the Congressional nominee of the Republican party a man of stalwart Republicanism, whose activities in this community in a business and civic career have extended over a period of more than thirty years. His services to the community in a public capacity have given him a very comprehensive knowledge and view of local conditions and local needs, and have at the same time given him a remarkable circle of friends and acquaintances. His standing in the respect and esteem of the business community is unquestioned.

His strength with the voters of the Tenth District was clearly demonstrated two years ago when he was the Republican nominee of the party, and though pitted against William D. Stephens, at that time the incumbent and a man who enjoyed a remarkable degree of popularity, Capt. Osborne ran ahead of his ticket within the Tenth District about 20,000 voters, and cut down Mr. Stephens's former enormous lead to a few thousand votes.

Capt. Osborne won the three-cornered contest in the primaries in a decisive fashion and the withdrawal of Henry Stanley Benedict as candidate for the long term, and the entrance into a fight for the short term in the Tenth District, has it is believed, assured Capt. Osborne a very large majority as the Republican nominee for the long term.

HAS G. O. P. BACKING.

Although his name will appear on the official ballot with the designation "Independent," Hon. Charles W. Bell is the recognized Republican candidate for Congress in the Ninth District, being indorsed by the Republican County Central Committee, all Republican organizations in the district, the Republican National Congressional Committee and thousands of individual Republicans.

Mr. Bell has been a resident of Pasadena for the past thirty-nine years, having been engaged in orange growing and other lines of business activity.

In 1906 he was elected a member of the State Senate, and served in the sessions of 1907-1909 and 1911, resigning in 1912, in which year he was elected to represent the Ninth District in Congress. Mr. Bell ran as a Republican in these several campaigns and as a member of Congress, as well as a State Senator, was a recognized member of the Republican organization.

As a Congressman, Mr. Bell consistently and vigorously supported the tariff policy, which he has always advocated and which he hopes to advocate with success in the next Congress. He is a firm believer in protection for the products and industries of the Ninth District, as well as national protection.

He spoke and voted for national prohibition in the Sixty-third Congress and also for national equal suffrage.

HIS STATE SERVICE.

As State Senator he was a successful worker on committees and on the floor and in the special session of 1911 was made chairman of the Republican caucus. He was the author of the resolution granting equal suffrage to women. He was chairman of a special committee which revised the laws enlarging the legal rights of women. He supported the local option law. In the matter of support for Southern California institutions he was never found wanting and his work was successful.

Mr. Bell has the advantage of wide legislative experience, an intimate acquaintance with the leaders in Congress and well-marked personal popularity.

He pledges himself, if returned to Congress, to vote for a restoration of the protective tariff, adequate military preparedness for defensive purposes, national prohibition and equal suffrage, and adequate defenses for the Pacific Coast. He will enter the Republican caucus and support the policies of Charles Evans Hughes.

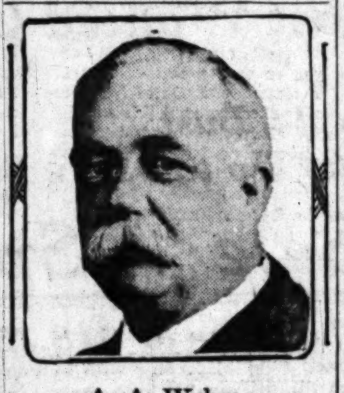
as a former Councilman. He has always been identified with politics and the development of Los Angeles. In the Seventy-third District he is very popular. He won the nomination after a hard fight and all his former opponents are working hard for him.

SEVENTY-SECOND.

George C. Watson, the regular Republican candidate in the Seventy-second District, has made a most remarkable campaign. He has endeavored to meet all the electors in the district, and has a big army of personal friends working for him. He came here ten years ago from Pittsburgh, where they know how to campaign, and his experience there has helped him wonderfully. He is opposed to boss rule and is an ideal man to send to Sacramento.

SEVENTY-FIFTH.

Edwin Baker is making a successful fight in the Seventy-fifth District. Assisting him is Charles Kerr, the popular Republican who opposed him at the primary. The two now are working together, and Mr. Baker is conceded to be one of the regular Republicans who will go to the State capital.



A. A. Weber,
For Assembly, Sixty-ninth.

Bert L. Farmer,
For Assembly, Seventy-first.

SIXTY-FOURTH.

Fred Frank is the independent Republican candidate in the Sixty-fourth District. He entered the race at the behest of a large circle of friends, who know his record for Republicanism and know what he will do if sent to Sacramento. He will oppose the State machine, and that is a recommendation strong enough to elect any candidate in Southern California.

SIXTY-NINTH.

A. A. Weber also is an independent Republican candidate. He aspires to represent the Sixty-ninth District, and his friends report there is a great deal of enthusiasm for him. He has made a thorough canvass of the district.

Only because it was not considered ethical did the Republican County Central Committee fail to indorse Messrs. Frank and Weber. The committee decided it could not take official action when the candidates had not been regularly nominated. Individually, however, the members of the central committee are for the independents to a man.

Have Made Good.

THREE JUDGES EARN SUPPORT.

Incumbents are Candidates for Re-election.

Gavin Craig, Perry Wood and Frank Finlayson.

All Able, Upright, Honest and Conscientious.

The terms of three Superior Court judges will expire on January 2 and the incumbents are candidates for re-election. They are Gavin W. Craig, Frank G. Finlayson and John Perry Wood. While their opponents—Robert W. McDonald, W. H. Fuller and W. W. Middlecoff—are making vigorous campaigns, and no doubt will receive fairly large votes, it is the general opinion that the incumbents will win handily.

GAVIN W. CRAIG.
POPULARLY INDORSED.

A committee representing every part of the city and county of Los Angeles has been organized from former jurors in Judge Gavin W. Craig's department in the Superior Court, to insure his re-election. This committee is composed of more than 1000 members. It was organized through the efforts of Francis Marshall, Donald W. Hare and A. P. Olinger. While very few of its members ordinarily take an active part in politics they are making every effort to secure their candidate the first place on the judiciary ticket.

Mr. Olinger explains his attitude by saying, "The only safe and sure way to judge of the work of a judicial officer is to observe it at first hand. The jurors have watched, not one case, but dozens of them, serving as we do from sixty to ninety days. It is the opinion of every juror with whom I have ever talked who has been in Judge Craig's court, that he is an ideal judge. His patience and care is marvelous. His ability to dispatch business pleased us all as taxpayers.

"It is really a privilege to have served on a jury in his court. If every voter had the opportunity to know of his work and ability as we jurors have, he would be re-elected unanimously. We feel it our duty to the public to inform them of the high regard which we unbiased jurors and taxpayers have formed of Judge Craig as a man and jurist, and this from actual observation and knowledge."

In addition to the general committee, subcommittees have been organized in all of the principal cities and towns of the county, including Long Beach, Pasadena, Pomona, Covina, Azusa, Whittier, Downey, Santa Monica, Compton, Sawtelle, Glendale, Lamanda Park, Alhambra, Baldwin Park, Arcadia, El Monte, Artesia, Gardena, Lancaster, Lankershim, Lordsburg, Monrovia, Newhall, Norwalk, Rivera, San Dimas and others.

W. H. Hubbard is president of the committee in Pasadena, which is perhaps the most active of these committees. Many of the leading attorneys and business men are acting as vice-presidents, including former Judges Willis I. Morrison and George Gibbs.

FRANK G. FINLAYSON.
AUTHORITY ON LAW.

Judge Frank G. Finlayson of the Superior Court, a candidate for re-election after service of six years in the position, has a record of twenty-five years' experience in the practice of law in California before he was first elected to the bench. Judge Finlayson was born March 24, 1864. His early education was in the grammar and high schools of San Francisco, and his legal education was in Hastings Law School, San Francisco, where he was graduated in 1885 with the degree of LL.B. He was admitted to the bar by the State Supreme Court the same year, and from that time until elected to the bench in 1910 he was in the constant active practice of law in this State. This long experience has given him especial qualification in the matter of familiarity with California legal decisions and with California laws. He has written several treaties on special phases of California laws, and his book, "Finlayson on Street Laws," is a recognized authority on the subject of California street laws. With the exception of one year's practice in San Francisco as a member of the firm of Ladd & Finlayson, Judge Finlayson's work has been in Los Angeles county and Southern California. He was sent to the State Legislature in 1893 from this county, and served for a time as Assistant United States District Attorney for the southern district of California.

Judge Finlayson's long experience as a lawyer coupled with a studious application to his work as judge have won for him the notable distinction of having been reversed by the Supreme and Appellate courts of this State fewer times than any other judge who has sat upon the Los Angeles county bench.

His fitness for the position is well recognized by attorneys who practice in his court, a fact attested to by the voluntary indorsement of Judge Finlayson's campaign for re-election, given by hundreds of Los Angeles county attorneys, including the recognized leaders of the bar and lawyers of every shade of political opinion. The bar is practically unanimous in indorsing him for re-election.

Judge Finlayson himself has made almost no active campaign for re-election, having been engaged almost constantly in the daily trial of cases in his court. His wide experience and training and his record for efficiency in office, are sufficient arguments to insure his return to office, his friends believe.

JOHN PERRY WOOD.

During Judge Wood's six years on the bench he has proved himself a capable, conscientious, efficient hard-working judge. He has tried thousands of cases in which appeals might have been taken, but his work has been so excellent that there have been comparatively few, and altogether only fourteen reversals by upper courts. Leading members of the bar with practical unanimity urge his re-election. They say that he has a passion for making his court one of genuine justice, and that he possesses the courage and the legal ability to make that purpose effective. He has shown unusual capacity for expediting judicial business, a matter of real importance in our crowded courts. This has not, however, prevented him from giving full, patient and sympathetic hearing to all.

Judge Wood is 37 years of age, a son of the Rev. J. A. Wood, a minister of this city. A graduate of Dickinson College and Yale Law School, his legal grounding is second to none. During his term of office as City Attorney of Pasadena, the acquisition by the city and the consolidation of the water plants was effected; the telephone litigation, establishing the right of the city to the absolute control of its streets, and resulting in unification of the telephone systems in Pasadena, was carried on, and successfully consummated; the city's lighting plant was established, and the multiferous and severe litigation respecting it was fought out. In this litigation Judge Wood had to contend with some of the most brilliant and high priced lawyers in the State. The ability that he demonstrated gave him a place among the leading members of the bar.

Judge Wood was elected to the Superior bench in 1910. He was presiding judge during the court year 1914-1915. While presiding judge he put into operation the public school instruction and certificate plan for the naturalization of aliens. He has had all branches of court work, except the criminal department. When the work of the divorce department overtaxed Judge Monroe's strength, Judge Wood was assigned to take his place. During the past year he has been doing excellent work in that difficult and trying department.

COSTLY CAMPAIGN.

California Prosperity League managers estimate that this prohibition campaign is costing the people of the State at least $1,000,000, not counting the $250,000 campaign fund raised in California by the drys. This $1,000,000 is made up of election expenses, campaign funds of various organizations, loss of employment by those who had to lay off from regular work to fight the prohibition movement, instability of markets and various allied causes. And all this to destroy industries, business and employment.

GRAND BENEFIT BALL.

Native Sons and Daughters Plan on Big Crowd for Event.

The grand benefit ball to be given by the associated parlors of the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West, to be held at Goldberg and Bosley's hall November 23, promises to be one of the big social events of the season. The tickets are going rapidly, and those desiring to attend this function should procure their tickets now.

Tickets are on sale at Howard & Smith, Olive street; Southern California Music Company, No. 332 South Broadway; Cline-Cline Company's two stores, Sixth and Spring and No. 214 West Third street, and William Hunter Company, No. 540 South Spring street. The proceeds will go toward the building of a home for homeless children.

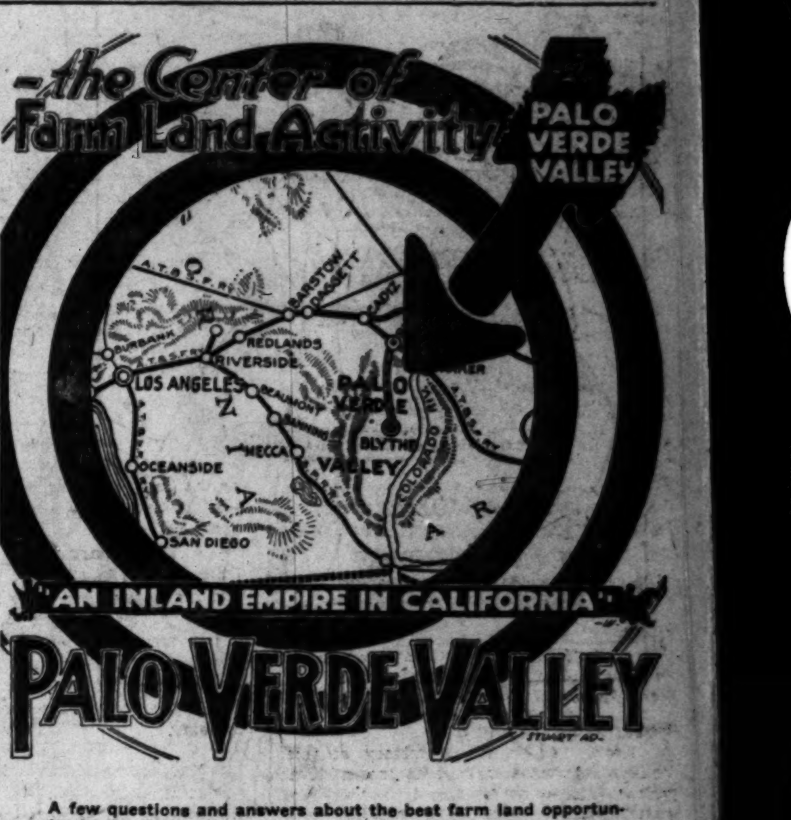
BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Sub titute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "loggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c.



A few questions and answers about the best farm land opportunity in the State.

Can I Make Money in Palo Verde Valley?

Go down and ask any one of scores of ranchers if he is making money in this country with a 12 months' growing season—where the soil is of great depth and fertility—where the water supply is abundant and low priced—where climatic conditions are most favorable, and where Dame Nature is on the job 365 days in the year.

What Crops Can I Raise in Palo Verde Valley?

Alfalfa yields 10 to 12 tons per acre—from 7 to 9 cuttings. Alfalfa seed is a big money maker. Barley and wheat yield up to 50 and 60 bushels to the acre. Milo maize and kaffir corn run 2 and 2½ tons to the acre. Cotton yields up to 2 bales to the acre. Two crops of beans per year are bank-account producers in Palo Verde Valley. Sugar cane thrives here. Almonds, peaches, apricots, pears, grapes, onions, sweet and Irish potatoes, tomatoes, melons, berries, etc., grow to perfection. Sweet potatoes grow the year round.

What do You Mean by "Double Crops"?

By proper rotation of crops Palo Verde soil works constantly. You can plant and grow crops here at almost any time of the year.

How are Conditions for Stock Raising?

M. A. Farrell, one of the leading stock raisers of the Southwest, says: "Because of our wonderful alfalfa yields and exceptional climatic conditions, we have by far the best cattle and hog raising section in the State."

What Well-known Men Have Bought in Palo Verde Valley?

Such men as Julius Hauser of the Hauser Packing Co. of Los Angeles, Carl Raab of the L. A. Creamery Co., Charles Donlon, President First National Bank of Oxnard, George Read of Ventura County, Capt. Alfred Salono of Los Angeles, and many other prominent people.

Does Hog Raising Pay?

L. A. Gillespie says: "I can raise 20 Duroc hogs on an acre of alfalfa in Palo Verde Valley, and I can produce 150-pound hogs at 6 months old."

Go down and see why Palo Verde is the center of farm land activity. Get in touch with the opportunity that may never be duplicated at this price. Go down and see the LIVING EVIDENCE of Palo Verde Valley's success.

"Give Me Plenty of Space for This Splendid Lace Event

One of the Most Important I've Held"

—Right here from the Eastern market, the buyer enthusiastically asks for co-operation, that you may fully appreciate what he says should prove to be "the biggest Lace Sale of the year."

—And when we saw the laces, and the prices at which they are to sell, we caught his enthusiasm, for the savings are so out-of-the-ordinary that we almost hesitate to name the price comparisons.

—Side by side with some remarkable Eastern purchases are to be laces from regular stock.

—Savings of half and far more than half, but here, read further.

$1.50 to $6.45 Laces at 98c

Thanksgiving Approaches
Then But a Few Short Days to Christmas

—Each season the "shop early" movement becomes more popular, because after all it is so much more satisfactory to spread your shopping over a long period wherein you can give it sufficient thought without the hurry and worry and bustle of the last few days.

—Holiday stocks are rapidly rounding out now. Soon the enlarged toy department, the enlarged book department, the stationery, the holiday slippers, the toilet goods ware, the fancy goods, the special gift section, will be ready for your approval.

—But in the meantime all stocks are rich in opportunities to choose the practical things for Thanksgiving and the holidays. And you know there are thousands who choose nothing but the practical things. There is no advantage in waiting.

Advance Holiday Purchases Will Be Held

—Until such a time as you desire. The selection may be made early and by the paying of a small percentage of the purchase price, the goods may be called for at any time you wish or delivered if you so desire.

Oh! Children
Santa Claus Is Coming

—"Tell the children to watch for me, I'm coming soon," says Santa Claus in his wireless message.
—"All along the way I will distribute a little gift to each child who comes out to greet me.
—"I'll travel a certain route. Be sure to tell the children to watch on the corners."
—And this is the first message we received from Jolly Old Santa Claus.

Instructions in the Art of Correct Corset Fitting By Mrs. L. A. Belden
Two Weeks Beginning Monday

—Whether you are short, tall, slender, average or full figure or whether you are difficult to fit, Mrs. L. A. Belden (direct from the factory of the famous Bon Ton and Royal Worcester Corsets), will be in our corset department during the next two weeks, November 6th to 18th inclusive, for the very express purpose of instructing you as to the correct corset for your individual figure.

—She will show you the exquisite molding possibilities of these latest fall models in the Bon Ton and Royal Worcester Corsets. Be sure to take advantage of this opportunity. 2nd Floor.

THE DEPARTMENT OF INDIVIDUAL SERVICE WILL ASSIST YOU IN PLANNING YOUR SHOPPING.

New Suits, Coats, New Dresses, $25
A Revelation at the Price

—Fashion has given the password to these clever new suits, coats and dresses, so that they will enter immediately into the good graces of women who know.

—But there is another distinct appeal in these garments and that is the price—$25. Who would ever believe that garments like these could be sold for so little?

The Suits at $25

—Of broadcloth, velour, Gabardine, poplins and serges. The longer coats, the fur trimmings, the plush and velvet trimmings. The altogether good style and the remarkably low price at which they are marked, should make the Suit Section the center of interest Monday.

The Coats at $25

—Are here to meet a demand that is difficult to supply. The smartest of velour, plush and broadcloth coats, besides the new plaids and mixtures. Extra full coats with fur collars and trimming. Plush collars and cuffs in a wide variety. Extremely low priced at $25.

The Dresses at $25

—Of silks and serge. Cleverest of new models. Longer lines and gathered effects. Some with wool embroidery. Some bead trimmed.
—The new large collars, the pockets and cuffs that are fashionable. Serge dresses that you will be eager to buy at the price.
—The silk dresses are of taffetas and the softer fabrics. Wide girdles, sashes, pockets. Garments that give new meaning to the price, $25. Third Floor.

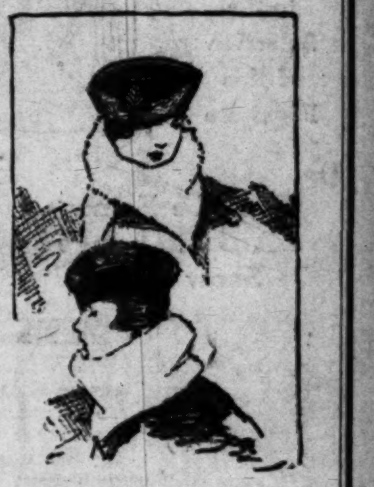
This Space Reserved for News of A Capture of New, Fashionable Fur Trimmed Millinery $8.50



—"Reserve space for a splendid purchase of new, fashionable fur trimmed millinery, that I am just unpacking," said the millinery buyer.

—Moleskin fur? Why, that's the most fashionable of all fur for millinery, and the price to be but $8.50. Impossible, you say. But it isn't impossible. The hats are here to go on sale Monday at $8.50.

—Of course you couldn't begin to approach these hats in the ordinary way at such a price.

—Good fortune brought them to the millinery buyer, and he is sharing the opportunity with you.

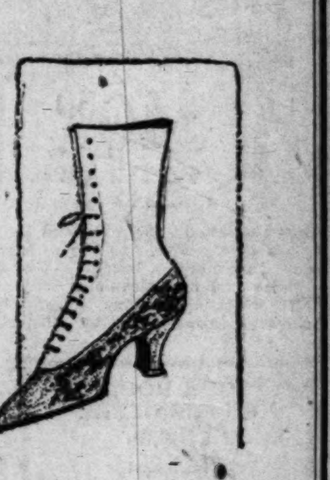
—Smart, small turban hats with irregular lines, some bordering on the continental idea. Brims are of imitation mole fur, crowns of colored panne velvet.

—Shades of rose, purple, green or a soft blue as well as black.

—Finished as they are with gold and silver or beaded ornaments the contrast is beautiful.

—By all means get one of these new hats at $8.50. 3rd floor.

Field Mouse Gray
A New Boot



—Of select Gresson's French kid stock with uppers of white wash kid. Leathers which are indeed hard to procure now.

—Just one of two or more clever boots that have arrived to create enthusiasm in the Shoe section.

—Another style of Field mouse gray, both vamps and uppers, and the heels are covered wood Louis XIV.

—These boots are in the extreme high arch, Fashion's very latest whim. Uppers are extra high cut, made with hand turned soles. Priced at $8.50 and $9. Aisle 8.

Prosperity.

PASSAGE OF HIGHWAY BONDS MEANS MUCH TO CALIFORNIA.

Will Draw Population, Decrease Cost of Living by Making Marketing Easy, Open New Lands, Give Work to Jobless, Boost Realty Values and Help All.

AS the result of a strenuously thorough campaign, conducted by the Automobile Club of Southern California, with the co-operation of more than fifty prominent civic and business organizations, no proposition to be voted on at the general election Tuesday is better understood by the voters of California than Amendment No. 3, providing for the issuance of $15,000,000 good road bonds to complete and perfect the present great system of State highways.

Southern California is particularly interested in the passage of the bond issue.

The accompanying illustration indicates what the failure of the bonds to carry would mean in this part of the State every winter. During last winter the drivers of the scout cars of the Automobile Club of Southern California were specifically told to take notes of storm conditions on such portions of the State highways not yet provided for in Southern California. These illustrations typify the lack of strength in the chain of our highway system which can only be remedied by favorable action on the $15,000,000 bond issue, Tuesday.

The coast route to San Francisco becomes impassable, not only at one, but all of five different points where the highway construction remains to be done. The valley route, connecting Los Angeles and the great San Joaquin Valley cannot be kept open in time of storm until beyond the Castaic, thirty-six miles north of Los Angeles, and over the entire Ridge route.

The same condition exists between San Bernardino, Barstow and the Needles, the western portion of the great National Old Trails route, which brought more than 3000 transcontinental automobilists into this part of the State during the year of 1916 alone.

GOOD INVESTMENTS.

Money put into the construction of good roads is well invested. One effect is to bring the producer close to market. Another is to draw population, because of having rendered remote regions more accessible. Still another, is that the perfect roads of Southern California are one of its finest advertisements. Already they have become famous throughout the world. One charm of them is that they usable the year through. They go far towards making California accepted as an all the year around resort instead of as desirable to the tourist in winter alone. By opening to visitors the scenic beauties of the State, the roads constitute part of the actual capital, and the beauty of hill and valley, made available to inspection, is added to material wealth.

That victory for the bonds will tremendously boost the prosperity and prestige of the State and add to its fame, there is no question.

VICTORY PREDICTED.

While a recent canvass by the Automobile Club of Southern California indicates an overwhelming victory for the issue, every friend of the bonds is urged to go to the polls and vote that the grand total may be swelled to the extent of practical unanimity.

People in every walk of life will benefit by the passage of the bonds. It is true that the motorist desires good roads, but what about the farmer? Long before the motorist came into existence through the advent and development of the automobile the agriculturist was exerting every influence at his command to secure improved highways.

Good roads make it possible for the farmer to market his products at a greater profit to himself and at less cost to the consumer.

WORK FOR JOBLESS.

The passage of the bonds will eliminate our winter nemesis—the unemployed problem, as it will provide work for the State's surplus laborers for some years to come.

Tracts of splendid land, now nearly uninhabited and unproductive because of their inaccessibility, will be settled up and put under cultivation when brought into closer proximity with the cities through the medium of good roads.

Real estate values everywhere in the State are bound to boom as a result of the stimulus to prosperity that will naturally follow the passage of the bonds.

Not one county, but every county in the State will derive benefit through the passage of the bonds which will permit the closing of all gaps in the State highways and the extension of the system to many laterals not included in the original plan.

There is not a single artery of any importance but that is provided for in the proposed $15,000,000 bond issue.

Everywhere that good roads have already gone there has been a great stimulus of development. Nowhere is this more noticeable than in Southern California.

One of the most important reasons why, from a distinctly local viewpoint, every county should help swell the majority for the bonds is that careful investigation shows that the roadways to be built or improved under the proposed measure now annually cost the counties more to maintain than will be required to pay the interest on the bonds.

NOT ON TAXPAYERS.

It should also be kept in mind that the entire principal of the proposed $15,000,000 bond issue is paid, not by the individual taxpayer, but out of the corporation and inheritance tax of the State funds.

The present State income is in excess of $20,000,000 and a gross increase in the value of development and extension of the corporation properties need only increase 3¾ per cent. to provide for the retirement of these bonds without increased taxation. As it will not be until 1923, seven years hence, that the retirement of these bonds commences, it is easily seen that an unfair burden will not be imposed on the corporations.

The natural increase of the public utility properties in seven years will greatly exceed the 3¾ per cent. required to retire the bonds.

REAL ECONOMY.

Good roads have not only brought the farm and city closer together, figuratively speaking, but they materially reduced the cost of the exchange of merchandise. Hauling has been reduced from 30 to 32 cents per ton per mile, in some instances to less than 10 cents, to say nothing of the manifold advantages of time-saving and general comfort of travel. It has been demonstrated that good roads pay for themselves many times over.

It should be borne in mind that our systems of highways are more than half completed. A vast sum of money may be saved by preserving intact the present road equipment, expert organization, and surveys already advanced, that would be lost to the future by a postponement of the work.

By voting for the bonds Federal aid will be brought to California roads out of the $85,000,000 conditionally appropriated by Congress.

HOW IT WILL BE SPENT.

Twelve million dollars will be used for the completion of the original system of trunk roads and county seat laterals filling all gaps.

Three million dollars will be applied on a county aid co-operative basis to the building of the following needed additional highways by the most direct and practical routes:

An extension connecting the interior and coast main roads through Trinity and Humboldt counties.

An extension connecting the San Joaquin Valley trunk road between Merced and Madera with the coast main road at or near Gilroy, Santa Clara county, via Pacheco Pass.

An extension of the Mariposa county State highway lateral to El Portal, Mariposa county, the gateway to Yosemite Valley.

An extension of the laterals between Visalia and Hanford, via Coalinga, to connect the San Joaquin Valley main road in Tulare county with the coast trunk road in Monterey county.

An extension connecting the San Joaquin Valley trunk road at or near Bakersfield with the coast trunk road in San Luis Obispo county via Cholame Pass.

An extension of the San Bernardino county State highway lateral to Barstow in San Bernardino county.

An extension connecting Antelope Valley, Los Angeles county, with the city of Los Angeles.

An extension of the San Bernardino county State highway lateral to the Arizona State line near Yuma, via Brawley and El Centro, in Imperial Valley.

ABOLISH GRADE CROSSINGS.

The great system of roads will have added value as a means for military protection and the saving of life at grade crossings, of which 156 will be abolished.

The total length of the completed State highway is 1122 miles. Approximately 1400 miles, including important mountain laterals, are dependent upon the proposed $15,000,000 bond issue carrying Tuesday, as are the gaps which must be closed to perfect the system. The act of 1909 provided $18,000,000 and called for the construction of nearly 2900 miles of road, an average allowance of approximately $6200 per mile, including expenses of every nature.

The State highways of other States, where the conditions of traffic and topography are comparable to those of California, and where roads of equal width and integrity of construction have been built, cost from $10,000 to $15,000 per mile. Their official report shows this.

New Jersey, with an area of 8224 square miles, as against California's 158,297 square miles, has very recently approved a bond issue of $7,000,000 for the specific purpose of building 350 miles of cross-State highways. This is an average of $20,000 per mile.

GIVE THEIR STAND ON PREPAREDNESS.

CANDIDATES FOR CONGRESS ON NATIONAL DEFENSE.

American Society Gets Views of Fifteen of Forty-four California Aspirants for Office at Washington—Majority in Favor of Adequate Programme.

The American Defense Society, a national organization with headquarters in New York City, has by the co-operation of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution of California secured fifteen replies from the forty-four candidates for Congress in the State, giving their attitudes on preparedness. Five of these replies were from Republicans, five from Democrats and five from Prohibitionists. The candidates were asked five questions touching phases of preparedness, relating to the navy, eight relating to the army and two to the development of the aeroplane service. Of the replies received anent the navy, ten favor a sufficient increase to meet any reasonable combination of navies that might combine against us; eleven favor ample shore fortifications; eleven favor an increase of officers and men; ten favor developing a naval reserve and maintaining it at all times, with trained men and officers, and ten favor keeping our navy abreast of the times.

Regarding the army, nine favor a standing army, nationally controlled, on the basis of not less than 2500 soldiers for each 1,000,000 inhabitants; nine favor making the army a national army and not composed of the militia as an integral part; eight favor eliminating the militia from the national army as a feature; six favor a universal military training in all public schools and colleges (four answers are opposed to this policy;) five favor universal military training (two answers are against this policy and two are in doubt;) three favor universal training for the army and navy (five are against it and five are in doubt;) seven favor citizens' training camps in all parts of the country at government expense (one is against it and one is in doubt;) eight favor the establishment of military colleges and naval academies similar to West Point and Annapolis in different parts of the country.

Eleven advocate scientific development of aero squads in a large way for both army and navy.

Ten favor taking military technical decisions out of politics.

WOULD DOUBLE TAXES.

Stockholders of the Los Angeles Investment Company are given a practical illustration of the single tax as embodied in Amendment No. 5, to be voted on at the coming election. The stockholders are now paying taxes on an assessment of $100,000. It is estimated that this sum would be doubled under Amendment No. 5 if it should carry, and the stockholders are urged to vote against it. The amendment exempts all railroads, buildings and corporations from taxation, placing the burden of the government's cost on the land.

Expert's Views.

TELLS HUGE IMPORTANCE OF HIGHWAY BOND ISSUE.

BY N. D. DARLINGTON,
State Highway Commissioner.

SELDOM do we have the opportunity of voting upon a measure which is of as much importance to us economically here in California as the proposed $15,000,000 bond issue. California today has a State highway system which is a little more than one-half completed, and it is so obviously to our business advantage to complete the system that it should be unnecessary to present long arguments to convince anyone of this fact.

Already throughout the State has been felt the stimulus resulting from the construction of the State highways, and it will be difficult to estimate the tremendous impulse which will be felt in every line of business activity when the highway system has been completed, reaching and serving as it will practically every valley and every community of any importance within the State. It will undoubtedly do more to stimulate and hasten the development of our agricultural resources than any other single step which can be taken at this time.

Southern California will be especially well served. The bond issue provides for the construction of six important trunk-line highways leading into this territory from the outside, thus making this section a most favored one in regard to being easily accessible from all points. In no other way than through State action can this be accomplished.

There is one point in connection with the proposed $15,000,000 bond issue which I desire especially to emphasize, and that is the minimum of burden which it will impose upon the taxpayers of the State. Practically speaking, the average man will never know, through any direct effect that it will have upon his individual taxes, whether this bond issue has been carried or not.

The principal of the bonds is to be paid out of the general funds of the State, which, of course, are derived from the State tax on corporations. They are forty-year bonds, and will be retired at the rate of $375,000 annually, beginning in the year 1923. Owing to the fact that the sum required annually to retire these bonds is so small in comparison to the total annual revenue of the State, which at that time will be in excess of $20,000,000, they will not even necessitate an increase in the rate of taxation on corporations.

The fact is, that by voting in favor of these bonds, we are simply directing how we wish a small portion (less than 2 per cent.) of the State's revenue spent. Instead of necessitating an increase in the State's revenue, it means nothing more than a readjustment of the budget. The entire State revenue will be spent in any event, whether the bonds carry or whether they fail to carry, and it is for us to say whether we wish to have a very small percentage of the State funds devoted to highway construction and to the completion of the State highway system or not.

This is the situation in a nutshell.

GREAT WEALTH AND PAY ROLLS THREATENED BY PROHIBITION

A LARGE share of the license taxes in Los Angeles are paid b the liquor industries, and general taxes swell the total in th county to $1,886,239.90. Some of the items are:

City liquor licenses	$694,200.00
City taxes	429,507.23
City total		$1,123,707
County licenses	$ 51,910.00

Total suburban		79,21
State taxes	$ 6,862.00
Federal taxes	676,452.00

Present System Filled with Abuses of the Sort.

BY RICHMOND P. BENTON, State Assemblyman Who Led the Fight for the Measure.

Amendment No. 6 on the ballot is an initiative measure to prevent a member of the Legislature holding or accepting any other office during his term. This measure was proposed in a caucus of the minority members of the last Legislature, after seeing the evil of its not being in use and especially in the special session. After the special session we met in Sacramento on this and other matters of vital importance to the State, and it was suggested that we draw up an initiative measure that would prevent any member from selling his vote for a mess of pottage.

It has always been the aim of any republican form of government to remove the legislative branch of the government from the control of the executive branch. It is evident that where a member of the Legislature is holding a paid position in the executive department of the State that the separation which should exist between these two branches of the government is at an end. The American theory has always been that those who execute the laws should not be the same individuals as those who make the laws, yet one who is both an Assemblyman and a member of the executive department is in just the position. It would not be an edifying spectacle, nor would it make for civic decency, to see such an individual introducing a bill in his legislative capacity which would increase the pay he would receive in his executive capacity.

There is another reason why this measure should pass. We should remember that a legislator who is holding a position on the State pay roll is too apt to allow the wishes of the one responsible for his appointment to dictate the manner in which his vote shall be cast. A man in such a position is, to say the least, not in that independent frame of mind which should be possessed by the ideal legislator.

There can be no doubt that a vote "yes" on this measure will tend materially to raise the standard of the California Legislature of the future.

In the last session it came under our observation that a great many members could not vote their own convictions for the very reason they were holding jobs, or were promised them, which they since have accepted and are now holding. I saw men and heard them say that if they (the administration) did not "come through" they would not support them. However, the administration was the wiser and not so flagrant as to give them positions at that time, but has since given these men jobs. I candidly believe that the people will support this measure, as it will do more to prevent corruption in the Legislature than any measure that has been passed in years.

Big League Stuff.

IT'S AN HONEST-TO-GOODNESS JOB FOR VOTERS THIS TRIP.

Presidential Question, Thirst Complications, Single-tax Peril and Matter of Scotching the Two-handed Grabbers of State Jobs Among Issues.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

It's no ordinary, half-portion election that is coming Tuesday. It is a double-barreled affair dealing with about every subject from the Presidency of the United States to the bung hole in the barrel. That is, can a man vote dry and then steal down cellar and honestly look a bung hole in the eye? In addition to this and the Presidency, and the relation which both subjects bear to international affairs—the Presidency to the war, and the bung hole to the importation of liquor—there are a number of other local measures up for public approval or disapproval, one of which is the single-tax seismic disturbance which is officially entered in the November sweepstakes as Amendment No. 5.

This single-tax spasm, or amendment, is a bit of initiative anarchy made possible only through one of Hiram's damphool laws. Under the old system of making laws, the landowners never would have been threatened in this manner. Anybody who would have entered the Legislature at Sacramento with a proposition of this kind would have been seized by the sergeant-at-arms. Said sergeant-at-arms, having a well-developed sense of duty, would have taken the author of said single-tax bill up by the seat of his pants and quietly dropped him down the elevator shaft. That would have settled the matter in a quiet and unostentatious manner, and the struggling owner of a truck patch would not have found himself under the necessity of getting up early and hustling to prevent himself from being impoverished, ruined, outraged or otherwise mistreated.

REFINED ROBBERY.

Single-tax is confiscation, which is only a refined method of highway robbery. Many a poor man has struggled for years to gain a small competence, and then invested it in a bit of ground, believing that to be something that never could be taken away from him. Thousands of persons of moderate means have placed their savings in lots or bits of acreage, believing that to be the best and only absolutely safe investment.

If Amendment No. 5 carries, placing the entire burden of taxation on land, these people will be taxed out of their holdings and scientifically robbed in the name of "reform." And there is a possibility the amendment will carry. It is difficult to imagine such a condition possible in America—this thing of the farmer or small city landowner placed in danger of being robbed through the medium of an initiative measure placed in reckless and irresponsible hands by a "reform" State government. Viewing this condition, it is not unlikely that the highway robber who sticks you up in a dark alley and deprives you of your watch and week's wages, will decide there is some respectability attached to his profession. It would be consistent for all the footpads in the State to start an initiative measure making it legal for them to sandbag their neighbors.

WHY NOT GUNPOWDER?

In case the single-tax measure becomes a law, instead of taxing the farmers to death, why not take them all out and shoot them? This would expedite matters, and end their sufferings more quickly. The tough, hardy guy who came out and took up a homestead, grubbed out the manzanita and greasewood, chased off the Indians, exterminated the tarantulas and centipedes, dug the rattlesnakes out of the soil and endured flood, fire and famine, should be entitled to some consideration, but thanks to our system of making and unmaking laws in this State, he won't know until after the ballots are counted whether he will continue to own that ranch or be compelled to move out and let some single-taxer squat on the same.

It would be fully as just to frame an initiative measure forcing the farmers to pay all the taxes and allowing the hardware merchants, dry goods dealers, butchers, bakers and candlestick makers to go untaxed. There might be some justice in a single tax applied to plumbers, as it is suspected most of them are rich and able to stand the strain, but on general principles we are opposed to class legislation.

Amendment No. 5, if carried would prove to be a rangy bit of legislation, befitting only the uppermost and nethermost strata of society. The owner of a skyscraper would pay no more taxes than the man who owned a vacant lot in the same locality. Life would be a joy ride for the capitalist or railway magnate, with the modest land owner paying the freight. The single tax, in short, would benefit the corporations and the bums and dead-brokes. For the middle classes—guys like you and me, who own a home, or hope to—it would be a knockout punch with nobody to hold the smelling salts.

Unquestionably the single-tax idea blew in when somebody was having a brainstorm. We never met Henry George, who germinated the thought, but it is our candid opinion that he was balmy in the bean.

THAT THIRST QUESTION.

The thirst problem is another that must be considered in the seclusion of voting booth. We are told that Amendment No. 2 means death to the tourist trade of Southern California, and it is an established fact that the tourists are now spending $50,000,000 annually in Southern California. Being a permanent resident, and therefore not a tourist, we never have experienced any of the personal emotions of a tourist on arriving in these parts. But we have observed that after crossing the Mojave desert many of them arrive with a $7 thirst. On arriving they go about seeking where they may spend their money, and this is something in which they should be encouraged. If Amendment No. 2 is passed it may result in paralysis of the spending hand.

Southern California is not in the position of hanging out bait for human fish, or anything like that. It merely wants to be in a position to supply the wants of a moderate, refined thirst honestly engendered through the long and dusty trip to the Coast. Los Angeles prefers the open, well-regulated and decorous cafe and restaurant to the blind tiger, speak-easy and the pig which is blind in one eye and can't see out of the other. Also it has no desire to bring on a crop of bottle guzzlers, gents who go around with a pink flask in the hip pocket, or to open a new and rich field for the bootlegging gentry.

Personally, we hold no brief for the wets, and none for the drys, but it seems to be the mature judgment of the solid business interests that with the tourist trade and vineyard industry at stake Amendment No. 2 should be knocked into the middle of next year.

AFTER PIE GRABBERS.

Amendment No. 6, entitled "Ineligibility to Office," should receive a strong affirmative vote from the taxpayers, as it is designed to strike a blow at the office-holding monopoly and its horde of salary grabbers. Under the Johnson re-for some of the politicians to hold down two jobs with a fat salary attached to each. gime it has become a favorite sport

If this amendment carries it will make it impossible for a member of the Legislature to grab off an extra job on the side at the expense of the taxpayers, and do much to squash the Johnson machine. As all know, Hire'm invented the one-way pocket for taxpayers—that is, everything going out and nothing coming in. Then he also is the celebrated inventor of the one-way pocket for office-holders, everything coming in and nothing going out.

Take, for instance, the sad case of Senator H. H. Lyon. He derives Senatorial services. In order that only $1000 annually for his weighty he receive remuneration commensurate with the value of a true staesman, things have been fixed so that he receives two or three thousand dollars a year for a job in the State Labor Bureau. This is a very taxing position—that is on the taxpayers and calls for a high degree of skill in drawing salary.

The discovery was made that Frank Mouser, Assemblyman, was not receiving a salary at all commensuarte with his value to the State. Whereupon Hire'm, the unshakable friend of the dear office-holders, promptly righted the wrong by getting him a soft position in the motor-vehicle department. With this valuable technical training, Frank should have little trouble getting a job in a garage when he retires from public life and leaves the State to its fate.

Harry Wishard, Assemblyman in the open season for legislating, has never had enough pull to get an extra job, but landed a position for his estimable wife. Mrs. Wishard gets a $6 a day as file clerk when the Legislature is in session.

Considering the high cost of paper, it seems almost a crime a hold an election at this time. Judging from the size of the ballots in this State, a fortune will be used up in paper alone. Those who get the ballots wound around themselves in the booths and are suffocated will be given Christian burial.

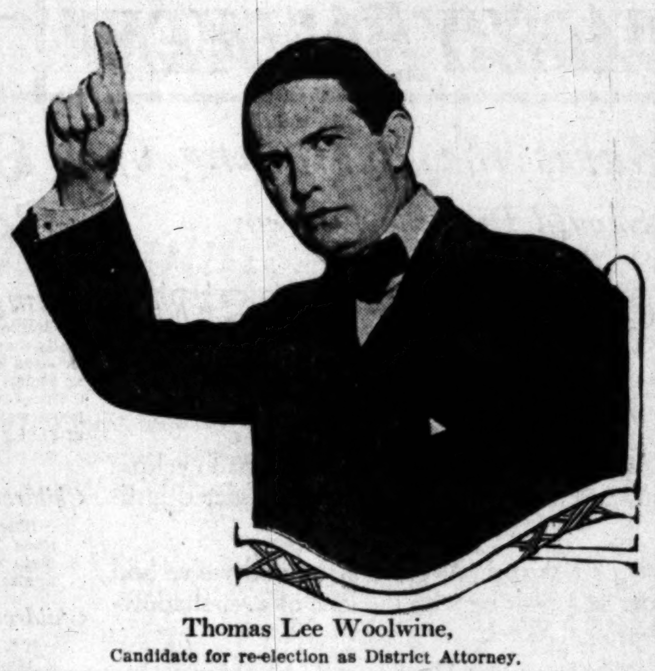
Some frivolous remarks by Barndollar,
On the subject of the election which we are to have on Tuesday.

On His Record as District Attorney.



Thomas Lee Woolwine,
Candidate for re-election as District Attorney.

His Due.

VOTE FOR WOOLWINE TO REBUKE MUD-SLINGERS.

His Re-election to His Office is Certain, While Malodorous Campaign Material Used Against Him and Natural Importance of His Post Have Exaggerated Size of His Opponent.

NOW that the campaign is made, it may be apropos to observe that Los Angeles has been regaled with a totally unnecessary amount of that peculiar and malodorous campaign material known as slime.

It so happens the office second in power only to that of Governor is District Attorney of Los Angeles county. When there is a contest on for this position it naturally attracts more than ordinary attention. The public notice given the campaign is chiefly because some people are trying to put a new man into the office of District Attorney.

MISINTERPRETED.

But this great prominence that is given the contest for the District Attorneyship is often misinterpreted by some, and in the present fading campaign by one in particular. W. T. Helms, a former Deputy District Attorney, who has tried a hand at law, at religion and at almost everything else, has misconstrued the purport of the public notice given this contest to the extent of regarding himself as a "big man."

As a matter of fact, there never was a time in this campaign when the prospects of the election of Mr. Helms approximated the prospects of the re-election of Thomas Lee Woolwine.

There never was a time when the luster of the incumbent was dimmed or deadened by the claims or attacks or promises of his fortune-seeking opponent.

OVERCONFIDENCE.

Mr. Woolwine would never have been forced to make a post-primary campaign were it not for the overconfidence of his many friends. He was deprived of the election at the primary by a bare two score votes, and was compelled to make the remainder of the race in the face of the fact that he was at that time, and still is, the unqualified choice of a majority of the voters of Los Angeles county.

This situation, in which Mr. Woolwine finds himself really a popular public official, is one of the strangest twists ever known in local politics.

When he was made a deputy United States District Attorney something more than a dozen years ago, he was inexperienced, untried; when he went into Judge Hewitt's office as Deputy City Attorney, he was still lacking the confidence of his associates. When he became City Prosecutor his capacity for responsibility had not even then been fully tested.

SIX YEARS AGO.

In 1910 Mr. Woolwine ran for the office of District Attorney against Capt. Fredericks.

"I sometimes shudder now to think how unfitted I must have been in those years," said Mr. Woolwine recently. "It has been the highest aim of my life to win the full confidence and unreserved support of my friends in Los Angeles. I think there came to me two years ago a sense of responsibility over what I considered my possession—not the office of District Attorney so much as the fact that thousands of my neighbors and friends had reposed confidence in me and had entrusted me with an office of high power."

Two years ago Mr. Woolwine was bitterly opposed by thousands of the men and women who are today supporting him. At that time it was generally said that he lacked the temperament necessary for the proper conduct of the exalted office of District Attorney.

HIS START.

When he took the oath of office and launched forth upon less than two years of service, he became engaged in a number of important matters that required the keen judgment, the steady poise, the firm decision of a balanced mind.

At the close of nearly two years of this service, Mr. Woolwine has amply demonstrated a possession of those qualities. His record as District Attorney has been generally and generously indorsed by all classes of people.

He has been fearless and incorruptible. He has won the fullest confidence of his friends and the respect of those who were once his political enemies but who have now enlisted themselves among his friends.

HIS RE-ELECTION.

Mr. Woolwine's re-election never was in doubt in the campaign just closing. He will be returned to the office in which he has made good.

Political prognosticators agree that his majority will be not less than 40,000, the figure at which he won over W. J. Ford, two years ago.

A majority of those figures will be a handsome testimonial to Mr. Woolwine, but it will be an even sterner rebuke to the type of political scandalmongering that has been brought into play against him.

Mr. Woolwine will be the District Attorney for the next four years.

GRAND OPENING SOON.

The Fair Store will Open in December with Big Stock of Goods.

The Fair Store will open either Saturday, December 2, or Monday, December 4, in a blaze of glory in the old Boston Store building, Nos. 237-9 South Broadway. The store, with its tremendous financial resources, will at once take front rank in the merchandising institutions of the city. The aim is to make this one of the big popular-price stores, and a variety of goods that will have the widest possible appeal will be kept in stock.

The primary reason given by the management for choosing this location is that they are confident that the opening of the Second-street tunnel will have a good effect on the upper Broadway locations.

The brilliant lighting system planned to replace the present somewhat antiquated one also is considered as an important factor in the rejuvenation of this section of the business district.

The company now has a number of buyers in the eastern markets purchasing the immense stock that will be carried. The fixtures will be installed as soon as the Broadway House Beautiful and Flower Show is over, and when the great doors again swing open there is a rich surprise in store for the buying public of Los Angeles.

One in Each District.

REAL BUSINESS MEN ARE IN SUPERVISORS' RACE.

SUPERVISORS are to be elected Tuesday in three districts—the Second, Fourth and Fifth—and it is fortunate that there is an honest and thoroughly efficient business man seeking election in each district.

In the Second District Mark G. Jones, former County Treasurer, has been making his campaign upon the promise to administer the duties of the office in a businesslike manner. His reputation in the community commends him to the voters, who have become disgusted with the bulldozing tactics of the incumbent.

Mr. Jones has received the hearty indorsement of practically every political organization and improvement association in the district. He has a legion of personal friends and they have taken personal interest in the campaign. Mr. Jones made a great race before the primaries and has been gaining steadily ever since.

The only opposition that has developed against W. E. Hinshaw, the incumbent in the Fourth District, has emanated from sources that tried to control him. He has fought them in the open, and the people unquestionably are with him. He has more than made good, and the people are for him. Mr. Hinshaw has taken personal pride in his efforts to secure improvements in his district and has been responsible for much of the development in that part of the county. It is the desire of his friends and admirers that he be retained in office so he can superintend the completion of work that has been started through him—and also work that is planned for the near future.

Jonathan S. Dodge is the leading candidate in the Fifth District. He seeks to succeed Chairman Pridham, who has been one of the most efficient Supervisors ever elected to that body. Yesterday Mr. Pridham declared Mr. Dodge will carry the district by not less than 2000 majority. Mr. Dodge has the indorsement of scores of prominent civic and business organizations. He is especially popular in South Pasadena, Highland Park, Garvanza and the San Fernando Valley. His friends are predicting that he will receive the largest majority of any of the successful candidates.

Mr. Dodge is president of the Cawston Ostrich Farm, Mayor of South Pasadena and identified with many business enterprises. He has made a brilliant success of his own business and is looked upon as an ideal man to conduct the business of the people.

Vote "No."

ARGUMENT AGAINST PROPOSITION FOUR.

"NONPARTISAN" LAW ALREADY ONCE DEFEATED.

Main Question is Whether Voters Regardless of Party Beliefs Shall be Permitted to Take Part in Party Primaries—Opens Way for Boss Rule.

BY ALFRED D. BARTLETT, State Assemblyman Who Led the Fight for the Referendum Placing Proposition No. 4 Before the People.

Proposition No. 4 on the ballot was a part of the "nonpartisan laws," which were defeated by the people October 25, 1915, therefore, these measures have already been rejected by the elctors of this State.

The main question involved in proposition No. 4 is whether or not we will do away with party registration and permit voters, regardless of their beliefs, to take part in party primaries. This measure provides only for party declaration at the polls.

The basic evil in most nominating systems is that they provide no protection against party colonization at primaries and the control of a party by its opponents. This proposed act not only affords no such protection, but urgently invites it. It is easy to be seen that where voters can flock to the polls, call for a Democratic ballot, vote for a Republican or some other disbeliever in Democratic principles as the Democratic nominee, the primary becomes a farce. Honest primaries can only be had where the bona fide members of a party decide who shall be its nominee.

The present registration law affords the best protection in that regard that has yet been devised. It was passed in 1907 as a reform measure, owing to the fact that in the centers of population wherever the contest was close in a primary election, members of another party were rushed in to turn the tide. Boss domination became an easy matter. Chief Justice Beatty in the case of Schostag vs. Cator, 151 Cal. 604, refers to the provision requiring party declaration at the time of registration as a "provision evidently designed to prevent unscrupulous and mercenary electors from holding themselves free down to the day of election to vote with any party, upon any corrupt motive, for the purpose of influencing the nomination of its candidates for public office, while without any interest in their success, and perhaps with an interest in their defeat." Why then should we pass this act which would abolish this meritorious provision and substitute in place thereof dishonest primaries and boss rule? Vote "no" on No. 4.

TIMES SERVICE FOR ELECTION.

Telephone Operators and Stereopticon Bulletins will Answer Questions.

Special telephone service will be afforded patrons of The Times who are unable to be at First and Broadway or at No. 619 South Spring street Tuesday night to watch the great stereopticon bulletin boards in action. Especially detailed operators will be kept informed of the results coming in, so that they will be able to answer all questions as to how the election is going quickly and accurately.

Working in connection with the telephone information bureau, a squad of Times men will handle the stereopticon bulletin services. As returns come in from different States and from local polling places the results will be instantly flashed on the screen.

Mark G. Jones Second District.
Jonathan S. Dodge Fifth District.
W. E. Hinshaw, for re-election Fourth District.

For Supervisor.
Three candidates whose prospects for election Tuesday are exceptionally good.

Our Grapes.

VINEYARDIST TELLS THE PLAIN TRUTH.

SHOWS FALLACIES OF THOSE WHO DON'T KNOW GRAPES.

What has been Done in California by the Vines—Hillsides and Fields Made Valuable — Ridiculous Talk About Grafting to Table Grapes—The Facts.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In your paper of October 17, I noticed that a lady from Calistoga, Napa county, who is the wife of a vineyardist, gave Rev. Dr. Locke an answer to his sermon about grafting wine grapes into table grapes.

The lady from Calistoga is perfectly right, when she uses the word "absurd" concerning the grafting of wine grapes six inches below ground for table grapes. If the reverend gentleman will investigate, he will find out. The statement he refers to is from the horticultural report, that this was done on some State experimental farm. If this should be done on a large scale on ten to fifteen year old vines, the word absurd, which the lady used, is a great deal too mild. For practical use, it is out of the question. All know that when the State picks out land for an experimental farm, the State won't go on the rocky side of hills or upon the desert, where at present the most of the vineyards are located. The State land is some of the very richest and best of soils. Just try and graft te nto fifteen year old vines in those hills or sandy deserts! On the State farm they very likely grafted with success a few dozen vines. The report is not given on the grafts that failed to set, and the report does not say how old those vines were when grafted. On young wood any graft will set and grow with a small percentage of misses. Even if the grafting could be done, the vines would not produce first-class table grapes. The little soil among the rocks or sand is not rich enough to produce large berries, and for raisins, the climate is not adapted. As the lady said, even if they could raise good table or raisin grapes, there would be some job on hand to get the grapes to market. There are lots of vineyards in Napa and in Sonoma counties on a 25 to 30 per cent. hillside grade. They are using sleds to haul the wine grapes down to easier grade, then to load upon wagons. The raisins, you know, are dried in the sun on trays. Where would those people put their trays for drying? At the spot where the vineyards end the brush begins, and in the vineyards the trays would slide.

I owned 350 acres in Napa county once without vines. I did not have one-half acre of level land in the whole 350 acres. So you will see what those people are up against. I say they are producing some of the finest and mildest grades of dry wines in the State and that is the reason they are there. Those people started with good intentions, at a time when the State and United States government encouraged viticulture. Any "old timer" will remember when the government sent experts to France to collect there for our climate and soil the cuttings, and now the Rev. Dr. Locke says: "Prohibition is not confiscation of the vineyards." I do say it is ruination for a good many of those people, and I also tell you it is the greatest injustice on our State, where wine is one of our best and greatest parent industries both in times past and now. To vote against the vineyardist would leave a stain on our State which we never could wash away.

Why doesn't Prohibition go after whisky, which is the real cause of all drunkenness? Good, well made, California dry wine never made and never will make a drunkard. Go up First street to the City Jail and ask some of those fellows what brought them there and ninety-nine cases out of 100 it will be whisky.

The Indian called it "firewater," a very good name for it.

I know of a man in Napa who worked for the last thirty-seven years in conquering those hills from the boulders and redwood stumps to get his land into a nice bearing, paying vineyard. He must have used tons of dynamite in doing it. In fact, he has one spot not over 3000 square feet where one man worked for over a month at clearing. The reason for doing so was that those stumps were surrounded by vines and in plowing or cultivating one had to drive around and that was too great a loss of time. If those people could raise table or raisin grapes more profitably, as the reverend gentleman says they would have done that long ago. Everybody tries to get the best return for his labor, no matter in what line of business. I noticed just a few days ago in our daily paper where a preacher from Ohio went back to the carpenter trade to make more money. It is human nature, and I believe there are others who will do the same thing. To come back to the wine grapes, those growers told me that the best and mildest wine is raised in light soil, the lighter the better to produce a low percentage of alcoholic wines.

In France, where they have been growing wine for hundreds of years, they are producing wine as low as 8 and 9 per cent. of alcohol, but their soil is worn out, and they are feeding their vines with fertilizers to get those results. Our Northern California dry wine contains about 11 to 12 per cent. of alcohol and that percentage is a long way off from 100 proof whisky bottled in bond. It will take eight to nine glasses of wine to get the same effect that one glass of whisky gives. A person who uses good dry wines seldom has any desire for whisky; and wine grapes do well where other crops would be a total failure.

Why doesn't prohibition go after the government to buy out every distillery in the country like the Swiss government did about forty years ago, when they concluded whisky was a curse on the people? Then let our government charge first $25 a gallon, and if there are still some drunkards left, raise the price to $50 a gallon; if that won't help it, raise some more. You will see the saloon would die a natural death. Going after the innocent wine grapes and vineyardist is wrong.

Look at the French soldiers and the account they are giving of themselves. Their fathers and great grandfathers drank wine. I lived among the French people thirty-five years ago, and I never saw a drunkard there. Whisky drinkers there are a disgraced class. I also noticed in The Times, October 19, Part Two, page 5, in the reverend gentleman's answer that in Sonoma the vineyardists were pulling out every ninth row of vines to plant prune trees, because the prunes were selling at 25 cents a pound; but he did not state where. I presume it was at Jevne's or some delicatessen store, packed in fancy cartons. I am positive there aren't 2 per cent. of the prunes in the whole State that bring that price in the bulk to the grower. Last year I paid 4 cents per pound for prunes that I used from the grower. Dr. Locke also states that the wine grapes are a losing proposition at $6 a ton. I lived at Napa in 1910. The wine grape grower got then $12 a ton and everybody complained abou the price being too low. The people told me that in 1908 they received $28 a ton. This year wine grapes brought $22 a ton, spot cash. The price of $6 a ton won't pay for picking and hauling. I read two years ago that the people around Fresno turned their hogs into the vineyards on account of the price being $6 a ton, and there they have level ground for hauling; but you must remember the administration was short of money, so it put a war tax of 8 cents a gallon on California wine, although we were not at war with anybody. Please take notice it is always the wine grapes that have to contribute.

The reverend gentleman also refers to the Stanford vineyard of 4000 acres—that they dug them up and planted alfalfa, fruit and nuts, on account of wine grapes being then a losing industry. I tell you Mr. Stanford's land was too good for wine grapes in the first place, but he planted vines on account of viticulture then being the main industry. Alfalfa, oranges, lemons and nuts came later. Does Dr. Locke know there was a large vineyard over at Boyle Heights owned by Mr. Workman? There also was a large vineyard on East Seventh street, owned by Koehler and Frohling; also another one on Seventeenth and Grand avenue. That tract goes by the name of Morris Vineyard tract in the county records. Again, almost all the land between Los Angeles and Pasadena was one solid vineyard, and what about Anaheim before the German vineyardists came there. There was nothing but a cactus sand desert. Those Germans planted wine grapes and made that desert pay good dividends.

About the reverend gentleman's ecclesiastical statement I won't have anything to say. I leave that to him and the public. Only in the last two lines, the reverend gentleman says that wine is the iniquitous product of man's depraved ingenuity; a very nice compliment to our great leading financiers and statesmen who used to own vineyards. The reverend gentleman also says that around Fresno they budded 10,000 acres of wine grapes into Thompson Seedless, but he did not tell us how old the vines were they budded on. The man who knows something about budding will understand me. If the reverend gentleman wants to see some results of budding and grafting, he can come to my place and he will be treated with the greatest of courtesy. I will show him a 3-year old peach tree with eight different varieties on the same tree. It may be of interest to him in the future. The vineyardists are not defeated yet, but one thing I am sure of—whisky should go first.

Back in Kansas when a cyclone wrecks barns and houses, they can build them up again within three to six months, but our 10 to 20-year old vineyards won't grow up in that length of time. The investment on our wine industry is about $150,000,000. Take out your pencil and do a little figuring as to what the amount would be on our tax income. Some smart chap two a half years ago started to abolish the poll tax and he abolished it all right. The result is that the State is $1,000,000 shy on school funds. If that chap would have raised the poll tax on all foreigners and Japanese, where race suicide is almost unknown, we would have had school money to burn.

Have you taken notice of Amendment No. 2? Aside from the saloon question no hotel is allowed to serve wine with meals to tourists. Yes, it even means that there won't be any more mince pie for Thanksgiving dinner. If the Prohibitionist had to pay for all actual loss and damage, I think you could count their ballots on your fingers November 8.

The prohibitionists tell us to vote yes on Amendments No. 1 and No. 2 because it will bring prosperity. Haven't we prospered better than any other State in the Union for the last thirty-five years?

We should eat and drink to live—and not live to eat and drink.

Monday Marks the Beginning of What Should Prove to Be Our Greatest Basement Week This Fall

—In October we told you of a Basement Week that was to eclipse anything we ever held, and the volume of business transacted justified our prediction.

—Now then, November's Basement Week is here, and we've laid our plans and priced our merchandise with the idea of over-shadowing October's great Basement Week.

—If you attended our last Basement Week you know what to expect. If you haven't had the good fortune to share in the savings, make up your mind to come to this Basement Week and see how well the "store within a store" is prepared to serve you in an economy way.

—Understand, the Basement Store is a separate and distinct "store within a store." Merchandised separately and with a corps of separate buyers. It does not depend upon the upstairs department.

—This Basement Week will bring hundreds of new friends to a basement that has already earned the slogan of "Don't Worry," "Watch Us Grow."

WHY ANTELOPE VALLEY IS FOR THE HIGHWAY BONDS.

Increasing Interest in Every Section of the State in Good Roads Indicates a Landslide for Amendment No. 3 at the General Election November 7, According to Officials of Automobile Club of Southern California.

WIDELY increasing interest in every part of the State in favor of the passage of the proposed $15,000,000 good roads bonds noticeable during the past week, is taken by officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California to indicate a tremendous landslide for the issue at the general election Tuesday.

Particularly encouraging were the reports from Antelope Valley, where some opposition was in evidence a few months ago.

"No proposition to be voted on at the general election, November 7, is of more direct importance to the residents of Antelope Valley than the proposed good roads bonds and it is only reasonable to believe they will vote 'yes' as a unit," said Standish Mitchell, secretary of the Automobile Club of Southern California and the Good Roads Committee of One Hundred, yesterday.

ANTELOPE VALLEY.

"Antelope Valley, snuggling, as it does, at the northern gates of Los Angeles county, has a wonderful future. Already it has advanced remarkably in development and there is no limit to what may be achieved if sufficient attention is given the vitally important subject of serviceable outlets to the marts of trade.

"At present this region with its vast acreage of fertile and productive land is more or less isolated, however. With the passage of the State highway bonds, this condition will be changed, the gates between the valley and Los Angeles swung widely open, permitting a direct outlet for Antelope Valley products, and a roadway that will make this part of California the most greatly traversed of any rural section of the United States.

"Already reconnaissance work has been done on the road that will extend from Los Angeles through the Antelope Valley, paralleling the aqueduct along the eastern slope of the Sierras, through the Owen's River Valley and Bridgeport Valley on to Lake Tahoe, providing the bonds carry.

VIEWPOINT.

"It is also tremendously important from a Los Angeles viewpoint that this roadway be built. It will furnish the most direct route to Lake Tahoe through a country, the scenic grandeur of which cannot be duplicated anywhere else in the world. From Bridgeport a splendid road already extends to Lake Tahoe, and at Big Pines, just above Independence, another good road branches off through the gold fields to Ely, Nev., connecting with the Lincoln highway, one of the great transcontinental routes.

"Two of the worst grades on the proposed route, those of Sherwin Hill and Dead Man's Hill, have been eliminated by the State Highway Commission.

"Because of the grandeur of the scenery and the fact that the road will be open the greater part of the year, whereas the northern route, via Truckee, is closed owing to the great snowfall in that section, it is easy to assume that much of the transcontinental traffic over the Lincoln highway will be diverted south at Ely.

FROM STATE FUND.

"The proposed bond issue does not incur a tax on the individual, the principal being paid from the State fund, created from the corporation and inheritances taxes. The interest on the principal is paid by the counties in proportion to the amount of work done within their boundaries. It has been shown that the amount now annually spent by the different counties to repair and maintain their roads is more than the interest on the bonds will be. With the passage of the bonds the State will take over and maintain the roads, after constructing or improving them.

"The present State income is in excess of $20,000,000 annually, and experience has taught us this money is always spent for something anyway. If we want a portion of it for good roads, which will mean so much to us, all we have to do is to vote 'yes' on Amendment No. 3, thereby directing the Legislature to devote $375,000 of the vast sum at their disposal for the completion, perfection and extension of the great system of State highways so auspiciously started. This amount represents the annual interest on the principal of the entire $15,000,000 proposed bond issue."

Truth.

EXPOSES WRONG CONSTRUCTIONS.

FALSE DEDUCTIONS ON GOOD ROADS BONDS SHOWN UP.

Highway Commissioner Explains Just What Los Angeles County will Have to Pay as its Share of Interest on Proposed New Issue. Direct Primary Debate.

Insinuations that Los Angeles county will be called on to pay one-third of the $15,000,000 for good roads if the people vote the bonds on November 7 were exposed yesterday by N. D. Darlington, a member of the State Highway Commission. He showed that Los Angeles county's share will be $851,201 for interest, spread over a period of forty years, while the principal will be paid by the State, coming out of the tax on corporations. He also stated that three of the trunk lines which are to be built and which will directly benefit Los Angeles county will connect with transcontinental roads.

The Highway Commissioner explained that if the bonds are carried the situation will be simply this: The people will be instructing the Budget Committee of the Legislature to provide in the general budget of the State $375,000 annually for good roads, beginning in 1923 and extending over a period of forty years. Out of that sum the cost to Los Angeles county will be approximately $45,000 for the first year, decreasing by $1100 annually until at the end of the period the whole amount will have been paid and the bonds retired. The total spent by Los Angeles county will be the interest on the money devoted to good roads built within the county. When the total amount voted for good roads shall have been expended Los Angeles county will have constructed more mileage of good roads than any other county in the State and the State will have the duty of maintaining for ever 50 per cent. more mileage of good roads in this county than any other.

FOR INFORMATION.

If You Want to Know Election Results Immediately Ask "The Times."

Before midnight of the 7th inst. the outcome of the Presidential election will be known. The returns from each State, as the ballot-counting is finished, will be received at the Times Office over direct wires. These returns will be flashed on the huge stereopticon screens for the benefit of the crowds that will assemble at First and Broadway and No. 619 South Spring street.

Those patrons of The Times who will find it impossible to be downtown that night, can have their own private bulletin board at home by keeping touch with this office by telephone. A special squad of operators will answer all questions.

DRY LAWS LESS DRASTIC.

Nineteen States now have prohibition laws in effect and in all of them the provisions are much less drastic than either of those proposed for adoption at the Tuesday election. They include: Alabama, Arkansas, Arizona, Colorado, Georgia, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Mississippi, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, Washington and West Virginia.

PROHIBITION FAILS.

Prohibition has proved a failure in fourteen States, all these having tried it and then returned to license and regulation. They include: Ohio, Nebraska, Michigan, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Illinois, New York, Vermont, New Hampshire, Maryland, Indiana and Delaware. Iowa and Alabama once repudiated prohibition and then returned to it.

PASSAGE OF SINGLE TAX LAW WOULD HIT STATE'S VITALS.

IF AMENDMENT NO. 5 (the single tax) carries, here are some of the things that will happen in California:

(1.) It will transfer approximately $40,000,000 now collected in taxes from corporations, firms, individuals, improvements, personal property, etc., to the lot and land owners.

(2.) Investors will shun all forms of property investments in this State.

(3.) It will impair the value of all bonds or mortgages based on land values.

(4.) It is estimated that the value of all land in California will be reduced from 40 per cent. to 50 per cent., and taxation increased in a greater ratio.

(5.) The inevitable reduction in land values will be so radical as to greatly reduce the real estate security held by savings banks for present loans, while no new real estate loans could safely be made by savings banks, insurance companies or other loaning institutions. Under these shifting conditions, also, commercial banks will be unable to fix or extend commercial credit.

(6.) It will revolutionize and unsettle all business conditions in the State.

(7.) It will keep the large eastern loan corporations out of the State, and stop its development.

(8.) It will have a tendency to stop all building improvements and put the majority of building artisans out of employment.

(9.) It will be impossible to get a loan from any source to develop or improve property.

(10.) It will mean such chaos and unsettled conditions as to strike to the very vitals of our State.

(11.) It will increase idleness and starvation, and encourage crime and lawlessness.

(12.) It is such visionary and impractical legislation that even some of the most ardent single-taxers themselves pronounce the measure loosely-drawn and dangerous, and say they will oppose it.

(13.) It will tax the poor man's land, while the rich man's stocks and bonds, office buildings and luxuries will be tax-free.

Forecast.

PREDICTS SOUND DEFEAT FOR PROHIBITION NEXT TUESDAY.

Amendment One will be Snowed Under and Two will be Beaten by a Small Margin, Declares Southern Leader of Wet Forces—Exhorts Voters.

BY COD. HENRY LAUB,
Chairman of the Southern Division of the United Industries and Manager of the Wet Campaign in Southern California.

PROHIBITION will be soundly defeated Tuesday—if very loyal citizen of California turns out to vote.

Despite the misrepresentations of the dry campaign managers and press and misguided attacks, I am confident there are enough sane and honest Californians to save the day.

Amendment No. 1 is sure of defeat by anywhere from 100,000 to 200,000 votes. Amendment No. 2 will be defeated by a smaller majority—between 50,000 and 75,000—because of the misinformation spread about by the "drys."

If the prohibitionists had told the truth about the second amendment, I could trust Californians to vote the right way, but the very wording of the amendment is so confusing that it has been easy for the dry campaigners to mislead those who have not given the proposition sufficient study.

The estimates I have made are conservative and based on information I have received as chairman of the southern division of United California Industries. If they are verified by the count on election day, it will be a tremendous victory.

I appeal to all classes and creeds to unite to defeat this pernicious attack on the State and its industries. If the ministers who are preaching political sermons from their pulpits would today stand up and tell the truth about Amendment No. 2 I could trust their congregations to vote the right way.

ATTACK BY OUTSIDERS.

It is not right that these professional campaigners from all over the United States should come out here and attack California, the State we all love, the brightest in the constellation of stars in our flag. Even the opposition press had to print, not more than a week ago, the fact that something over $44,000,000 had been collected to force prohibition on us, and that some $3,000,000 still remains.

Just think, citizens of California, what we are up against! There's millions of that fund left and we have to meet it; not dollar for dollar, for we can't afford it; but by earnest endeavor and honest statement of facts to the people. We have to depend on the integrity of the voters to save all of us from this blight which the fanatical drys would put upon us.

My friends, don't let them do it! It means everything to California just now, as we are about to develop new prosperity and begin another upward climb to State fame and fortune.

The California Prosperity League is a powerful factor in the south, and by organizing Los Angeles county, it has assumed the burden of rolling up a majority in this end of the State. Never before has there been such a campaign waged in defense of our rights, and I am confident that at the polls the people will make good.

When the real people are really aroused, no such calamity as the prohibitionists propose can befall us. This second attack of the drys has shown the people what they can expect if they do not decisively defeat prohibition this time—expensive campaigns year after year against a foe that draws his financial strength from this class of people throughout the East, from the hotels in Florida, that could get all our tourists if we should go dry, from rich men whose hypocritical consciences hurt them, and from really sincere people who have been misled by the Anti-Saloon League.

GOOD JOB NEEDED.

We must vote this monster out if we want to save our industries, our labor, our investments. We will have to give the drys such a good licking that they can't come back in two years for more, even if fresh millions are ready for their slush funds.

I want you capitalists to realize that if prohibition wins your industries and investments will be destroyed and depreciated.

I want you laboring people to realize that 293,000 people would lose their livelihoods through the cutting off of the jobs of wage-earners.

I want you housewives to know that you are making it awful hard for your menfolks to make a living if you believe campaign falsehoods and vote dry.

I want all the people of California to realize that prohibition means the destruction of one-tenth of the industries now in existence, would drive away investments coming this way, force tourists to go to Florida and other Southern States to winter, make waste hundreds of thousands of acres of vineyard lands which are fit for no other culture; would, in short bring such business depression as will make the panic of 1907 a mere flurry in finance.

I trust you, Californians, to do your duty.

Expectation.

TO HANDLE CROWDS.

Special Squad of Traffic Officers will Patrol First and Broadway Election Night—Telephone Operators will Also Give the News.

Chief of Police Butler last night issued an order detailing a special squad of traffic officers for First and Broadway election night. This action is taken in expectation of the great crowd that will gather to watch The Times stereopticon bulletin board for latest returns.

Because it is realized that First and Broadway will not hold all the people who will rely on The Times for fast and accurate reports on how the election is going, a special squad of telephone operators will be installed on the switchboard for the night. Anyone wishing to ascertain how the candidates are running may do so by calling Main 8200 or 10391.

The stereopticon service will also be given at the Times Branch Office, No. 619 South Spring street.

JOBS FOR JOBLESS.

Victory for the $15,000,000 good roads bonds at the general election Tuesday will solve California's annual unemployed problem and provide work for the State's thousands of surplus workers for several years to come.

--Somebody's going to win it by Nov. 10th!

$50.00 in Gold for a "Slogan."

--here's the Idea

We want a "slogan," a brief, simple, expressive phrase consisting of as few words as possible. It might be a "catchy" one and yet substantial and dignified. It must be easily remembered.

Why can't YOU devise a single, striking sentence that will graphically and clearly picture the SERVICE that Pease Bros.' Furniture Co. renders as indicated by the "pointers" in the next column!

If possible, avoid commonplace phrases such as will readily occur to almost anyone. Our suggestion would be to not only make it unusual and easily remembered, but to base it on Pease Bros.' policy and service. Read the "pointers."

Everybody is eligible to compete except our own employes. As a matter of convenience to us, all we ask is that you step into our store and secure one or more of the "SLOGAN BLANKS" at the door. If you cannot come you may send your slogans (as many as you want) by mail.

Contest closes on November 10th at midnight. Winner will be announced in the papers of Sunday, Nov. 12th.

--here are some "pointers"

It is more than likely that many hundreds of people will send in the first suggestion that occurs to them. That suggestion may prove to be the winning slogan, but it is likely that the one that is patiently worked out will prove more acceptable.

Here are the "pointers:" For over 30 years this store has been furnishing homes. Sometimes it's only a table or chair, sometimes a bedroom or dining-room, sometimes a complete house.

During these years our SERVICE has made for us thousands of good friends. Many of them have frankly complimented us about our Reliability and the feeling of Confidence they had in dealing with us.

They have commented, too, about the "friendly" and comfortable atmosphere of the store, of the courteous salesmen and of the Helpful and Liberal Credit Terms which we gladly extend to all responsible purchasers.

They seem impressed (and rightly, too!) with the fact that we own and occupy our own nine-story building filled from top to bottom with Furniture and Home Furnishings for inexpensive and moderate-priced homes. Many of them have been surprised to learn that we manufacture as well as retail.

The comment that pleases us most is the one that has been repeated so often that we feel we really MERIT it. And that is—Pease Bros is the store that can and does Most Satisfactorily Furnish the AVERAGE HOME—it is the store of Moderate Prices every day in the year.

Some striking floats in yesterday's "dry" parade.

For Prohibition.

DRY FORCES PARADE STREETS IN COLUMN FOUR MILES LONG.

Hundreds of Floats, More than One Thousand Automobiles and Crowd of Marchers Estimated at Over Eighteen Thousand Appear in Demonstration.

FEATURED by hundreds of floats and more than 1000 automobiles, the dry parade of yesterday was said to be the largest demonstration of its kind yet seen west of the Rockies. It was about four miles in length and contained, according to estimate of various officials, between 18,000 and 25,000 persons.

From the time the first automobile float passed First and Broadway, until the last division passed, an hour and thirty-five minutes later, the marching column was hailed with cheers and jeers, according to the sentiments of the spectators. Traffic between First and Tenth streets, on Spring and Broadway was suspended at 1:30 o'clock, and except for an occasional truck or automobile which went "dry" and had to be pushed to the side of the street, there were no interruptions to the progress of the marchers.

Following the parade, officials highly commended the way the police handled the multitude that lined the streets. No accidents were reported.

WELL ORGANIZED.

Smooth organization and military precision marked the mobilization of the dry parade. From early yesterday morning until a few minutes after noon, the units of the twelve divisions were forming. The officers had toiled all night to make the organization perfect. The marchers all knew their places and the task of the morning had been half done by the preparations of the night before. Maj. Kennedy and his aides were intensely busy. That first division had to be moved away on the stroke of the clock and moved promptly.

Marshal Lloyd E. Noble was given the first division. He was assisted by Aides Herschel N. Griffin, W. F. Cunningham; S. L. Todd, Dr. W. Lehman Lowder and Carl Broekman. They had been drilled carefully. As a result that first division moved away with order and on time.

Many of the floats were picturesque and striking and each had an object and a meaning.

AT THE WASHTUB.

One represented a woman at the washtub. Across the top of the float was the sign, "Two thousand washerwomen can quit their jobs when California goes dry." On the float was a saloon keeper, who was supposed to be engaged in the following conversation with the washerwoman. Saloon keeper: "How are you going to vote?" Washerwoman: "I'm going to vote dry." Saloon keeper: "Don't you know if California goes dry my business will be ruined and you will lose your job?" Washerwoman: "When California goes dry my husband can support me and your wife can have my job."

On a float entered by Anaheim dry workers a Dutch mother was busy doing many things. She was dressed immaculately and looked particularly spick and span with the exception of two immense black flies, ugly creatures which were suspended and kept alighting on her snow-white gown. Two lads with big fly swatters were at work swatting the flies, which represented the two dry amendments. They succeeded in killing both the flies and causing California to go dry on both amendments.

Angeles Mesa drys were represented by a unique float, depicting a choice between "booze" and a "fine home." An ivy-covered cottage was at one end of the float and opposite a well. From this well a pretty girl was drawing clear water and offering it to young men who were asked to drink it and refuse liquor.

SARTORIAL IMAGERY.

Nineteen young women, all wearing white and each carrying the name of a dry State on a banner, followed at a distance by a young woman wearing black and carrying a sign "California," were on another float. Each of the women represented one of the dry States and each girl appeared to be inviting California to join her.

An automobile attached to a trailer loaded with young women was another of the entries. It was indicated that these young women were saved by toleration rather than by intolerance. On a float directly behind the trailer was a sign, eight by twenty feet, on either side of a large moving van and reading, "Was it Intolerance when people voted to abolish polygamy, opium, race-track gambling, white slavery, lottery, prize fighting? Why then allow booze? Vote yes on amendments Nos. 1 and 2."

Another feature was a sign reading, "Business men of Temple Baptist Church want California Dry. Good for 2000 dry votes." This sign was carried by the men of Temple Baptist congregation. Another sign read, "Women of Temple Baptist Church want California dry, good for 3000 votes." This was carried by the women of the congregation.

Between the men and the women divisions of the Temple Baptist Church the vested choir, on "rubberneck wagons," sang "California is Going Dry."

BAPTIST SOCIETIES.

One of the sections in the second division was made up of eight automobiles representing the different departments of the National Baptist Societies of the United States. On one of the banners was the statement, "We have millions of vested interests in California and want it dry."

The American Baptist Foreign Missionary Society entered automobiles showing the work of the organization in detail.

The Rose Tournament organization of Pasadena was well represented in the floral division.

Mounted marshals and aides were decorated with sashes showing their rank. Grand Marshal A. J. Wallace wore a red sash; his aides all wore white sashes. The chief of staff, Maj. J. P. Kennedy, wore a red and white sash; his division marshals wore blue sashes, and their aides in each division wore blue and white. In each division were a marshal and four aides, all mounted.

The marchers carried flags, banners and signs, and the reviewing stand, at Fifth and Broadway, was given the usual salute. It was "present flags" and as each division passed, the flags were raised and brought to the position of attention. The same salute was given at the City Hall and in front of the newspaper buildings and branch offices.

Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher was at the head of the Baptist division, representing all the Baptist churches of the city. This constituted the second division.

C. E. Cornell, cvhief aide de camp, the man primarily responsible for the parade, rode with the grand marshal in a large touring car. This is not Mr. Cornell's first effort. Twelve years ago in Chicago he organized and carried out a similar demonstration.

W.C.T.U. FLOATS.

The women of the W.C.T.U. were represented by fifteen floats. The work of the organization was shown in considerable detail. The procession was led by the State officers, carrying an immense white silk banner with the inscription "Southern California Women's Christian Temperance Union." Following them was the banner of the Young People's Branch and the Loyal Temperance Legion.

The city W.C.T.U. float carried a young girl chained to King Alcohol, who was supposed to have her firmly in his power. She appeared forlorn and miserable. At the other end of the float was a young woman, joyous and happy, wearing the pennant "California Dry—1920."

One entire brigade of women, marching, carried brooms on which were the words "Sweep California Clean."

One float carried women representing the seven States which vote on prohibition next Tuesday.

The members of the Mother Union Los Angeles Central, rode in a touring car bearing the inscription, "Organized by Frances Willard in 1883." "W.C.T.U.—We Protect the Children" was another banner.

The children appeared 1000 strong, marching and on floats, wearing the red-and-blue caps and pennants of the Young Campaigners. They gave rally cries, and with stamping feet shouted:

"Raise the yell, beat the drum,
Up with the flag, down with rum,
California dry is our cry,
Rah! Rah! Rah! Hear us shout:
'John Barleycorn—GET OUT!'"

FROM BIBLE SCHOOLS.

One of the largest of the floats showed an immense pair of golden scales. On one side of the scales was a young child weighing down a quantity of wine grapes on the other side. Over the scale was the sign, "Which will you save?" This float was placed in the parade by the children's department of one of the largest Bible schools of the city.

Another float had a large cradle, in delicate pink, and the cradle was filled with babies. Over the cradle was the request, "Save us from it." It represented the cradle roll of a Bible school, the infant department.

A whisky bottle had an important place on another float. The bottle stood nine feet in height and was partly empty. The other side of the float was loaded with children, and the sign above read, "Our parents did not use it."

King Alcohol was given a place of honor, or perhaps dishonor, in a hearse. The body was encased in a huge bottle of liquor. An immense sign in black above the hearse, with a deep black border, the whole in deep mourning, read, "King Alcohol died November 7, 1916."

Drys predicted that there would be 50,000 persons in the parade, but an actual curb count made it 11,811 persons. Ten hundred and thirteen automobiles carried 5565. There were eight adult bands and four "kid" bands, three buglers, eighty floats, which carried 3200 people. The marchers numbered 2895. The classified percentages were: Children 55 per cent., women 30 per cent., and men 15 per cent.

DRY WORKER FORECASTS PROHIBITION VICTORY

BY HERBERT A. WHEELER,
Department Superintendent of the Dry Campaign in Southern Californ

AFTER making due allowance for the natural optimism of our dry workers, and giving careful consideration to the reports coming to us from all sections of the State, we are more confident than ever that both Amendments Nos. 1 and 2 will be carried at the election next Tuesday.

The change in public opinion throughout the State, nation and the world regarding the use of alcoholic liquors for beverage purposes has had its influence upon the people of California. Again, our citizens have been learning the truth regarding the profit, or lack thereof, in the growing of wine grapes. They had not known before that the report of the State Viticultural Commission shows it costs from $10 to $12 per ton to produce grapes, while the wineries have been paying from $6 to $8 per ton for years past. They have believed the statements of the liquor forces, who are waging their campaign from behind the grapevine, that other crops could not be grown on land now planted to wine grapes. They know better now. Throughout the State many vineyardists are either pulling out their vineyards entirely, budding wine grapes to raisin and table grape varieties, or intersetting their vines with fruit trees.

Even the unexpected early rains have not proved the benefit to the wet cause they had hoped. While the wineries bought a few thousand tons of grapes from raisin growers, those who did not sell to the wineries are making far more profit because of the higher price of raisins.

Notwithstanding the attempts of the "wets" to give false impressions as to the results of prohibition in other States, the reports coming from city, county and State officials, as well as from business and professional men of dry States, prove conclusively the benefit of prohibition to all classes. Better business, more bank accounts, larger attendance at schools, less crime; taxes, etc., are causing the p of our State to think. The forces have placed advertise all over the State, asking the ple to think. They are thinking concluding that liquor does no good; that it must go sooner later; why not now? These are of the reasons why they are to vote "yes" on Amendments

WOMEN'S W

THE first word concerning the next biennial of the General Federation of Women's Clubs is just out. The club women at the recent board meeting held in Chicago decided upon Hot Springs, Ark., as its next meeting place, set for May of 1918, and the immense organization of nearly three million women, headed by Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles of Los Angeles as president-general, will show its true American spirit by making the nation's flag its decorative keynote.

Since there is a tendency among some nations and a few unbalanced individuals to under-rate our flag and stamp out the patriotic feeling which has spelled America since the Pilgrim Fathers, it is gratifying that the women of our country—best of all, club women—are to unite in reviving the spirit of '76. For after all, spirit is as valuable an asset as are battleships and soldiers.

WOMEN'S WORK AND WOMEN'S CLUBS

BY DOROTHY B. JOHNSTON.

THE first word concerning the next biennial of the General Federation of Women's Clubs is just out. The club women at the recent board meeting held in Chicago decided upon Hot Springs, Ark., as its next meeting place, set for May of 1918, and the immense organization of nearly three million women, headed by Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles of Los Angeles as president-general, will show its true American spirit by making the nation's flag its decorative keynote.

Since there is a tendency among some nations and a few unbalanced individuals to under-rate our flag and stamp out the patriotic feeling which has spelled America since the Pilgrim Fathers, it is gratifying that the women of our country—best of all club women—are to unite in reviving the spirit of '76. For after all spirit is as valuable an asset as are battleships and soldiers.

Albert Shiels, superintendent of schools; Mrs. John Conant Lynch, State Regent of the D. A. R.; and Dr. T. M. Rhodes of the Pasadena schools. Mrs. Lynch told of the work being done by her organization in rasing the standards of the coming citizen and teaching him to respect our flag and its hopes and aspirations.

The new head of the Los Angeles schools and the Board of Education are going to make a united effort to lower illiteracy in California by making a centralized campaign for the foreigner and immigrant to attend night school, which is to open November 20. "He is going to be taught how to get a job, how to register a letter, the instrumentalities of the government and more of Los Angeles and its laws and ordinances," said Dr. Shiels. Through the foreign newspapers, churches, libraries and people, word is to be circulated of the plan.

But there is a still mighter force at work in this literacy campaign. The Los Angeles District Federation of Women's Clubs, the Parent-Teacher Associations, the Y.W.C.A., the D.A.R., the Council of Jewish Women and other societies have organized an Executive Committee composed of Mrs. E. H. Brooks and Mrs. Alfred L. Bartlett of the district board; Mrs. C. C. Noble and Mrs. H. T. Wright of the Parent-Teachers' Association; Miss Sue Barnwell of the Y.W.C.A.; Mrs. J. H. Morgan and Mrs. James Johnson of the D.A.R.; Mrs. Jules Kaufman and Mrs. Benjamin Goldman for the Jewish Council and the Brownson house, Miss Labory They will work with Dr. Shiels, under the direction of Miss Ethel Richardson of the State Commision of Immigration and Housing to distribute literature and communicate with all organization that are in touch with the foreign population. They are to make a house to house canvass, and are asking for automobiles and volunteers, who should report to either Mrs. Bartlett or Miss Richardson at the rooms of the commision, 226 Union League Building, Second and Hill streets.

The entire city will make a united effort through the pulpits of the various churches, the theaters, the plaza and other public places on next Sunday to reach the people. Speakers in foreign tongue will address groups of their own people.

All of which goes to prove that the majority of women aren't side-tracking the issues that count since they have acquired the ballot.

D. A. R.

Eschscholtzia Chapter D.A.R., at the regular meeting on Tuesday afternoon, November 7, at 2:30 o'clock at the Ebell Club-House will entertain with a large reception in honor of the visiting State Regent, Mrs. John Conant Lynch. In the receiving line will be Mrs. William H. Dudley, Regent of Eschscholtzia; Mrs. John Conant Lynch, State Regent; Mrs. Cassius Conte, State Vice-Regent; Past Regents of the chapter and the State officers. The official board of Eschscholtzia will act as assistant hostesses. The invitation has been extended to the other Los Angeles chapters to attend and Miss Helenita Lieberg of the U.S.C. college of oratory will read a selection from "The Common Law," and Mrs. Gail Mills Dimmitt will sing "When the Thrush Sings," Gertrude Ross, "Dawn in the Desert," and other songs.

The Gen. Fremont chapter will honor Mrs. Lynch on Wednesday afternoon, when they are to be entertained by Mrs. John H. Skelley of Crenshaw boulevard. Mrs. Cottle and other State officers are also to be specially complimented guests.

The General Richard Gridley chapter entertained in honor of the State Regent. Mrs. John Lynch, at the home of Mrs. John H. Braly at Glendale on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Lynch gave an interesting address in which she told of the forty-eight chapters of the order now established in California and their 1800 members.

The Braly home, where the chapter always meets, was radiant as ever for the occasion, with flowers and fruit from the famous gardens. The chapter does a great deal of philanthropic work and Mrs. Rochester reported upon the various interests. It was decided to form a class for the study of the immigration question, which the D.A.R. have made its own.

The Symphony Concerts.

The Ebell Club's auxiliary board for the Symphony Orchestra, consisting of Mrs. William L. Jones, president; Mrs. E. W. Martindale, vice-president; Mrs. J. Elton Lang, secretary; Mrs. Chester Ashley, Mrs. E. M. Bartlett, Mrs. Ada Henry Van Pelt, Mrs. Sidney Webb, Mrs. Axel Simonsen, Mrs. George P. Thresher, Mrs. J. T. Fitzgerald, Mrs. William H. Jamieson, Mrs. Stoddard Jess, Mrs. W. I. Hollingsworth, Mrs. George A. Brock, Mrs. Fred W. Johnson, Mrs. Frank King, Mrs. Seeley Mudd, Mrs. Gertrude Ross, Mrs. Hampton L. Story, Mrs. A. S. Rowley, Mrs. Erasmus Wilson, Miss Mathie Wilson, Mrs. William Read, Mrs. George H. Kress, Mrs. Cogswell and others, will have tickets for the Symphony concerts on sale at the Ebell clubhouse tomorrow at 2 p.m. F. W. Blanchard and W. E. Trowbridge will both be there.

The Friday Club Picnic.

Next Saturday, the Friday Morning Club will hold a picnic at Griffith Park. Mrs. N. L. Brinker will be in charge, assisted by a committee including Mrs. E. K. Foster, Mrs. G. C. Butterfield, Mrs. W. S. Post, Mrs. G. J. Atchely, Mrs. D. Skeel, Mrs. M. H. Pehr, Mrs. I. Densmore, Mrs. G. V. Wright, Mrs. J. J. Abramson, Mrs. J. P. Fisher, Miss E. Pepper, Mrs. J. P. Flint, Mrs. W. Spalding and Mrs. C. Bent.

The club feels that the natural beauties of the city are not sufficiently known to the community and these picnics have been designed for stimulating enthusiasm therein.

Luncheon at noon will insure the comfort of the inner woman. After dinner the members are urged to enjoy themselves. Mrs. E. R. Brainerd and Mrs. Luther Brown intend fostering a golf match. Mrs. Foster Wright and Mrs. Atchely will initiate the games, and Mrs. Ogilvie and Mrs. Stivers will see that music in the form of the club's choral society is forthcoming. Tree planting, following the good example of the City Club, will be part of the programme. Children, are especially invited, and Mrs. Montague, mother of three, has been entrusted with their amusement.

The Wednesday Morning Club.

The next programme of the Wednesday Morning Club will be a Japanese one, when Manon Bronson, will sing "One Fine Day" from "Madame Butterfly" in costume, and Japanese music will be dispensed via a Victrola. Mrs. A. C. Muff is to be the hostess at luncheon, and Mrs. Charles Eager will direct the programme.

The last meeting of the club was also musical, when the pupils of Thomas Taylor Drill, Mrs. C. F Dohrmann, Lucile Stanley and Reta Mitchell, were responsible for an excellent programme, varied and uniformly good.

A Progressive Musicale.

The Music Committee of the South Pasadena Woman's Club has devised a progressive musicale for next Saturday. It will begin at 2 p.m. at the homes of Mrs. Frank A. Stephens, 1831 Laurel street, Mrs. W. D. Newerf, No. 424 Monterey road, and with Mrs. P. O. Gardner No. 1115 Windsor place. Each programme will be given three times, making it possible to start at any one of the homes and hear the entire features.

Thomas Askin will sing folk songs and Mrs. E. Stephens Frederick a group of French songs at the first home. Gloria Mayne Windsor will give her Indian songs at the Newerf home, and Irene Zeller and Mrs. Ruth Sickner Omez will give a Japanese programme at the Gardner home. Refreshments are to be served at each house, and tickets may be had from members of the Music Committee, Mrs. P. O. Gardner, Mrs. Arthur Babcock, Mrs. A. F. Brown, Mrs. George Crandall, Mrs. Guy Crump, Mrs. Marie Glover, Mrs. Julius Seyler and Mrs. Henry Sherry.

Peace Sisters.

Mr. Kiyo Sue Inui will address the United Sisterhood of Peace at their meeting at the Broadway Department Store Tuesday at 2 p.m. This Japanese speaker, who lectured daily at the Panama Pacific Exposition, is well known to Los Angeles club women.

Westlake Fine Arts Club.

Mrs. Edith Reed Visner, secretary of this club, is leaving for an indefinite stay in Chicago and will be tendered a farewell reception on Tuesday evening at the Hotel Balboa.

The Juvenile Dramatic Club will furnish an entertaining vaudeville performance under the direction of Mrs. B. F. Parks. An illustrated fairy tale, dancing and songs by the little folk will furnish the programme.

The Cosmos Bazaar.

The Ebell Clubhouse will be transformed into a gala market on the afternoon and evening of Wednesday, when the Cosmos Club will hold its annual bazaar for the building fund. Mrs. H. L. Musser, general chairman, has been indefatigable in her efforts to make the affair a success.

Booths where every kind of commodity can be obtained will be in charge of Mrs. C. E. Love, Mrs. Will Anderson, Mrs. J. H. Woods, Mrs. G. J. Moodie, Mrs. W. I. Clendennon, Mrs. R. C. P. Smith, Mrs. S. A. Selover, Mrs. L. C. Taylor and Mrs. Luke Gallup Card tables will be in charge of Mrs. L. C. Vogel and Mrs. F. L. Warren. Mrs. A. T. Anderson and Mrs. C. W. Murray will act as treasurers.

The advance rate on the club initiation fees goes into effect December 1.

Impresario Captured.

L. E. Behymer, Los Angeles musical nabob, will be the main attraction on the programme at the South Pasadena Woman's Improvement Association next Wednesday when he will tell some of his experiences as an impresario, submerged in other people's temperaments. Miss Margaret Reynolds will provide a pianoforte prelude.

The Galpin Shakespeare Club.

Mrs. Mila Tupper Maynard has planned three Ibsen programmes for the Galpin Club at Cumnock School for this year. They will meet next Wednesday. The group will include poetic and social drama and the psychological, the first programme under the poetic heading including the study of Brant and "Peer Gynt." Mrs. W. T. S. Hammond will read a paper on "Norse Influence." Readings from Brant by Florence Behymer will also be heard.

Mrs. Frederic B. West, the president, entertained with the club's annual reception at her home last Saturday, a most enjoyable social occasion.

The Ivy Club.

This club will hold its next regular meeting on Tuesday afternoon, the 7th inst., at 2 p.m., in Brackett Hall. It takes the form of a competition card tournament of which this is the second of the series. Mrs. Frank Sparling will be chairman of the occasion.

Story 'Tellers' League.

The next meeting of the Story Tellers' League will be held Friday at 4 p.m. on the tenth floor of the Metropolitan Building. Mrs. Elizabeth C. Riddell, librarian of the Vermont Square Library, who has just returned from Pittsburgh, where she took an extended course on the theory and art of story-telling, will talk on standards of story-telling.

Kindergarten Alumni.

The Kindergarten Alumni Association of the State Normal School celebrated its twentieth anniversary yesterday, coupled with a tribute to Miss Florence Lawson, first director of this department in the school.

This association has maintained a kindergarten department at the neighborhood settlement at West Ninth street for twenty years, where they also provide breakfasts and clothes for the poor children. They are now raising a fund of $150 to build a new kindergarten-room. A room at the Children's Hospital is also maintained by the association in memorial to Miss Lawson.

The College Women.

The College Woman's Club met at Brackett Hall yesterday when the programme included a two-act comedy by Anatole France under the direction of Miss Leno E. Cooper. The players' section, responsible for the programme, is one of the most popular in the club.

Averill Study Club.

This club will meet at the Brack-Shops next Tuesday to study American literature. Mrs. H. A. Cable will make an address on club affairs, Mrs. N. P. Bailey will take legislation day for her subject and the Moron Colony will be discussed by Frances Flint and Dorothy Willis.

The Travel Club.

The literary section of the travel club met on Friday at Brackett Hall, Mrs. Harold Gilman presiding. Dr. William Finch gave a review of the book, "The Fair God," Mrs. Frank D. Wheeler talked on "California Dry," which subject also inspired Mrs. Wavies to song, accompanied by the club chorus.

The Highland Park Ebell.

A musical programme entertained members of the Highland Park Ebell at their last meeting on Thursday, when a reception was given to the new members. Mrs. Harry Haas, Miss Grace Mosher, Mmes. Smith, Clapp and Selby, Mrs. G. A. Grubbe, Miss Edna Douthil, Miss Bertha McCray, Miss A. Jaegar and Mr. De Lara, all contributed to an excellent concert programme.

Business and current events will occupy the next meeting on Tuesday, when Mrs. Jane Beatty will be responsible for the programme. The music section will meet Wednesday morning for the study of "William Tell."

Rosecrans Club.

The Rosecrans had a long session on Wednesday, last, at Trinity Auditorium, beginning with a board meeting in the morning and including a prohibition lecture and music in the afternoon. Mrs. Frank Wheeler spoke on prohibition, and Mrs. Jessie Ketchum provided the music.

A social day will be held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Emily Daniels, No. 4310 Hammel street.

The Business Women.

Charles W. Lyon, Assemblyman, and N. D. Darlington, Highway Commissioner, will be the speakers before the Business Women's Civic Club tomorrow evening. They will discuss the proposed amendments and the public is invited to attend. The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the lecture hall of the public library.

Their Halloween party last Monday evening, under the direction of Mrs. Reynolds Fitch, proved highly entertaining.

At Redondo Beach.

The Civic Outlook Club of Redondo held an executive board meeting last Monday, when plans for the city beautiful campaign were discussed.

At the last regular meeting on October 27, the supporters of Hughes and Wilson Presidential candidates, sang the praises of their respective choice, Mrs. Margaret Frick pleading for Hughes, Mrs. W. A. Gallentine for Wilson.

The South Side Ebell.

Halloween festivities engaged the attention of the South Side Ebell last Tuesday, Mrs. Abbie Butcher proving a worthy director of the merrymaking. The usual spooky amusements were enjoyed and the club husbands were the guests of the club for the evening.

HIS TESTIMONY IMPRESSES JURY.

WITNESS IN CAPLAN TRIAL PROVES EXPERT.

He Gives Effect of Explosion in Destruction of "The Times" Building and Dissipates Theory that Gas was Responsible for Many Lives Lost in Fire.

Frank Garbutt was the only witness on the stand yesterday in the trial of David Caplan, alleged dynamiter, who assisted in the destruction of The Times Building and the killing of twenty men. Mr. Garbutt gave emphatic testimony to the effect that the explosion in the building was caused by a very high-powered and volatile substance, probably nitrogelatin, or its equivalent, dynamite.

He was closely questioned as to his knolwedge, and qualified in this regard even to the satisfaction of Defense Attorney Appel. His testimony was material, as to disprove that it was not a mere gas explosion that caused the wreck, a theory which the defense has not entirely dropped, despite the overwhelming evidence in previous trials to the contrary.

SECOND LIBEL SUIT.
EARL FOLLOWS HELMS.

E. T. Earl yesterday followed the lead of W. T. Helms, candidate for District Attorney, who recently sued the Record Publishing Company for $150,000 damages for libel, by filing suit for a similar sum, $50,000 of which is by way of punishment. The alleged libelous article was published by the Record last Wednesday, and was headed:

"This is for W. T. Helms and E. T. Earl." Among other things it styled Mr. Earl as the boss of Helms. The complaint of Mr. Earl, prepared by Attorneys Anderson and Anderson, E. A. and Shirley Meserve, inserts the article clipped from the Record which the complaint states contains statements which are false, untrue, malicious and libelous and were known to be such when published; that the statements were actuated by malice and ill-will and were intended to injure Mr. Earl socially, personally and financially in the community, and his two newspapers.

APE BITES HIM.
SUES FOR INJURIES.

Ralph C. McComas, a moving-picture actor, had to do a picture in which a chimpanzee figured. The result was disastrous to him, for he says in a $15,000 damage suit filed against the E. and R. Jungle Film Company, yesterday, that the chimpanzee bit him in the face, which will disfigure him for life and will paralyze his face. Mr. McComas alleges that he did not know the animal was vicious until he attacked him, whereas the company was aware of the fact.

IN AND OUT ABOUT THE COURTHOUSE.

NOT INVOLVED. The decree in the Ingersoll separate maintenance suit, tried by Judge Wood Tuesday, was granted on the ground of desertion. The reference to the mother of Randolph Ingersoll made in the suit by Mrs. E. V. Ingersoll was only incidental to the case, a feature as it were, of a delicate case.

NEARER CHAMBERS. Judge Hewitt moved his court from the east wing of the Courthouse to the north wing yesterday, thereby getting possession of chambers attached to the courtroom instead of being forced to descend to the third floor as heretofore. Department Nine, over which he presides, was formerly used as an extra sessions court.

JURORS COMPLAIN. Judge Monroe occupies one of the new courtrooms on the eighth floor of the Hall of Records and while it is spacious, it is, like the other three courtrooms on that floor, deficient in acoustics. Not only that, but the jurymen are complaining of headaches and cold feet. The lighting is bad, and there are no rugs or carpets on the floor. It is current that getting supplies is like drawing teeth, a long, difficult and painful operation. While Judge Monroe is not fussy about furnishings, he wants things good or not at all.

CULLYFORD WILL. William Cullyford, who died October 23, last, left an estate valued at $24,000, according to the petition for the probate of the will filed yesterday. The petition sets out that he owned 11,160 shares of stock in various corporations, of which 700 shares were in the Los Angeles Investment Company. The heirs are the widow, Mary Cullyford; Henry W. Cullyford, a son, and Alice M. Bole, a daughter. The petition was filed by the widow and Thomas Cullyford.

RECOVERS DAMAGES. Owen McCann, a passenger in a jitney-bus, who was injured when the jitney collided with an automobile, recovered judgment for $1000 from a jury in Judge Wilbur's court yesterday. The verdict is against John Weissbuch and P. B. Chase, driver of the jitney and owner of the automobile.

INCORPORATIONS. The Fraser Sealed Seeds Company, incorporators, Robert G. Fraser, Alice A. Fraser and Douglas G. Fraser; capital stock, $100,000, subscribed, $1000.

STRINGENT RULES ARE SUGGESTED.

PLAN TO GET EXPEDITIOUS IMPROVEMENT WORK.

Board of Public Works has Under Consideration Chicago Regulations to Insure Completion of Contracts in Specified Time and Satisfactory Performance.

In order to insure expeditious and satisfactory street improvement work the Board of Public Works is considering the adoption of stringent regulations, following the example of Chicago and other large cities.

Several applications for extensions of time on contracts were made to the board yesterday and it was suggested that in order to avoid delays of this character forfeits be imposed and a rule be established that no new bids will be accepted from any firms who are behind the specified time on previous work.

It is also suggested that a guarantee be demanded from contractors that the material used and workmanship employed shall be of such quality as to insure the improvement remaining in good order and condition, satisfactory to the Board of Public Works, for a period of five years. Failure on the part of any contractors to do this, or to keep their work in good order for the period, would lead to their being declared irresponsible bidders.

If the Chicago plan as to forfeits is carried out contractors who fail to complete their work in the specified time will be liable to a penalty of $25 for every day that elapses until the work is done, unless the work is suspended by the board for any purpose.

Harbor Appropriation.

The Board of Harbor Commissioners yesterday applied to the Council for an appropriation of $70,000 for the extension of wharfage and the construction of a new freight shed for the Pacific Steamship Company at Los Angeles Harbor. The Finance Committee will pass on the request as the money must come from the

SAVE YOUR EYES

If it is good, careful, painstaking, conscientious work you want, I'll give it to you. It's the only kind that counts and it lasts. We are living in an age of specialism—when the best is called by competition.

If your vision is poor or your eyes bother you in the least, it is only an opportunity that I ask to prove to you my ability in caring for you or properly fitting you with glasses. It's the good correction I give you that counts more than all.

No "drops" used in examining your eyes and with my knowledge and scientific instruments the results are positive and the examination is not tiresome to you. If you need glasses, I look after them for you until the finished product is delivered to you and I will see to it that they are properly adjusted. Twenty-four years' experience behind my examination—nineteen years in Los Angeles.

Headaches, temple pains, nervousness, etc., are often caused by involuntarily straining the eyes. Poor glasses may help some but glasses properly correcting the trouble will help a great deal more. For the sake of your eyes you cannot afford to neglect them by wearing poorly fitted glasses. Have an Oculist's examination and see the difference. My charges are not only reasonable but within the reach of all.

How to Judge a Woman by Her Hair

There are always the well-known and semi-humorous methods, such as saying brunettes are quick-tempered. But there is real common sense in just noticing whether the hair is well kept to judge a woman's neatness. If you are one of the few who try to make the most of your hair, remember that it is not advisable to wash the hair with any cleanser made for all purposes, but always use some good preparation made expressly for shampooing. You can enjoy the very best by getting some canthrox from your druggist and dissolving a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water when your shampoo is all ready. After its use the hair dries rapidly with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its lustre and softness will also delight you, while the stimulated scalp gains the health which insures hair growth.

Instant Hair Stain Better Than Slow "Restorers"

Some folks would have you believe that they have discovered some marvelous combination that will "restore" the color to gray, streaked or faded hair, without staining it. No such preparation has ever been discovered.

There is only one preparation so far as we know that is entirely free from sulphur, lead, silver, mercury, zinc, aniline, coal tar products or their derivatives. That preparation is called "Brownatone." It is so easy and safe to apply that the wonder is that anyone ever uses anything else.

"Brownatone" instantly tints the hair to any shade of brown (or black) that may be desired. If the gray shows on your temples or is streaking your hair—if the ends of your hair are lighter than the balance, or if for any reason you wish to stain all or part of your hair—use "Brownatone."

A sample and a booklet will be sent you (from manufacturers only) upon receipt of 10c. Mention shade desired.

All of the leading drug stores sell "Brownatone." Two sizes, 25c and $1.00.

Insist on "Brownatone" at your hair-dresser's.

Prepared by The Kenton Pharmacal Co., 582 E. Pike St., Covington, Ky.

Sold and guaranteed in Los Angeles by The Owl Drug Co., 21 stores on the Pacific Coast, and other leading dealers.

Peeling the Skin is Better Than Bleaching

Ever since the discovery that mercolized wax would absorb and remove a discolored complexion, its use by ladies as a substitute for bleaching creams has grown rapidly. A perfect complexion can be maintained indefinitely if this remarkable substance is used. Its beneficent cleansing, clearing and preservative action is quickly apparent, and ladies who have been paying high prices for "special bleach" from beauty specialists, soon recognize that mercolized wax outranks them all. It has become so popular that it can be obtained at all druggists, who have it in original one-ounce packages. The favorite way of using is to apply it like cold cream, before retiring, washing it off in the morning.

The saxolite lotion for wrinkles and the facial contour has also become extremely popular. One ounce powdered saxolite is dissolved in one-half pint witch hazel. Bathing the face in this has a splendid effect in erasing wrinkles and improving contour.

New Way to Curl Hair Has Many Advantages

You will find the following to be a simple and excellent method of curling the hair. Apply a little liquid silmerine with a clean tooth brush, drawing this down the full length of the hair. Then roll the hair in curlers. In three hours let the hair down and you will be quite amazed at the result. You will have the prettiest curls and waves imaginable, altogether natural in appearance. Aside from this, the advantages of the silmerine method are that the hair is curled so quickly, that it remains in curl a long time, that it has such a lively sheen or lustre, and is so beautifully fluffy when combed out. A few ounces of liquid silmerine from your druggist will last for weeks. It is of course perfectly harmless.

STAGE.

A Feature.

ELECTION IS STARRED.

WILL APPEAR ON LOCAL BOARDS TUESDAY NIGHT.

With election news as an "added attraction" at all the various theaters Tuesday night, the week promises to be an exciting and unusually interesting one, even though there are fewer new plays than usual "Nju" and "The Dummy" will repeat as will also "A Night at the World's Fair." The Mason will be dark, except on Tuesday night, when election returns will be flashed on a screen from 7 o'clock until 12 o'clock, with an orchestra discouring sweet music at intervals. "Alias Jimmy Valentine" has been taken out and brushed up, and will be the offering at one of the theaters.

Vaudeville promises much refreshment. Ralph Herz, the well-known actor, brings a clever tabloid drama entitled "Where There's a Will;" living pictures of unusual beauty are to be seen, while "The Padre" is a story of especial charm, reproducing the early California days.

Orpheum.

Two headline actors are promised on the Orpheum bill, to open tomorrow afternoon. "Where There's a Will" is the name of a playlet to be presented by the well-known actor, Ralph Herz. He plays a double role, that of an old man and a young one. The other feature of the bill will be Searl Allen and Ed Howard, in a novelty in song and dialogue, which conveys a connected little story, entitled "A Real Pal."

Others will be Alexander MacFadyen, composer and pianist, who will be heard in a repertoire of his own compositions; Britt Wood, with his mouth organ and funny monologue; Nederveld and his trained baboons, Mabelle Sherman and Arthur Uttry, in bits of musical comedy, and the holdovers, including the Morin Sisters, dances, and the big Frederick V. Bowers song revue.

Little Theater.

"Nju," the play adapted from the Russian, which has been the offering at the Little Theater during the past week, will be continued during the coming seven days. The presentation is proving an honor, not only to the Players' Producing Company, who are appearing in it, but to the genius of Richard Ordynski. No more colorful and artistic drama has ever been seen here.

The work of Ann Andrews as Nju, the girl who sought love and found naught else but experience and its accompanying draught of sadness, is a revelation. There will be matinees Wednesday and Saturday, and Sunday evening a popular-priced performance will be given which places this offering within the reach of everybody.

Burbank.

"Alias Jimmy Valentine," Paul Armstrong's most famous success, will be the offering at the Burbank, commencing tomorrow night. For the accommodation of the Burbank patrons, election returns will be given out between acts from the stage of the theater.

The story of the master safecracker, Lee Randall, who is serving time under the name of Jimmy Valentine, his reformation, his adeptness at dodging the detectives, who have trailed him relentlessly for years, and his determination to keep straight are details of the plot that appeal strongly to every lover of drama.

Joseph Galbraith will have the name part, and Edith Lyle will play opposite him. Frank Darien, David Butler, Warner Baxter, Nolan Leary, Edward J. Peil, Emilie Melville and Mennette Barrett will all be ideally cast.

Morosco.

"The Dummy," a big New York success of the past two seasons, will continue at the Morosco. Election returns will be announced from the stage between acts Tuesday evening.

"The Dummy" is a detective play primarily, but the fact that its principal detective is a small messenger boy gives a touch of piquancy and comedy which puts the play in a class by itself. Charlie Barton, the 13-year-old boy who is playing the juvenile role, is proving a great hit with Morosco patrons. Edmund Lowe, Gertrude Maitland, James Corrigan, William Garwood and others are all happily cast.

Majestic.

"A Night at the World's Fair" will still play at the Morosco this week. Tuesday evening election returns will be read from the stage.

The production, besides taking one through the principal points of interest at the San Francisco fair, with beautiful scenic reproductions of the Tower of Jewels and other beautiful features, depicts scenes in the northern city's famous Chinatown and the Barbary Coast. In another scene the famous painting, "Stella," is brought to life. The spectacle, with its entertaining features, which include the Hawaiian dancers and the Grand Opera Four, has been drawing big crowds.

Hippodrome.

"The Padre," a story of early days in California, revolving around the strained relations between the gringo and the early Spanish settlers, will be the headline attraction at the Hippodrome on the bill opening tomorrow afternoon. The play tells a pretty love story, and also is full of exciting incident.

Others on the bill will be Edgar and Eddy in a novelty surprise in the gymnastic line; Suits and Clark, who have some up-to-the-minute song and patter; "Memories of 1861," in which the Four Old Veterans will stir the patriotic strain in the bosoms of their audiences; Gladys Correll, who will win with pleasing melodies; Jack Baxley, a monologist, with original songs and stories, and Beatrice Sweeney and company in a routine of dainty gymnastic diversions.

Pantages.

With a company of models chosen from the studios of New York and Paris, a carload of scenery, lighting effects, accessories and frames, Henriette de Serris will present one of the most interesting events on the Pantages programme for the coming week, it is announced. The spectacular novelty presents living reproductions of famous bas reliefs and pictures. Another headliner will be Slatko's Midnight Rollikers, a joyous combination of syncopated music, whirlwind ballroom and character dances and fast comedy. Ben and Hazel Mann, who have a pleasing southern drawl, will talk and sing; Tom Kelly, the "fashion plate" of vaudeville, returns with new songs, and, it is declared, a line of togs that will make the western Broadway take notice. Phil La Toska, the tramp juggler, provides a speedy line of comedy. The La Farra sisters and a new film, "The Lass of the Lumberlands," with Helen Holmes, will complete a good bill.

Mason.

The Mason will be dark save on election night, Tuesday, when the returns will be flashed on the screen and an orchestra will furnish music.

DRAMAS THAT SEEK THE WORD.

Plays Like "Nju" and "The Fugitive" Depict Restlessness, Yet Show No Path to Peace, for Escape from Limitations is not Through Neglect of Natural Relationship.

BY HENRY CHRISTEEN WARNACK.

"IN the beginning was the word and the word was with God and the word was God." John's pronouncement seems to have been a challenge to humanity's realization of the word made flesh. Mental conception is not enough. Our experience must be consuming, must shake the foundations of our being, must be steadily revealing, if the great word shall appear in us and abide with us as we appear.

Now, that is a funny way to begin an article about the drama and for all I know or anybody else knows on this subject, it might as well end here. It happens to be a subject, however, that nobody will let alone. It is the bright light of the absolute around which we poor moths singe our feeble wings to fall back into the flame of life. Once, when grappling with that vision that soon becomes inarticulate, I put the check of a measured rhyme upon my little dream of unity and made it into a six-line prayer that said:

Dear Lord, save life be as a stream,
Returning to Thee, its head,
For my brother who rages in drink,
For my mother whose heart breaks with grief,
Where is the peace of the dream,
And how shall I pray for the dead?

Our movement as a race toward a consciousness of that blessed one that is ever seeking to be made manifest in us, all is unquestionably the inspiration of much that is great in the drama. At the very point, however, that the big fellows seem about to thrust aside the veil, they are themselves swallowed up in the infinite. Ibsen becomes inarticulate at the dividing line in "When We Dead Awaken." He is like a great ship driven before a resistless storm. The boat has no captain, but the port is unmistakable. I know a woman who says, "Life has only one way."

In "Nju," the offering at the Little Theater, they have the most remarkable cabaret setting the stage probably ever had. There is a private dining-room and the musicians come in to play and to sing for the two guests who happen to be the other angles of the triangle.

You see, the music is the word, the man is the flesh and the woman is the spirit. The word is alluring, soft and witching. There is perfume in its melody; the wine of life and the dream of love is pulsing in each silver note. The man says, "This is enough." The woman is quiet a little while and then startles us with the announcement that there is a place to go, a thing to be done, a way untried, a word unspoken.

She has come a long ways to this decision. She has left husband and child and now she is discarding what she has thought was love. Nothing has held her, nothing can. She has broken every spell.

She declares the word is right in her throat, but she can never quite say it. The man asks, "What word?" and she replies, "Why my word, of course; everyone has his own little word."

Here is wisdom, indeed, for the word is not a blind, although it may never be given. The word belongs to each, and every age has its word as well. It may be something that corresponds with the dominant physical force of an age. The stone men had their word; there is a word for steel and one for electricity; there will be a word for ether and for radium. It may be that government ideals have their word and that the level of education has its word. Liberty and light are more than guesses and everything is paid for what is precious. Lincoln had a word—the nation shook and a race was born. The desert has a word; Congress places millions for a service of reclamation and barren wastes are redeemed that the continent may be nourished. Nations have a word and live by it and die for it. Nobody can stop them. Look deep into troubled Mexico and behold the contention of two words and the countless murders of those guarding them. Any attempt to understand Mexico and to heal it from other viewpoints cannot succeed.

But, I must hasten back to the European play written by a Russian and staged in Los Angeles, where America is as pure and as new as it is anywhere and where our understanding is very great because very innocent.

Ordinarily I hate a gloomy play for the stage and I hate a story where social values and moral standards are ignored, but "Nju" is not in that class.

It is true that the woman leaves her husband and her child for a lover, but you will notice that the little boy and his father refuse to be eliminated and that they are always calling to her and are the last ones at her bier. You will notice also that the false love falls away, an empty blighted thing that has never really touched her.

At first the play will strike you as stark and awesome, but afterward you will not remember it as unlovely in any particular. You will see, instead, only a soul that sought to find itself—one who struggled for identity. There is only one point of identification and that is the point at which a man or a woman touches the universal purpose.

We are left in the dark by this drama and by all plays of this character by the failure to insist that a man shall find himself without displacement and dissociation.

The fact that one has a soul is no occasion to neglect the body and the fact that each is on a long journey gives one no right to discount any mile of the way. Forces operate on their own plane, relations are in perfect order and realization only emphasizes the right value of relatives.

All neglect of what is at hand is violent and unnatural. Nobody really grows by leaving a family, refusing the work at hand, or committing suicide.

The center of the universe for you is wherever your foot rests at this minute. The open gate to the forever of life and the treasure-house of the universe is within your

NOTABLE ACHIEVEMENT.

Los Angeles Girl Author of Film Hit, "The Heart of Kura San."

The many persons who have seen "The Heart of Kura San," the appealing little Japanese film play at the Woodley during the past week, may find an added interest in it from the fact that the author, Miss Frances Guihan, is a Los Angeles girl and that it is among the first productions of a pen, which gives promise of even better things.

"The Heart of Kura San" has been compared more than favorably with "The Typhoon" and, like the other, is interpreted by the noted Japanese actor, Hayakawa. It is regarded as among his best efforts. Tsura Aoki as the unfortunate little Japanese maiden is exceptional in her artistic work, which is considerably enhanced by the use of many of her countrymen in the cast and the faithful reproduction of Nipponese customs. The principal American roles are taken by Miss Myrtle Stedman and George Webb.

PLAN JUVENILE RECITAL.

Plans are being made for the first recital by the juvenile department of the Dobinson School of Expression of No. 515 West Eighteenth street. This includes girls from 10 to 14 years of age, members of the culture classes, personally conducted by Mrs. Dobinson. Piano pupils of Miss Margaret Cashin are to assist at the recital. Mrs. Dobinson's own plays will be produced during the coming season by pupils of the school.

THEATER NOT BIG ENOUGH.

David Wark Griffith is busy running upstairs and down at Clune's Auditorium, where "Intolerance" is being shown, to find if there is not some way that he can increase the seating capacity of the theater. The Auditorium holds about 2800 persons, and, as several hundred are being turned away nightly, he is trying to figure out whether an extra gallery cannot be affixed to the ceiling to take care of those unable to get seats.

A PIANIST'S HOBBY.

Alexander MacFayden, distinguished American pianist, who is to appear at the Orpheum this week, has a hobby. He would prevail upon the American people to adopt a new national anthem, one written by Americans. In an endeavor to bring this about he has distributed hundreds of thousand of copies of a patriotic song, the words of which were written by Dr. Carter S. Cole of New York and the music by Mr. MacFadyen.

Fingering Finery.

AMONG THE STORES AND AMID THE SHOPPERS.

BY OLIVE GRAY.

Now is the time to buy:

The needed articles in chinaware for the Thanksgiving board. There are savings in that great anniversary sale.

The handsome gown for afternoon or evening wear. In that great sale there are garments at fully one-third less than value.

The hat dansant, obtaining first choice of a newly-arrived group in the millinery section where this hat is especially emphasized.

All the gloves you will want for some time to come. You may obtain excellent qualities and styles in that sale of sales.

Some forenoon, when there is no other election, I propose to invoke the initiative providing for a commission to frame social excuses.

The general run of people have so little originality. "It would give me the greatest pleasure to be present at your luncheon, on the seventy-second of Decuary, but on that date I am expecting to leave for Pomona." "It is with extreme regret that I must inform you of my inability to be present on the eleventeenth of next year, as on that date I am expecting a relative from the East, and as I have not seen him for twenty years and his train will arrive at the very hour named for your dinner, I cannot come." And so forth. The relatives and friends from the East, poor things! are worked to death long before arrival in this sunny land of rest. In fact did they know how much responsibility they would have to shoulder, it is doubtful if they would have the courage to start on their long journey.

Now what I propose is a commission, committed to invent new and original excuses. Think how delightful it would be to receive a genuinely plausible excuse for the absence of someone—and better still what a joy to be able to give an order for a set of ready-made excuses for an entire season—excuses warranted to fit any any every possible occasion! To be sure the commission charged with framing such matters would probably die of over work before its term expired but there would always be others ready to take the place. The examination for such positions would, of necessity, be purely civil service—yes more than civil—suave, urbane, polished. Either let us have such a commission or let someone start and excuse card plant. Printed form: Owing to (reasons varied to suit) it will be—(inserted in own handwriting, either 'possible' or 'impossible,' or print in the 'possible' and write in the 'im' when wanted). Signed:— In case the commission initiative does not pass, and no one starts an excuse factory, how would it do for us to inaugurate a fashion of just sending a plain "no," or a "yes" in response to invitations, thereby saving much brain fag and laying up for ourselves many credit marks on the score of truth?

Press the Bulb and Take.

There have been boxed flower bulbs as Christmas gifts heretofore, I grant you but never such as these. The boxes themselves are done most giftily and greetings are said upon them; but it is the within which is so distinctly novel. A growing-bowl just right for such Chinesey flowers, and what do you think? The pebbles with which to equip it! If you have ever dwelt in an apartment and have searched vainly for rocks with which to pave your watery garden, you will appreciate this. Then there are the bulbs! I came near foregetting the bulbs, and really they are quite important and are the very best of their kind. Yes, all this giftiness is at the original gift shop, of course.

A New Way.

Let me tell you a novel way in which to use those charming bird basins of Italian marble. As fruit holders! Thus, it seems as though the pretty marble birds were about to filch a taste from each of the fruits on which they have gathered. Either as a dinner center, or for use upon the living-room table, one of these pieces thus utilized would be charming.

White Heads.

At least the upper part of your head must be white, if you would be in the very tip top of the mode, for white hats are a furor. It matters not whether the material from which they are made be satin, silk, velours or fur—just so it is white the shape may be large or small, high or low. The only exaction—a never to be forgotten exaction—is that the hat shall be becoming.

Not a Slow Slogan.

If you are a sloganner, now is your chance to make money by making a slogan. One of the high class furniture houses is advertising for a slogan and will pay $50 in gold for the accepted one. Now if you would try to appease this longing for a slogan, do not be slow to slogan. This is a woman's opportunity, for surely women know more about furniture and furnishings, than do men.

Still Celebrating.

So great were the throngs in that great anniversary sale all last week that the coming week will see a repetition of the bargains and many additional offerings. "Never in the history of the store," said the man, "have we had such a week of merchandising as last week!" This again proves what I have so often affirmed. The women of Los Angeles know bargains and cannot be fooled upon that subject.

How Employees are Employed.

Just to prove that the part played by employees in the success of a store is an important one, it is shown in that sale, not fifth in dimensions among sales along the big street, this week, that amazing values may be found upon counters heaped with the products of employees buying and selling ability.

By the way, that store is filled with "local color." Everything is done there in just a little different way than elsewhere. Have you ever heard the criers, at the various counters, declaming their wares? "Here is that sale of broadcloth neckware!" Or, "This is the sale of school dresses for half price!" "Between the hours of so and so you can buy here for one-third usual price!" Oh, it is interesting.

Dancing Hats!

That is what the advertising man calls them and he knows. And why not, since impromptu dancing, especially when we have planned for it long beforehand, should find us prepared with especial dress. After the restaurant dinners, now so popular, one must almost of necessity, go somewhere and dance, and, of course, one wears one's hat—provided that it is a becoming hat and every wise woman wears a becoming hat, whatsoever else she may forego. And those new hats dansant! Why, even the potent language of that most omnific word-master who advertises them, cannot do justice to those hats!

But Not There!

Hug-me-tights are an old mode revived. Sort of wool knitted jackets are they for wearing at home on chilly mornings; but never, oh never, to be worn at the dansant! The very thought—why it is to blush!

This Picture and Those.

Striking is the difference between underwear made to fit and that made to sag. This is shown in relation to an especial line carried by that store not seventh in popularity. This particular underwear for particular people—is shown to hold its shape even when hanging upon a nail, as well as when hanging upon a person's form.

Light on Gift Question.

That big house-furnishing house on Broadway is holding a sale of lamps especially intended as Christmas gifts. Could anything be more welcome than a lamp as a gift? Whether one be a housewife, a bachelor or bachelor girl; whether one live in a well-appointed home, or exist in a single room, a lamp as always an addition to one's comfort. And oh, how many beautiful ones from which to select, in that sale! And the prices are, in some cases, nearly cut in half. Thus is Christmas money made to travel far.

Freckle-off.

"Now be careful!" exclaimed Evelyn, "and do not remove that big freckle, in the left-hand lower corner below my left eye! I need that as an excuse for my beauty patch; and Beth says wherever that new freckle-off cream is applied, every trace of freckles is sure to disappear." The attendant thus admonished, took care to avoid Evelyn's treasured freckle, but went vigorously to work upon all others of those offending brown specks.

Milady's Admonition.

Generally speaking, the waistline is entirely lost, except for narrow, loose-fitting girdles.

Wine color, mulberry, absinthe and mustard are among the most favored winter colors.

The edge of the straight-brimmed hat may be trimmed with a row of beads or a band of fur.

Many of the new fur capes are fashioned on the lines of our grandmother's squirrel shoulder cape.

A new blouse of sheer flesh-colored crepe has inserts of navy or dark brown to tone in with the suit worn.

The white blouse is very attractive with old rose collar and cuffs and a little touch of embroidery in the same shade.

Wide collars are the order of the day, and a pretty form of the wide collar reaches to the bust line and is in three rolling collars.

Suit skirts are plain and decidedly narrow.

The throw scarf of fur is chic when finished at the end with a large tassel.

Scarcely ever does one see a velvet suit without its touch of embroidery.

Chenille embroidery and heavy floss embroidery in Oriental colorings find favor.

Little tots are wearing close-fitting, small hats of velvet or any soft, rich fabric.

EDUCATORS.

Charles Downer Hazen, who has been added to the faculty of Columbia University as a full professor in the department of history, is known to many nonacademic people as the author of "Europe Since 1915." Prof. Hazen is a native of Vermont, who found his way to Dartmouth College, where he graduated in 1889. Then he pursued his specialty abroad in the universities of Paris, Berlin and Gottengen. He won his doctorate at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore. Smith College, at Northampton, Mass., called him to teach history to its girls, and while there, from 1894 to 1914, he not only was successful as a teacher, but was prolific as an author. Since leaving lific as an author. Since leaving Smith College he has been lecturing on history at Johns Hopkins. As an author he has unusual capacity to compress a narrative without taking out of it all color or vivacity.

Albert Hale, commercial attache of the bureau of foreign commerce maintained by the United States at Buenos Aires, Argentina, is a University of Michigan graduate, who withdrew from the practice of medicine in 1905, and traveled widely in South America. Returning to the United States in 1908, he joined the staff of the Pan-American Union, and remained there six years, when he was named for his present position owing to his exceptional knowledge of commercial, social and political conditions in the region where he now serves North American trade interests. He has Paraguay and Uruguay, as well as Argentina, under his supervision.

Dr. Charles H. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., told the general session of the Clinical Congress of Surgeons of North America in session at Philadelphia, that "more than 800,000 people died last year of preventable disease, and the lack of education of the public which led to that condition can be laid to the lack of effective effort on the part of the medical profession. It is our fault when we have not interceded in behalf of the people and educated them to the need of preventive measures."

Dramas Seek Word.

own heart and no place beside. The moment of your opportunity is this moment and every moment, and your realization of its completeness may break upon you as surely where you are now as anywhere that you could possibly go.

Your wife does not hinder you, your husband cannot hinder you, your duties at home, nor your work are not hindrances; nobody hinders you but yourself; nothing keeps the light from you but your own blindness.

It is all very well for plays like "Nju" and "The Fugitive" to show us the restlessness of some hearts; it is quite dramatic for these plays to bring their characters to some tragic climax, but the truth is that if we would only become aroused in ourselves without being forced to it by pain and circumstance, we might find the great awakening and the great reward at any turn of the road, in the midst of commonplaceness and within the realm of any environment, without the shock of tragedy or sacrifice.

We must get away from the idea that we are being held. The only jail is yourself and you are your own jailer. The only limitation is yourself, the only death is yourself. None the less, you are illimitable freedom and inevitable power and if the truth shall appear in you, though you are dead, you shall live again. If this vision comes to you, nothing will ever again be sordid or unlovely in your sight because the law and the love that is in anything is in everything and will be visible to you. The light is in your own eyes; the light is nothing; yet by it are all things seen. Grow as fast as you will, but expect nothing from impatience.

A gift of $125,000 to the Yale alumni fund from Robert W. Kelley of New York of the class of 1874 was announced at a meeting of the Yale Corporation recently.

Humorist and philosopher that he was, Charles Heber Clark, known to the wide world as "Max Adeler," was a practical man. Nobody could know this so well as Mrs. Clark, who has now given to Ursinus College a splendid organ as a memorial to the celebrated journalist and author.

In memory of the man whose "Out of the Hurly-burly" made millions laugh and the man who was a tariff writer and debater of first rank, an organ to please college boys will be worth more as a monument than a whole cemetery full of carved marble.

Fifty thousand dollars has been bequeathed to Thomas F. Reddy and John D. Graham, attorneys, by Maude G. Gillon of Dorchester, Mass., for distribution among such charities as may be selected by them.

The desired $150,000 for the Norwegian Deaconness Home and Hospital to be erected in Chicago, has been raised. Three hundred workers started out on October 9 to secure contributions, and on the 24th, announcement was made of the completion of the fund.

Co. H, First Regiment of Chicago, was composed almost entirely of employees from the Gimbel Bros. store. On the return of the soldiers from the Mexican border the men were told that their positions in the store were open for them. A rousing banquet was given the soldiers by the heads of the firm, employees and thousands of patrons of the store, at which the men were repeatedly told that the loyalty they had exhibited stood for the highest type of citizenship.

George Wright Glover, who was one of the several members of the Princeton University faculty to take up arms in the cause of the allies, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Order for gallant conduct and example during the Somme offensive. The citation of the War Office, published in the London Times, reads as follows:

"Second Lieutenant George Wright Glover, Rifle Brigade, though twice wounded in the advance, continued to lead his men forward under heavy machine-gun and artillery fire into the enemy's third-line defenses. Although his left arm was useless, he threw bombs as long as there was any supply; he set a splendid example all day."

Lieut. Glover is one of those who, like the French airman, Guynemer, had been several times rejected for the service because of his short statur. He had studied in Germany, had been a member of the staff of the German University of Marburg until he came to Princeton to teach German just before the outbreak of the war. He had been rejected for service before leaving England.

Although Glover could receive no assurances that he would be accepted, since he was only 5 feet, 2 inches, he resigned from the faculty and returned to England in June, 1915. He was sent to the front a short time before the beginning of the Somme offensive as a second lieutenant.

Rev. James Wise, recently consecrated bishop-coadjutor in St. Louis, is a native of Dundee, Scotland, but came to the United States when a boy and took for his first job the position of office boy with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad in Omaha at $15 a month. After he entered the ministry he became famous throughout the Episcopal church as an expert on religious education. He was a principal factor in the founding of the Church School of Religious Instruction, which has held sessions for two years.

OF ART AND ARTISTS.

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

From "The Sultan."

Then, at a wave of her sunny hand,
The dancing girls of Samarcand
Glide in like shapes from fairyland,
Making a sudden mist in air
Of fleecy veils and floating hair
And white arms lifted. Orient blood Runs in their veins, shines in their eyes.
And there, in this eastern paradise,
Filled with the breath of sandal wood
And Khoten musk, and aloes and myrrh,
Sits Rose-in-Bloom on a silk divan,
Sipping the wines of Astrakhan;
And her Arab lover sits with her.
That's when the Sultan Shah-Zaman
Goes to the city Ispahan.

Color Symphonies.

The smallest of my dictionaries—as it is intended for high schools it may be truly called the bright lexicon of youth—declares, with a brevity fitting its size, that a symphony is a harmony of sound. According to the pronouncement of James McNeil Whistler it is also a harmony of colors. At any rate, Whistler, whether he invented the apt term or not, was very fond of calling his delicate tonalities by this word borrowed from the art of music.

However, Whistler's symphonies in paint did not suggest the rich, full and varied orchestration that the musician thinks of when he sees or hears the word. Any piece of music is a harmony of sound—even that of the Chinese, at least, to the Chinaman. I must hasten to explain that in its second definition my little lexicon says that the symphony is an elaborate composition for a full orchestra, generally in three movements.

Just now we have among us a painter who, to my way of thinking, deserves the epithet symphonic much more than Whistler did, though in naming his pictures he has used the word symphony only once, the word harmony twice. This painter is Hovsep Pushman, who is exhibiting twenty-four canvases at Exposition Park. He is an American—he insists, indeed, upon being called so—though he was born in Armenia and lived there seventeen years, receiving his first instruction in the technique of art at Constantinople.

Pushman's splendor of color is not derived from the art schools of that bizarre and beautiful city, for when I met the young artist in Chicago, almost twenty years ago, he appeared to have been nourished on the dull traditions of Munich, his painting was so conventionally brown and correct. It was in Paris, under the magic touch of Dechenaud, that he woke to a complete realization of his eastern heritage—the Armenian's full share, full and running over, of passion and pain, of color and imagination, of feeling and poetry—the three movements, one might say, of the perfect symphony of life. The symphony in art, played or painted, is but a reflection of all these things.

Undoubtedly, Pushman is a good American, but he is also a good Armenian, for the rich gamut of his color is almost all of the Orient. What's bred in the blood will show itself on the canvas. A man's soul does not change with the body's change of climate. Perhaps the wise Dechenaud brought this truth home to young Hovsep Pushman and urged him to absolute self-expression. Perhaps, too, the magnificent oriental rugs which the Pushmans handle commercially, and which Hovsep must have seen and caressed from his earliest infancy, so crammed his consciousness with the subdued beauty of their patterns and colors that he could never get away from it.

But let us not inquire too curiously into origins and causes. Our concern today is with facts, with what the exponents of efficiency call results, and "results" now hang before us in such luxurious profusion that their appraisal will fully occupy many of us for the three or four weeks we shall be permitted to approve and exalt them. If we are chary in applause we shall miss our chance to add luster to a coming renown.

"Of all forms of mistake," says George Eliot, "that of prophecy is the most gratuitous." True enough. The man of genius will reach the goal whether we announce the fact beforehand or not, but if we are interested in his breathless race we cast eager eyes toward its far or near end. The "rooter" has often more fun than the runner, and his cry may be needed.

A new planet swam into our ken when Hovsep Pushman came to California. Rumors of his radiant brilliancy were abroad, but we had heard very few of them. On inquiry we found that the first exhibition of his pictures was held less than a year ago in Milwaukee, later in Chicago at the Art Institute, later still in Rockford. The same pictures were shown last month at the Mission Inn, in Riverside, and are now in the gallery at Exposition Park. Before this one-man show Pushman had exhibited once or twice at the Salon (being limited, of course, to two pictures,) where he created a sensation and won a medal. Two of the pictures at Exposition Park are now the property of the art museum in Milwaukee, the wonderful "Hour of Rest" belongs to the art gallery in Rockford.

The public annals of Hovsep Pushman, you perceive, are short and simple—brief articles in the newspapers at Rockford, Riverside, Milwaukee and Chicago, an illustrated "appreciation" in the Fine Arts Journal, a note here and there. The artist waited until the public could be given all sides of his talent at once, not by piecemeal, that he might be judged more truly. I suspect that published accounts of his work will rapidly grow longer and more complex, now that the reporter steps aside and the professional "critic" comes forward.

"But most beware of those who come to praise" is Aldrich's warning to the poet. Those who do not understand a poet's ways will say hard and unpleasant things, but those who think they do understand may dig pitfalls for his soul. Nevertheless, the paintings—which are also the poems—of Hovsep Pushman have taken me so strongly, have overwhelmed me so completely with their beauty of arrangement and color, that I am compelled to praise them. The artist's hard common sense—witness his patience in preparation—will save him from danger.

Ruskin's enthusiasm drove him into dithyramb. All honor to Ruskin for the fine humanity of his heart! He placed Turner on a dangerous pedestal, and the fact that the English landscape painter hasn't quite toppled over seems to be proof that there may be much acute art criticism in prose poetry, after all. Anyway, Ruskin produced a new form of art—which is more than can be said of the safe and sane critics. Their product is merely a new and fatal form of ennui. However, don't look for poetic measures in this column. I cannot and dare not letter them. I shall only speak right on and say what I know and feel.

I know and feel, then, that Pushman's pictures have a wonderful jewel-like color that makes them live almost as vividly in the memory as the haunting cadences of the symphony they already have been likened to. I know and feel that when he paints a woman he searches for the loveliness of her soul even more persistently than he looks for the beauty of her body, and that he tries to express these two perfections as perfectly as may be in subtle harmonies of pure color. I know and feel that he is a poet in paint, if there ever was one, and that to him no picture is complete if it does not interpret the dream when it states the reality.

I believe that Hovsep Pushman has "arrived," and that his arrival is an event of importance to American art. I shall enlarge upon this simple credo, with some detailed account of Pushman's pictures, next week.

Etchings by Two Painters.

Sometimes, it appears, the worker in color seeks surcease from the arduous labor of matching tints and combining hues, and turns for relief to black and white. The painter's favorite "recreation" has always been etching, the hazardous experiment with burnished copper and biting acid. Many famous wielders of the brush have won almost equal fame with the burin.

Two remarkably interesting exhibitions of etchings have been showing for the past few weeks at the Friday Morning Club, sent to Los Angeles through the courtesy of Mr. J. E. D. Trask. The two exhibitors are Childe Hassam and Frank M. Benson, and each is represented by numerous prints. Hassam's etchings are shown in the large room downstairs, Benson's in the smaller gallery upstairs.

Of course, the etchings of these two men are not in the least alike, any more than their painted works are alike. Painters more dissimilar in method could hardly be imagined, and their differences in etching are quite as great. Yes, as an etcher each is true to himself. If you had never seen any of their paintings you would still be able to judge, from their etchings, their quality, and even their technique, as painters. So true is it that a sincere artist's individuality is never lost, no matter what the medium he works in may be.

In etching Hassam clings closer to the subjects made familiar to us in his painting. He gives us the same pensive women, nude and draped, the same shimmer of light, the same delicate play of color (of course, here only suggested,) the same sunlit parks, corners and avenues. His etchings are indeed charming things, almost, but not quite, as brilliantly adroit as his paintings. In composition he varies not at all from his composition in painting.

Benson has painted so many lovely portraits and figures of women that you would naturally suppose that these would be his subjects in etching. But they are not. Evidently he seeks complete and perfect relaxation, and unmistakably the free life of the fisherman and the hunter is his in propria persona as well as in art, for he depicts marshland and seashore, with its walking and flying denizens, with great sympathy and understanding, and with impeccable handling of the needle. He draws so well, indeed, that you might swear he was nothing but an etcher did you not know he was also a famous painter.

The very titles of Benson's etchings are like windows opening onto vast and breezy spaces of sky and sea and land—"Low Tide" (storks among rocks,) "Geese Against Sky," "Solitude" (a pelican in a reedy pond,) "The Gunner," "The Landing," "The Fisherman," "Black Breast Plover," "The Brick Barge"—to mention only a few.

I don't know if these notable prints will remain at the Friday Morning Club through the coming week, but if so, go and see them. You will like them as much as I did.

Pictures by Vysekal.

An exhibition of twenty pictures by Edouard Vysekal will open November 6 in the Daniell gallery, No. 640 South Hill street, to continue for two weeks. A reception in the artist's honor will be held in the gallery tomorrow afternoon, and to this the public is cordially invited. Edouard Vysekal is an interesting and clever young painter, a man full of ideas and experiments, and his work is always attractive. His subjects are numerous, single figures, crowds of people, streets, buildings, landscape — picturesque bits from everywhere. The artist was born in Bohemia.

Thanksgiving Time
Is Dining Room Time
WHETHER you are planning on Thanksgiving festivities in your own home or not—this is the logical time of the year to brighten the dining room—for Thanksgiving ushers in the long season of hospitality and entertainment in which the dining room will play a very important part.
Naturally you will want your dining room to look its best—for it is here that your guests will receive their impressions of your home.
Perhaps new curtains are needed—or a new rug or possibly a new dining table or new chairs—or a serving table—or a dinner wagon. Whatever is lacking should most logically be supplied now.
No matter how little or how much you may be prepared to pay for any dining room furnishing requirement, we believe it will pay you, not alone from a standpoint of dollars and cents, but from the standpoint of "desirability" and "fitness for your needs"—to rely on the "California."
Everything here is marked in plain, readable figures, One right, lowest possible price to everybody all the time. We suggest that you make value comparisons. You will always be cordially welcome here, whether you come to buy or just to look.
Some very helpful suggestions for the furnishing of the dining-room are offered in one of our windows.

BRIGHT WITH PURPOSE.

MELODIC SPIRIT SOARS HIGH IN LOCAL WORLD.

With the Symphony Orchestra rehearsals started, an increasing number of touring artists wending their way westward, and many other signs of awakening activity, it is evident the curtain has fully risen on the big season of melodic endeavor foreseen earlier in the year. To all intents and purposes, the musical world will enjoy attractions for the next six months which in number and importance give assurance of far exceeding any previous efforts of this kind. The present week is perhaps nearly as busy as the average year, and the season is still scarcely well under way.

There is an interesting gain in the number of recitals by local musicians that are being announced. Many days between now and Christmas will doubtless be occupied with these events. Meanwhile the visiting artists will appear with greater frequency during November and December than has been the case to date.

Regular Symphony programmes will begin in less than two weeks. A new chamber music organization will open its series of concerts this week. The Saint-Saens Quintette which has already been heard in its initial recital, while the Brahms Quintette is due shortly to make its appearance for the season.

—o—

Godowsky Return Recital.

Something of a surprise event will be afforded local musical lovers by the return recital of Leopold Godowsky this week. The noted pianist is to play at Trinity Auditorium Thursday evening and send the compelling message of technical mastery and eloquent interpretative powers to many who did not have the opportunity of hearing him at his matinee. The programme for the recital this week will be entirely different from the one played on the previous occasion. Godowsky has been spending the past week in San Francisco, where he achieved several brilliant triumphs. He originally intended to come back to Los Angeles solely for the purpose of resting for a few days, but owing to the public interest in the work of this peculiar artist Manager Behymer made arrangements for a second recital.

—o—

McCormack Due Soon.

Just as the list among Philharmonic artists will be John McCormack, the celebrated Irish tenor, and one of the most popular of concert artists. He will give two programmes at Shrine Auditorium the 14th and 16th insts. Both of these are to have that strong heart appeal which has always found such ready response among his hearers. The McCormack recital is one of the successive attractions of the concert world, as the noted tenor is in demand everywhere. His progress to success has been phenomenal. His first big triumphs were in opera in this country, but it was his concert tour in 1912-13 that established his big reputation. Special car service both local and suburban has been arranged to take patrons to the recitals at the Auditorium.

—o—

Opening Programme.

No more interesting event from a musical standpoint than the coming appearance of the Timmner-Lott trio, violin, 'cello and piano, Thursday evening at the Woman's Club House has occurred to date. This organization is to give a series of programmes during the winter of which the one this week is the first.

The plans of the little organization have widened a great deal in scope since the first announcement of the recitals was made. The organization will not confine its efforts to trios and sonatas for two instruments, but with the aid of members of the Symphony Orchestra will give large mixed ensemble works, including quartettes, quintettes, a sextette, septette and an octette. All the various numbers will be chosen from the works of the masters. The combinations of instruments will be unique locally. The first programme will be devoted to work by the trio alone. A feature will be the Piano Trio in F major, Op. 6, by W. Bargiel, and the piece de resistance the Piano Trio in D major, Op. 70, No. 1, by Beethoven. The Cesar Frank Sonata for piano and violin will also be given.

The members of the organization are Christiaan Timmner, violinist; Mrs. Timmner, 'celloist, and Mrs. Clifford Lott, pianiste. Mr. Timmner was formerly concert master of the Amsterdam Symphony Orchestra. He has assisted in the presentation of such numbers as the Bach Concerto for two violins with some of the famous artists of Europe. His capabilities were clearly shown at an especially noteworthy recital given last season. Mrs. Clifford Lott is well known for her work in the local musical field. She has been accompanist for the Lyric Club and other local musical organizations, and has assisted her husband on many occasions. Mrs. Timmner has had much experience in ensemble work and is a 'cellist of unusually marked ability. She has the distinction of having played before Queen Wilhelmina of Holland many times.

Among those who will assist at later programmes are Messrs. E. ert, W. M. Bower, R. M. , violinists; O. Hundhammer and Richard Schleven, violin players; Ludwig Opid, 'cellist; A. W. , bass; A. Riamondi, clarinet; E. Donatelli, bassoon player, and J. Vogelsang, horn player.

Ellis Club Opening.

The Ellis Club has selected election night for its opening concert at Trinity Auditorium. The programme Tuesday evening will be the first of a series of four given during the season before a large clientele of admirers, who in many instances, been members for years. Under the leadership of J. B. Poulin the club has done excellent work, and it is believed that the concert this week will be the start of the most successful season yet enjoyed by the organization.

The soloist is to be Miss Lillian of New York, who has been heard there in concert, as well as in church work. Her art partakes of the lyric and dramatic qualities. She is to sing the aria "Non Fu Sogno" ("'Twas no Vision") from "I Lombardi" and the prayer from "Der Freischutz" (Von Weber;) "And the Lass with the Delicate Air" (Thomas Arne) as well as the soprano obbligato in "Omnipotence," given by the club. will be rendered also in choral selections by Irving H. Andrews and Joseph Bischof, baritones and club members.

In the realm of music.

John McCormack, whose voice of sweet song will be enjoyed by local music lovers the 14th and 16th insts. at Shrine Auditorium, and Christiaan Timmner (left,) noted violinist, who is directing the work of the Timmner-Lott trio, which will give the first of its series of monthly recitals Thursday evening at the Woman's Club House.

The feature number of the programme will be "The Nun of Nidaros," by Dudley Buck. Other choruses will be "The Long Day Closes" (Sullivan;) "Roman War Song" (Wagner;) "Kiss Me, Sweetheart" (Smith;) "Omnipotence" (Schubert;) "Landsighting" (Grieg;) "O Hush Thee, My Baby" (Sullivan,) and "Round Cape Horn" (Scott.)

—o—

Outlook Gaining Color.

The Symphony Orchestra is stated to be receiving a most notable support this year from adjoining towns and suburban districts, particularly Pasadena and Hollywood. Many orders for season tickets from theer two localities have been received, and are materially aiding in making way for the largest seat sale in the history of the organization.

Wednesday afternoon of this week Adolf Tandler, conductor of the Symphony Orchestra, with a half dozen of his musicians, will attend the Hollywood Women's Club meeting and speak on "The Material and Means of Expression in a Symphony Orchestra." Others who will be special guests are Manager F. W. Blanchard, G. Allan Hancock, treasurer of the Symphony Association, and Sigmund Beel. A special sale of tickets is also to be conducted at the club on that day.

Owing to the charter day programme the special ticket sale which was to have taken place at the Ebell Club last week was postponed until tomorrow.

—o—

Schubert Club.

Owing to the fact that the exact nature of the production is being concealed, the initial performance of "Shadowland," to take place at the regular Schubert Club meeting Wednesday at the Hotel Alexandria, is surrounded by a certain quality of mystery, that has aroused the marked interest of club members. The idea for the production has been worked out by the club president, Mrs. J. T. Anderson, and she is keeping this secret. The music is by Mrs. Anderson, the lyrics by Henry Hurlburt Victor and settings, costumes and posters by Belle N. Hall. Those who will take part include Margaret Stockwell, soprano; James Anderson, baritone; Harold Proctor, tenor; Robert Alter 'cellist; Katherine Fiske, violiniste; Mrs. J. T. Anderson, pianiste-composer; Mrs. John Mitchell Jones, harpist; "Julianne," character and interpretative dancer, and Mary Smith Cable, reader.

The drama section of the Schubert Club met Monday morning with Mrs. J. T. Anderson presiding. Very definite work was outlined for this section.

Henry Hurburt Victor was appointed general chairman; Mary Smith Cable, general secretary; Willard Newell, chairman of the interpretive department; Mrs. Eva Bird Bosworth, chairman of the creative department, and Mrs. Edward Kuster, chairman of the department of interpretive and creative dancing.

The student extension department has announced a hearing for artist puipls of the club on the 14th inst., at Blanchard Hall, under the direction of a committee made up of Edith Lilian Clark, Arnold Krauss and Mme. Henley Bussing.

The altruistic section under the leadership of Mrs. G. Hallet Johnson will give programmes at the County Hospital the 10th inst., and at Juvenile Hall the 29th.

Under the direction of Gloria Mayne Windsor, manager of the professional bureau of the Schubert Club, programmes have been furnished by club musicians before the Santa Monica Bay Women's Club, Riverside Women's Club, Glendale P.E.O., Santa Monica Chrysanthemum Show and South Pasadena Club.

—o—

Matinee Musical Club.

The second visiting artist's programme of the Matinee Musical Club season last Thursday afternoon at the Little Theater proved a distinct success. Gage Christopher, by his rich and colorful vocal art, won a high degree of appreciation from the members of the large audience. Miss Inez Bushnell of San Francisco proved a decidedly refreshing source of enjoyment to her hearers.

For the monthly drama programme Miss Lois Thompson will read George W. Cable's fascinating romance, "Bona Ventura." Mrs. V. G. Sherwood is to be hostess.

—o—

De la Plate Recital.

A song recital by Charles Henri de la Plate will be the next musical feature of the Friday Morning Club regular meetings. This recital will take place the morning of the 17th inst.

—o—

St. Cecilia Club.

A programme of ultramodern music will be given under the direction of Mrs. Benjamin Bloser at her home on Alexandria avenue by members of the St. Cecilia Club tomorrow afternoon. They will be assisted by Albert J. Adams, an artist recently here from Berlin, who is indorsed by leading musicians of Europe. He will lecture on the ultramodern composers. Examples of ultramodernists' work will include compositions by the following: Ornstein, Juon, Arensky, Sibelius, Korngold, Strauss, Schoenberg, Max Reger, Weingartner, Granados, Bantock, Carpenter, Brascombe, Cadman and Adams.

Members taking part will include Mmes. Reynard, Bush, Baxter, Perkey, Thayer, Zobelein and Bloser, Misses Isgrig, Read and Christin, and the guests, Miss Ciesielska and Mr. Adams.

—o—

Symphony Study Club.

Following two programmes for active members only, Mme. Mathilda Rudorf, director of the Symphony Study Club, will conduct her first recital meeting Thursday afternoon at her studio, No. 243 Carondelet street. The organization has attained a distinct place for itself in local musical circles, as its time is given over to studies to increase the appreciation of orchestral works, particularly symphonies. It is planned to study this season the Strauss "Symphonia Domestica," Mozart's "Jupiter" symphony, Mendelsshon's "Italian" symphony and symphonic poems by Liszt and other works. Mme. Rudorf has presented before the club in piano arrangements a large list of orchestral compositions.

—o—

Piano and Violin Programme.

Mrs. May MacDonald Hope, pianiste, and Robert M. Staples, violinist, will give a joint recital the evening of December 9 at Blanchard Hall. Especial interest will center around the Strauss Sonata for piano and violin, Opus 18, which they will render. Following this recital the two artists will play a series of six sonata evenings, which will be decidedly out of the ordinary. Both are well-known local musicians.

—o—

Coming Piano Recital.

Elsa Cross, gifted Welsh pianiste, who settled here a year and a half ago, will present a varied programme of modern compositions in the ballroom of the Little Theater the 27th inst. This recital will include compositions by Schumann, Chopin, Alkan, Borodin, MacDowell, Cadman, Scott, Grainger and Liszt. A vocal artist will assist.

Musical Artist at Orpheum.

Presenting a series of numbers of classic and semi-classic tone, Alexander MacFadyen, American pianiste and composer, will return to the local Orpheum this week for a brief engagement. His success has been marked on previous occasions, and it is assured that he will duplicate his former triumphs this time.

—o—

To Lecture Before Ebell.

Mrs. Ethel Graham Lynde, well-known interpretative lecturer, will give a series of six symphony talks before the Ebell Club, the first to take place next Wednesday. The subject matter for these talks will be the compositions to be presented by the local Symphony Orchestra this year. Mrs. Lynde achieved much note locally by her lectures last season, and previously with her "Fairyland" interpretation.

—o—

Pupil in Recital.

Mrs. Bernard Schulman will present her pupil, Ethel Gray, in a piano recital Wednesday evening at Symphony Hall. Miss Gray will be assisted in the rendition of the programme by Vernon Gray, violinist. Following are the numbers to be given: Sonata, op. 14, No. 1 (Beethoven;) Rondo Capriccioso, op. 14 (Mendelssohn,) Scherzo, op. 16, No. 2 (Mendelssohn) and "A la Bien Aimee" (Schutt) by Ethel Gray; "Caprice Viennois" (Kreisler) and "Berceuse" (Godard) by Vernon Gray; Etude, op. 25, No. 2 (Chopin,) Etude, op. 25, No. 9 (Chopin,) "To Spring," op. 43, No. 6 (Grieg) and Prelude, op. 3, No. 2 (Rachmaninoff) by Ethel Gray.

Miss Gray is only 16 years of age.

—o—

Engaged at Metropolitan.

Mrs. W. N. Tiffany, who for the past several years has been one of the most popular singers in this city, has been engaged at the Metropolitan Operahouse for the entire season. This will be good news to her host of admirers in this city.

—o—

Dedicatory Recital.

A dedicatory recital of the Judd Memorial Organ was held at the Epiphany Church on the corner of Sichel and Altura streets last Wednesday evening. The artists of the evening were Ernest Douglas and Ruth May Shaffner, assisted by Mme. Manuella Budrow, soprano, and the Epiphany Choir.

—o—

Organ Guild Recital.

The season for the local chapter of the American Guild of Organists will open Monday evening, when the twenty-fourth public service and recital under the auspices of the Southern California chapter will be given at Christ Episcopal Church. Messrs. P. Shaul-Hallett and Hague Kinsey will present the programme, which promises a number of novelties. They will be assisted by the choir of Christ Church. During the succeeding months similar recitals are planned for Santa Barbara, Pasadena, Pomona, San Diego and other Southern California cities. Admission is free to all recitals, a silver offering being taken to cover expenses.

MUSICAL NOTES.

S. Cammillo Engel, composer, teacher and litterateur, has taken up his residence in this city. He has opened a studio for voice training at No. 1500 South Figueroa. Mr. Engel counts among his pupils George Grosch of the Dresden, and Dunham Bratte of the Naples and Milan opera companies. He has contributed articles on musical topics to The Musician of Boston; the Etude of Philadelphia and the Music Student of this city. He wrote the incidental music and choruses for Irving E. Outcalt's "Admetus," recently performed with great success at the San Diego exposition.

Mrs. Carolyn Alchin has just returned from New York City where she spent the summer in studying and observing class work in harmony and composition. She resumed her usual activities here.

Miss Ann Hughes, of New York City, a well known concert and oratorio singer, is visiting at No. 355 Summit avenue in Pasadena this winter. Miss Hughes has been teaching singing in the Ziegler Institute in the Metropolitan Operahouse of New York City.

Pietro Buzzi, the versatile artist and teacher, celebrated the reopening of his vocal studio at No. 626 Westlake avenue with a musical soiree last Thursday evening. Signor Buzzi plans to give these musical evenings once a month. The programme will include instructive talks on the old and modern methods of singing.

Molly Byerly Wilson, local dramatic contralto, is making her headquarters in Chicago during the present season. Miss Wilson spent last week in Topeka, Kan., where she furnished a programme of music at the wedding and reception of Miss Winifred Burch, daughter of Judge Burch, of the Kansas Supreme bench. She was also engaged to give a recital programme at Washburn College, Topeka, and later in the season will give a series of recitals throughout Kansas and the Southwest.

Ray Hastings, organist of Temple Baptist Church, will play a Wagner programme next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. Folowing are the selections "Parsifal," prelude; "Die Meistersinger," prize song; "Die Fliegende Hollander," "Sailors' Chorus;" "Tannhauser," Song to the Evening Star, and "Lohengrin, Introduction to Act. III.

Miss Cornelia Otten, local correspondent for the Musical Monitor, spoke before the Public School Teachers' Association last evening at Christopher's.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

Gen. James A. Gary, former Postmaster-General, recently celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday anniversary at his home in Baltimore. On November 27 Gen. and Mrs. Gary will celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding.

Enoch Herbert Crowder, brigadier-general in the United States Army, whose decision relative to the precise status of the army in Mexico has just been filed, is a specialist in military law, first by reason of his position as judge advocate general, and second because of the way in which he has filled the responsible place, not perfunctorily or nominally, but with distinction. He left West Point in 1888, joined the cavalry arm of the service, and remained in the regular army work until 1895, when he became major judge advocate.

Don Roberto Ancizar, Charge d'Affaires of Colombia at Washington, has been promoted to the position of Minister to Argentina and Chile, and is also accredited to Paraguay and Uraguay. He came to this country at the time negotiations were being begun for the treaty between Colombia and the United States to recompense Colombia for Panama by the payment of $25,000,000. He is a lawyer of ability and a diplomat who has accomplished much for his country.

Valentine Everett Macy of New York, capitalist and philanthropist, has been elected president of the National Civic Federation to succeed Seth Low.

Luther Burbank, world-famed horticulturist and plant breeder, went to Santa Rosa, Cal., forty-one years ago, a young man, and went to work as a laborer in a local nursery.

H. Parker Willis, recently returned to Washington from Manila, where he supervised the founding of the Philippine National Bank, under the provision of the new Federal Banking Act, is secretary of the Federal Reserve Board. He was dispatched on the Philippine errand both because of his official position and also because of his knowledge of the islands gained when a special correspondent stationed at Manila in 1904. He is a native of Massachusetts, and studied at Western Reserve University for his bachelor's degree; then went to the University of Chicago, to Leipzig, and to Vienna in turn, all the time specializing in economics, history, political science, and law. Returning to the United States from study abroad, he became professor in institutions in Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Judge Joseph B. Sabbath of the Criminal Court in Chicago, after passing a death sentence on Lloyd Bopp, 23 years old, covered his face and wept unreservedly for several minutes. "I always prayed that if ever I became a judge I should never be called upon to go through an ordeal like this," he said. Counsel for Bopp and others in court gave way to tears. Bopp murdered a motorcycle policeman four months ago.

Francisco Carbajal, formerly provisional President of Mexico and for the last year international lawyer with offices in New Orleans, was married the other day to Miss Louise E. Martin, 20-year-old manicurist in a hotel. The romance dates back a year to when the former President of Mexico had his nails manicured for the first time in the hotel barber shop.

PROHIBITION AND COMMON JUSTICE.

VAN NUYS, Nov. 1.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Do we in our discussions of prohibition try to reach a fair, honest and just solution to the problem? Have we yet heard both sides of the argument presented in one article, and a logical conclusion drawn therefrom?

Let us put this question on the common sense basis of give and take, of fair exchange. Let us consider both sides of the problem.

May we not start out with the supposition that we have a right to our own thoughts? Therefore, the other fellow has a right to his thoughts, for if thoughts are good, they bring good reward. If they are bad, we pay for them in the end.

From a standpoint of justice and truth, can a man stand up and say he will not drink liquor, therefore his friend or neighbor shall not drink it? What right have you to dictate to me whether I shall have spinach or beefsteak, or wine or mountain water, on my table? If you take this right away from me by force you are passing judgment upon me, and giving me what in return?

When our forefathers wrote the Spirit of Liberty into our national Constitution were they wrong? Did they not understand the meaning of justice?

Who has yet shown where the Bible says you may stop your brother from doing that which he wishes to do? We may teach him if he asks for our teaching, but if he will not accept it we are told not to pass judgment upon him.

So much for justice—now what can we say about liquor?

Liquor is useful, otherwise it would not exist. It teaches people self-control. When we learn to give up liquor we learn to conquer our desire and to be the victor over our lower self, and what victory is greater than victory over self?

But what do you yourself know for a fact about its effect on the health, wealth, morals and happiness of those around you—or its effect on yourself?

From your own experience do you remember the feeling of "the morning after?" Can you for a moment make your common sense believe that the liquor you drank the night before was good food for the body? Are bloodshot eyes and vomet an indication of good health? Do people in the last stages of alcoholic poisoning demonstrate that liquor will finally heal the body?

Medical science has proved that a small amount of alcohol is often needed for the preservation of the life of the body and that wine in small quantities is a food, but only in small quantities. Even wine in large quantities will inflame and overwork the organs of the body, as does too much sugar or too much acid, or too much of anything.

What man or woman who takes the before-dinner cocktail does so for anything but the stimulation or the forcing of a sluggish appetite, already killed by ignorant living?

What man or woman with ruined power of digestion—diseased kidneys—or hardening of the arteries, can point to clean and intelligent living? And how many of these sufferers are there who can say liquor played no part in the work of destruction.

What about wealth? If we will not consider our health, will we consider our business, our property, our money?

And who is so wise that he can show wherein waste is not waste, and make loss appear to be a gain? Labor and material used in the manufacture and distribution of liquor are wasted when the liquor is used other than as a needed food or medicine. And what a great and monstrous waste this is. Let this labor and material be used in the manufacture of the necessities of life and we reduce their cost. The high cost of living will not yield to our weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth until we give up our luxuries. The laborer will not help his condition until we give up, of our own free will, the luxuries and false desires which take the necessities from his hand and home. If the work used in making and delivering liquer, candies and rich confections, tight corsets, steam yachts, silks and satins worn for vanity's sale—and all the many things we eat, wear or use for the sake of pomp, show, or the satisfaction of a meaningless desire, if this labor was used to make food, clothing, homes and to educate us all, who would be in want?

If liquor is wasteful, it does not add to the wealth of our nation, or our State. When we hear arguments and figures presented, let us cast out the chaff and retain the grains of common sense.

Under clean moral conditions better people, healthier people and more prosperous people, are drawn into the community. Prohibition does not spell the financial ruin of any State. Drunkenness and the irresponsible acts of drinking men is an enormous hindrance to sober and constructive business. Even a saloon cannot afford to employ a drunken bartender or a drunken book-keeper.

The cost of controlling crime caused directly or indirectly by liquor is great and the liquor industry in all justice and fairness should bear the burden, if that is possible.

What is the just and true solution? Who can show that he has a right to prohibit? Who can show that liquor is a benefit to the health, wealth, morals and happiness of our State? Is not the answer to be obtained through knowledge? First, that liquor is wasteful and harmful and we decide that we do not want it. Second, that we have the strength to put it from us.

If this is true do we need prohibition? If it is not true do we need prohibition?

In other words, is not personal prohibition the ideal solution under the supposition that no harm can come of it and much good may? A solution of this kind would mean a condition of the millinnium. It is universally impossible today, but we can work for it. We have satisfaction of unnatural desires, crime and criminals to deal with. Under the laws of man we have taken the right to protect our person and property against criminals, yet there is a cause for all this.

These evils exist to teach the strong to defend themselves and the weak to learn that they cannot do wrong without sometime paying the penalty. For does the Bible not say, "For verily I say unto you, till heaven and earth pass away, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass away from the law, till all things be accomplished?" As we sow, so shall we reap. If we prohibit others from carrying out their desires, we in turn will sometime be prohibited from carrying out our desires.

People must learn to resist by experience and if they have not learned to resist liquor and drunkenness, we cannot enact laws that will abolish liquor, try as we may.

It is our privilege and pleasure to vote. Let us give it our sober consideration and vote for justice, truth and equity for all.

What is your decision? May the scales of justice be fairly held in your hands and may we all come to realize that liberty should be upheld, for it is the basic principle of our government. And may we as individuals realize that we can leave intoxicating liquor alone—can cease to use it—can cease to demand it—and then it will not be manufactured. Then, through justice and truth, we may reach the conclusion that we should not prohibit others from using intoxicating liquor, and yet realize that we ourselves, through exercise of self-control, may solve the problem each for himself, and by conquering our desires gain self-control, the goal which we all must some time reach.

THE RELIGIOUS RAMBLER.

Denominational Pageants Newest Method for Arousing the Churches. Methodists, Congregationalists and Lutherans Tell Their Story to the Eye—History in Living Pictures—Auditoriums Thronged Because of Public Interest in Revival of Dramatic Representations of Religion.

WHILE the pioneers whom the pageants celebrate would doubtless have called it "sinful play-acting," the interesting fact is that there is under way in this country a vogue of religious pageants to depict denominational history. Conservative Lutherans have made the pageant a formal part of their quadricentennial celebration, and both in Nashville and Dallas great throngs have witnessed a pageant of Methodist history arranged by denominational officials, while individual Congregational churches are staging scenes from Pilgrim history in celebration of the Pilgrim tercentenary.

This denominationalizing of the pageant is new, but the missionary movement has been utilizing it for a number of years past. An impressive and richly-equipped pageant was a feature of the exposition, "The World in Baltimore," and "A Pageant of Darkness and Light" is being used by the women's missionary societies. Sunday-school conventions also are making effective use of a pageant of religious education.

Apparently dramatic representations of religious history have come to this country to stay. They are a return to the old "morality plays" of the church of the Middle Ages, which went out of vogue with the reformation. There is a touch of poetic justice in their present employment as a means for impressing the reformation history. Of the popularity of this new arm of religious education there can be no doubt. People crowd every auditorium that offers a pageant.

THE PILGRIM FATHERS.

What it calls "A Forefather's Day Pageant" is reported by the Congregationalist from Ames, Iowa. It was arranged by the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Church, simple Indian and Puritan costumes being made. The scenes were as follows, the intervals between being used for the telling of the story of the Pilgrim Fathers by the pastor:

(1.) Persecution in England. Secluded room in village of Gainsborough, where Separatists gather in secret. Candle light. Brewster greets the worshipers as they quietly gather—women on one side, men on the other. Portion of Scripture is read by Brewster in subdued tone, followed by kneeling attitude of prayer. Suddenly officers of King James appear, breaking up the meeting and arresting certain of the leaders.

(2.) John Robinson and His Congregation in Leyden. A vote favorable to the emigration to America has just been taken. A hymn is sung, followed by benediction. The congregation is dismissed and goes out, each one greeting their pastor, John Robinson. After they are gone Robinson falls asleep in his chair and sees a vision of the new home in America. A curtain is drawn and the audience is permitted to see a beautiful tableau representing the vision—Faith, Religion, Liberty, Justice, Truth, Education, etc. During the vision a hidden quartette sings "America, the Beautiful." As Robinson falls asleep darkness falls over the room and only the "vision" is illuminated.

(3.) "The Wild New England Shore." An Indian encampment—the first Americans. News of the white man's arrival comes to the camp. With keen interest and wonder the Indians watch the scene of the landing of the Pilgrims at a distance, and as the Pilgrims approach they slink into the background.

(4.) The Landing of the Pilgrims. (Quartette sings "The Breaking Waves Dashed High.") The Pilgrims gradually come in sight of the audience, as if coming up from the shore and their boat. They kneel in a prayer of thanksgiving to God for their safe arrival and sing together the old Doxology.

(5.) Pilgrims on the Way to Church. Led by the Spirit of Religion (personified,) the Pilgrims are seen on their way to church. The scene imitates as closely as possible the famous picture. Indians are seen lurking in a distance, but unseen by the Pilgrims. The Pilgrims are heard singing after they reach the meeting-house, and the Indians are left on the scene.

(6.) The Nation—Columbia. Years have passed. The vision of John Robinson is on its way to realization. Columbia is shown with her allies or court, Liberty, Faith, Education, Truth, etc. Part I sees the ingathering of the industries and liberal arts who have come to pay homage—the minister of the gospel, the statesman, the teacher, the farmer, the nurse and many others, who have found their work uplifted and glorified through the ideals of the Pilgrim. Part II. The spirit of Faith, from her place on the throne of the nation, beckons to the "modern pilgrims" from all nations and they come to America, as the quartette sings "Faith of Our Fathers, Living Still." Part III. The final scene, in which all Pilgrims, Indians and foreigners are blended into one in the singing of "America."

METHODISM RE-ENACTED.

On a large scale the Methodists of Nashville and Dallas put on "The Pageant of Methodism." Hundreds of persons were in the cast and more than 5000 persons crowded the Dallas Coliseum to witness it. A moving-picture concern filmed the pageant in Dallas. A synopsis will show the nature of the scenes:

Episode No. 1—The Beginning of Methodism in England.

Movement I. Home of the Wesleys. After family worship the children retire. Soon fire breaks out in the wing of the house where children are sleeping. By help of neighbors the fire is put out and the children are saved. After John's rescue, his mother, Susanna, dedicates him to the Lord.

Movement II. Street Scene Sixteen Years Later. John Wesley and George Whitefield, members of the Holy Club, an organization of Oxford students, whose aim was to purify the Church of England, on their way to a meeting with Robert Kirkham and Charles Wesley.

Movement III. Opposition to Wesley. The high church men oppose Wesley for breaking away from the established order of the church and lock the door of the church. When Wesley attempts to preach in the open air the rough element try to break up the meeting, but under the power of his preaching they are made to listen.

Movement IV. Olivers and the Stocks. Thomas Olivers, once a drunkard and a gambler, is converted. He comes to Squire Hollingsworth to confess his sin and to pay the last of his debts. Hollingsworth is not in sympathy with the Methodists and so has Olivers put in stocks.

Movement VI. The Sabbath-school. John Wesley, while a missionary to the Indians in Savannah, Ga., conducted the first school on Sunday to teach the Scriptures to the children. Several years thereafter Mr. Robert Raikes of Gloucester, Eng., a man of wealth, seeing the children playing rough, noisy games on Sunday, appeals to Miss Cooks, a Wesleyan, to do something for the children. Accordingly a Sabbath-school is organized.

Movement VII. Tableau. Wesley, now an old man, preaches his last sermon out in the open.

Episode No. 2—The Beginning of Methodism in America.

Movement I. The Gospel to the Indians. Scene opens with the squaws in Indian dances and a prayer to the Great Spirit. The gospel is brought to the Indians by a missionary. The Indians, at first hostile, at last smoke with the missionary the pipe of peace.

Movement II. Barbara Heck and the Card Players. Four card players have gathered at Paul Runkle's home to play cards and drink. Barbara Heck, Paul Runkle's sister, takes from them the wine, snatches away the cards and throws them into the fire.

Movement III. The First Church Service. After singing a hymn, repeating the Collect, Embury enrolls them as members of a Methodist class and then preaches to them.

Movement IV. The Ordination of Bishop Asbury (tableau.) A reproduction of the ordination of Bishop Asbury.

Movement V. The General Conference in 1789. Bishop Coke presides at this conference. Bishop Asbury read the letter that the Methodist Episcopal Church wrote to Gen. Washington on his inauguration as President of the United States, and President Washington's answer.

Episode No. 3—The Days of the Circuit Rider.

Movement I. Solomon Sharp and the Blacksmiths. A scene in which a crowd of roughs try to outwit and to ridicule the Methodist preacher. He forces them to kneel as he prays for light to come upon them. Tableau—the light has come and they kneel reverently in prayer.

Movement II. Preaching to the Slaves. In the midst of their song service Bishop Capers comes to preach to the negroes. He is accompanied by Gov. and Mrs. Aiken, Miss Aiken and Miss Baby.

Movement III. Peter Cartwright and the Early Camp Meeting. The organizer of the great Methodist camp meeting is presented in camp-meeting scene. Three roughs come in, march to the front and proceed to break up the meeting. Peter Cartwright orders the constable to remove these offenders, but the constable is afraid, so Peter Cartwright himself proceeds to put them out.

Episode No. 4—The Church at Work Today.

This episode is represented by tableau and processions. The tableau preceding each procession voices the spirit of the oncoming procession. The order is as folows: The Ministry, Education, Missions.

All this is but a recognition of the basic pedagogical principle that the most vivid impressions are those received through the eye.

THE RELIGIOUS RAMBLER.

MEN AND EVENTS.

Alfred Gould, age 3, of East Charlemont, went into the barn where his father kept his automobile, started it and ran it into the yard by himself. Alfred's mother stopped him before he could reach the road.

While John W. Skinner, a farmer of Ruston, La., was plowing his field recently the blade of his plow struck an old iron box, which burst open, revealing more than $1000 in old silver coin. It is mostly of foreign mintage and some of the pieces are 139 years old.

Two Barnard (Mo.) girls had their pictures taken in a remarkable pose. They wore the same pair of trousers, one girl in each leg. The town tailor had just finished the trousers for the world's largest postmaster, Clyde Perkins, Barnard's postmaster, who weighs 418 pounds.

Private William O'Connor, on the border with the Washington (D. C.) militia, at mess ate ninety onions by actual count. He collected the ration allowance of the men who did not like onions.

Bill O'Hare, once a star left fielder of the Toronto International League team and a former scout for the National League New York club, has been recommended the military cross in recognition of his bravery and skill in hurling bombs for the British army on the Somme battle front, according to advices received here from his home in Toronto.

Philadelphia is the home of 1000 Republicans who do not entertain a single doubt that Charles E. Hughes will be the next President of the United States. Fred Willard, president of the Republican League of State Clubs of Pennsylvania, has made arrangements for the accommodation of 1200 men in Washington on March 3 and 4, next, so that they can participate in the inauguration of Mr. Hughes. Mr. Willard signed a contract with the proprietor of a Washington hotel for the two days.

Vice-Admiral Koltchak, who distinguished himself in the defense of Port Arthur in the war with Japan, has been appointed commander-in-chief of the Black Sea fleet. Admiral Koltchak is 40 years of age, and is the youngest Russian admiral.

RAGTIME AMERICA'S ONLY OWN

The One Original Thing in Music that Our Country h
Produced—Written for the Heels, but has Real Merit.

BY JEANNE REDMAN.

THERE is a theory among historians and critics of music that ragtime is a sort of a side growth, malignant or otherwise, according to the degree of seriousness with which one considers the subject, upon our normal musical structure. They look upon it either as a cancer or a corn, but at any rate something to be ashamed of and to keep strictly within the family and concealed from international view as much as possible.

Ragtime, however, is actually the only original thing in music that has been done in America. It is the only exclusively and distinctively national trait. Ragtime is our only folk-lore. That old theory that we were to look to the red Indian for our folk-lore is absurd, of course, for we have nothing in common with the Indian, and few of us have any relation to him whatsoever. It is true that some American composers, MacDowell for example, have made excellent use of the materials furnished them by the Indian, but one cannot assume from that that the horde of Jews and Gentiles which goes to make up America is to derive its inspiration from the Indian.

There was a run of songs from the South, of the ilk of Foster with "Way Down Upon the Suwanee River," which had something of the African croon to it, and for a time in the '60's it looked as though we might be in for a theory that we were to get our start from the African negro, so prone are we to be led, but we steered away from that without great accident, and then we had forty years of imitation, until ragtime and the dance known as the "Rag," broke out in San Francisco.

Out of the Melting Pot comes our folk-lore, Ragtime. It is neither out of the sentimentalities of the English ballad, nor the "airs," of Italian opera; it has nothing in common with French elaboration nor German heft; its rhythms are in direct contradiction to those of the Spanish and Portuguese dance, and it has none of the hectic morbidity of the Slav. We shall never get far in original music in this country, because of our being a conglomeration of all nations, unless we study and seek to understand the few national traits which America brings forth occasionally. Our music, up to the present, has been as barren of originality as our literature was in the days when the good old New Englanders copied the best in European literature of their day. Even MacDowell, our first composer, shows as much conscious straining when he uses the Indian as when he draws from Europe.

This fact of our conglomerateness is shown plainly in our ragtime. What other country produces songs of and about literally every nation under the sun as we do? The favorite songs of the day are Hawaiian. Naturally enough, for the Coast is strewn with Hawaiians, and the population of Honolulu is largely American. What other nation sings of Hula girls, and what other nation feels the rhythm as we do? And our Chinese love-songs are almost as popular and as plentiful. So are the Chinese in California. And there is no limit to our negro songs, and mammy lullabies. And when we are not imitating the melancholy sentiment of the Hawaiian, we imitate the drone of the Chinese or the croon of the African. And, if we must be high-brow, we imitate the complicated profundities of the German, or, more recently, the emasculated and fanciful confections of the French. And out of this compote comes the Rag.

It is a shocking thing to accept ragtime as our folk-lore, and of course, we do not do it. It hurts us. For ragtime is vulgar. There can be no doubt in anyone's mind that ragtime is vulgar. But then, so is America. If you have any doubts left upon that subject, go to the Orpheum and watch the audience applaud a low comedian who appears before it and ridicules everything that any other nation of earth holds sacred. Our sense of humor damns us, and has as much to do with our having no art as the fact of our commercialism.

We make fun of the loftiest emo-

Society seen through the camera's eye.

Mrs. Turner Elmer Weatherholt, prominent society matron, is in the Egyptian costume which she wore at the Halloween party at the Jonathan Club Monday night. The other pictures show Miss Nanette Francisco and the group of coming buds, who made merry at her Halloween party Tuesday night. They are, top, left to right, Misses Helen Worthington, Caroline Eshman and May Field; bottom, Misses Lady Jane Lawler, Doris Fishburn, Beatrice Ward, Lucile Bettengen, Janet Prendergast, Beth Krebs, Katherine McGarry, Katherine Wigmore and Esther Reynolds.

SOCIETY.

A DEBUTANTE'S LETTER.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 3.

[illegible] dear:

Isn't it a lark to see fashionable dames carrying market baskets full of all sorts of interestingly [illegible] things at the French market in Central Park? You could smell [illegible] cake, fruit, sausages and eau de Cologne, to say nothing of cigarettes, purchased, of course, for [illegible], as befurred and velvet arms [illegible] one. Which reminds me, some of the girls selling cigars and cigarettes had a horrid time. Stern reformers seized the opportunity to reproach innocent maidens with aiding and abetting crime, and one at least went home in tears.

Dressing up in fancy costume for the open air in broad daylight is very trying to doubtful beauty, isn't it? Some of us did manage to look [illegible] rag bags. On the other hand [illegible] looked distinctly fetching. The charming array in white chef [illegible] at the cake booth, for instance, the pretty McCall girls and Ena [illegible] at the fish market. Tea on the lawn proved very popular. I think it would be a good idea if they [illegible] that all the time, as they do in [illegible] Park in London.

The second-hand clothes booth, which is always such a feature of the French markets, was a glittering success. It was funny to see [illegible] ball gowns and passe hats, [illegible] of tricky little cast-off shoes [illegible] petticoats, being handled approvingly by shrewd shoppers. It [illegible] Mrs. Miner's idea and one virulent socialist wrote her an awful [illegible] about it. Hurled abusive invective and scathing remarks about [illegible] old clothes for sale, grinding the poor and all that sort of [illegible]. But bless you, all sorts of [illegible] made purchases there, it [illegible] more fun and culled more [illegible] than any other stall.

Mrs. F. O. Wood, the "doggie" Mrs. Wood, was radiant in charge of the "pet" booth. Parrots, puppies, angora cats, birds and monkeys sold like wild fire. And raffle of the baby pig donated by [illegible]-foot William Dibble was hilarious fun. We were all so dreadfully afraid we might win the little [illegible].

Remember John E. D. Trask of the P.P.I.E., who spoke so soulfully, [illegible] haltingly, on art at the Friday Morning Club? Impressed me at the time as being like three helpings of pumpkin pie at a sitting. But [illegible] Barker assures us he is not a [illegible] really, that he is quite capable of being an appetizing hors d'oeuvre on occasion, [illegible] dances like a debonair courtier. [illegible] Rene, of course, is some [illegible], a very sophisticated [illegible], whose mama and uncle find [illegible] considerable of a responsibility. [illegible] passion for studying law as [illegible] amusement, combined with [illegible] [illegible] for exquisite wrist [illegible] every dress. Is [illegible] to drive a motor ambulance [illegible] France, and, at 23, regards herself as entirely emancipated. Scorns what she calls "middle class" society [illegible] a malicious delight in [illegible] estimable respectable elders. [illegible] so many people yearn [illegible] her. Rene is quite justified [illegible] regarding herself as a bit distinctive. A highly strung little race [illegible] with a nice taste in dress.

[illegible] about the Kahn alligator [illegible]? A year or two ago it was installed with proper ceremony [illegible] center position of their garden of Eden. They wrapped it up in furs when it was cold, fanned [illegible] electric fans when a heat [illegible] was on, coddled it luxuriously [illegible] times and gave reception parties to witness its amazing growth. [illegible] just borne fruit for the first [illegible]-three modest little olives. Alas [illegible] horticultural treachery. It won't [illegible] get a smudge pot this year.

[illegible] course, the House Beautiful Flower Show has been a regular social rendezvous this week. [illegible] bathrooms are quite adorable. [illegible] had a model bathroom like [illegible] should hold our parties in. It was great fun picturing the [illegible] people who would appropriate some of the rooms. I [illegible] that the yellow drawing-room suite with black and mauve [illegible] should positively be peopled [illegible] something intensely respectable [illegible] Prohibitionist suburbia. No reputation could stand it. Very [illegible] people can afford to furnish [illegible] personalities, you know. [illegible] of this world, for instance, stick to dainty innocent [illegible] and chaste mahogany and enamelled bedrooms. Climbers infest with solid antiquities [illegible] maids need Oriental divans [illegible] gorgeous pillows.

[illegible] among innumerable people, [illegible] Winston and Carolina. Such [illegible] family, the sort of people [illegible] loves to meet at parties for [illegible] joy of looking at 'em.

[illegible] of parties, don't you think [illegible] overdo the Halloween idea a [illegible]? [illegible] went to one party where we [illegible] required to sit in rows on [illegible] with all the lights out while [illegible] told gruesome ghost stories. I was wedged in between two [illegible] young men—and you know [illegible] particularly who I snuggled [illegible] in the dark. Aren't you? Dis[illegible] a matter of taste, you know. [illegible] always seems to me that the [illegible] people have to make such [illegible] desperate efforts to enter [illegible] the infantile games. The [illegible] set makes no effort to appear [illegible] and childlike, just stand [illegible] and look desperately bored. [illegible] are nearly always engineered by some frisky plump matron [illegible] upon being defiantly [illegible] in spite of all handicaps. [illegible] made us jump over lighted [illegible] at one house, which necessitated holding our skirts out [illegible] way. It must have been [illegible] funny because everyone [illegible] uproariously. But, honestly, [illegible] rather have heard Mary [illegible] her prosy essay on nationalism. But it's so demode to [illegible] nowadays; effervescence is [illegible] rage. The sad, sweet, tristesse style hasn't arrived here [illegible] really, you know, picturesque melancholy is much more [illegible]

[illegible] prohibition in the air, certain [illegible] with yearning ambitions [illegible] office-holding are being very [illegible] in their public behavior. [illegible] such, ostentatiously drinking [illegible] at the Alexandria, was [illegible] indignant when a [illegible] friend said: "Hello, on [illegible] wagon?" "I have never [illegible] anything else," murmured the [illegible]. "Oh, I say, do you mean [illegible] have never quaffed high[illegible] right here?" demanded [illegible] friend. "I certainly [illegible]," declared the office aspirant haughtily, the while surrounding friends pricked up their ears interestedly. "Oh, I beg your pardon, I'm sure," quoth the tormentor with exaggerated apology. "Reminescences are indecent."

Heard about the playful society dame who throws pie at her husband? It is her delicate little way of clinching an argument. She did it at a public dinner last week and a grape juice one at that. Hubby is rumored to be starting a movement to prohibit pie.

Your loving

BETTY.

Standing in a flower-banked drawing-room—every bud the gift of a friend—Miss Eleanor MacGowan, the first of a group of debutantes to be introduced this winter, yesterday was presented by her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Granville MacGowan of West Adams street, to several hundred guests at a brilliant tea.

Each of the coming buds, was there to assist and receive her share of homage—Miss Eleanor Workman, whose presentation will take the form of a tea dansant at the Los Angeles Country Club next Saturday; the Misses Gertrude and Marion Kerckhoff, to make their official bow the 15th inst., and Miss Marion Wigmore, a debutante of the 25th.

In addition to members of the younger set, who had their own place in welcoming the guests, many friends were asked by Dr. and Mrs. MacGowan to assist.

Orchids, from the purest white to royal purple, and hundreds in delicate pinks, were used with artistry in the dining-room, with a wealth of roses in the parlors—but only the gift flowers were in evidence where Miss MacGowan received with her parents.

Not only were the leaders of the smart set and the unmarrieds present, but between the hours of 4 and 7 hundreds of men dropped in to wish Miss MacGowan a wonderful first season.

Mr. and Mrs. James Calhoun Drake and Mrs. Mary Wilcox Longstreet, as nearest friends of the MacGowan family, will be the first to entertain for Miss Eleanor—a dance at the California Club Wednesday night, to be preceded by several dinner parties. The trio of hosts will, with Dr. and Mrs. MacGowan and their debutante daughter, receive alone, having dispensed with the usual list of assistants.

It was really in these buds that most of the past week's entertaining centered, for there was no more stunning event than the dinner dance which Dr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Bryant gave in compliment to the Misses Gertrude and Marion Kerckhoff, Miss MacGowan, Miss Workman and others of the younger set, Wednesday evening, when activities were ushered in with gusto at the Los Angeles Country Club.

Mrs. Frank Griffith, Mrs. Joseph Francis Sartori and Mrs. Walter S. Leeds are to manage these fortnightly dinner dances this season, though Mrs. MacGowan, Mrs. William S. Hook, Jr., Mrs. Ernest A. Bryan and Mrs. Sartori were "official" hostesses for the initial event, stamped by its smartness of detail and exquisite floral appointments.

Miss Rosemary Sartori had a party including Miss Eleanor Banning, Miss Katherine Banning, Miss Dorothy Lindley, Miss Phila Miller, Mr. and Mrs. George Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart O'Melveny, Messrs. Jack MacFarland, Arden Day, Hamilton Rollins, Garretson Dulin and Frank Simpson. Near their daughter's guests Mr. and Mrs. Sartori were entertaining Mr. and Mrs. John Barnes Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. O'Melveny, Capt. and Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner, Maj. and Mrs. George Pillsbury, Dr. and Mrs. Walter Jarvis Barlow and Messrs. M. J. Connell and Roy Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyle Workman had covers for Judge and Mrs. Finlayson and Mr. and Mrs. George Wigmore.

Mrs. Jack Jevne and Mrs. Herman Janss had a table together, with Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Mines, Dr. and Mrs. Dudley Fulton, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas R. McNab, Paul D. Bucklin, Mr. Jevne and Mr. Janss completing their party.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Frick, Dr. and Mrs. Jack Murietta, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond W. Stephens and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh stewart were with Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson P. Chandler, while Mr. and Mrs. Leo St. Clair Chandler were in the William S. Hook, Jr., party.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Holliday had a table for Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Hicks, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Griffith, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Drake, Mr. and Mrs. William Ellsworth Dunn, Mrs. Longstreet, Mrs. J. J. Meyler, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Cook, Alfred Wilcox, Ygnacio Mott and Frederick Hornby.

Dr. and Mrs. West Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Perry Story, Dr. and Mrs. Hill Hastings and Ward Dawson were in the party given by Mr. and Mrs. George F. Beveridge for Mr. and Mrs. W. C. R. Watson of San Francisco, and Mr. and Mrs. Allan C. Balch and Gurney Newlin were noted in the gay assemblage.

Eighteen of the younger set were with Miss Katherine Stearns, while Mr. and Mrs. Albert Llewellyn Cheney had guests also. The "no-host" table had Mr. and Mrs. William T. Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. F. Irwin Herron and Paul Herron, William A. Innes and others, and the Misses Kathleen and Doreen Cavanagh, Larry Corwing and Archibald Higgins were with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Cavanagh.

Nearly 1000 invitations have been issued for the first tea at this popular refuge, set for the afternoon of the 14th inst., with Mrs. Charles C. Carpenter, Mrs. Joseph Cook, Mrs. Charles Monroe, Mrs. J. F. Sartori, Mrs. T. E. Newlin and Mrs. C. C. Parker hostesses.

On the 28th inst. Mrs. W. D. Woolwine, Mrs. Roland Bishop, Mrs. West Hughes, Mrs. Burton Green, Mrs. John Haynes and Mrs. Walter Lindley will receive at a similar function, giving assurance of a brilliant season there.

Society is on the qui vive over tomorrow night's presentation of "The Cassilis Engagement," by the Amateur Players, who are to make their debut for the season of 1916 at the Gamut Club. The cast includes Mrs. Irwin Johnston Muma in the leading role of Mrs. Cassilis; Jeoffry, her son, Harry Ham; Lady Marchon, his mother, Mrs. Margaret Ham (a really-truly mother;) Mrs. Norman Macbeth takes the part of Countess Remenham; Thomas Ridgeway, Mr. Warrington; Miss Florence Brown, Lady Mabel Venning; Mrs. J. Vallely, Mrs. Barridge; her daughter Ethel, Mrs. Tyler Henshaw; Rev. Hildebrand Herrier, the rector, Mr. Vallely; Watson, the butler, Charles Adams; Dorset, the maid, Miss Eleanor Workman; footmen, Willoughby Page Rodman and Horace Boynton.

Following the performance a dance will be given, and there are many supper parties now being arranged.

Mrs. Horace B. Wing, who is drama chairman of the Amateur Players, is to give for the members of the cast a dancing party at her home on Elden avenue, but set her compliment for a later date that the social climax should have no "counter attraction."

To Add to Gaieties.

Mrs. Allan C. Balch is to give, the 22nd inst., the first of what promise to be among the most important happenings of the winter's social calendar. About 150 ladies will be entertained at tea at her rooms in the Alexandria. From time to time a like number will be included at other affairs. There will be no special honorees.

In Future.

Mr. and Mrs. James Rathwell Page are to give a dinner Saturday evening at their home in Windsor Square—one of a series of smartly-appointed affairs.

Welcomed Home.

Their friends are welcoming Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Barrows home from a six-month trip through the East, where they motored extensively. Mr. and Mrs. Barrows, who arrived Friday morning, are at the Alexandria.

For the Juniors.

No more fit rendezvous was found in the entire city as a temporary habitation for the hobgoblins and elves and witches than the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Bond Francisco of Albany street, who, on Tuesday night, gave a Halloween dancing party for their daughter Nanette and members of her set. They quite forgot they were earth druids in the witchery of black night and all it held, with the lights covered in owls and skulls, blinking shafts of light from their fire eyes gleaming in every conceivable niche of the erstwhile studio, converted for the occasion into a nomad's fortune hut; smoldering fires over which were boiling caldrons, Kaffir corn shocks and other exquisite horrors and thrills. A clammy-handed ghost welcomed each of the arriving guests, and the fun was on. Black cats bristled at the hooting owls and grinning jack-o'-lanterns, but lent their approval to each fair young girl, who wore on a forehead bandeau an owl that sat on the moon, and a favor apron of owls caught back with baby black cats—younger members of the feline family created for the one night's frolic.

In the dining-room the table was centered with a pumpkin castle, the small windows emitting a weird light and showing the shadows of a witch in her garden picking faggots. Real moss and sand and rocks made the paths and landscape, surrounded by a tiny picket fence over which the vines grew and where sat black cats. Witches were invisibly going through space and bats flew about in magic curves, colliding with heads that had no bodies and false faces.

A buffet supper was served, dancing and jollity lasting until midnight. Bidden were Misses Katherine Wigmore, Beatrice Ward, Lucile Bettingen, Caroline Eshman, Doris Fishburn, Florence McGarry, Nancy Bilicke, Beth Krebs, Helen Worthington, Janet Prendergast, Maude Gray, Margaret Gray, Mae Wild, Elizabeth Spence and Dorothy Brown, and Messrs. Albert Parker, Rowlett Williams, Paul McGarry, Fulmer Hines, Charles Wellborn, Rob Reynolds, Joe Lippincott, Andrew Brown, John Crutcher, William Kennedy, Stephen Kerckhoff, Charles Partridge, John Griffith, Jack Fishburn, John Byrne and Ted Botsford.

Antenuptial.

Miss Dorothy Merriell, who, a fortnight ago, returned from the East to join her mother, Mrs. Catherine Merriell of No. 618 Westlake avenue, and participating in numerous pretty prenuptial courtesies which have been arranged in compliment to her 'ere her marriage the 14th inst. to Loring Allen Day, was the recipient yesterday afternoon of a stunning affair given by Mrs. Arthur Blaine Landis of No. 2712 West Avenue Thirty. Yellow was the dominant color, with a wealth of shaggy chrysanthemums, tulle bows and candelabra holding yellow silk shades adding their beauty to the surroundings.

During the afternoon a messenger delivered a huge bridey package, tied in yellow tulle bows, which caught yellow blossoms—the shower gifts to the popular bride-to-be. Bidden were Miss Merriell, Mrs. Catherine Merriell, Mrs. Elenora B. Day, mother of the groom-elect; Mrs. Robert Hotchkiss, the hostess's mother; Mrs. Emily Jackson, Mrs. Oliver Kopta, Mrs. Frank Mathews, Mrs. Martin Nathaniel Nelson (formerly Annette Stose,) the Misses Helen Stum, Ella Louise Filbert, Eleanor Barry, Alice Kopta, Marguerite Lyons, Helen Sanders, Marguerite Eichenhoser, Minnie May Benson, Phillippi Harding, Genevieve Heal, Betty Hotchkiss, Mildred Bennett and Genevieve Dorn.

The marriage of Miss Merriell and Mr. Day will be solemnized at her home with the bride-elect's sister, Mrs. Oliver Kopta, matron of honor; Miss Eleanor Barry, bridesmaid, and Ralph Day standing through the service as groomsman for his brother.

It was Miss Barry who gave the betrothal tea to Miss Merriell before the latter left for her visit in the East. The latter is a graduate of the Westlake School for Girls and has many friends.

Large Reception.

One of the largest events of the season will be the annual reception to be given the 14th inst., by Mrs. Edwin J. Brent at her home, Casa en el Pedregal, in Berkeley Square, between the hours of 3 and 6, 400 invitations having been extended. Standing with Mrs. Brent to receive will be Mrs. Martha Duffill, Mrs. L. J. Selby, Mrs. John W. Thayer, Mrs. David Unruh, Mrs. Thomas Wright, Mrs. Edwin Rankin Brainerd, Mrs. Hooker Jones and Mrs. J. C. Cline. Other unbonneted ladies will include Mrs. Frank Bryson, Mrs. Philip Zobelein, Mrs. J. C. Lick, Mrs. Clarence A. Barnes, Mrs. Joseph Bejdler, Mrs. Wallula Ralph, Mrs. J. Watts, Mrs. Frank Jay, Mrs. L. E. Ford, Mrs. Ralph Hagan, Mrs. George McDaniel, Mrs. Jack Hammer, Mrs. A. J. Sherer, Mrs. George L. McIntyre, Mrs. B. F. Blinn, Mrs. Harry Cline, Jr., Miss Florence Howard, Miss Margaret Loomis and Miss Wilhelmina Rector.

In the evening Mrs. Brent will entertain her assisting ladies and their husbands with a supper dance. A buffet dinner will be served at 6 o'clock, and dancing will be enjoyed from 8:30 to 11, when a supper will be served to sixty guests.

At Sierra Madre Club.

Social activity at the Sierra Madre Club goes on apace. The ladies' dining-room, which had been closed while being renovated, was reopened October 23 and since that time has been the scene of several brilliant luncheons as well as numerous smaller ones.

Invitations have been extended to the members for the second of their dinner dances, to be given next Saturday evening. The members propose to make this an enjoyable evening, and all sorts of gay and festive plans are afoot.

Salon.

Cards have been issued by Miss Brooks and Mrs. Edwin Hill Brooks for a reception and recital evening at 8 o'clock, at No. 200 South Vermont avenue, the new Cumnock School. Miss Mary Agnes Doyle will give an interpretative reading and there will be other features.

At Home.

Mrs. Zoe Ballard Fuller of South Lake street has returned from a three-month visit in San Francisco and other bay cities.

Bridge Tea.

Mrs. Louis Snow, a former resident and a guest in the city, was the inspiration for a chrysanthemum bridge tea given by Mrs. C. L. McDonald Friday afternoon at her home, No. 1837 Morgan place, at which four tables of players were included, prizes falling to Mmes. Snow, Monnette and Van Horn. The rooms given over to the affair were a riot of blossoms, all from the hostess's own gardens—great, shaggy chrysanthemums—lavender in the reception-room, mahogany in the living-room and yellow in the dining-room. A delectable tea followed the games.

Mrs. McDonald is now entertaining as her house guest her daughter, Mrs. Franklin Noah Dewey of Alamitos, who will spend a fortnight here. In her honor Mrs. McDonald is to give a bridge luncheon at the Jonathan Club the afternoon of the 15th inst.

Mrs. Sweet Hostess.

With decorations suggestive of the Halloween time, Mrs. Arthur Sweet entertained at her home, No. 1642 West Forty-ninth street, at luncheon the past week, with covers for Mmes. Elizabeth Stebbins of Jacksonville, Ill., R. E. De Armond, William Dexter Absalon, Harry V. Brown, Frank Ironmonger, Pierce, Lorine M. Dean and the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Sweet were among the quail hunters who enjoyed the week-end at Lake Elsinore. They bagged the limit.

Visitors.

Mrs. R. Densmore and niece, Miss Gertrude Densmore of San Diego, are visitors in the city, guests of Mrs. William Berman of No. 1264 West Vernon avenue.

Halloween Dinner.

Mrs. Fred Enderly, who has recently returned after a long absence in the East, was specially honored with a Halloween birthday dinner given by Mrs. Lottie Logan of No. 1532 Ingraham street Tuesday evening. The table was in yellow, with a floral center of chrysanthemums and favors of black cats, diminutive pumpkin people and other suggestive Halloween conceits. The guests were whisked up to the dressing-rooms by a witch, and Mrs. George H. Rector, attired in somber soothsayer's robes, told fortunes. Covers were at table for Mr. and Mrs. Enderly, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Hart, Mr. and Mrs. George Rector, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. George McDaniel, Mrs. Fred Detmer, Miss Wilhelmina Rector, Miss Talcot, Messrs. Mark Ellis, Jack Bushnell, L. D. Maescher and Logan.

Six Golden Months.

Completing a rather unique fiftieth wedding anniversary celebration, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Backeberg, No. 2703 Gleneden street, arrived home yesterday after a six-month tour of the East. Mr. and Mrs. Backeberg visited each one of their relatives and then visited each one of their eleven children, the usual family gathering being impossible inasmuch as the family is scattered from the Canadian line to New Orleans.

Cafeteria Lunch.

With Mr. and Mrs. Emil H. Bluemel of No. 1907 West Forty-first place, hosts, a delightful Halloween dancing party, terminating in a cafeteria lunch, furnished merriment to a coterie of their friends Saturday night. Halloween stunts and games were featured, in dispensing hospitality. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Covington, Miss Crumrine, Henry Kobusch, Miss Ida Kunkel, Mr. Llewellyn, Miss Maycourt, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Ranney, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Roach, Mr. and Mrs. George Roach, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Strand, Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Yankie. Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Benedict, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moorman of Huntington Park, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Park, Miss Thelma Park of Pasadena and Miss Mildred Gretten, Gardena.

Club of Twelve.

The members of the Angelus Bridge Club were recently entertained by Mrs. Charles E. DeMund of the Bryson. Those attending were: Mmes. Mattson A. Morrill, E. A. Anthony, Benjamin Blinn, Charles McClure, Wilford M. John, Maymie M. Symmes, Georgia McKay, George A. Watson, Millie Weilheimer and Frank Sohn and Miss Ada Dryden. High scores were made by Mrs. DeMund and Mrs. Symmes.

Bon Voyage.

Several pretty farewell parties have been given the past week for Miss Nell Lockwood of Buckingham road, who will leave with her mother, Mrs. M. B. Lockwood, Wednesday for a trip to Honolulu. Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. George H. Rector and their daughter, Miss Wilhelmina, entertained for Miss Lockwood at their home in Manhattan place, inviting Mr. and Mrs. Fred Enderly, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Thayer, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Hart, Miss Gertrude Cohn, Mrs. L. J. Selby, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Jungquist, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Ranger, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Deming, Mrs. McLaughlin, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bryson, Mme. Esther Palliser, Mr. and Mrs. Earl T. Osborn, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Kent, Mrs. A. S. Chapman, Mme. Constance Balfour, Mrs. A. P. Kendis, Mrs. George A. Ralphs, Miss Charlotta L. Brooks, Capt. Alter and Mrs. and Miss Lockwood. As most of the guests are either musicians or readers, an impromptu programme was enjoyed, and was followed by a buffet supper, with the dining-room in autumn decorations of leaves and fruits and flowers.

Miss Lockwood will be a month in the tropical isles.

Sorority Frolic.

An attractive Halloween dance was given by the Kappa Theta Phi sorority at the home of Miss Marjorie Gallagher, No. 528 South Johnston street, Tuesday evening, complimenting Miss Alice Griffen. Yellow and black decorations were used. Bidden were the Misses Sophie Lockwood, Ethel Simons, Mary Schwamm, Gladys Galvin, Grace Fox, Elizabeth Daze, Florine Neugebauer and Loretta Weaver; Messrs. Hartley and M. Weaver, Sam Kelly, Arthur Kressling, Lee and Mervin Flynn, Russell Kerr, Wallace Lauchlan, Thomas Bowen, Dan Guerrin and Victor Sylvester. The patronesses were Mrs. Mary McCrabbe, Mrs. L. Griffen, Mrs. P. Neugebauer and Mrs. T. Gallagher.

Halloween Gaiety.

Spooks took possession of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Abram L. McGue, No. 1809 Winona boulevard, Hollywood, Monday evening, when hospitality was extended several guests, who gave character to the Halloween festivity by appearing in fancy and unique costumes. The house throughout was decorated in the Halloween motif, and dancing and merry games were indulged in until the wee, sma' hours, when supper was served. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Glass, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Call, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Prideaux, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schaetzel, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hernandez, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sloan, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hoyt, Mrs. Annisses Hoyt, Mrs. Ella Fitzpatrick, Miss Olga Fitzpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Ackey, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Carle, Miss Irene, Elda and Dorothy Carle of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ingraham of Azusa, Mrs. John Young, Richard Young, Mrs. John Cummings and son, Howard, of Oil City, Pa., Miss Bernice Young of Azusa.

Rusticating.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Brown of this city are spending a week in the mountains, enjoying the many diversions of the out-of-doors. They are making their headquarters at Arrowhead and from there are making many interesting trips over the trails.

Wee Hostess.

Gertrude, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Cowles of No. 666 South Harvard boulevard, entertained a few afternoons ago with a Halloween tea for some of her girl playmates. Pink baby buds vied with the sweet children for decorations, and following a romp, tea was served at a dainty table, the diminutive hostess presiding with all the sangfroid of her leders.

In the Service.

Lieut. John T. Geary, stationed at Fort Winfield Scott, and Dr. C. T. Wood, U.S.N., are stopping at the Clark for several days, en route to San Francisco.

To Get the Returns.

Tuesday evening will be "open house" at the Los Angeles Athletic Club, and an informal dance will be held while the national election returns are being received. The clubhouse will be open to members and guests. Special wire service will be installed in the cardroom and election bulletins announced as received. Dancing will be in the gymnasium from 9 p.m. until midnight. In anticipation of this arrangement, a considerable number of table reservations have been made and the crowd at the clubhouse is expected to be large.

November has opened the way to many enjoyable entertainments at the club, the advance schedule of dinners and luncheons being especially large. This form of club hospitality brought about numerous gatherings in the past week, the dinners given by W. H. White and L. F. Caswell being particularly noteworthy. Mr. White was host to a company of thirty-two in the blue room Thursday and Mr. Caswell entertained with a dinner for fifty. Another elaborate affair was the luncheon given by C. J. O'Reilly in the blue room Tuesday, twenty-five guests being present. Returning from a hunt in Arizona, Byron L. Graves entertained with an old-fashioned "wild turkey dinner," the birds being those bagged by the host. H. R. Miner was a luncheon host Monday, his party of eight gathering in the ladies' annex. Wednesday H. C. Warden entertained with a luncheon in the English room in compliment to eleven guests, and Thursday evening P. D. Walsh gave a dinner to which ten were invited. Mrs. John Milner's luncheon in the annex was one of several enjoyable affairs in that department of the club.

To Winter East.

Mrs. Hugh Livingston Macneil left Friday for Boston, to join her daughter and son-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Bertnard Smith, at the home they have taken there at No. 23 Lime street, for the winter. Accompanying her were her granddaughter, Jacqueline Smith, and nephew, Keith Vosburg, who are to share in the delights of a season on the Atlantic Coast, with snow and ice and out-

Box Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shoup entertained with a party at the Orpheum Thursday evening. Their guests were Judge and Mrs. B. F. Bledsoe, Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Annable, Dr. John A. Collover and Miss Collover, Miss Jean Humphrey and Miss Belle Chilton.

Goulash Supper.

To Miss Mae Harris Anson of Dorset Court a coterie of friends is indebted for a goulash supper of Sunday night, attended by Mrs. J. Ward Bright of St. Louis, Mrs. E. Frances Clanton, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ehlers, Mrs. Johnston, Messrs. Hodges, White, Stewart, Frank Nelson Rust, and Wayland Smith.

Miss Anson came to Los Angeles after the war drove her from a three-year residence in Paris. For more than fifteen years she conducted the junior page in the Minneapolis Journal, which was originated by her, and she is now engaged in scenario writing.

Interesting Evening.

At Casa de Caza, the Arroyo home of Frank Nelson Rust, guests were informally entertained Wednesday evening with conversation and supper. Mrs. Grace Duffie Boylan of New York, who is now with her daughter and son, Mr. and Mrs. John Quinan Roscoe, at their Elysian Park home, and her son, M. S. Boylan, engaged in journalistic work, was among those asked and gave some original readings. Wayland Smith, Mrs. M. E. Moore, Mrs. E. Frances Clanton, Miss Anson, Mrs. J. Ward Bright of St. Louis, Mr. Hodges, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ehlers and others completed the party.

Betrothed.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Denitz of No. 752 Harvard boulevard announce the engagement of their daughter, Ann, to Sidney A. Franklin, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. Franklin of San Francisco. Miss Denitz will receive tomorrow afternoon.

Guest of Old Friend.

During her visit in Los Angeles, Mrs. John Conant Lynch, the State Regent of the California Daughters of the American Revolution, is a guest in the home of Mrs. Margaret J. Frick of No. 575 Esplanade, Redondo Beach, the two being friends of many years who are immensely enjoying the reunion.

Enjoyable.

One of the unique parties incidental to Halloween was given by Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Alton of the Rampart Tuesday evening. The mysterious ghost chamber and witches' cave furnished merriment, and the rooms were brightened with jack-o-lanterns, yellow chrysanthemums, witches and black cats. Mrs. M. Mead and Mrs. Harrigan gave a musical programme and a buffet supper was served.

Dinner.

With the living-room and den in Killarney roses and greenery and yellow dominating in the dining-room, Mrs. E. E. Henderson of No. 2707 Portland street was a dinner hostess Tuesday evening, covers being laid for Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wright, Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Bressee, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jay, Mr. and Mrs. James Coldan, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Goldsmith, Miss Ball and Miss Gertrude Henderson, with the hostess.

New Bishop Here.

Bishop Herbert Welch and wife arrived from Ohio on the Golden State Limited Friday and will be at the Lankershim until Wednesday, greeting California friends. Bishop Welch was formerly president of the Ohio Wesleyan University and was made a bishop at the last Methodist general conference, held at Saratoga Springs. The Ohio Wesleyan Alumnae Association tendered Bishop and Mrs. Welch a reception at Hotel Westmore last night. They are en route to Japan.

Notable Event.

O. T. Whitney of Lamanda Park is today celebrating his ninetieth birthday with members of his family—glad to be in Southern California for the sunset of an interesting career. His friends yesterday contributed their share to a postal card shower, bearing messages of felicitation, which will reach him today.

Sails for Honolulu.

Rather unexpected is the departure of Mrs. Randolph T. Zane and her little daughter for San Francisco, to sail tomorrow with Lieut. Zane for Honolulu, where the latter is ordered for the next year. They have been for several weeks guests of Mrs. Zane's parents ex-Congressman and Mrs. William D. Stephens of West Twenty-seventh street.

Back from the East.

Mrs. Charles Howard Lippincott, with her trio of children, Mary, Elizabeth and Gardner, are back from Illinois, where they were guests in Mrs. Lippincott's former home. Mrs. Lippincott left Miss Mary at the Castilleja School for Girls in Palo Alto for the winter.

Announce Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dolan of No. 1747 Las Palmas avenue, Hollywood, formally announce the engagement of their daughter, Ida Mary, to John Arthur Cullen of Omaha. The marriage is to be solemnized at the Church of the Blessed Sacrament early in January.

At Luncheon and Bridge.

Mrs. Fred D. Schildwachter entertained members of her bridge club Wednesday, at a violet and Cecil Brunner luncheon, followed by cards. The table held a low mound of the flowers, with corsages marking covers for Mrs. Fred M. Schussler, Mrs. Joseph Brown, Jr., Mrs. Guy Whittaker, Mrs. Carol Holmes, Mrs. Guy M. West, Mrs. D. A. McNaughton, Mrs. Sue Holden, Mrs. Terresa Hissem and the hostess.

For the Younger Set.

Miss Mignon Hamilton, Miss Ruth Mabee, Miss Sybil Manzer, Miss Leona Tackerberry, Miss Margaret Swanson and Miss Edith Micheau entertained jointly at a merry dance at the Ross Hamilton home a few evenings ago, with the rooms decked in a profusion of autumn flowers. Bidden were Miss Katherine Howard, Miss Elsa Wright, Miss Elizabeth Davidson, Miss Sarah Lindsay, Miss Ethel McWilliams, Miss Forence Schimpler, Miss Elizabeth Kemp, Miss Lorraine Hamilton, Albert Kemp, Harold Grieve, Arthur Shaw, Milton Edward, Volney Brown, David Purviance, Conde Withers, Carroll Holmes, William Randolph Louis Dorsey, Charles Elmendorf, Horace Brown and Gerald Brown.

Mrs. Kemp a Hostess.

Stamped by its smartness of detail was the bridge luncheon given by Mrs. John W. Kemp at her home on Harvard boulevard Wednesday, with covers laid for Mrs. Alexander Barret, Mrs. Lewis Clark Carlisle, Mrs. Matthew S. Roberston, Mrs. Joseph Harvey Miles, Mrs. Oscar Hay Souden, Mrs. Clair S. Tappaan, Mrs. William Brill, Mrs. James Tuber Fitzgerald, Mrs. Erasmus Wilson, Mrs. Willis G. Hunt, Mrs. George F. The Jonathans are preparing to give the Lambs an invitation calculated to make them feel so much at home they will forget the longing which all are said to have for their own fold in Gotham. Among those on the list to speak words of welcome to them are Dr. James Whitcomb Brougher, Judge Frank F. Oster, former United States Senator Frank P. Flint, Miguel Estudillo of Riverside, Harold Bell Wright, the author, who is staying at the Jonathan Club, and D. E. Thompson, former Ambassador to Mexico.

A reception for ladies will be held in the Jonathan Club rooms next Tuesday evening, when returns from the national election will be received by direct wire to the club.

OUT-OF-TOWN SOCIETY.

Pasadena.

HALLOWEEN furnished the motif for a number of social affairs during the past week, the most elaborate of which was held Tuesday evening at the Altadena Country Club. The same evening a dinner dance was held at the Valley Hunt Club when the table decorations were made a special feature. The Midwick Country Club held its Halloween dancing party one week ago last evening.

At the Altadena Country Club the attractive reception was gay with autumnal foliage, beaming jack-o'-lanterns and in the background rustling corn stalks, all making a quaint setting for the larger guest company, the members of which with few exceptions wore Halloween costume. Farmers, milkmaids, witches, ghosts, Weary Willies, fortune tellers, pretty Spanish gypsies, handsome cavaliers all made a picturesque crowd with others in conventional of dress enjoying the scene to the utmost. In the dining-room yellow and black were used in festoons about the room, in adornment of the table and in late supper appointments. Preceding the dancing for which nearly 200 guests were present a number of small dinner parties were given, each of the tables suitably decorated with the emblems of the season and autumn blossoms. Besides the well-planned Halloween features, it is whispered that there were other items of a Halloween nature that were not anticipated. Small boys of the neighborhood, it is said, found the ice cream and otherwise undertook to make the evening true to type, but this did not daunt the committee in the least or mar the carnival.

Mrs. Edward Dexter Knight of Berkeley, head of the California Federation of Women's Clubs was the guest of honor Wednesday at a luncheon at the Maryland, Mrs. Charles M. Ashcroft, president of the Shakespeare Club, and other members of the club's executive board and several of the past presidents being the hostesses of the occasion. The guests assembled around a table with a lovely burden of Cecil Brunner roses.

Miss Emma Badger, daughter of Judge and Mrs. B. W. Badger of Great Falls, Mont., and Hobart Lawrence Clayberg of San Francisco were united in marriage Thursday noon at a charmingly appointed wedding at Ivy Lawn, the Oak Knoll home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wallas Sias, with only members of the family and a few intimate friends present. Before the ceremony, performed by Dr. Robert Freeman, pastor of the Pasadena Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Tyler Henshaw of Los Angeles sang "Oh, Promise Me," and later played the Mendelssohn wedding march. The bride was given in marriage by Mr. Sias, her uncle, and was becomingly gowned in a broadcloth suit of dark blue with fox fur trimming, wearing a hat of silver lace with a touch of French blue. The living-room was beautifully decorated for the occasion with white and pink chrysanthemums and plumosus, this dainty combination used in an artistic canopy marking the place of ceremony. After the congratulations a wedding breakfast was served, the table being artistically adorned with white roses and smilax and favors of white roses bearing the heart-shaped place-cards. The bride and groom left immediately after breakfast for Berkeley, where they will make their home. Mr. C. Clayberg is an attorney practicing in San Francisco, and is connected with the legal department of an insurance company.

A number of society folk attended the formal opening of the Crown Hotel at No. 675 East Colorado street Thursday evening, when Mrs. E. B. Russell proved to be a graceful and successful hostess. The dining-room, especially decorated for the occasion was filled with guests who had made reservations in advance. Following a dinner concert of exceptional interest by Los Angeles musicians there was dancing.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS peeping from piled up autumn leaves gave a decided autumnal aspect to an elaborate bridge luncheon given Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. W. T. Taylor and Mrs. W. M. Carlin at the home of the latter, No. 1968 Fletcher avenue. As a result of the card games of the afternoon Mrs. O. A. Blattner and Mrs. Bert Beverly won the bridge prizes while the awards for five hundred went to Mrs. Harry Friend and Mrs. W. R. E. Weldon. Guests invited were Mmes. Charles Holland, H. Towers, Thompson, C. Russell of Pasadena, Mrs. David A. Vail, Mrs. John W. Monahan, Mrs. C. H. Bingham, Mrs. W. L. Thomas, Mrs. F. Curtis, Mrs. Morris Klein, Mrs. H. Holmes, Mrs. E. L. Halt, Mrs. B. Russell, Mrs. H. Reed, Mrs. H. Friend, Scullin, Mrs. John Sharpe, Mrs. J. Pitchford, Mrs. C. W. Hill, Mrs. Czara, Mrs. W. R. E. Weldon, Mrs. H. F. Smith, Miss E. Rose of South Pasadena.

Friday evening at the Women's Clubhouse that coterie of delightfully congenial people banded together under the name of the Oneonta Dancing Club, gave their second formal dance of the season. Early fall gave to the reception-room an artistic dash of color while chrysanthemums were used in decoration of the dining-room and tables. Mrs. A. A. Polhamus was in charge of the club. She was assisted by Mrs. C. J. Balfour, Mrs. John Stuart, Mrs. Preston Plumb, Mrs. D. C. Seymour. About forty couples were present.

Red apples in dozens of dishes all about the rooms formed the very simple and decidedly unusual decoration for a Halloween costume dance given Tuesday evening by Miss Josephine Supple of No. 2025 Fletcher avenue, in honor of the younger high school and college set. Present were the Misses Gladys Newerf, Marguerite Perry, Dorothy Thompson, Rebecca Patterson, Mary Doerr, Sara Bonner, Helen Bradbury, Irene Salisbury, Louise Macdonald, Catherine Patterson, Ruth Salisbury, Mildred Anderson, Josephine Robins; Messrs. Tom Sansaon, Dana Dunton, Richard Lindsay Spencer, Esq., Paul Kinney, For Tussing, Louis Fey, Robert Hine, Robert Cravens, Lyle Donovan, Harlan Beardsless, Robert Daggett, Ernest Supple, Cornelius Supple.

Distinctly appropriate for "All Soul's Eve" were the settings of a Halloween party given Tuesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sheffield of No. 1019 Montrose avenue. Sheets were used as portiers; hundreds of bats, black cats, owls, witches and ghosts climbed over the effective draperies; a great witch's caldron with toy insects stewing in the "noxious" brew were only a few of the decorative ideas used. Special amusement features were provided by Mrs. Antonio Moreno of Mexico City, a very adept fortune teller, and the playing of bag pipes by Mr. James Manwell of Chicago, a special guest. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Otto Beck, Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Sherman, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Parsons, Miss Ruth Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Knowlton, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sherman Fry, Allen Sheldon, William Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. William Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Joannes, Mrs. Catherine Grant, James Manwell, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Burns of Hollywood, Miss Marian Grant, Orville Wagner, Dr. Ivo and Dr. Will Bondies, Mr. and Mrs. Burt Lincoln of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Moran of Los Angeles, Miss Loraine Krigbaum, Harold Sheffield, Charles Kilgore of Los Angeles, H. Clough, Fred Fix of Hollywood, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Craig.

Miss Edna Shipman of No. 1510 Monterey road entertained for a group of sixteen grammar grade children on Tuesday evening. Halloween games and refreshments proved enjoyable features of the evening.

Miss Helen Smith was hostess on Tuesday evening for twelve girl friends at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Smith of No. 720 Meridan avenue.

Edwin B. Lawyer of No. 1211 Monterey road, has invited all alumni and present students of Occidental College to meet at his home, next Friday evening, for a rollicking reunion. Plans will be discussed for the formation of a South Pasadena Occidental College Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Seth Hart of Thirty-seventh street, Los Angeles, were host and hostess Tuesday evening at a dinner party for nearly a score of their South Pasadena friends.

Glendale.

ALTHOUGH Halloween has gone by, its spirit still survives and was mirrored in the various social gatherings of the past week. A quaint and artistically-carried-out Halloween shower was given in honor of Miss Mabeth Pigg, whose marriage to Thomas Furst will take place in December, by Mrs. G. H. Robinson of No. 446 South Jackson street. The house was seasonably decorated with jack-o'-lanterns and all the appurtenances of Halloween. A pumpkin bride and groom stood guard over a witches' cauldron, and the bride-to-be was asked to stir the magic brew. When she approached the kettle she found no mysterious broth, but dainty packages which contained gifts for her future home. After the buffet luncheon the afternoon was spent in chatting and sewing. The guests were Marjorie Dick, Vera Baird, Frae Morse, Dorothy Morgan, Gladys Anderson, Lola East, Dorothy Hunt, Grace Shropshire, Winifred Jones, Martha Braggart, Margaret Hunter, Barbara Mitchell, Jean Lyons, Babeth Pigg, Mrs. R. Ballinger, Mrs. I. M. East, Mrs. Ralph Wright, Mrs. Furst, Mrs. Lyons, Mrs. F. W. Pigg, Mrs. P. C. Dodge, Mrs. Gus Pulliam, Mrs. Donald Webb, Mrs. George Hunter and the hostess, Mrs. G. H. Robinson.

A real old-fashioned candy pull was one of the features of last week's social happenings. Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Rowe of No. 516 Orange street entertained a large party of friends Monday evening with a "hard times" party, to which the guests came in every style of poverty, from the scarecrow to the old-clothes man. The house was decorated with Halloween symbols and the table caried out the combined ideas of Halloween and hard times. Music and games occupied the earlier part of the evening and a candy pull was the feature of the rest of the evening.

A well-attended social was held at the First Congregational Church Wednesday evening for the purpose of getting the new members acquainted with the older ones. After an entertaining programme refreshments were served and games played.

The City Trustees and the officers of the Glendale Garden Society were hosts at a banquet tendered Dr. J. W. Gregg of the University of California, who lectured at the High School Thursday night on the subject of municipal parks and playgrounds. The dinner was given at the Hotel Gray. Mayor Thompson introduced Dr. Gregg, who responded with a short address on city beautifying. Those present were Mayor J. S. Thompson, Trustee G. B. Woodberry, Trustee L. F. Muhleman, City Manager T. W. Watson, Mrs. Nanno Woods, J. H. Woods, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cornwell, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hester, Morris Carruthers, Mrs. E. Carruthers, Miss Carruthers, C. H. Woolsey, Mrs. Ella Richardson, Paul Richardson, Mrs. Opal Greenwalt, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Ackley, A. T. Cowan and Dr. Gregg.

Miss Gertrude Klein and Miss Rose Klein of No. 321 Kenwood street entertained a party of Glendale and Los Angeles friends Sunday evening at a Halloween supper. The rooms and table were decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums. After supper music and games were enjoyed.

Mrs. Henry Goodwin of West Tenth street was recently a guest of Chapter 2, P.E.O., at an all-day meeting in Hollywood.

Mrs. Mabel Franklin Ocker of No. 1498 West Third street and Miss Veta Franklin of Long Beach were among those who attended the D.A.R. reciprocity tea at the Alexandria Tuesday afternoon, given in honor of Mrs. John C. Lynch, State Regent.

Mrs. B. L. Cline of No. 420 West Ninth street was hostess at two surprise parties in one week. Tuesday evening she engineered a surprise party for her son Eldred. On Wednesday evening she carried out a successful party for her husband in honor of their wedding anniversary. At both affairs the decorations were artistic and the refreshments delicious. It is needless to add that the guests were made thoroughly happy on both occasions.

—o—

Burbank.

ECHOES of Halloween still linger about Burbank, as witness the many post-Halloween affairs of the past week.

The Queen Esther Circle and Epworth League combined to give a merry Halloween party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman T. Allen Friday evening. The house was decorated with symbols appropriate to the mysterious season, and all the guests were masked as ghosts. Much merriment was created by the various games and the "room of horrors" through which the guests were conducted by spooks and goblins. A Halloween supper was served later in the evening and a general unmasking followed.

At a meeting of the Masonic Lodge at the hall Thursday evening the third degree was conferred upon William Hoist, after which an elaborate banquet was enjoyed. About thirty members attended the meeting.

A well-pleased audience attended the production of "The Trial of John Barleycorn," presented by the Women's Christian Temperance Union Friday evening at Horne's Hall. Thirty people took part in the comedy, which was well acted and well received by the audience. Other numbers on the programme were songs by the Burbank Quartette, a solo by Miss Lulu Snyder and a musical drill given by fourteen children.

The Yeomen gave an enjoyable Halloween dance at Horne's Hall Saturday evening, to which all the guests came in costume. Prizes were given for the most original, and the prizes were carried off by Miss Marie Harris as a negro pickaninny and Charles Pomeroy as a corpulent negro mammy.

A first anniversary wedding supper was recently given by Prof. and Mrs. M. M. Livingston in honor of Rev. Henry Rudin and his bride of a year. The table appointments were perfect and the dinner was a culinary triumph. The guests present at the happy occasion were Rev. and Mrs. Rudin, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Chase, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Reid and Prof. and Mrs. Livingston.

Mrs. A. O. Kendall of Angeleno street entertained at a 1 o'clock luncheon Wednesday in honor of Mrs. Henry Lotz of Rochester, N. Y. Other guests were Mrs. Harry Humphries and Mrs. Jack Anderson.

—o—

Van Nuys.

THE Pioneer Club meeting on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Andrew was one of the enjoyable events of the season. Fifty guests were present and five hundred and bridge was the order of the evening. The home was beautifully decorated with Halloween effects. The programme was arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Paul F. Shepard and Mr. and Mrs. William Andrew.

The first of a series of dinners to be given by the cookery class of the Van Nuys High School during the year to their parents and friends was held on Thursday evening in the domestic science room. The hostesses on this occasion were Miss Merle Pittenger and Miss Edna Vincent. About twenty guests were present to enjoy the hospitality of the girls. Place cards and decorations were suggestive of the Halloween spirit.

The members of the Sunday-school class of the Presbyterian Church, of which Miss Elma Snyder is the teacher, gave a party on Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Cornwell on Castro avenue in honor of Miss Snyder. A handsome pin was presented Miss Snyder in appreciation of her work. Delightful refreshments were served by Mrs. Cornwell.

Miss Margaret Coleman was the hostess at an informal dancing party on Wednesday evening at her home on Vanowen street. Decorations and refreshments carried out the Halloween spirit. Those present were Misses Addie and Edith Haas, Ruth Ely, Marion Reed, Margaret Coleman; Messrs. Jack Ely, Robert Jackson, Frank Moore, Brandon Brunner, Davidson and Herbert Moorehouse.

The young folks' married class of the Methodist Episcopal Church were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. William Lawson and Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Bevis at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Lawson at the Whitley ranch. The house and yard were decorated with jack-o'lanterns and shocks of fodder. Great lanterns suggestive of the old ranch days were suspended from the pepper trees. Refreshments of pumpkin pie, Waldorf salad, Boston brown bread, sandwiches and coffee were served and all present voted the affair a huge success.

Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Mangum were the hosts at a Halloween party at their home on Whitsett drive on Tuesday evening. About twenty-five guests were present. Various contests were held at which Mrs. R. E. Finley won first prize. Music was furnished throughout the evening by Mrs. Della Hillis and Mr. L. A. Gilbert.

Mrs. Fred A. Kellogg entertained the board of directors of the Woman's Club at a luncheon on Wednesday. Matters pertaining to the building of the new clubhouse at Van Nuys were taken up and discussed. It is hoped to start building within a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Streeter entertained Mr. and Mrs. George E. Roebuck at a dinner party on Thursday evening. Cards were played until a late hour.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Lodge entertained Misses Nellie and Hattie Haddock of Los Angeles, Misses Mable and Gladys Gilchrist and Miss Marlene Cowan of El Monte, Mr. Ernest Gibson of San Pedro and Mrs. Lucille G. Orr and family of Van Nuys at a week-end party at their home on West Sherman way.

Mrs. G. Arthur Bohlander was the hostess at a party on Thursday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Lewis E. Bliss and Mrs. Paul F. Shepard. About forty guests were present. Contests were the order of the day.

Paul and Frank Ross Whitsett entertained a number of their boy friends at a dinner and Halloween party on Tuesday evening. Masks and costumes were furnished the boys and they were told to find their own amusement, which they did with much gusto and promptness.

Mrs. Charles Thacker, prominent society woman of Moorpark, will become a resident of Van Nuys this month. Mrs. Thacker is chairman of the Federation of Woman's Clubs of Ventura county and is noted for her skill in painting china. Her work has received the highest honors wherever exhibited. Mr. and Mrs. Thacker will be extended a cordial welcome by the social organizations here.

—o—

Sierra Madre.

MR. AND MRS. T. H. FLATHER, accompanied by Miss Yerda M. D. Appleby and Herbert Ingraham, motored to San Diego during the last week-end, where they visited the exposition and during the return trip made a brief stop at Murrietta Springs.

After spending several weeks in St. Paul and other parts of the Middle West, Mrs. H. W. Topping and Earl Topping have returned to their home on West Central boulevard.

A masked dancing party Friday evening was given by Miss Alice Hogee at her residence on Laurel street, where she was assisted in entertaining by the Misses Mabel and Ogla Olsen. Many pretty decorations in brown and yellow carried out the color scheme and adorned the walls and porches. A jolly crowd of the young dancing set enjoyed the festivities during the evening.

Mrs. E. M. Brooks of East Central boulevard is spending a week or more with her son, Walter J. Brooks, in Oxnard.

After an absence of seven weeks visiting relatives throughout the East and principally in Illinois and Tennessee, Mrs. J. E. Fairbanks has returned to her residence here.

A Halloween party was given Monday evening by the Christian Endeavor Society at the home of Miss Helen Sadler, where thirty young people enjoyed the old-time games and charades.

To remain here for an indefinite length of time Mrs. Harold Peeler of San Francisco arrived Thursday.

Mrs. L. M. Caldwell is again domiciled in her home here after an absence of several months in the East.

The Lebus cottage on Sierra Madre avenue has been taken by G. C. Collins and family, who expect to remain here during the winter. Among the many visitors during the week at Scenic Point, the home of H. T. Fennel, were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lacey of Los Angeles, Mr. W. L. Jones, Los Angeles, and Senor Buzzi of Grand Opera fame and teacher of music, all looking for suitable locations for the winter months. Many automobile parties have held social gatherings on these spacious grounds, also enjoying the wonderful panoramic view from the platform erected by H. T. Fennell on Observation Rock.

Whittier.

SOCIAL affairs for the week have been largely of the Halloween variety, from the small parties for the children to the larger affairs of the grownups. Prominent among the latter was the Halloween party given by the Misses Lucile Reed and Grace Holloway at the home of the former in East Whittier Tuesday evening. These popular young ladies are members of the High School faculty, and the guests were their co-workers with their wives and with a few special guests. The hospitable Reed home was prepared for the spooky event from cellar to attic and the ghosts walked. The result was whole volleys of merriment, a bombardment of fun. Some forty guests were present.

On Saturday evening the teachers of the Whittier-avenue school were at home to the city corps of teachers. The new Whittier-avenue schoolhouse had been turned into a big ghost house; the guests were in costume, and the various groups presented stunts appropriate to the occasion. With marvelous witchcraft the last of "ten little pumpkin maids" was transformed into an immense pumpkin pie. Besides the city teachers and their wives the school trustees were also guests.

Mrs. E. L. Ryan of Long Beach was a guest this week in the home of her son, Harry C. Holdsworth, and Mrs. Holdsworth.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Stanley of North Painter avenue entertained the members of the two-in-one class of the Methodist Sunday-school Tuesday evening. Here Halloween decorations prevailed throughout, the guests were in masks, and much fun prevailed. Halloween refreshments followed the evening of stunts and the class closed the evening with a short business meeting. The class is a large one, including some forty couples and C. C. Barr is the teacher.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Maple entertained the Five Hundred Club at their hospitable home on North Painter avenue Tuesday evening. The guests came en masque and the usual fun resulted in the efforts to discover the identity of the maskers. Cards formed the later diversions of the evening, Mrs. J. G. Pease and Gurney Maple winning the prizes for ladies and gentlemen, respectively. Twenty-eight guests were present and refreshments were served cafeteria style.

The parish-house of St. Mathias Church was the scene of a merry Halloween party given to the members of the Sunday-school and members of the parish Monday evening by the Girls' Friendly Society of the church. The profuse decorations were suitable to the occasion. An informal programme was given, followed by the serving of refreshments.

Miss Bess Woods entertained a group of friends with a Halloween card party at her home, South Comstock avenue, Monday evening. Miss Laura Butman and Harold Mann were the prize winners, while the consolation prizes went to Miss Adah Denny and Percy Slaydon. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mann, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Wood, Misses LaVann Robinson, Vera Priestly, Laura Butman, Adah Denney, and Messrs. Morris Bogue, W. L. Moore, Percy Slaydon and Glenn Hoag.

Fifty guests were present at a Halloween affair given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Nunemaker of La Habra Tuesday evening. The guests were members of the Bide-a-wee Club of La Habra, with their families. Halloween fun and refreshments made the evening a delightful one.

Miss Mildred Moore of Yorba, formerly of Wilmington, O., daughter of Benjamin Moore, and Robert Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milo Allen of this city, were married Monday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Josephus Hoskins, the officiating clergyman, Rev. Hoskins, recently from Wilmington, O., and himself a recent Whittier benedict, has known the bride from infancy. Only a few immediate relatives of the bride and groom were present at the nuptials. The young people left for San Diego for their honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Shipe of Ocean View lane have returned to their Whittier home after a visit of some two months in various parts of the East.

Rev. and Mrs. Charles E. Tebbetts have returned to Whittier to make their home, after some years spent in the East. When the Tebbetts resided here before Rev. Tebbetts was the president of Whittier College. He has been and still is engaged in general secretary work for the Friends' Church of America and will make this his headquarters, although traveling much in his work. Their son, Dr. Herbert Tebbetts, and his wife have also located here, and at present the two families are located on East Bailey street, opposite Central Park. Dr. Tebbetts is a graduate of Whittier College. Complimentary to Mrs. Dr. Tebbetts, Mrs. Walter J. Widman entertained recently.

Anton Bierman and family of Yorba Linda have returned to Whittier to reside and have located at No. 241 North Painter avenue. The Biermans formerly lived here and will be welcomed back by their numerous friends. Mr. Bierman will re-enter business here.

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Rose McBee and Alfred Kelm was made at a recent social held at the I.O.O.F. lodge-rooms and the bride-elect was the recipient of a miscellaneous shower. The wedding will be solemnized this month. Miss McBee came here two years ago from Kentucky. Mr. Helm is employed in the shipbuilding works at Long Beach, where the young people will reside after the wedding.

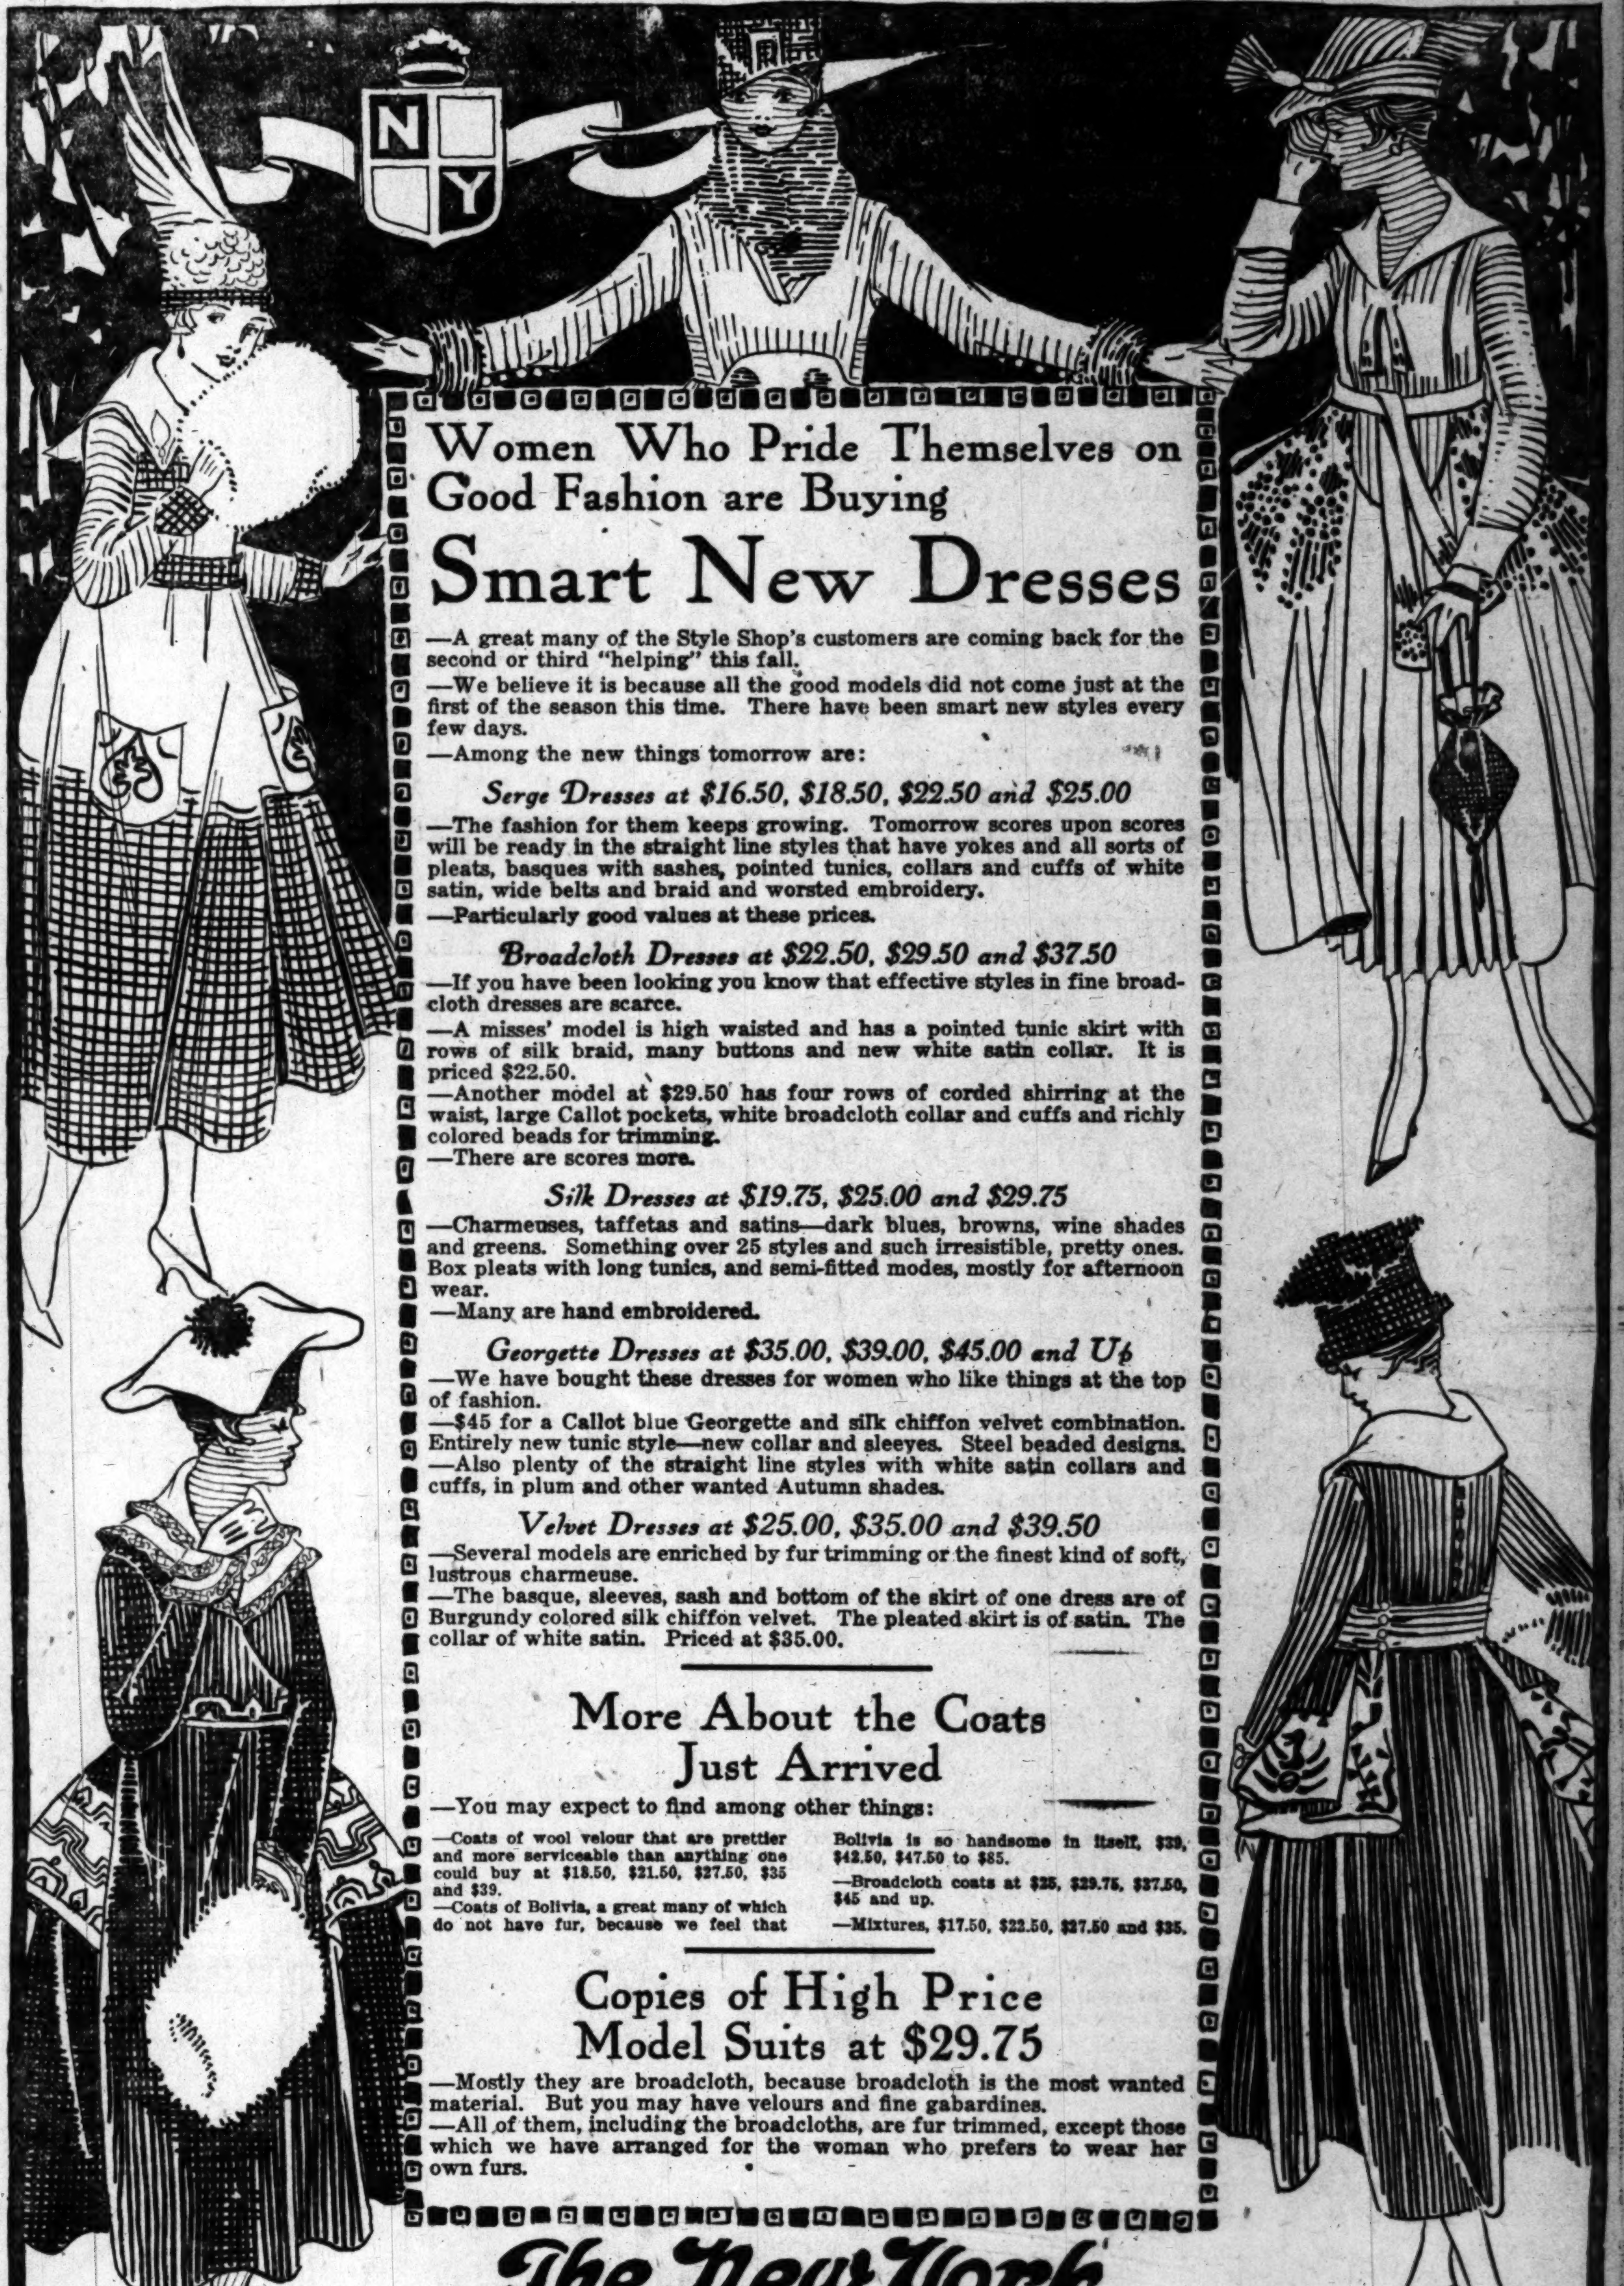
Mrs. Dr. W. H. Stokes is home from an extended visit in the East, where she accompanied her daughter, Miss Jean Stokes, who entered the Ohio State University.

Mrs. Dr. G. E. Wanberg has returned to Whittier from a two months' visit with former friends and with relatives in Marshalltown, Iowa, the former home of the Wanbergs.

Going East as far as Indiana, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Milhous and their son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Milhous, have returned from their trip made in a Hudson super-six. Two months were consumed in the trip.

Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Orbison are recent arrivals in Whittier from Lanpeer, Mich. Dr. Orbison comes here as house physician at the Whittier State School. They will reside at No. 115 North Washington avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Ackley and daughter, Miss Wilma Ackley, of North Painter avenue have returned to their home from a two months



Women Who Pride Themselves on Good Fashion are Buying

Smart New Dresses

—A great many of the Style Shop's customers are coming back for the second or third "helping" this fall.

—We believe it is because all the good models did not come just at the first of the season this time. There have been smart new styles every few days.

—Among the new things tomorrow are:

Serge Dresses at $16.50, $18.50, $22.50 and $25.00

—The fashion for them keeps growing. Tomorrow scores upon scores will be ready in the straight line styles that have yokes and all sorts of pleats, basques with sashes, pointed tunics, collars and cuffs of white satin, wide belts and braid and worsted embroidery.

—Particularly good values at these prices.

Broadcloth Dresses at $22.50, $29.50 and $37.50

—If you have been looking you know that effective styles in fine broadcloth dresses are scarce.

—A misses' model is high waisted and has a pointed tunic skirt with rows of silk braid, many buttons and new white satin collar. It is priced $22.50.

—Another model at $29.50 has four rows of corded shirring at the waist, large Callot pockets, white broadcloth collar and cuffs and richly colored beads for trimming.

—There are scores more.

Silk Dresses at $19.75, $25.00 and $29.75

—Charmeuses, taffetas and satins—dark blues, browns, wine shades and greens. Something over 25 styles and such irresistible, pretty ones. Box pleats with long tunics, and semi-fitted modes, mostly for afternoon wear.

—Many are hand embroidered.

Georgette Dresses at $35.00, $39.00, $45.00 and Up

—We have bought these dresses for women who like things at the top of fashion.

—$45 for a Callot blue Georgette and silk chiffon velvet combination. Entirely new tunic style—new collar and sleeves. Steel beaded designs.

—Also plenty of the straight line styles with white satin collars and cuffs, in plum and other wanted Autumn shades.

Velvet Dresses at $25.00, $35.00 and $39.50

—Several models are enriched by fur trimming or the finest kind of soft, lustrous charmeuse.

—The basque, sleeves, sash and bottom of the skirt of one dress are of Burgundy colored silk chiffon velvet. The pleated skirt is of satin. The collar of white satin. Priced at $35.00.

More About the Coats Just Arrived

—You may expect to find among other things:

—Coats of wool velour that are prettier and more serviceable than anything one could buy at $18.50, $21.50, $27.50, $35 and $39.

—Coats of Bolivia, a great many of which do not have fur, because we feel that Bolivia is so handsome in itself, $39, $42.50, $47.50 to $85.

—Broadcloth coats at $25, $29.75, $37.50, $45 and up.

—Mixtures, $17.50, $22.50, $27.50 and $35.

Copies of High Price Model Suits at $29.75

—Mostly they are broadcloth, because broadcloth is the most wanted material. But you may have velours and fine gabardines.

—All of them, including the broadcloths, are fur trimmed, except those which we have arranged for the woman who prefers to wear her own furs.

Luckenbach's Sale a Success Before It Started

By REED HAYES.

¶ Last week I told the people of Los Angeles in an advertisement that the firm of Luckenbach was retiring from the jewelry business. They tell me it was a good advertisement. There has been much comment on it and the sale is a success.

¶ They say buyers prove the worth of an advertisement. My first succeeded if one reasons that way. However, it was not the manner in which the advertising was written that is selling the goods, BUT WHAT THE ADVERTISEMENT WAS WRITTEN ABOUT.

¶ Selfishly I would like to take the credit, but here are the real reasons and facts in the case:

¶ Twenty years ago John Luckenbach entered the jewelry business in Los Angeles. For twenty years the firm of Luckenbach & Co. has sold Los Angeles its jewelry. By fair dealing, right prices and integrity the firm prospered and rightly so. It gained the public's confidence.

¶ CONFIDENCE BUILT ON INTEGRITY IS MAKING THE SALE A SUCCESS.

¶ I told the people John Luckenbach told me that prices would move his stock. I knew thousands know John Luckenbach and that his word is as good as a bond. I knew the history of the store. I knew its aims. I knew all I needed to do was to tell the story as any newspaper reporter in town would tell it.

¶ So I just presented facts.

¶ There are two things I wish to do in this series of advertisements. The first is to let the friends of Luckenbach & Co. know the firm is retiring from the jewelry business and that all the stock is to be sold at the lowest possible prices. The second is to let the public know the spirit of the sale, friends and strangers alike.

¶ In many sales goods bought cannot be exchanged or returned for the cash you paid. Here it is different. The prices are so low that if you are not satisfied you will get your money back—the prices are so low that some one else will buy.

¶ But it will not be because of price or quality you will return goods. It may [illegible] you cannot find a use for what you paid for, as, in the case of silverware, it may not match what you already have—BUT IT WILL NOT BE PRICE OR QUALITY.

¶ Again I say this is the real opportunity of the Christmas shopping season and that the time to take advantage of this sale is now—early—before the stock has been picked over.

¶ If you wish you may make your gift selections now and the goods will be laid away for delivery during December. Watches, diamonds, pins, rings, jewelry—all sorts—you will find here.

¶ This is Luckenbach & Co.'s first sale in Twenty years. It is their last. Every article in the store has been paid for. No more will be purchased. It is your chance to gain a benefit.

¶ It will be a long time before you have another such opprtunity.

Ventura.

FESTIVITIES befitting the Halloween season have predominated in the social sphere for the past few weeks. Falling in line with the appropriateness of the season the Fortnightly Club invited their husbands as guests at a most enjoyable Halloween party Friday evening. Mrs. Fred E. Mercer was the hostess. The affair was held at the Mercer home, which was most uniquely decorated for the occasion. Jack o' lanterns glowed over the scene; black cats, owls and bats were used, the rooms presenting the appearance of a scene from Mother Goose. Progressive games of the old-time variety were features of the evening's entertainment, and fortunes were told by an Assyrian seer. Refreshments were of the real Halloween order. Place cards were fortunes tucked away in little Halloween envelopes, and at each cover an apple served as a candlestick and bore its flaming candle, giving a wierd light to the scene.

In honor of her seventy-eighth birthday anniversary, and also of her wedding anniversary, Mrs. R. A. Putnam was hostess to a number of friends Friday afternoon. The guests brought their needlework and during the afternoon Mrs. G. G. Burtnett gave a reading. The hostess was recipient of many attractive gifts, and a host of congratulations and good wishes. Refreshments were served, including the birthday cake. Those invited were Grandma Bartlett, Mrs. A. E. Wilson, Mrs. Elrick Williams, Mrs. J. P. Rasmussen, Mrs. D. J. Reese, Mrs. M. E. Isham, Mrs. Clara Brooks, Mrs. Emma Mackin, Mrs. Frank Cook, Mrs. Charles Barnes, Mrs. George Cook, Mrs. F. Doty, Mrs. H. L. Vedder, Mrs. C. H. Lawrence, Mrs. C. G. Burtnett, Mrs. Will Rees, Mrs. I. Istas, Mrs. W. H. Hannaford, Mrs. Williams, Sr., Mrs. Rodney Putnam, Miss Campbell, Miss Younglove.

Miss Margaret Hund and Miss Laura Moore entertained a number of friends Saturday evening at the Hund home. The affair was a Halloween party, and it was a very gay and amusing one. No end of excitement was furnished by the "aeroplane" rides, and the girls learned their fortunes by means of bowls of fate and bags of fortune. Charlotte was most successful in completing a black cat, while Olivia Tico proved the closest guesser in the ghost guessing contest. The decorations and refreshment were carried out in the Halloween style. Those invited were Marian and Josephine Argabrite, Alice Dixon, Muriel Aiken, Viola De Leon, Marguerite Hahn, Ida Hartman, Olivia Tico, Lillian Kingston, Gertrude Willis, Lorena Sittell, Cecelia Sudden, Gertrude Streets, Charlotte Reese, May Ramelli Janice Rogers, Anna Pauquette, Iva Oberg, Inez Mitchell, Aileen McCandless, Carla Larsen, Nettie Lindburg, Emma Lopez.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Argabrite entertained at dinner Sunday in honor of Mrs. Argabrite's father, J. Marion Cannon's, eighty-second birthday anniversary. It was a family affair, and those present were Mr. and Mrs. Cannon, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Walker and baby, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Argabrite and baby, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Argabrite, and Mrs. S. M. Brooks.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. McGonigle was the scene of a merry week-end party Saturday and Sunday. The guests from Los Angeles were Miss Marguerite Florentine, Miss Shirley McGuire, Miss Jean Morrisy, and Messrs. Henry McGonigle, Felix, Seay, Wallace Enyeart and Ernest Jones from Camarillo.

Mrs. Sam Cole entertained at luncheon on Wednesday in compliment to her sister, Mrs. Alice Teagarden. Those who enjoyed the pleasant affair were Mrs. Teagarden, Mrs. Carrie Brooks, Mrs. C. A. Barnes, Mrs. Sally Cavnah, Mrs. Carra Brooks, Mrs. Edwin Gerry, Mrs. J. L. Knox, Mrs. Ada Love, Mrs. Belle Sheldon, Miss Betty Teagarden, Miss Doris Knox.

HALLOWEEN was "kept" in realistic fashion on Saturday evening at the spacious home of Attorney and Mrs. M. O. Hert, where Miss Julia Hert and her chum, Miss Freda Borden, entertained with a charmingly-appointed dancing party. All guests came in fancy costume and masked, and to music furnished by Miss Pauline Vaughan, danced amid a colorful setting of Halloween emblems until a late hour, when from a magic cauldron fortunes were dipped by a black-garbed witch (Mrs. W. R. Borden.) Refreshments apropos of the season were served. Sharing the gaiety were the Misses Margaret Goodnow of Long Beach, Dorothy and Zetta Vorheis, Marie DeArmond, Marie Bonnell, Marguerite Ahler, Marguerite Champion, Ruth Snider, Gladys York, Josephine Barnett, Ethel Maxwell, Ethel Burdick, Oda Jones, Eileen Strock, Nellie Dearing and Leila Ranor; Alfred Trask and Brooks Bussey of San Bernardino, Kenneth Raynor, Joe Champion, Shelton Borden, Ralph Hatchett, Earl Livingston, Noble Saunders, Leo Steck, John McIntyre, Roy Summers, Donald Van Luven, Lloyd Warner, Beverley Molony, Curtis Tuller, Barney Walker, Karl Ebert, Charles Hartley, Kurts Cropley and Will Patterson.

Another merry dancing party of Saturday night to revive Halloween traditions was that given by the Misses Evelyn Harper, Adeline Button and Edna Gorral, at the home of the J. E. Harpers. Black and orange festoons, witches, cats and bats provided a fitting background for the whimsically-costumed bevy of young people, who included the Misses Millie and Carol Bondurant and Elizabeth Sibley of San Bernardino, Ila Rollins of Redlands, Mildred Bonnell, Lila and Edna Vaughan, Ida and Ethel Paul, Pearl Muschewske, Elizabeth Ebert, Thelma Isbell, Helen Harper and the hostess; Roy McGregor, D. C. McGregor, Claude Houser and Cecil Wood of San Bernardino, Raymond Bonnell and Will Currie of Los Angeles, Walter Chase, Chester Hartley, Floyd Summers, Lester Dearing, Lucian Newcomer, Ben Hurd, Harry Horton, Arthur Sherwood, Carlos Dodson, Ed Harper and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Worthen.

Yellow asters and Halloween novelties were used with charming effect within the cosy bungalow of Mrs. J. E. Griffith on Friday afternoon, when two tables of auction bridge were entertained. A delicious repast followed the tournament, in which Mrs. S. E. Andrews was the lucky player, place cards, favors and table decorations accentuating the quaint motif.

On the brilliantly-lighted lawn which stretches in front of the Edison substation and in the rear yard of the near-by home of Superintendent and Mrs. A. L. Snider, members of the city's teaching force to the number of fifty made merry on All Saints' Eve. The new teachers were hosts and hostesses of the occasion, which was a return favor for a reception tendered them recently by the established teachers. After jolly outdoor games, wieners were roasted and marshmallows toasted over a huge bonfire and partaken of along with other substantial edibles.

In honor of the birthday anniversaries of her sons, James and Shirley Butterfield, which occur a few days apart, Mrs. J. P. Glass was hostess to a happy company of Colton, San Bernardino and Loma Linda friends on Monday evening at the beautiful Glass home on La Cadena hill. Halloween games and customs were carried on in rooms fantastic with Jack-o'-lanterns and other seasonable decorations, the festivity winding up with the serving of a bountiful spread of dainties.

Fourteen High School chums of George Flinn were his guests on Wednesday evening at a jolly stag party, a sumptuous "feed" being served at 6:30 o'clock—right after basketball practice, the majority of the company being members of the team—in the banquet-room of Masonic Hall. Red carnations and ferns supplied adornment for the table, where were seated, with the host, John Shell, Nobel Saunders, Dwight Rutherford, Cecil Reynolds, Kenneth Raynor, Leo Steck, Shelton Borden, Barney Walker, Charles Hartley, Beverley Molony, John McIntyre, Donald Van Luven, Karl Ebert and Earl Livingston.

Members of the Rebekah and Odd Fellow lodges, with their families and friends, about 150 all told, porticipated in the gayest of Halloween frolics on Monday night in Masonic Hall. After a programme including songs by E. J. Strock, Walter Campbell and Alvin Hunter, and readings by David Cassell and J. W. Junod, there was a yama yama fancy dance by twelve staid members of the two orders which proved the hit of the evening. Games and refreshments enlivened the remaining hours.

A layette shower was the very happy way in which a group of Mrs. Henri Buelan's friends honored her on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Van Bagley. The affair was a surprise to the honoree, and, after a period of chatting and sewing, tea and cakes were served the guests, who included besides Mrs. Buelan, Mmes. Alvin Hunter, Jack Horn, Cyril U'Ren, Harry Walter, Oscar Wear, George Nice, Harry Morris, Lee Van Voorhis, G. M. Warner and Miss Delia Andrews.

Escondido.

A SOCIAL affair of unusual interest in Escondido was the gathering at Odd Fellows' Hall of the members of the Woman's Club for the sixth anniversary of the club, the attendance having been over fifty. The affair was in the nature of a Halloween party, and a luncheon, served by the domestic science department, was one of the features. Mrs. Percy Evans presided at the after-luncheon speaking. The toast, "Our Birthday," was responded to by Mrs. Herman Rolfes; "Our Past President," by Mrs. R. B. V. Lincoln, and "Our President," by Mrs. W. W. Prior, Mrs. N. Matzen, president, responding to the latter toast.

Reports from the recent convention of the woman's clubs of the county at Coronado were made by Mrs. W. W. Prior, Mrs. J. B. Clark, Mrs. W. E. Burley and Mrs. D. F. Henderson. The luncheon was in charge of Mmes. Alex Stewart, Meredith Conway, Arthur Jones, A. W. Wohlford and H. C. Meyer. The decorations were in keeping with the Halloween season.

Fifty of the young people of the valley attended a dancing party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Batchelder, north of the city, Monday evening, the gathering being in the nature of a dedication of the fine new home of the family. Cards and other games were supplied for those not caring to dance.

The engagement of Miss Jennie Putnam, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Putnam, a rancher of the San Marcos Valley, was announced at a party at the Putnam home a few evenings ago, the groom-to-be being Merrill Kolb of Temecula. It is expected that the wedding will take place on Christmas Day.

ONE of the most charming parties given here during the present season was the Halloween gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter H. Ducker on College View avenue Tuesday evening. It was in the nature of an old-fashioned back-East Halloween party. The evening was spent in playing the old-fashioned games and later dancing was the pleasure of the hour. The house was beautifully decrated in true Halloween style. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Candee and daughter, Lois; Mr. and Mrs. P. F. English, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Buchanan, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Bourne, Mr. and Mrs. A. Bessolo, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Young, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Moshier; Mmes. Pitman, Roberts, Lerchen; Gee, and the Misses Baily, Bessolo, and Lerchen, and Messrs. Roberts, Angelo Bessolo and Gee.

Another enjoyable affair on Tuesday evening was the Halloween party given by Miss Muriel Gardiner and Miss Mabel Munyon at the home of the former on East Hill avenue. The house and grounds were decorated in yellow and black. Games suitable to the occasion were played during the evening. Those who enjoyed the fun were the Misses Dorothy Shaw, Helen Berg, Ruth French, Alberta Stoddard, Ernestine Biles, Dorothyl Johns, Amber Young, Jeanette Schenck, and Messrs. George Sherwood, William Taylor, James West, Frank Truscott, Howard Funder, Eber Slaght, Stanley Creswell, Sidney Walsh and Samuel McKee.

Santa Paula.

HALLOWEEN merriment has permeated the social atmosphere all the week and has been the motif for a number of happy affairs. On Saturday evening of last week the high school juniors paid their forfeit to the seniors for being the losers in the recent annual junior-senior hunt, and the occasion took the form of a jolly Halloween supper, served by the junior girls in the gymnasium hall of the school. The senior table was effectively done in black and yellow, while blue and white, the class colors of the juniors, were used on their table. All the seasonable decorations were used about the hall with weird and striking effect. At the conclusion of the feast Merle McGinnis presided as toastmaster and a very entertaining programme was carried out, including short speeches, selections by the orchestra, stunts and singing by the united classes.

One of the most delightful affairs of the week was the fortnightly assembly of the Monday Dancing Club, which took place in Masonic Hall, and was largely attended by the young married dancing set. The men of the club had completely transformed the hall into a Halloween den by the effective use of cattails, cornstalks, pumpkins, black cats and other Halloween emblems, all arranged with a great deal of ingenuity and skill. A huge pumpkin held the punch bowl, and shaded lights added to the weird effect. Dancing to delightful music was enjoyed until a late hour.

The annual masquerade and high jinks of the Current Events Club took place Tuesday evening at the home of Judge and Mrs. B. B. DeNure. Halloween decorations and shaded lights gave the proper atmosphere for the spooks and other characters to enjoy amusing Halloween stunts with unstinted zest. Mrs. Mary Jansen, disguised as a clown, received the prize for the best character costume. Old-fashioned dances and a typical Halloween supper were part of the evening's pleasure.

Mrs. [illegible] A. Koechig was hostess at a charming afternoon card party at Glen Tavern Wednesday afternoon. Members of the Auction Bridge Club and the Wednesday Embroidery Club were guests of the afternoon, and both five hundred and bridge were played. Mrs. M. H. Butcher captured the prize for bridge and Mrs. Peers, a visitor from Canada, was awarded the five hundred prize. The afternoon was concluded with a delicious collation.

About twenty-five members of the Rebekah Lodge took possession of the home of Mrs. W. A. Greenough on Monday evening, to that lady's complete surprise, and assisted her in celebrating her birthday. A handsome linen table cloth was presented as a remembrance of faithful and efficient labors in the lodgeroom. Cards were the entertainment, followed by refreshments.

One of the most successful Halloween affairs was a masquerade and box supper held in the Santa Clara schoolhouse under the direction of Miss Gladys Armstrong, teacher of the school, for the benefit of the school's playground equipment. The schoolhouse was cleverly decorated in Halloween effect and the pupils gave an amusing programme of ghost dances.

Miss Margaret Smith was honored with a farewell luncheon at the home of Mrs. W. E. Sheldon recently, previous to her departure for the winter. The girls of her Sunday-school class were also present and a beautiful box of stationery was presented her.

Gardena.

THE old master painters and their works was the subject that occupied the attention of the Wednesday Progressive Club at its meeting last week and the programme by Mrs. H. P. Sweet was much enjoyed by the large attendance of the members and their friends. Mrs. Samuel Storrow, chairman of the Ruskin Art Club of Los Angeles, related her experiences in studying Russia and Russian art as she traveled in that country a few years ago. Papers were read by Mrs. C. W. Stevenson, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. John Norton and Mrs. Charles Holbrook on the great masters, Michael Angelo, Raphael, Corot, Leonardo da Vinci, Rosa Bonheur and others. Miss Irene Zeller of Los Angeles, a new star with the best musical training of the East, sang in a witching manner two groups of songs, accompanied by Mrs. Omey of Los Angeles. The clubroom was never so beautiful. The artistic arrangement and general handling of decorations, pictures and prints illustrative of the subjects discussed, the latter loaned for the occasion, was superb.

Mrs. Hattie Bowen, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the Wednesday Progressive Club, planned a most successful entertainment, "Mystery Vaudeville," which ran two evenings last week, and which will be taken to Torrance where a similar success is anticipated, altogether securing for the club a neat sum of money. The entertainment included a splendid quartette, Misses Olds, Phillips, Pratt and Teall; superb impersonations by Miss Anna May Elliston, Miss Gladys Boorey, the latter giving Hawaiian songs in native costume, Mr. George Aird singing in Scotch, and a beautiful dance by little Miss Timewell. Amongst other features were songs by Mr. Brownell of Long Beach, Miss Olive Brown, and whistling by Mrs. C. D. Sherwin of Torrance.

Mrs. Willis Thomas and Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Magor were recent guests of Mrs. Kenneth Hubbell and Miss Fanny Gray.

On Thursday Mrs. B. M. Jones, Mrs. Lyle Balmer and Mrs. John Hurst were hostesses for the Ladies' Aid Society at their monthly noon luncheon, which was served in the Methodist Church parlor on Western avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Neubert entertained twelve people at a pleasant dinner party last Thursday evening. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Parkins, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kelso, Mr. and Mrs. James Woodruff, Mr. and Mrs. A. Bamford, Mrs. May McLaughlin, Mrs. Hattie Brown, Miss Anna May Elliston. The decorations were yellow chrysanthemums and ferns.

Miss Gladys Boorey served a chicken dinner in honor of the birthday anniversary of her aunt, Mrs. J. M. Woodruff, at the Woodruff residence Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Webb, who have been on a trip East, write that they have been snowbound in Colorado, but will soon be back in Gardena.

Mrs. W. H. Mendelssohn of Amestoy enjoyed a visit from Mrs. Amelia Price the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Berryman of Carter avenue have recently enjoyed a visit from their daughter, Mrs. Johnson, and her two children from Fullerton.

Mr. A. H. Merwin, who has for some time made his home with his son and family, E. W. Merwin, of Amestoy avenue, recently went back to Mentor, O., his former home, and to the surprise of his friends here he took to himself a new wife, Mrs. Sarah Green, an old friend. They will spend the winter in Ohio.

A HANDKERCHIEF shower was given by Misses Grace Gore, Etta McDonald and Mrs. J. P. Campbell Tuesday afternoon in honor of Miss Hester Jewell, a bride-to-be. Autumn leaves and chrysanthemums were used in decorating. Yellow candle shades were used at the table with a center piece made of a huge pumpkin filled with russet brown chrysanthemums. At the table the announcement was made of

Suits $19.50

Suits $29.50

We have many people ask us: "What is your specialty? Is it coats or suits?" Of course, they are perfectly justified in asking, for it is seldom you will find a store like Swelldom that not only specializes on coats and suits, but is supreme in both.

WE feel at a loss to know how to properly describe these wonderful suit values that go on sale tomorrow. Words are really such helpless little things at times—and so we say that you just must see these suits in order to appreciate them.

They have that indefinable something that stamps them as "different"—away out of the ordinary in style as well as price.

You know that suits are never de trop in Southern California. There is no such thing as having too many.

—and Swelldom is indeed suit headquarters.

—the suits in this sale are youthful styles.

—the very latest adaptations from master creators, modeled along the lines that women like. In all the fashionable materials and colors.

—at the above prices we expect a veritable avalanche of buyers tomorrow—so we suggest earliness.

—oh, don't overlook this—

DON'T HAVE YOUR CHILD SUFFER

As This One Did. Try Cuticura at Once. It Quickly Soothes and Heals.

"When my little girl was about two years old, eczema broke out on her face and hands. It broke out in a rash, itching and causing her to scratch and irritate it till she was very cross.

"Several different remedies were used but she got no relief as it grew worse and disfigured her face very much. After two years I got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and in about three weeks her face was healed and no trace has appeared since." (Signed) Mrs. Charles Miller, Webb, Colo., March 6, '16.

A little care, a little patience, the use of Cuticura Soap and no other on the skin for every-day toilet purposes, with touches of Cuticura Ointment, now and then, to any pimples, rashes, redness, roughness or dandruff often means a clear, healthy skin, clean scalp and good hair through life.

Sample Each Free by Mail

The talking machine brings joy into the home

That's why the Orchestrola is called "The little box of sunshine!"

—The little folks are wild about it because it tells the good old stories they like best—it never is too tired—and because it plays for their dances.

—The high school girls and boys are strong for it because it plays all the popular songs and band pieces—and it will teach them their French, German, Spanish or Italian lessons, too.

—Mother and father are delighted at its rendition of the famous operas.

—And when it sings the good old songs of yesteryear you'll note that there are tears in granddad's eyes!

—And in spite of all its accomplishments—the Orchestrola is very modestly priced—$13.50. Sold at $1.00 down—50c week!

—You'll be interested, too, in the fact that the Orchestrola will play any disc record—and play it better than you thought it could be played by any but the high-priced machines.

—An Orchestrola will make the best kind of a Christmas gift! Better order one now—it's the only way to be sure of getting one just when you want it.

—Note our easy payment plan—$1.00 down and 50c a week. Fourth Floor—Jacoby's.

A great November sale of SILKS!

—In fairness to your pocket book you should come to the Jacoby silk store on Monday—this advertisement merely hints at the great assortment of values that are ready!

ODD FELLOWS HALL was the scene of a jollification Monday night, when members of the I.O.O.F. and their families gathered in force to celebrate the anniversary of the founding of the Montebello lodge. Like most of the social af fairs of the week, it took on a Hal loween cast and one of the most laughable of the games that were played was a doughnut-eating con test, in which the ring of sweet ness is hung from a string and the hungry contestant, with hands tied behind him, takes a bite as he gets the chance. The honors in this game were carried of by Richard Bird. Refreshments suitable to the occasion were served.
A party that furnished a delightful evening's entertainment for some of the younger set was the dinner given by Miss Carol Bird in honor of her eighteenth birthday. A Halloween note ran through the decorations and the places at the beautifully-laid ta ble were marked by black cats, bats and witches. Of the jolly games played perhaps the most amusing was the hunt for fortunes, in which the searchers were directed in their quest from place to place by nu merous couplets and rewarded at last by the finding of the fortunes, which were extremely funny rhymes composed by Mrs. R. N. Bird, moth er of the young hostess. The guests were Miss Maude Allred, Miss Mir iam Green, Miss Elva Hichborn, Miss
Clara Kieselhorst and Messrs. Elve
Garrett, Fernand Caneer, Arthur
Dutcher, Harvey Stephens and Rich ard Bird.
Mr. William Max Miller, Worthy
Patron of Montebello Chapter, O.E.
S., was the honor guest from the lo cal chapter, of which Mrs. Charles Schaack is Associate Matron, when the patrons of 1916 were en tertained with a delightful luncheon
Saturday at Christopher's by the As sociated Matrons of Los Angeles and suburban chapters.
Mrs. E. A. Martin of Whittier

Miss Marie Nelson, daughter Mrs. Gus Nelson of Covina, was guest of honor at a dancing given by a number of her friends in the parish hall of Holy Trinity Church, last Satu evening. After several hours in dancing, the party adjourned the Nelson home where a light per was served.

At the biggest and finest show ever held in Los Angeles, ning all this past week and uing until next Monday evening, S. S. Aschenbrenner of Covina her ability as a floriculturist incidentally gave a big boost Covina's soil and climate, when captured eight prizes in the chry themum classes.

Never before has Mrs. Asch brenner entered her home-gr chrysanthemums in a Los Ange show, and this year a profusion wonderful flowers entered by prof sional gardeners made the prospec of the amateur look very slight. rules for amateurs and profession are not so finely drawn in floric ture as in some other lines of ness, so the Covina lady entered exhibits of chrysanthemums in professional class, and took prize for three entries and for one. Mrs. Aschenbren prize winning blooms consisted six whites, six yellows, six and six of any other color.

A number of friends spent an ning in the company of ghosts spooks at the home of Mrs. Ames, East Badillo street Tue evening. The house was deco for the occasion with jack o' terns, black cats, and other Hall een novelties. The younger of the party were dressed in co and assisted in the entertaining. other interesting feature were spook stories told by Rev. F. Gowling of San Dimas. Among guests were Rev. and Mrs. F. Gowling of San Dimas, Mr. and Elmer Thomason, Mr. and Mrs. M. Seely, Mrs. Adams of Los geles, and Rev. and Mrs. G. Thompson.

Really Every Woman Should See the Beautiful New Frocks that Fashion is Showing at Bullock's Now!

—Very "Rhapsodies of style"—Even at $25.00, are Silk Frocks—Dresses as pretty as they can be, for street—yes, and afternoon wear—of taffeta, crepe de chine, charmeuse, Georgette—in such shades as navy, royal, green, metal gray, plum, Havana brown, silver. And there are quaint basque effects among them, as well as short waist and straight slender line models—

—No meager display—as distinctive garments as though they were priced much more—brilliant with the very most favored trimmings—at $25.00.

—Then at $49.50, are Serge Frocks—distinguished serge frocks, if you please—worthy their place in the very van of the army, that has won Serge, and kept Serge, and put manufacturers to their wits' end to keep up with the demand. Fine practical dresses they are—many unique in trimming ideas. Navy serges, of course. Such dresses as you must see to understand.

—And at $49.50, are suits—on a par with the distinction of the frocks. Fur trimmed broadcloth suits in seal brown, green, purple, navy and black. Perfectly delightful models—rich in personality—to be found only at Bullock's.

—Then at $29.50—are sports suits of wool Jersey—Can't you imagine how attractive they are with 4-inch bands of plush around the bottoms of coats—convertible roll collars with plush—cuffs with plush—even the skirts edged with bands of plush. And think of the colors—Wistaria, rose, maize!—At $29.50.

—Other Suits—Ever and ever so many of them—up to very exclusive models—that make one wonder why one should trouble with the dressmaker and super-expense—

—Coats at $29.50, too—Some of kersey velour—with large raccoon collars—Others of light velour—with mouflon or skunk fur for trimming;—And plain tailored coats in black and burgundy, green and navy, light blue and navy—$29.50.

—Other coats at $39.50, and more—in the coat store that is winning new friends every day because of the coats it has, and its values, and the sincerity of its service—

—Then you should see the Skirts at $12.50 to $29.50—(these prices are mentioned particularly because of the skirts that are here at these prices.

—And the Furs, that are so practical and easy to own; the New Sweaters; the Petticoats of silk; the Elaborate Blouses and Lingerie; the Under-silks exquisite; the Hats. All together on one floor, the third, because more convenient for you—

Remember, Bullock's, Monday!

The Uncommon Silks

—to make the Uncommon Gowns that will be the most beautiful of all Fashion's Fashionables this wintertime.

—Lovely silks—bewildering in fabric, and in color—"woven of sunshine and of starlight"—by fairies of the clouds—"stored within the rainbow (stealing hidden tones)—dipped into the pot o' gold"—

—Oh! but there is luxury, and beauty, and wonder for women to see and to love, at Bullock's Monday—

—The entire silk section is radiant—sparkling at a myriad points—Silks! Silks! Silks! that are new, and different and delightful—for

Triumphant Party Frocks

—a Faille Matinee, in melting, mystery tones—36 inches wide at $2.50; Chiffon Taffetas, superb for dancing frocks, 35 inches wide at $1.50 and $1.75; Satin Francaise in exquisite evening shades at $2.50.

—Two-tone Soiree at $2.25; 40 in. Satin Charmeuse at $3.00; 40-in. French Taffetas at $2.25; 40 in. Crepe de Chine, $1.50 and $2.00; Georgette Crepe in 100 different colorings.

—And Satins without end, almost—42 inch Mirror Satins at $4.75; 40 inch Georgette Satins, $3.25; 40 inch Satin Charmeuse and 36 inch Satin Francaise at $2.50; 36 inch Yarn-dyed Satin at $1.75; 35 inch Satin de Luxe at $1.75; Satin de Cygne, $1.35,—35 inch Fancy Lining Satin, printed and brocaded, $1.25 and $1.50—

—Remember the New Silks, Monday, 2nd floor.

And Velvets at $2.45

—36 inch Costume Velvets in many colors—most surprising values—

—Then there are 42 inch Silk Chiffon Velvets in evening and street shades, at $5.00.

—40 inch Black Coating Plushes at $6.50, $7.50 and $8.00—And other pile fabrics in a brilliant display—ready for buyers to select from—

—At Bullock's—Monday—2nd floor.

New Beacon Robing 35c

—new patterns in rich, harmonizing shades—designs and colors suitable for men, women, and children—delicate shades of rose, lavender, cadet, tan, gray and the warm tints of the Indian blanket designs—27 inches wide, 35c yard—2nd floor.

Auto Robes $5 to $40

—Even Bullock's five dollar robes are of generous size and are of far better texture than would be expected by those who know the condition of the wool market.

And the $6.50 Robes

—58x78 inches, including fringe, of fine soft texture and weigh 4 pounds—most remarkable values.

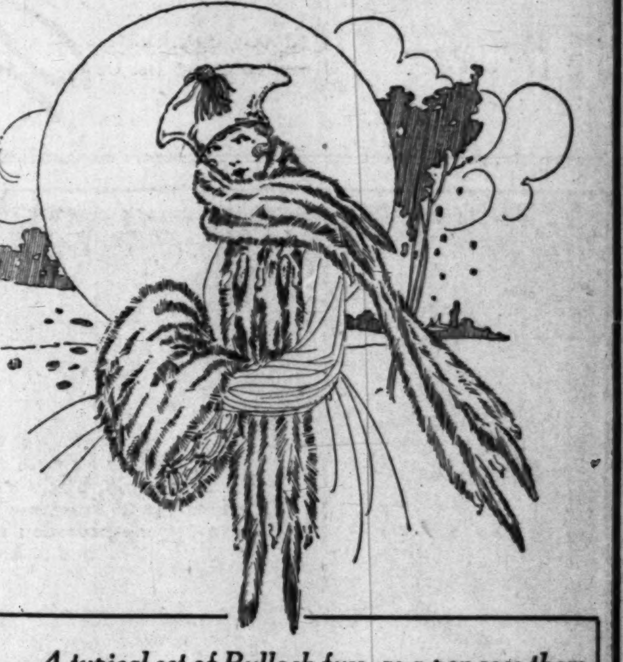
The Robes at $7.50

—Measure 58x82 inches (including the fringe) and weigh 4½ pounds. Delightfully soft texture. Plaids in gray and black, red and green, red and blue, brown and white. Solid color on the reverse side.

Bullock's $10 Robes

—98 inches long, including the fringe—plenty long enough for three or four in the seat—or to use as a couch cover. Weigh 5 pounds and the wool is of fine quality. Not absolutely all wool.

—The famous Chase plush robes in various weights and colors, $11.50 to $26.50.—Motor section, just inside Seventh Street entrance.



—A typical set of Bullock furs, as a pen sees them—which is by no means as an eye would see them. To really appreciate Bullock furs you must see the furs themselves. Third Floor.

New Coatings, $3.50

—Just a few—Perhaps we shouldn't advertise them at all—

—But while they last, they will cause such delightful buying (in comparison with the more expensive coatings)—that we can not resist mentioning them—

—"A wee bit of good luck" call it—and share them by being early, Monday—

—Then there are Broadcloths, to adore, at $3.50 and $5.00 yard—and other Broadcloths in many shades (though it does seem impossible)—at $1.75, $2.00 and $2.25 yard—

—24 styles in woolen plaids and stripes at $1.65 yard—48 inches wide— See them, Monday, 2nd floor.

Silver--Dinner Service

—A Silver Dinner Service—not Sterling, but tell it if you can—

—This beautiful dinner service of silver—

—in a Chippendale Period design—

—There are dinner plates, bread and butter plates—entree dishes—platters, chop dishes—salad bowls—trays—gravy boats—pitchers—as well as knives and forks and spoons.

—Sheffield plate—of rare beauty and quality.

—A Rich Gift—

—An Ideal Gift—One that can be started in as small or as large a way as one desires—and added to from time to time—

—Other silver suggestions for quality gifts, in variety—

—At Bullock's—1st floor.

MISS LETTIE WALLACE, who will become the bride of Jacob Preiffer of this city November 15, was the honor guest at one of the most delightful house parties of the season over Saturday and Sunday at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Clarke of the Strand. The bride-elect was invited down to spend the week-end with the Clarkes, and the arrival of the guests came as a distinct surprise. Dancing was enjoyed Saturday evening, and among those present were the chaperones Mr. and Mrs. Ned Clark, Miss Lettie Wallace, and the Misses Claire Jenkins, Mildred Wilder, Hattie Martin, Iva Corey, Matilda McArthur, Hettie Merchant, Laura Herron.

Mrs. Benjamin F. Brown of No. 67 Sixteenth street was hostess to the members of the Parent-Teeachers' Association at her beautiful home in this city on Monday afternoon. Mrs. Brown invited the members of the Ways and Means Committee to her home in order that they could discuss the bazaar to be given by the Parent-Teachers' Association on December 1 and 2. Chairmen for the various booths were appointed as follows: Fancy bags, Mrs. B. F. Brown; aprons, Mrs. G. N. Sweet; fancy work, Mrs. Herbert Preston; twels, Mrs. J. E. Walker, and handkerchiefs, Mrs. Thomas Preston.

City Marshal and Mrs. Wright Gipson entertained at their home, No. 1010 Edwin avenue, with an elaborate dinner party. Mrs. Gipson served a delicious chicken dinner and an informal evening was enjoyed afterward. The house was prettily decorated in yellow and white flowers, and thise present included Mr. and Mrs. Wright Gipson, Dr. J. A. Sample and daughter, Mrs. Pearl Andrews, Mrs. E. M. Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Claudius.

Among the most pleasant Halloween parties given at the beach this year was that on Monday evening, when the Misses Helen and Jessie Walker of Los Angeles entertained a number of friends from this city on the sands near the Strand. A huge cake was served around a crackling fire, and ghosts walked in solemn dignity about those who ate near the fire. The Misses Walker also entertained with ghost stories, and those present included Helen Hinshaw, Josephine Tilden, Anna K. Thompson, Vivien Martin, Luella Orcutt, Hazel Kenworthy, Grace Byron, Ethel Kemper, Thedaddra Lockhart, June Daniels, Ruth Martin and Janet Thompson.

The members of the Hermosa Beach Methodist Church, corner of Thirteenth and Hermosa avenue, gave one of the most successful parties of the year on Monday evening. Mr. S. T. Wickam was responsible for a large artistic Dutch windmill, which was used in a clever way as a grab bag as the large windmill revolved and the Misses Josephine Sweet and Marie Palmer represented little pickaninies, while Miss Georgia Sweet took first prize for the prettiest costume.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carrol and Mrs. A. Geantit entertained with one of the merriest outdoor affairs of the season on Saturday evening. A beach barbecue, participated in by several prominent families of the beach, was the attraction, and Mr. George F. Orgibet was master of ceremonies. Choicest steaks were roasted over the fire, and delicious coffee served with the dinner. Those who enjoyed the affair on the sands near the Strand were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carrol, Mr. and Mrs. George Orgibet and son, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Norton, Mrs. Irene White, G. S. Thatcher, Arthur Webb, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Opperman, Carl Opperman, Mr. and Mrs. A. Geantit, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Brainart, and Miss Margaret Salinas.

TUESDAY night the Christian Endeavor Society of the Christian Church gave a jolly Halloween party at the home of the Woman's Club, on Tenth street. The clubhouse was very appropriately decorated with pumpkins, witches and black cats, with cornstalks for a background. On entering, each masquerader was presented with a number, which he was to wear during the evening, the object being to see which one could guess correctly the names of the largest number of masqueraders. After this contest unmasking was in order and each of the members of the spooky throng parted with his outer face. They were next lined up in order, according to the number worn by them and made to "bob" for apples. Music and other games made the time pass speedily. Refreshments were served later in the evening.

The Happy Workers of the Presbyterian Church of Westminster met in an all-day meeting Wednesday, at the home of Mrs. George Wright. Dinner was served at noon. About twenty-five were present.

One of the enjoyable Halloween parties given during the past week was the one at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Kutzer, for the seventh-grade pupils of the grammar school, of which their son Gifford is a member. The rooms were decorated in true Halloween style and the refreshments served were also in line with the special occasion. There were thirty-nine students present, chaperoned by Miss Clark and Miss Nichols. Mrs. Kutzner was assisted by Mrs. W. W. Woodington.

The Halloween social given by the Methodist Church Tuesday evening was a splendid success. The committee provided a real spooky decoration, and Dr. Dope helped the good cause with his advice and pills. Ducking for apples, catching apples, catching the flying ring, and fortune telling, along with other games made the evening very enjoyable for young and old. The committee was T. C. DeLapp, chairman; Miss Frances Howard, Miss Allie Turner, Mrs. James Strahn and Mrs. C. A. Paul.

In honor of the seventh birthday of Wilfred Ernest Lake, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lake, a pleasant surprise was given him Wednesday at his home on Eighteenth street. Covers were laid for seven and the table was decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums. Music and games were enjoyed by the young folks.

The ladies of the Westminster Methodist Church gave a chicken pie supper and social Friday evening of last week, at the I.O.O.F. Hall. A large crowd partook of the supper, after which Halloween games were played and enjoyed by all until a late hour. The money realized by the ladies will be used for church work.

MRS. J. A. MATHEWS of Hollywood spoke at the Neptunian Clubhouse on Tuesday afternoon to a number of the ladies and their guests, who were present to enjoy one of the best programmes of the year. Mrs. Mathews, whose home in Laurel Canyon, in Hollywood, has been the meeting place of so many clubwomen this year, spoke very ably on "Federation," and gave reasons for the club's application to the State Federation of Women's Clubs. Guests of the afternoon included Mrs. John Stockwell, Mrs. L. A. Hatch, Miss Dyer, Mrs. William Smith, Mrs. Ernest Pence, Mrs. J. A. Klarquist, Mrs. J. Harry Withers, Mrs. Will G. Leburn, Mrs. A. B. Castile, Mrs. Will Simpkins, Mrs. J. A. Jones and Mrs. A. C. Connor. Mrs. J. A. Jones of Manhattan Beach, presided.

Halloween parties have been in vogue during the past week, none being more delightful than the Halloween party given Saturday night at the Neptunian Clubhouse. Large black cats and spiders, outlined against yellow crepe papers, were in every nook and corner about the clubrooms, and in the first part of the evening, cards were enjoyed. Five hundred proved to be the most popular game and first prize was won by Mrs. John Alton. The ladies' second prize was won by Mrs. A. B. Castile. The gentlemen's first prize was won by Mr. John Webster, and the second by Mr. G. L. O'Brian. Mrs. William Leabourn was chairman of this delightful occasion and those to assist her were Mrs. Ernest Pence, Mrs. William Simpkins and Mrs. Fred Young. The refreshments conformed with the Halloween motif and gingerbread and coffee were among the dainties served at a late supper.

Mrs. N. S. Hines of Los Angeles, who has been occupying her summer home on Manhattan avenue, returned to the Angel City this week.

The members of the Manhattan Bridge Club were delightfully entertained at the home of Mrs. E. B. Hagerman on Raymond avenue, Ocean Park, on Thursday afternoon. The ladies motored to the neighboring beach city in the early part of the afternoon, and were the recipients of one of the pleasantest affairs of the year. Mrs. Hagerman, who formerly was a Manhattanite, had her house beautifully decorated with pink and yellow Mamon Cochet roses. Bridge was enjoyed during the afternoon and a delicious collation served by the hostess. Those present included Mrs. E. B. Hagerman, Mrs. William Simpkins, Mrs. Ray Raymer, Mrs. J. H. Withers, Mrs. A. B. Castile, Mrs. E. B. Pence and Mrs. Ernest Bock of Culver City.

Mrs. E. G. Walker of No. 115 Strand avenue entertained on Wednesday afternoon in honor of Miss Cecil Wilson, who is soon to become the bride of Max Venable of Redondo Beach. The Walker home represented a veritable flower bower of loveliness, and pink and white carnations were used in profusion about the rooms and at the tables. About forty were present. Miss Wilson is one of the most popular brides-elect of the season, having graduated last year from the High School. Max Venable is the son of Mr. P. S. Venable, president of the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank of Redondo Beach.

Many are enjoying parties, which are formed over the week-end, and delightful affairs have been enjoyed this week by the sea. Among those who have been in this city for a few days, many of them having summer homes here, are: Mr. and Mrs. Harold Morrison of Filmore, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hempsey of Denver, Mrs. Mary H. Weaves of San Diego, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Turner of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Leftner of Los Angeles, who chaperoned a party this week; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Madison of Redlands and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Obee of Alhambra.

Claremont.

THE Pomona College girls who live at Hadden Hall gave a Halloween party Monday evening. The porches and rooms were made gay with Jack-o'-lanterns and the evening was passed in true Halloween style. Those present were Miss Irene Hall, Miss Hazel Burnham, Miss Doris Carver, Miss Jessie Ballard, Miss Katherine Ballard, Miss Grace Miller, Miss Ruth Utt, Miss Virginia Dearborn, Miss Margaret Stover, Miss Alberta Black, Miss Helen McDonald, Miss Ellen Ballard, Paul Dowling, Acker Sugg, D. L. Darsie, Raymond Adkinson, P. R. Daggs, Wilbur Cobb, Elwyn Welch, Edmund Stone, Harold Rapson, William Cree and Clifford Backstrand.

Tuesday evening the guests of the Claremont Inn gathered in the parlors for a Halloween masquerade. There were many elaborate costumes and the affair was a very successful one, both from the standpoint of gaiety and from the standpoint of beauty. Prizes were awarded the favorite costumes.

Miss Evadne Miller was the recipient of a surprise party on Wednesday evening, the occasion being her birthday.

The Merry Wives Club entertained their husbands and a few guests with a carefuly-arranged Halloween party. The Committee on Arrangements had taken such unusual care with the decorations and plans that it was unanimously voted the most successful party given by this always successful organizotion.

MRS. DUNLAP of Western avenue entertained with a delightful luncheon on Thursday for her cousin, Mrs. E. M. Kaufman. Covers were laid for eight guests. It was the occasion of Mrs. Kaufman's birthday and the party feature was a surprise to her.

On Tuesday Mr Cowing and his daughter Lela motored to Bakersfield, where the latter will remain for the present with her sister, Mrs. Ed Mallard of that city.

Mr. E. M. Kaufman is spending a short vacation in Riverside, where he is the guest of his mother, Mrs. C. Kaufman of that city.

About fifty guests enjoyed a Halloween party at the C. M. Earl residence last Saturday. The house was decorated with cornstalks and other agricultural products, and a huge cauldron added to the witchery of the occasion.

MRS. MONTAVILLE FLOWERS was hostess to the members of the P.E.O. Society at her handsome home on West White Oak avenue on Friday afternoon. Dainty refreshments were served at the close of the afternoon.

Mrs. B. J. Jacobson of this city was a guest at the brilliant reception given on Thursday afternoon at the home of Miss Doris Summerfield of Los Angeles in honor of her friend, Miss Doris Jacoby, whose engagement was announced.

The members of the Foothill Dancing Club gave their second party at the Odd Fellows' Hall on Saturday evening, the Halloween decorations, favors, refreshments and yama-yama costumes of the dancers testifying to the spirit of the harvest festival. About 100 young people attended. Among the out-of-town guests were Misses Nancy Beemer of Venice, Rebecca Thomas, Dorothy Trench and Mary Patterson of Los Angeles, and Messrs. Hoyt M. Leisure, John Reynolds and Algernon Henry Brown of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Stanley Goode entertained with a Halloween party at her home on West White Oak avenue on Friday evening. A number of jolly classmates of Mrs. Goode at Normal came out for a 6 o'clock dinner and stayed until the next morning. Later in the evening the young men arrived for a merry Halloween entertainment. The guest list included Misses Bessie West, Lucile Gregg, Viola Nicholas, Jill Partridge, Hazel West, Beatrice Peiffer, Gertrude Barnes, Alice Scott, Pauline Bilney of Los Angeles, and Miss Helen Smith, Messrs. Roy Tuttle, Vernon Blythe, Harold Hansen, Ernest Lauzier, Courtland Elliott, Leon Beaman, Glen Rives and Merle Casey.

Mrs. Wallace Fleer and Miss Irene Hammond entertained with a prettily-appointed five hundred party at their country home Friday afternoon. The rooms where the ladies greeted their friends were beautifully decorated with a profusion of feathery yellow chrysanthemums and ferns, and the yellow motif was carried out in the score cards and bon-bon baskets which were in the form of yellow blossoms. The list of guests included Mrs. A. B. Downe, Mrs. C. J. Dixon, Mrs. F. W. Fleer, Mrs. H. Miller, Mrs. Benedict Schupp, Mrs. J. W. Rutledge, Mrs. J. M. Eyerick, Mrs. W. Wright, Mrs. Wilbur Barrett, Mrs. T. Richardson, Mrs. William Hilts, Mrs. F. H. Hunter, Mrs. S. H. Reynolds, Mrs. W. H. McCune, Jr., Mrs. W. K. Shaw, Mrs. Richard Poor, Mrs. E. W. Bushnell, Mrs. Jesse Servier, Mrs. E. S. Hulme, Mrs. C. H. Sarwine, Mrs. R. M. Flemming, Mrs. W. L. Hanna, Mrs. H. L. Ellsworth, Mrs. J. W. Harvey, Mrs. Park Densmore, Mrs. Oscar Harms, Mrs. B. H. Morgan, Mrs. G. L. Spence, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Hugh Marshall, Mrs. Kenneth Carter, Mrs. Joe Fowler, Mrs. Montague Graham, Mrs. L. Cross, Mrs. Clyde Yerge, Mrs. F. Ferguson, Mrs. Strong, Mrs. Badgley and the Misses Morgan, Dixon, McPhail, Carter, Dunne and Harvey.

The closing days of October were replete with merry gatherings, when both old and young entered into the spirit of Halloween, and weird witches stalked about within doors and amiable-looking jack-o'-lanterns smiled broadly from every available place. The boys and girls held several conclaves and all kinds of pranks and good-natured fun marked the parties.

Tuesday afternoon Mrs. J. M. Bashor opened her home to the ladies of the Duarte Reading Circle. The living-room was brightened with yellow chrysanthemums. After the reception Mrs. Samuel Maxwell and Mrs. N. H. Marshall contributed interesting readings and later tea was served. About thirty members were present and among the visitors were Mrs. Gordon Maddock, Mrs. R. M. Golder, Mrs. E. E. Edwards and Mrs. M. H. Kent.

Santa Ana.

AT THE monthly meeting of the Ebell Society of the Santa Ana Valley delegates to the fifteenth annual convention of the Southern District of Federated Women's Clubs to be held at Redlands, November 14 to 17, were elected as follows: Mmes. A. M. Gardner, J. P. Baumgartner, J. E. Liebig, E. B. Burns, J. J. Pyle, L. J. Carden; alternates, Mmes. W. A. Zimmerman, J. W. Robinson, E. L. Morrison, F. H. McElree, W. L. Leihy and W. W. Anderson.

The feature of the programme of the Ebell was an illustrated talk by Mrs. Harry Upham, formerly of Orange, wife of Capt. Harry Upham of the Philippine constabulary service. Mrs. Upham appeared in a native costume of black and pink.

Halloween parties have been the order of the day and evening in Santa Ana for the last ten days. These affairs have been enjoyed to the limit, especially by the younger people.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Clay Kellogg turned their big home over to their children and their children's friends for a big Halloween frolic, Saturday evening. The house was decorated in crepe paper and jack-o'-lanterns in keeping with the season.

Yama yama costumes were worn by the guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Stout on Santa Clara avenue, Saturday evening. Ghosts, witches and Halloween stunts prevailed. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hammett, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Padgham, Waldo Feits, all of Santa Ana; Fred Newton and Christolph, Mr. and Mrs. Garr of Orange, Mr. and Mrs. Percey McArthur, Mr. and Mrs. Stafford Bell, Miss Susie Sanderson of Los Angeles.

Master Ned Johnson was host at a wiener bake, Tuesday evening. Halloween doings marked the occasion.

Cats, bats and such other things as may be used in making up a Halloween affair were used in the decorations at the home of Miss Maude Powers on East Pine street, when she entertained the Delta Alpha class of the First Methodist Sunday-school, Tuesday evening. The members of the class present were Mmes. Bertha Murphy and Jessie Craig and the Misses Ivy Hamilton, Marie Drake, Virginia Johnston, Etta Hale, Lulu Anderson, Olive and Bertha Briney, Minnie Wild, Edna and Verna Knoll, Edna Masters, Mattie Smith, Nellie O'Brien, Mamie Lamb, Myrtle Nelson, Cora Winters, Myrtle Meyer, Maud Powers and Cora Craig.

Other guests of the evening were the Misses Mary Suffron, Vera Drake, Nell Turner, Ethel and Inez Klatt, Mirle and Jeane Wilson and Blanche Anderson, and Messrs. Briney, Klatt and Powers.

Mrs. Alba J. Padgham and Mrs. T. A. Winbigler entertained Wednesday afternoon with a delightful musicale. Mrs. Padgham and Mrs. Winbigler are both talented musicians, and their perfectly-arranged entertainment was in faultless taste, and delighted their music-loving friends. Mr. and Mrs. Holmes Bishop, well-known local singers, appeared in delightful duets and solos. In splendid voice, Miss Vernon Claytor of Riverside, for the last year soloist at the Glenwood Inn, sang several Spanish songs. Mrs. Ellis contributed several whistling numbers, and a beautiful piano solo was given by Miss Kassa Bailey, a talented musician. Little Miss Velma Bishop, aged 3, enchanted with a recitation.

Those who assisted the hostesses were Miss Dorothy Fellows of Pomona, Misses Joq Baker, Laura Davis, Marharet Lyon, Violet Wiesseman, Ramona Clevenger and Mrs. McCleery.

An elaborate and delightful social affair was a progressive whist party given at James's Cafe by Mrs. Arnold Peek on Monday afternoon. Prizes went to Mrs. Nat Neff, Mrs. Fred C. Rowland and Mrs. Karl Kittle. A delicious three-course collation was served. The guests were: Mmes. S. E. Blake, Fred Chapman, W. R. Coleman, F. H. Eley, Floyd Elliott, W. A. Flood, Ella Campau, Holmes, Bach, Harl Kittle, M. B. Lacy, A. J. Lawton, Guy Martin, Barry McPhee, R. E. Miles, Nat Neff, A. J. Padgham, J. E. Paul, Fred Rafferty, E. M. Nealley, H. H. Diamond Prices
Have Not Advanced

WHEN you realize that London controls practically the entire diamond production of the world—and when you consider the conditions that have prevailed abroad for the last two years you can better appreciate the warrant for the recent various and successive advances in the price of rough diamonds.

That Feagans & Co. have not found it necessary to advance their prices is due to the excellent connections which the principals of this store have established during our thirty years of extensive diamond buying and selling.

Feagans & Co. are known throughout the trade, both at home and abroad, for the high standard of their diamond selections. Only the finest, absolutely perfect stones are permited to enter our stock. Thus every diamond buyer has the definite assurance of tangible worth in any gem he may select here.

Many very beautiful and unusual gem pieces are exclusively shown in our diamond cases.

The careful resetting and remodeling of Family Jewels is a Feagans & Co. feature.

Winter Hats
A Special Sale $7.50

That our Millinery Department is equipped to show hats of character and individuality, of authentic style and goodness of quality at popular prices was proven to every visitor at our last special sale.

We purpose tomorrow to offer even more attractive values than then. Broader assortments, more varied styles. There will be all fashionable models in turbans, mushrooms and sailors; every size, shape and color that the most fastidious can ask for. And $7.50, instead of $12.00 or $15.00, the price. —THIRD FLOOR—

November Ribbon Sale 25c
Comprising a Special Purchase . . . .

3000 yards of five-inch Ribbons bought especially for this November sale. All silk Ribbons of heavy weight for hair bows and all sorts of holiday fancy work.

Plain colors with borders of a little deeper shade and block patterns with Jacquard floral designs thrown over the surface; popular colors—light and dark. A wonderfully good value at 25c yard.
—FIRST FLOOR—

Thanksgiving Linens

The J. W. Robinson Co. mark on table linens is a guarantee of reliability, a guarantee of worth consistant with the price.

Our stock of linens was never so large or so varied. We invite your inspection.

DINNER SETS of pure Irish linen in many new and attractive patterns from 2x2 yards to 2x5 yards in size, and at prices we will be glad to have you compare with goods of equal quality elsewhere.

Special Values in Odd Cloths and Napkins

We have in stock a large collection of odd cloths in many sizes and of napkins, linens that were bought months before the advance in price. These we will offer tomorrow at prices that no judge can mistake. Most of them being marked far below original price. Don't fail to see these odd lots.
(Second Floor)

Handkerchiefs to Embroider

Those who dote on needlework will be more than pleased with this showing of plain handkerchiefs to decorate for holiday gifts. Every size is here from 7 to 11-inch and from 15c up.

Mr. and Mrs. William Beardslee and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Sarwine spent last Monday at Mt. Lowe, where they were luncheon guests of friends.

A number of Duarte young people who were accompanied by their high school teachers, Miss Methfessel and Miss Sturges, motored to San Gabriel River Thursday evening for a marshmallow and wienie roast. They spent a merry hour about their glowing campfire, telling stories and singing, and with the tempting supper rounded out an enjoyable evening.

Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ryder of Buena Vista avenue entertained at dinner, the occasion being a unique one in that it marked the fiftieth anniversary of Mr. Ryder's leaving his native land—Germany—to make the United States the home of his choice. Gathered about the dinner table were Mrs. A. V. Perry, Miss Perry, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Hanna, Mr. and Mrs. Freeland H. Hunter, Miss Aldine Hunter and Miss Marjorie Hunter.

SOCIETY.

variety of other eatables preceded an evening of merry indoor games. The honoree of the occasion received many appreciated gifts and ardent wishes for many happy returns of the day.

A jolly Halloween party was given by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Stout at their home on Santa Clara avenue, located between Orange and Santa Ana, on Saturday evening at which Fred Newton, Mr. Christolth and Mr. and Mrs. Garr of Orange were guests. There were other out-of-town guests present, including Mr. and Mrs. Percy McArthur, Mr. and Mrs. Stafford Bell and Miss Susie Sanderson of Los Angeles. The guests wore yama yama costumes and both house and grounds were illuminated by jack-o'lanterns and candles. High peaked hats were favors and cards and dancing were the diversions of the evening. The refreshments included witches' brew, compound magic and devil's food, and fruitade was served throughout the evening.

The Leo S. Douglas home, situated northwest of Orange, was the scene of a pleasant birthday surprise recently, when Mrs. Douglas planned and carried out a dinner party, where the guests were all relatives of Mr. Douglas, the honoree of the occasion. The table was strikingly decorated with sprays of smilax and a handsome birthday cake bearing the number of years Mr. Douglas has resided on this mundane sphere, the numerals and description being worked out with delicious kernels of toothsome nuts. Fried chicken was the piece de resistance. Covers were laid for the host and hostess and the following: Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Douglas and two sons, Hubert and Clyde, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Howell, Mrs. E. B. Crownover and daughter Mercedes.

Mrs. Harry Upham, formerly Miss Blanche Shoemaker of Orange, but now residing with her husband, Capt. Harry Upham of the Philippine Constabulary, in the Philippine Islands, is visiting in Orange and Santa Ana, greatly to the delight of her friends. Mrs. Upham is accompanied by her husband, who is making a decidedly pleasant impression upon the friends of his wife, who enjoys a large acquaintance in this city and locality. Mrs. Upham is giving interesting talks on her three-years' experience in the Philippine Islands, illustrating her interesting story with stereopticon pictures. The speaker wears a Filipino costume of pink and black during her talk, making a most attractive picture. Her friends are regretting greatly her probable early departure, Capt. Upham having to return to the islands in the early part of this month.

Mrs. L. H. Mills, prominent in club work here, addressed the Orange county W.C.T.U. at Anaheim on Wednesday, October 24.

San Bernardino.

AT THE beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Batchelor at No. 840 E. street, the marriage of Miss Mabel Ruth Poppett and Elmer Harold Deems was solemnized Wednesday evening before a large company of relatives and friends. Rev. Alvah Grant Fessenden, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, officiated. Miss Gladys Poppett and Norman Carr, the former a sister of the bride, were the attendants.

Owing to the fact that the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Huley Poppett, is in Waterman Canyon, the ceremony occurred at the Batchelor home as a matter of convenience, the Batchelors being close friends of the Poppett family, which is one of the pioneer families of this valley.

The beautiful brunette bride wore a charming wedding gown fashioned on simple lines, a crepe meteor of creamy white, the skirt shirred at the waist. The bolero bodice was of Georgette crepe and fell over the short sleeves. Cecil Brunner roses were carried.

A jolly Halloween party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Kneedler at No. 866 Arrowhead avenue, Tuesday evening, at which Miss Elizabeth Kneedler was hostess to a company of her High School friends. Ghostly figures and grinning jack-o'-lanterns greeted the guests from the veranda and within other Halloween decorations were used effectively. Much amusement was derived from pantomime acting in which the guests were paired off to assume characters in fiction and myth. The affair was enjoyed by the Misses Margery Flagg, Lois Young, Pearl Cleghorn, Nellie Carter, Julia Shepherdson, Ruth Graw, Evelyn Grow, Ruth Hasty, Stella Mason, Estelle Starke, Marian McCook, Mildred Hott, Lucile Welborn, Irma Jones, Elizabeth Kneedler, and Messrs. Albert Bemis, Herbert Taylor, Gordon Park, Russell Collins, Edwin Suverkrup, Gerald Wilson, George Ashbaugh, Harold Swisher, Carl Adams, Fred Jenkins, Lloyd Warner, Robert Broadbelt, Earl Waller, Lamar McGarvey.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Deems of this city. The couple will make their home in San Bernardino.

The San Bernardino Elks entertained their ladies elaborately at a splendidly-appointed Halloween dance on Tuesday evening at the clubhouse. The hall was decorated in orange and black crepe paper with pumpkins, black cats and other seasonal features. The committee included W. H. Billingsley, W. O. Harris, F. B. Mack, H. C. Wright, M. C. McKenney and E. J. Oehl. Almost 100 couples enjoyed the evening. Refreshments were served in the dining-room of the clubhouse.

AT CAR-NA-LEA RANCH, their delightful home on upper Euclid avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac C. Baxter were hosts over the week-end to a merry house party of young people, the affair being in honor of their nephew, Beecher Hungerford. The guests included Miss Dorothy Gurley, Miss Betsy Gurley, Miss Elizabeth Messerley, Miss Catherine Messerley, Miss Louise Carter, Addison Gurley and Alfred Carter of Los Angeles. With tennis tournaments, hikes to the mountains and motoring, not a minute of the time hung heavy on the hands of the young people. Saturday evening a delightful supper dance was enjoyed, the appointments being in keeping with the Halloween season, and Mr. and Mrs. Baxter being assisted in entertaining by Mr. and Mrs. John B. Morrow. Bidden also to the dance were Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Harwood, Miss Ardis Richardson, Miss Julia Neales, Miss Geraldine Waltz, Miss Margaret Swan, Miss Bessie Sheppard, Miss Dean Parke, Miss Mary Clark, Miss Edith Hanson, Miss Virginia Bigger, Miss Olive Granger, Miss Leslie Gurley, Walter Park, Keith Johnston, Homer Crocheron, Earl Paul, E. Birch Harrison, Richard Waltz, Lophair Teeter, John Mann, William Vernon and Beecher Hungerford.

Charming in its simplicity was the wedding Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey David Austin, No. 550 Third avenue, when their daughter, Miss Portia Ray Austin, became the bride of Amos Reginald Colborn. The Rev. R. C. Stone, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, was the officiant. Roses and fernery adorned the house for the occasion. Just before the ceremony Miss Ferneena Austin, a sister of the bride, sang very sweetly, "I Love You Truly," and while the young people were plighting their troth Mrs. Earle Colborn at the piano played very softly "The Wayside Chapel." At the close of the ceremony Miss Austin sang Carrie Jacob Bond's "Perfect Day." The wedding was witnessed by members of the two families and intimate friends. A wedding dinner followed. The bride, a Chaffey High School graduate, is a charming young woman and was one of Upland's most popular belles. The bridegroom holds a responsible position with the Ontario Power Company. After a honeymoon at San Diego, Mr. and Mrs. Colborn will go to housekeeping in a new bungalow just completed by the bridegroom on Sixth avenue.

The attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Morrow on Euclid avenue was the scene of a delightful little supper dance Monday evening, it being the first of a series of charming affairs planned by the Morrows for the winter season. Bright decorations in keeping with Halloween added to the attractiveness of the rooms and a delicious supper followed the dancing. Those enjoying the delightful hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Morrow numbered Mr. and Mrs. Henry Edson Swan, Mr. and Mrs. Crombie Allen, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Monroe Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. John Dawson Howe, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac C. Baxter, Mr. and Mrs. Dalton A. Field, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Howard Payne and Mr. and Mrs. George T. Stamm.

A delightful event of recent date in Upland society was the tea of charming appointments with which Mrs. George Hall formally opened her wonderfully-attractive new house on Euclid avenue and incidentally complimented Mrs. James Lynward Grahame, who before her recent marriage was Miss Maude Gerry. Choice roses adorned the rooms of the new home. Mrs. Hall was assisted in entertaining by her cousins, Mrs. George Zorne of Claremont and Mrs. William Zorne of San Dimas. A tempting collation was served and music added to the enjoyment of the afternoon. The guests included Mrs. Grahame, Miss Eva Gerry, Mrs. Reid B. Bordwell, Mrs. Earl M. Maurer, Mrs. Henry O. Blohm, Mrs. John B. Craig, Mrs. Charles Pierce Fuller, Mrs. Jerome Hill Titus, Miss Mildred Ware, Mrs. Harlow Wilson, Mrs. Patrick Henry McQuillen, Mrs. Jedd F. Sawyer, Mrs. Raymond C. Norton, Mrs. George Tracy Morris, Mrs. Owen E. Atwood, Mrs. Paul Bodenhamer and Mrs. Frederick C. Foehde.

Coming as an unexpected and interesting piece of news tp Upland society was word of the wedding Tuesday evening of Sherman E. Kirk, well-known young Upland business man, and Miss Stella Davis, which was celebrated at Fairmont, Ind., the home of the bride. When Mr. Kirk left recently for the East it was supposed that the trip was purely in the interests of the business in which he is associated with his father, C. W. Kirk, and news of the wedding came as a complete surprise. Miss Davis formerly made her home in Los Angeles and Pomona and has a number of friends here. Mr. Kirk and his bride are expected to return to Upland early in the present month.

Miss Barbara M. Sieck was delightfuly honored Thursday evening on the occasion of the anniversary of her birth, when her mother, Mrs. Charles Sieck, entertained a few intimate friends at a dinner of charming appointments at their home on North San Antonio avenue. Decorations and appointments were in keeping with the Halloween season.

Autumn leaves in red and brown were used by Mrs. D. D. Crew for the adornment of Aloha, her charming bungalow home, No. 690 Second avenue, when she entertained with a pleasant afternoon affair Friday. The early portion of the afternoon was spent at fancy work and a musical programme was enjoyed. A light luncheon was served. Mrs. Crew's guests included Mrs. J. V. Benson, Mrs. Theodore H. Sams, Mrs. W. M. Brown, Mrs. John M. Collins, Mrs. William C. Cline, Mrs. Paul Cushing, Mrs. William B. Duncan, Mrs. Chad K. Francisco, Mrs. George Gregg, Mrs. Andrew Ma thur H. TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA.

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Solution of Last Week's Question:

Our question of last week was a difficult one as it could not be presumed you knew the volume of our business with all its details. Below we will give you our plan of operation to cover the question asked, regarding Christmas deliveries.

All salesmen are requested to get as early a date as possible for Christmas deliveries, and when the customer asks for the goods to be delivered the day before Christmas, which is on the Sabbath, our salesmen are instructed to notify them of this fact, and get an earlier delivery date.

Our volume of business is so large that it takes several days to take care of our promises, consequently we begin to ship out-of-town orders in sufficient time to get to the customer before Christmas.

We will deliver all goods in neighboring districts, and in as many cases as possible, city orders, Saturday morning and all during the day of Saturday.

In this large volume there are bound to be some errors of addresses and sometimes other reasons for not making deliveries as ordered. In such cases, we call volunteers of our help who are willing to work late, or even on Sunday to deliver these orders early Sunday morning. The help doing this work is taken care of satisfactorily by the Firm.

Any other emergencies are taken care of Monday morning.

To please our customers is our main object.

NEW QUESTION No. 2

Some customers in buying Christmas presents wish them sent C.O.D. (collect on delivery.) Sometimes the present is to be delivered to another party. In a case of this kind, what would you do?

Consult your fathers and mothers—ask them what they would do—and when you have decided what you think would be the best solution of our question, write us, clearly and briefly, your answer. Do not use more than 150 or 200 words, write on one side of paper only, give the name of school you attend and grade, give your father's or mother's full name and address and sign your name. Answers to this week's question must be mailed to reach us not later than Thursday, November 2d.

This contest is NOT open to the children of any employes of Barker Bros.

and a cheery fire crackled in the huge fireplace. Out in the garden a profusion of vines and orange trees formed a setting in which cornstalks and pumpkin lanterns were pleasingly displayed. A tall tree was literally agleam with countless blinking incandescents. There was a grand march, followed by an enjoyable season of dancing. The hostess late in the evening served a delicious cafeteria supper, consisting of home-made doughnuts, pumpkin pies, red apples and coffee. Those who enjoyed the hospitality of the Dunns were Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Pletcher, Mr. and Mrs. O. Eisenbraun, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Close, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jacobs, Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Bliss, Mr. and Mrs. David Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Pollard, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Squires, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Johnston, Mmes. Frank Woodbury, Blanche Norwood, Alice Redfern, the Misses Ella Powell, Leta Thierman, Frances Woodbury, Elizabeth Jensen and Messrs. Paul and Arthur Reeder, Henry Powell, Howard and William Morse, E. B. Hill, Marvin Thierman, George Herr, Dan Jackson and Donald Norwood.

The Century Five Hundred Club was entertained Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. F. A. Averbeck at No. 490 Jefferson street. Choice chrysanthemums were used in working out an attractive color scheme. After the card games were over Mrs. Averbeck served light refreshments to Mrs. C. C. Condit, Mrs. F. W. Burns, Mrs. A. C. Abbott, Mrs. Frank Garcelon, Mrs. Elliott Hinman, Mrs. George Belcher, Mrs. H. B. Davis, Mrs. Charles M. Stone, Mrs. Charles D. Baker, Mrs. H. M. Jones, Mrs. C. W. Guerin, Mrs. George Lathrop, Mrs. H. G. Tinsley, Mrs. E. L. Dowling and Mrs. Elsbery W. Reynolds of Relay Heights.

Mrs. Fred Wehn, who resides on East Holt avenue, provided a merry evening for the members of the Acacia Five Hundred Club Tuesday. She gave a sheet and pillow case party, everybody being required to appear in spook raiment. The first half hour was devoted to guessing. Fortune telling, dancing and music provided amusement in abundance and a two-course supper furnished ample refreshment for Mr. and Mrs. Will Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Pitts, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hartman, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pabst, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Sheets, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Berry, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Stahlman, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Perrin, Mr. and Mrs. Carl White, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Glins and Mr. and Mrs. Walter McGee.

A party of boys were guests of Master Walter Willey at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Willey, No. 394 Columbia street, Tuesday evening. The youngsters amused themselves by playing Halloween games and telling stories. Those present were Howard Wright, Bert King, Charles Barnes, Wayne Ovington, Willie Hickson, Paul Weisbrod, Sam Saltonstall, George Hurt, Lockwell Smith, Nelson Barcus, Paul Parker and Clyde Patton.

The Pomona Women's Club was entertained Monday afternoon by Mrs. Frank Osler at her residence in Alvarado court. She was assisted by Mrs. Anna Grant. Mrs. Mell Campbell and Miss May Bentley read papers on Alaskan travels. Special guests for the afternoon were Mrs. C. E. Genung and Mrs. J. M. Bray. Club members attending were Mmes. C. W. Hale, E. B. Price, Edith J. Wood, J. W. Wilkinson, John Wasson, J. G. Robertson, D. L. Persons, J. E. Owen, Mary Oathout, H. A. Mitchell, Thomas McKinley, Emma McClees, C. F. Johnson, S. N. Garden Grove.

ONE of the most interesting and enjoyable as well as profitable meetings of the Tuesday Afternoon Club was held recently with Mrs. J. O. Arkley. The women were particularly interested in the study of the proposed amendments to be voted on November 7, and special attention was given to those of most value to women. A splendid talk was made by Mrs. Arkley on "Mothers' Pensions," and "Community Property" by Mrs. McLeod. Discussion was animated on these two proposed amendments, but relaxation followed the social hour later when the daintiest of spreads was served by Mrs. Arkley. The hostess was charmingly assisted by her efficient daughters. Misses Muriel and Hilda Arkley. Mrs. Bosey extended an invitation for the next meeting of the the club to be held at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Knapp and their daughter, Miss Dorothy, with Mr. and Mrs. P. M. German motored to Los Angeles on a recent Monday evening, when the men of the party attended a men's banquet at the Y.M.C.A. building, after which a conference of Orange county Y.M.C.A. men was held. The principal address of the evening was given by Mr. Houghton of Philadelphia. The automobile trip from Los Angeles to Garden Grove after the conference was a delightful one.

Mrs. C. B. Scott had as a house guest on a recent Monday, Miss Myrtle Myrick of Long Beach. After a delightful day together Mr. and Mrs. Scott and Miss Constance German accompanied Miss Myrick to her Long Beach home, the Scotts taking their automobile for the trip to the seashore and the return to Garden Grove.

Mr. and Mrs. George Barnes of Garden Grove are visiting for a couple of weeks in the exposition city, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sherer of San Diego being their hosts. The Garden Grove visitors anticipated seeing all of the interesting scenic points in the vicinity of San Diego as well as the wonders of the great exposition fostered by the bay city.

Tustin.

THE ladies of the Tustin Ebell household economic section were entertained recently at the pretty country home of Mrs. B. H. Sharpless, who was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. S. W. Stanley. The topic for the afternoon was "China," and an unusually interesting feature was an exhibit of Chinese curios belonging to Mrs. Stanley, whose sister has been for many years a missionary in China. Chinese children's toys, drawn work, embroidery, fans, old Chinese prints and a pair of the tiny shoes worn by Chinese women were seen in the exhibit. Yellow was the color motif in decorations and in the delicious refreshments served, magnificent dahlias and chrysanthemums being the flowers used. Mrs. Stanley assisted in serving, gowned in a gorgeously-embroidered robe sent from the celestial kingdom. Avocado salad was one of the principal items in the refreshments, the salad ingredient coming from fruit gathered from the wonderful Sharpless avocado tree near Whittier, the fruit of which sells at $10 a dozen. Those present were Mrs. E. M. Nealley, Mrs. J. E. Paul, Mrs. Byron Johnson, Mrs. W. L. Leihy, Mrs. N. Beisel, with the hostesses, Mrs. Sharpless and Mrs. Stanley.

A popular and widely-known young Tustin couple, Miss Gertrude Lambert and Aaron Ozmun, quietly slipped away from Tustin on last Monday morning for San Diego, where they were married in the afternoon. A brief honeymoon was spent at the exposition before return to Tustin, later Mr. and Mrs. Ozmun leaving for Puente where they will reside on an extensive ranch property owned by the bridegroom. Mr. Ozmun is a son of Mrs. Gertrude Oliver, the widow of the late Byron Oliver, well known in Los Angeles and Pasadena. The bride is the daughter of a well-known Tustin citizen, Charles Lambert. The kindliest of wishes will follow Mr. and Mrs. Ozmun to their new home.

Capt. and Mrs. George Prather opened their beautiful Tustin home on a recent Wednesday afternoon for the entertainment of the degree staff of the Santa Ana Fraternal Aid Union. The staff includes Mrs. W. H. Trindle, Mrs. J. E. Armstrong, Mrs. H. Peacock, Mrs. J. Brown, Mrs. M. Schroff, Mrs. R. Walbridge, Mrs. J. W. McNeill, Mrs. C. Joyce, Miss Mildred Joyce, Mrs. Agnes Collum, Mrs. W. Zimmerman and Mrs. H. P. Christensen. The affair was in the nature of a Halloween party with decorations significant of the season. Curtains were drawn and a most tempting repast was served after a lively guessing contest in which Mrs. W. B. Gould and Mrs. William White were prize winners.

The pupils of the seventh grade of the Tustin Grammar School had a highly-enjoyable and instructive trip to the Co-operative Beet Sugar Factory on Monday forenoon. Twenty-four of the young people accompanied by Principal B. F. Bezwick, Miss Casner and the parents of several of the pupils were in the party and all of the different departments of the task of making sugar out of sugar beets were fully demonstrated for the visitors. Sugar in the different stages of refinement was served generously to the young seekers after knowledge and those who accompanied them. The trip to and from the factory was made in automobile and start was made from Tustin at 7:30 a.m.

Ontario.

COUNTLESS hanging baskets of beautiful roses, wonderful chrysanthemums and ferns transformed her home, No. 315 West E street, into a veritable bower of blossom and greenery Saturday evening when Miss Ala Ballou entertained a merry party of friends at an auction bridge tournament. Five tables were used in the play. The prizes, a dainty art tray and a handsome mahogany-mounted ash receiver, were captured by Mrs. John Stewart Ingalls and Roy Lyman Henry. Tally cards for the gentlemen bore sketches of buckets containing champagne bottles with the inscription, "Vote No on Nos. 1 and 2," while sketches of roses adorned the ladies' cards. A tempting supper followed the tournament. Those enjoying Miss Ballou's charming hospitality included Dr. and Mrs. Frank Monroe Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Ray Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey O. Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lyman Henry, Mr. and Mrs. William Starbuck Fenton, Mr. and Mrs. Crombie Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Baugh Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart Ingalls, Mrs. Betty Henderson Ripple, Miss Frieda Graettinger, Albert C. Reynolds, Glenn D. Smith and Leonard J. Frankish.

Halloween was observed in delightful fashion when Miss Dorothy Ross, Miss Maisie Barclay, Miss Thelma Bradley and Miss Lavon Cory entertained with a merry barn dance in a large "haunted" barn on the Cory ranch in Mountain avenue. Black cats, witches and other grotesque figures predominated in the decorations and the guests were bidden to come in fancy costume. A tempting supper was served during the evening, the menu being in keeping with the Halloween season. Dancing continued until the morning hours. The chaperones included Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Barclay, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy R. Bradley, Mrs. William J. Phelps and Mrs. Joel L. Smith. Bidden to the delightful affair were Miss Verna Jacques, Miss Mabel Hardwick, Miss Mayme Harvey, Miss Esther Campton, Miss Bessie Barclay, Miss Florence Sturdivant, Miss Ruth Miller, Miss Isabel Ensley, Miss Dorothy Van Wagner, Miss Lucille Gilbert, Miss Della Kinzi, Miss Della Ledig, Miss Ruth Allen, Miss Elizabeth Fiske, Miss Vernice Kistner, Miss May Clark, Miss Gertrude Eymann, Miss Pearl Edwards, Miss Esther Hartmaster, Miss Katharine Sargent, Miss Lillian Boetcher, Clarence Milling, Donald Meredith, Archie Wallace, Don Palmer, Donald Fiske, Nelson Hargroves, Dean Palmer, Harold Stevens, Dewey Harnish, Frank Phillips, Bruce Barcley, Oliver Cory, Frank Williams, Clarence Butterfield, Leo Sharps, Elmer Krehbiel, Albert Salter, Eugene Fuller, Leonard Salter, Earl Rice, Walter Heathman, Ray Turner, Harold Kennedy, Lyle Bennett, Corbin Develon, Howard Deems and Fred Boetcher.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Starbuck Fenton, No. 317 West H street, was the scene of a Halloween dance of charming appointments Tuesday evening, about sixteen couples enjoying the happy occasion. With Halloween decorations lending brightness to the surroundings, the scene was a gay and merry one. A tempting midnight supper followed the dancing. Those enjoying the delightful hospitality of the Fenton home numbered Mr. and Mrs. Welles Thompson Ross, Mr. and Mrs. George Byron Ford, Jr., Dr. and Mrs. Frank Monroe Taylor, Dr. and Mrs. Jerome Hill Titus, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Baugh Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. William Freeman Brainerd, Mr. and John Stewart Ingalls, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Scott Strain, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Ray Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey O. Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crombie Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lyman Henry, Miss Marie Craighead, Miss Ala Ballou, Miss Frieda Graettinger, Albert C. Reynolds and Leonard J. Frankish.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Wallace Fisher, No. 102 South Vine avenue, was the scene of a particularly delightful affair Saturday evening. Decorations and appointments were in keeping with the spirit of Halloween. The evening was spent at progressive five hundred. The first prize was captured by Miss Edna Kuhlman, while the consolation fell to Mrs. Henry Fisher Thompson. A collation followed the games. Mr. and Mrs. Fisher's guests numbered Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Arthur Freemire, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. May, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Smith Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fisher Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar N. Kenney, Mr. and Mrs. William P. Rayner, Mrs. Orrin Ziegler Hubbell, Mrs. W. P. Tucker, Miss Edna Kuhlman and Henry Kuhlman.

In honor of all Halloween, Mr. and Mrs. Archie D. Mitchell pleasantly entertained a jolly party of friends Tuesday evening at their home, No. 302 East E street. Old-fashioned Halloween games were enjoyed and decorations and appointments all were in keeping with the season. Supper was served in the garage. The guests numbered Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Whitson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Whitson, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Pitts, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Carder, Miss Edith Beesley, Miss Flora Thurber, Dr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Witham, Miss Winifred Mitchell, E. Joseph Sandford, Harry Plum and Dr. Fred Mitchell.

Hotel Casa Blanca was the scene of gayety Tuesday evening, when members of the younger society set gathered to enjoy a masquerade dance. Elaborate decorations in keeping with the spirit of Halloween were a feature of the evening and gay and varied were the costumes of the dancers. Music was furnished by Dossinger's orchestra and light refreshments were served. Manager H. M. Nickerson is to introduce a series of Sunday evening concerts at the Casa Blanca, commencing with this evening. The first programme is to be under the direction of Mrs. Florence Cowen Richards, well-known musician of Ontario and Redlands.

Oxnard.

HALLOWEEN, with its accompaniment of witches, black cats, jack-o'lanterns and gay black and yellow decorations, has formed the decorative motif for most of the social affairs given this week, and many merry games have been woven 'round the time-honored superstitions of the witches' festival.

Mrs. Richard Beardsley was hostess at a prettily-arranged birthday party at which her husband and his twin brother, Mr. Robert L. Beardsley, were guests of honor. Halloween colors were attractively used in the decorations for the table, and in pretty place cards, and the two guests of honor were the recipients of several handsome gifts from members of the family. The table held places for: Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Beardsley, Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. Beardsley, Mrs. Fred Kelsey, Misses Beatrice Beardsley, Helen Beardsley, Grace Hankinson, Mrs. Robert Beardsley, Jr., Messrs. Monroe Beardsley, Ralph Hankinson and Alvin Hankinson.

Black cats guarded the dance programme at a delightful party given for Miss Maud Allan DeBrell on the occasion of her fifteen birthday Saturday evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. DeBrell. All of the guests assisted in keeping the affair a secret from the guest of honor, and her surprise added to the enjoyment of the merry party. Mrs. DeBrell was assisted in entertaining and in serving the dainty refreshments, by Mrs. H. M. Staire and Mrs. Joseph Hummel. Twenty-eight guests were present.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Wilder entertained a congenial little company of friends with an informal dancing party at their home Thursday. Chrysanthemums were attractively used in the decorations.

A Halloween dance was given by the ladies of the Women's Improvement Club of Hueneme Beach. A.O.U.W. Hall was gay with Halloween colors and designs, and the dancers came in fancy costumes, adding to the attractiveness of the scene. Doughnuts, fresh apple cider and candy were the refreshments.

The October festival was the motif for the delightful card party enjoyed by members of the Oxnard Monday Club in place of their regular study programme Monday. Jack-o'lanterns, big and litle, decorated every possible nook in Knights of Columbus Hall, and orange-shaded lights and crepe draperies added to the effect. At five hundred, the game of the afternoon, Mrs. M. C. DeBrell won the prize, a flower vase. Tea and wafers were served, Mrs. J. J. Krouser, who was in charge of the afternoon, being assisted by Mmes. J. L. Forster and M. C. DeBrell, who poured tea, and by Mmes. Louis Maulhardt, E. J. Holden, Homer Markwell and C. V. Conklin, in serving. The decorations were in charge of Mrs. W. B. Meyer and Mrs. E. G. Ruggles.

Miss Mary Howard, the first bride-to-be of the Santa Rosa Valley Women's Club, was honor guest at a delightful social meeting of the club at Rosa Lea farm Thursday. Splendid chrysanthemums were attractively used throughout the pretty country home. Twenty-five persons were seated at the dining-table, where a bountiful luncheon was served. This was followed by a cleverly-arranged shower, when Miss Howard was the surprised and delighted recipient of many useful and beautiful gifts from her fellow-club members.

Officers of the Delta Alpha class of the Methodist Sunday-school were elected at a pleasant Halloween party held at the home of Mrs. W. E. Condon. The officers elected were: Velma Nicholson, president; Charlotte Day, Alta McNaughton and Katherine Houser, vice-presidents; Hazel Owens, secretary, and Genevieve Hill, treasurer. Halloween and other games occupied the evening, and appropriate refreshments were served by Mrs. Condon, assisted by Mrs. J. Lowenstein.

A bazaar will be held at the home of Mrs. Thomas R. Bard in Hueneme Saturday, November 11, the proceeds to be divided among several organizations for relief in Belgium, France and England. Tables and booths for the sale of various articles will be arranged, and one table will be devoted to the display and sale of little mascots made by the ladies of the Canadian Prisoners of War Committee. The affair is expected to draw a large number of women from different sections of the county, as the Bards have been active in war relief measures and have considerable interest in the work.

—The union suit in the center of the above illustration is an Athena union suit. The other two union suits are of another make. Study the picture—(comparison proves.) Then come to Bullock's and study Athena underwear itself—

Athena

—The Tailored Knit Underwear for women and children—

—The above picture graphically shows reasons why Athena Knit Underwear should be the Knit Underwear for every woman and child.

—The following story explains the picture—

—And Athena Underwear is at Bullock's exclusively in Los Angeles.

A Revelation

Whether it was "good form" to make a photographic contrast between Athena underwear and another well known and extensively advertised brand was a question recently discussed and most conclusively answered, as the accompanying important statement shows.

—In order to show the difference between Athena Underwear and other kinds of women's underwear, Mr. F. L. Drane, the inspirer and director of manufacture of Athena Underwear, had two suits ironed flat and hung upon a door in the private office of Mr. Wm. R. Rankin. One was a suit of Athena Underwear, and the other a prominent and highly advertised brand.

—The suit of Athena Underwear was so evidently superior in shape to the other suit that Mr. Rankin wished to be sure the contrast could not be due to the manner in which the two suits had been ironed, or hung up. He, therefore, sesecured another suit of the same brand of underwear and hung it so that the Athena Underwear would be between the other two suits, as they are shown in the picture.

—The contrast between the two kinds of underwear was so striking that Mr. Rankin directed the attention of Mr. Earl Reeve, western manager of the Curtis Publishing Company (publishers of the Saturday Evening Post and the Ladies' Home Journal,) and Mr. Thomas Parlin, a special investigator for the same company, to the demonstration of the three suits as they hung side by side on the wall of Mr. Rankin's office.

—The first remark made by Mr. Reeve after he had looked at the three suits as they hung in a row was:

—"I never before have understood the story of underwear. This is a revelation to me. This tells the whole story. I believe it now. I wouldn't have believed it if I hadn't seen this display for myself."

—Turning to Mr. Drane, who was present, Mr. Reeve asked:

—"Do you claim that the difference between Athena Underwear and the two suits shown here is the same as that between Athena Underwear and all other kinds?"

—"Absolutely" Mr. Drane replied. "Athena Underwear is the only underwear that is tailored to fit without being stretched. Select a suit of any other kind of underwear you please, and you will find the same contrast between it and Athena Underwear that is shown between Athena and these two suits of ordinary underwear."

—"Well," said Mr. Reeve, "this leaves nothing more to be said. This is real underwear advertising. It's the biggest underwear story that ever has been told. And the important part of it is that no manufacturer of other underwear can take exception to it.

—"Here is the proof of what you say about the difference between Athena Underwear and other underwear."

—Mr. Parlin agreed with the sentiments expressed by Mr. Reeve and added:

—"I am very glad to have seen this contrast demonstrated, as it is demonstrated by these three suits of underwear. I can see now the absolute justice of every claim that has been made for Athena Underwear. It isn't necessary to argue this case at all. This suit of underwear hung beside the others tells the story of its superiority so clearly and so convincingly that nothing needs to be added. As Mr. Reeve has said, it is a revelation in underwear merchandising."

ROMANCE OF THE RAILROADS.

V.—Alfred H. Smith of the New York Central—From Section Foreman to Boss of the Whole System.

BY JOHN WALKER HARRINGTON

"Nix on riding the saw," rumbled Mike Walsh out of his red flannel chest. "What do yez think this is—a teeter-totter? Brace up, you white-faced dude, or I'll report ye to the boss."

A tall and likewise slight young man straightened out an aching back, gripped his sorely blistered hands more tightly about the hickory handle of the saw which he and Mike were wearing through a tie, and put every ounce of strength he had into his task.

If Alfred H. Smith can be said to have any one rule for life which stands out among all others, it is that he has ever done his share of the work which came his way. He is not an easy going boss, yet from his youth up he has never ridden the saw. He always made good and right then and there he made good with Mike Walsh.

To begin, let us trace him from his start in railroading up to that August day under a broiling sun—which also was the opening of an epoch that brought him to the presidency of the New York Central lines. He was born in Ohio, educated in the public schools and at the age of 14 years, became a messenger in the offices of the Lake Shore and Michigan in Cleveland at a salary of $18 a month.

Messengers of this kind carry sheaves of reports and bundles of pink and blue vouchers from one room to another. If he had remained, he might have been chief of interoffice communication, with a $5 raise. Young Smith was trained to dig down into big drawers and shelves and retrieve file so and so. He was a kind of "Files on parade." Always he had his eyes focussed on some way of escape from this routine of portage. As he responded to bells and came with brisk step to the side of executives sitting anchored to roll tops, he turned over in his mind, as to the best method of arriving at a high place in the railroad world.

His responsibilities in life were heavy, for he lved with his widowed mother and his sisters, and he felt that he must earn money and that quickly. Month in and month out, he worked with all his might. He was finally promoted to clerk in charge of stationery stock. He ranged the pink vouchers, and the green blanks, and the brass paper clips and the pins in neat and orderly rows and honored requisitions. This was before the days of office engineers, and railroads were run much more on stationery than they are now. Alfred H. Smith was wise enough to realize that he would be also stationary for many a year, unless he started out on a new line.

Having made up his mind it did not take long to act. He asked to be transferred to the construction work of the company, and this is how we find him up in Michigan at the other end of a saw, learning the outside of the business with his rough-necked tutor.

The Irish foreman, who looked him over for the first time remarked something about the love of Mike.

"A dude," cried he, "a dude in a white shoirt has come out from the gineral offices to be after learning practical railroading. It's initiated that he will be all right."

BEGINS AS SECTION HAND.

Alfred H. Smith, weight then 130 pounds, section hand on a branch which was to run from White Pigeon to Grand Rapids took to overalls and a $1.50 a day as though he were on a picnic. He was bruised and sore for many a week, but his was a will of iron. He laughed at his blisters and backaches, and, before long, he was a stough as nails. Right then and there Alfred H. Smith built up a new right of way for his constitution. To see him now, deep-chested, broad-shouldered, steel thewed, it would be hard to identify him with the stripling who came out from the main office. Bridge building, hammering up timber frames for culverts, laying ties, swinging sledges at all seasons and in every kind of weather gave him strength of body and filled his mind with innumerable practical details. He worked in sunshine and by the flare of the oil lanterns; he was in the middle of things when floods swept away bridges and smash-ups knocked traffic endwise. Other men have undergone such experiences as this, but most of them lacked the keen insight which enabled Alfred H. Smith to interpret and absorb them. He saw the railroad not as twin rails perched on ties, but as a spinal column of the community. The ties were the vertebrae; the rails the cords of steel carrying the nerves of a mighty transportation system. It was his way of noticing things, of telling what they meant clearly and forcibly, which made him a friend of the foreman.

Smith found him one night toiling over the day's report in a handcar house, under the light of a lantern. He volunteered to write out the report and he did it in such a copperplate handwriting and in such clear language that from this time on he was the official secretary of the section. One of the maxims which Alfred H. Smith found responded to the acid test was that the first thing any man should do was to make himself useful to his employer. When there was need for a foreman somewhere else, the youth who had come from the general office in a white shirt only a few months before got the place. He learned everything about the making and the running of a railroad which came his way and then went out of his way for more. He studied every stick and stone along the line, mastered the geography of the country for miles; learned its resources, and, wherever he went, he put himself in a position to be quizzed on every point.

Years afterward, as president of the New York Central line, Mr. Smith was riding on the observation platform of his private car with distinguished visitors.

One of them, seeing a small lake, turned to a brakeman standing by and asked the name of the body of water. The man said that he did not know.

"Oh, that's Peach Lake," answered Mr. Smith, glancing up.

Later he cornered the brakeman.

"Don't you know that you have been going up and down this line for months and that it was your business to know the name of that lake?" said the president. "You will never get anywhere unless you look alive and hold your head up. I'm not supposed to know those details, you are."

"But you did know," answered the chastened brakeman.

"Think so?" was the answer which came with a grim smile. "Never admit that you don't know your own business."

Alfred H. Smith, as foreman, was in charge of the laying of a cut-off in Michigan on the line where he went to work as laborer. The general superintendent arrived unexpectedly, and, for some minutes, watched Mr. Smith working on the job. He saw him take a shovel from the hands of a laborer and show him how to handle the tools easily and effectively. He observed that the keen and active young man had a cheery way of calling to his men, and that some of them addressed him as "Al" and "A. H." He sent for "A. H." to come to his car.

DIVISION SUPERINTENDENT.

"Young man," remarked the official, "we have decided to make you the superintendent of the Kalamazoo division if you will take the place."

Later, in describing his first promotion that counted, Mr. Smith said that he was so overcome with surprise and happiness that he nearly fell dead on the spot.

He was then, at the age of 25 years, a division superintendent. Where he would have been had he not taken his fate in his own hands it is hard to say, but from where he came there were hundreds of clerks bound to the wheel of routine, some of them now gray in the service.

Alfred H. Smith had arrived at a point where he felt he could realize the great ambition of his life—to learn the railroad business. He believed then the he knew only his A B C's. One rule of his conduct has been never to ask anybody to attempt anything which he could not do himself—at least, well enough to know whether or not it was being accomplished properly.

He was not an engine driver, but he learned everything which was to be known about a locomotive and often he would run one just for experience. As division superintendent of the Kalamazoo he traveled about in the cabs of the locomotives, chatting with engineers and firemen and absorbing all the lore of the road. He was at the lever of a passenger engine himself one day out near Hudson, Mich., when the engineer, sitting at the side of the cab, suddenly made that familiar signal which, to the layman, looks like tossing off a glass of strong liquor. A novice can stop a train somewhere in the neighborhood of a station, but here the problem of the young superintendent was to bring that locomotive to a standstill so that it could "get a drink" from the water tank which loomed only a short distance ahead at the side of the track. The grizzled engineer was softly chuckling to himself as the superintendent got into action to do something which he had never done before. He did it, too, and to the very inch, and turned to the engineer with cold sweat running down his forehead.

"This is a good engine," he commented dryly, "under perfect control."

Eleven years had passed since Alfred H. Smith went as messenger boy to the Lake Shore offices in the Forest City. He was the superintendent of a division then ninety-five miles in length. Mr. Smith was soon transferred to the main line along the lake and had charge of the territory approximately bounded by Toledo and Cleveland, with headquarters in Toledo.

As the head of an important division his ability as an executive became conspicuous in railroad circles. He remained then, as he is now, in close touch with his employees—whom he has always regarded as fellow workers.

There came to Northern Ohio a snowstorm which lasted thirty-six hours and deranged the whole system. The superintendent was soon master of the situation. We see him in rubber hip boots and short jacket working in the yards with his men.

It was "Bill, you do this," and "John, you'd better take a gang and do so and so," or "Jim, come this way."

Here was a man, who as a section hand, had in emergencies gone for a week without even taking off his clothes. He was laborer again, sometimes grabbing a crowbar or a shovel and working along as cheerfully as though he had no care in the world. The effect of such an example was inspiring. The superintendent could just as easily have sat in his steam-heated office, and, by telephone or through reports by messenger or from the recesses of a leather-backed chair, looked out of the window and kept informed on what was being done. This is not the way of "A. H." He is one of those born leaders who does not lead from the rear.

When the semaphore shows white he is always ready to move. It is his deep knowledge of detail which, with his democratic ways of getting the best there is out of men, has steadily advanced him.

One talks of essential details, but, in the minds of such men as A. H. Smith, every detail is an index.

Just the other day he was riding along the main line of the New York Central when he saw at a siding a rusty carwheel. The next day there was a grand shakeup all along the line. When a car wheel rusts, it has been stationary longer than is good for any system. If it is attached to a car belonging to some other railroad, rust is a crime. That means that the so called "foreign" car has been delayed so that there is to be paid a fine of 45 cents a day on it. If there is one such car there may be hundreds and thousands of them. A bit of iron oxide on a flange seen out of the corner of one of the keenest pair of railroad eyes in the world meant trouble for hundreds of employees before the morrow had passed. If such conditions as are indicated by a brown tinge on a flange continue, there come congestion, blockades, and embargoes.

QUIT MEAT WHEN BACK HURTS OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Says Uric Acid in Meat Clogs Kidneys and Irritates Bladder.

A Glass of Salts is Harmless Way to Flush Kidneys, Says Authority.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimuate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

HAPPY THOUGHT CLUB SYMPOSIUM.

BY EUGENE BROWN.

There was a near tragedy in connection with the screening of the Happy Thought picture drama, "Henrietta of the Hungry Heart." It was in the filming of the scene where the naughty Kleotas of the King Killers, steals the young princess from the palace. The role of the bandit is taken by Simon Legree Poindexter and in his make-up he wears a most piratical stand of brush. While waiting for his turn before the camera he was lying down on a bench smoking a cigarette and casually fell asleep. As he drowsed King Adam jestingly sprinkled some pyrium powder in his whiskers. When the director called Kleotas he sprang to his feet and as he did so a spark from his torch nestled in his fringe and touched it off. As a result he came to the camera with his face ablaze and resembling the human pinwheel. With great presence of mind Henrietta seized a hand grenade and breaking it over the head of Kleotas permitted the liquid contents to reach the heart of the fire and extinguish it. The camera caught a part of the scene and the film has been cut out and hung up in the studio marked "map of the burn't district."

But the play went on.

The club clairvoyant, Mme. Uneeda Nezzer, reported some friction in the matter of refereeing the kissing poem contest. It was considered a great triumph when she secured the shades of Lord Byron, Thomas Moore and Robert Burns as judges in this versicular tournament. These bards of osculation were recognized as the authorities of their several islands and the tidings of their selection was received with three cheers. The clairvoyant obtained each without the knowledge of the others and now it appears that the ghosts of Byron and Moore do not speak to one another. This makes it rather embarrassing for them to sit in council. It is understood that they are insanely jealous of Hypatia, who smiles on both of them. However, all three may consent to serve until they are better understood. As each pact has a brand of cigars named after him, many people imagine that they must be stopping in the hot place. This is a serious mistake as they all say they are comfortably located where the climate is second only to California.

The secretary had quite a budget of stuff in connection with the kissing contest.

Arthur Moore Cumming, the shepherd poet has been at the art gallery in San Diego and on the strength of it breaks forth into a declaration as follows:

To Her Painting.

Only this little thought runs through my reckoning,
That some day I should meet thee
face to face,
And that those limpid eyes so shyly
beckoning,
Should lead at last to true love's warm embrace.

Those scarlet lips are made for passion's pleasure,
And I am one who fain would play with fire
So let us fill again love's golden measure,
With heaped up kisses of the heart's desire.

Elizabeth Akers Allen, who gets up the familiar quotations for Literary Lights has a stanza or two relative to what she thinks is the greatest kiss in the world. The most striking fragment is as follows:

The Best Kiss.

Blush happy maiden when you feel
The lips which press love's glowing seal,
But as the slow years darker roll,
Grown wiser, the experienced soul,
Will own as dearer far than they,
The lips which kiss the tears away.

Oscar Opdyke Onions, otherwise known as the Cheerful Nut, also had one of his occasional outbursts and exposed it to the club in these careless and abandoned terms:

The Butterfly.

I've roved the roads from Rotterdam to Rome,
In quest of joys denied me in the home,
And sure enough the grandest thing what is—
To linger in the lap of Lady Liz.

It seems to me that Hybla's honey
drips,
What time I sosh my beezer in her lips,
One other thing would make my pulses jar—
To mingle with the mush of Myra Marr.

The Cheerful Nut was fined the limit, which in his case was two glasses of buttermilk.

Wanda Lott, who with her cousin, Etta Lott, shares the honor of being the sunny Sapho of Hollywood, offered a rather feverish contribution to the collection and some curiosity was manifested as to the identity of the hero of her lines. It is not known that Wanda has had any love affair since she ran away with a roller-skate artist back in 1892. Since that unfortunate episode she has lived very quietly at home, making delicatessen stuff and writing for the Christian At Work. Here is the finish of her latest effusion:

The Unknown.

With you within my arms I think,
The world might end and I not know it.
Sweet passion from your lips I'd drink,
And reason?—To the winds I'd throw it.

In hungry happiness I'd rest
If held against thy stormy breast.

There was also an interesting budget of epigrammatic definitions of a kiss. Ida Klein, who learned to write free verse while pasting labels on canned peaches and now does a few cabaret steps when the lights go up, submitted these paragraphs in response to the query, "What is a kiss?"

"Something just as sweet as it tastes."

"The fire kindler on the altar of love."

"The world's most popular medium of exchange."

"Not to be had for the asking but for the taking."

"The favorite relish on the banquet table of love."

Polly Wogg, the plump little ingenue of the St. Vitus studios, also had her busy day and reported these definitions:

"A kiss is a treasure that is often wasted but never hoarded."

Polly Wogg, the plump little ingenue of the St. Vitus studios, also had her busy day and reported these definitions:

"A kiss is a treasure that is often stolen but never hoarded."

"A kiss is a bit of tinder out of which matches are made."

"A kiss savors of the battlefield. It marks the beginning of an engagement and the end of conflict."

Barbara Brierly, the sainted barbarian chipped in a thought or two. For instance, she asks the question:

"What is the difference between a woman and a diplomat?"

Here is the answer:

If a diplomat says "Yes" he means "perhaps." If he says "Perhaps" he means "No." If he says "No" he is not a diplomat.

If a woman says "No" she means "perhaps." If she says "Perhaps" she means "Yes." If she says "Yes" she is not a lady.

In connection with the wind-up of the feud between the beauteous Myra Marr and Uncle William Snaggs, the wild sage of the San Gabriel Wash another contribution came from the frolicsome Myra as follows:

"I can't seem to get up much enthusiasm over the peace offering of the Sage Brush Bard. There are two very palpable reasons why I ought not accept his kiss. One is blonde and the other has red hair. (My husband has red hair.) However, Uncle Billy shows a courteous, fine, gentlemanly spirit, and I'll go half way to offer him the hand of good fellowship. I'd even smoke a pipe of peace with him, but Nestors are as strong as I can negotiate. Tell Uncle William that I do not believe in promiscuous kissing, especially married men with big wives, for I'm only half as big as I look in the pictures.

"Relative to your zoo: I have two trained fleas and a pinto ringworm that I would like to donate. The pulga family I can easily bring down with me when I visit your city, but you will have to furnish transportation for the ringworm.

"I am having my costumes made for 'Henrietta.' The handsomest one is the one I will wear in the barrel. It has hoops and stays. I look something like Eva Tanguay in her little birdcage hoopskirt, and something like Trixie Friganza in her 'Canary Cottage' hoops, and altogether like

"MYRA MARR."

The Cheerful Nut manifested a lively interest in the costumes of Myra—especially the one she wears as a prisoner in the barrel and which has hoops and stays. "I hope it stays," he explained, "or else it might give Miss Marr momentary embarrassment. However, as she looks like Myra altogether, she has nothing to worry about. Where is she anyhow?" he added sadly. "I sent her a valentine and it came back to me marked 'no such person at address named.' She just flits in and out and we can't keep cases on her."

Relative to the forthcoming election of club officers there is a campaign on in the interest of Judge William Snaggs, better known as "Uncle Billy," for the presidency of the club on the platform of safety first. President Tootles has a felon on his thumb and wishes to retire. The San Gabriel sage is very much liked by the club and is recognized as one of the best two-fisted bards south of the Tehachepi. Mavourneen Briggs is at the head of a committee pressing the judges candidacy and is now writing a campaign song for him.

Some of the Sunghine Sisterhood think it would be best to have a woman in the chair and are inclined to curry Violet Veronica Busby for the place. It is thought, however, that her record as a vampire may be used against her, although there is nothing in the constitution debarring a vampire from the presidency.

Uncle William Snaggs is voiceless himself regarding his candidacy. He is feeling a bit peevish on account of rheumatism in his hind leg and unburdened himself thus wise:

"Avaunt! Avaunt! the song of the favorite son! Likewise a few avaunts forninst the kissing game and include in this the plaintive howls of the wets and drys. Avaunt everything, for autumn is in our midst and the woes of the householder are multitudinous. Some are immune, but the few who do not hold stock in a gasoline distillery or own an acre of navy beans can appreciate my yelp. Far be it from your Uncle William to knock, I fain would scatter happy thoughts over the landscape in such profusion that the great California weed wouldn't have a look in, but it can't be done at this season of the year. Let those who feel inclined that way warble their heads off anent the mushy stuff and the coming votefest but, for the nonce, I am weary of happy thinking and crave your attention while I work off the following grouch. Call it what you please, but be charitable:

Melancholy Days.

This campaign gab doth weary one,
Yea, bo, a whole lot much,
Let others write of favorite son,
And kissing pomes and such;
I care not if the State stays wet,
Or goes dry as a bone,
For I am striving to forget
Some troubles of my own.

Perhaps the autumn has its joys,
Undoubtedly it has,
But naught can hush the mournful voice
Of him who burneth gas.
He eyes askance—whate'er that means—
The meter in its flight,
And reckoneth how many beans
Those ticks eat up each night.

Or if, perchance, he burneth coal,
It paineth him to look
Into the large and growing hole
Within his ducat book.
A mournful wail emitteth he,
That soundeth muchly as
The murmur of the wind tossed sea,
Alas, alas, alas!

And likewise, too, he needeth clothes
To keep the chill winds out,
And multitudes of minor woes
Encompass him about.
Whichever way he turneth ere
The wintry days come on,
He findeth cause to tear his hair,
And cry aloud—"doggone!"

The seer and yellow hath its joys,
Perhaps a goodly bunch,
But hearken to me, girls and boys,
Whilst I give you a hunch;
'Tis now the gas and coal bills climb,
And other needs crop out
That, in the good old summer time,
Are never dreamed about.

After this the symposium took a recess and conferred with Director David Oliver Tobasco concerning the business of the play.

Applications for membership in the club and all entries of limericks or other verse in the various prize competitions now under way—as well as all offerings for the studio zoo may be addressed to Eugene Brown, Editorial Rooms, The Times.

BITS OF VERSE.

The Clouds Blow By.

They'll all blow by, those clouds that seem
To hide the splendor of your dream,
They'll fade and fly before the light
That follows as the day the night,
'Twill not be dark for long, for long,
While love decks lift with light and song.

They'll soon blow by, they'll disappear,
And where they float the skies will clear,
The sun shines out, the day be sweet,
And forth we'll go with dancing feet,
To find life's yoke of good and ill
Is measured fair to all men still.

The gloom will lift that haunts your heart.
We have our dreams; the dreams depart.
Our ups and downs, our griefs and cares,
But he lives best who plucks and shares
From life's blest service hope to make
The worst seem best for dear love's sake.

You're feeling blue, you must not mind
The world, with all it does that's blind,
Still treats us well; we should not lose
Our faith and trust and get the blues.
The tempest roars a little while,
And then the sunbeams sweetly smile.

They'll all blow by, those clouds that gray
The ambient beauty of your day.
The shadows fall, but not for long;
Behind them lurks the sunlit song,
The bloom, the cheer, the love God gives Through which the whole creation lives.

—[Baltimore Sun.

What Careth Nature?

What careth nature that the fields are red
With blood of those who were her last and best—
Her masterpieces, that had put to test
Eternal prowess? Over these, the dead,
Whose million bodies upon earth are spread,
Doth not the sun still in its grandeur shine,
The moon smile on, and all the vaulted blue
Its joyous host of spangling stars enshrine,
Careless if strife its deeds of death renew?
Again earth's magic hath the seasons led
To spring's enchantments! Lord and sea aglow
Bespeak no agony of human fate.
Men live and die, the nations come and go—
What careth nature for man's love or hate?

—[Lurana Sheldon in New York Times.

The Answer.

I pressed the button at my neighbor's door,
But when I heard no sound I turned and stood
Irresolute. If I had moved a bell
I must have heard it. Should I rap, or go?
But in a moment more my neighbor came.
"The bell is far, and very small," he said.
"You may not catch it, for the walls between;
But rest assured, each time you push the knob
We cannot choose but hear the bell inside."
And what they told me of my neighbor's bell
Has cheered me when I knocked at some hard heart
And caught no answer. Now and then
I poured my soul out in a hot appeal
And had no sign from lip, or hand, or eye,
That he I would have saved had even heard.
And I have sighed and turned away; and then
My neighbor's words came back: "We cannot choose
But hear inside."
And after many days
I have had answer to a word I spoke
In ears that seemed as deaf as dead man's ears.

—[The British Weekly.

In the Gloaming.

Sweet are the thoughts that remain
When the heart's little flurry is over;
Fondly we live o'er again
Those moments made bright by another;
Sweet is the face we recall
From the past when the twilight descending
Darkens the day—this is all
Of life that's worth while. In the blending
Of shadow and shine man is ever
A leaf in the wind, ever turning
His face to the sunshine, yet never O'ercoming his infinite yearning
For that which is gone. As the embers
Of fires glow from ashes half-hidden
So linked with the past one remembers
Too keenly the rose 'twas forbidden.
Thus I recall the flower
That beckoned yet bloomed for another—
Thus passes, at twilight, an hour
And the gloaming and dreaming are over.

—[Floyd D. Raze in Minneapolis Journal.

HAIR GRAY? THEN APPLY Q-BAN

It Darkens Gray Hair Evenly

If your hair is gray, streaked with gray prematurely, or just turning gray, or if your hair is dry, harsh, thin or falling, simply shampoo hair and scalp a few times with Q-Ban Hair Color Restorer. Soon every strand of hair (whether gray or not) becomes evenly dark, soft, flossy, fluffy, full of life and health, full and heavy and fascinating, and entire head of hair is so beautifully and evenly darkened no one could suspect you had applied Q-Ban. It is absolutely harmless and no dye, but Q-Ban acts on roots, restoring color glands. Sold on money-back guarantee, 50c for a big bottle at McKay & Monkman's drug store, Los Angeles, Cal. Out-of-town folks supplied by mail.

RAYS FROM THE STARLIT REALM OF REELDOM.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

SURELY the lure of the motion picture is great. As announced in this paper yesterday, George M. Cohan, famous actor, playwright and producer, has decided to enter the field. The company is to be organized under the name of the George M. Cohan Film Corporation, the productions of which will be released through the Artcraft Pictures Corporation, the same concern through which the Mary Pickford pictures are being released. Quietly and unobtrusively Cohan, it is said, has been studying the art of motion picture making, in some of the large New York studios.

Among Cohan's popular successes of the stage which will be put into film form are "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway," "Little Johnny Jones," "The Governor's Son," "The Miracle Man," "The Yankee Prince," "George Washington, Jr.," "Talk of New York," "Seven Keys to Baldpate," "Hit the Trail Holliday," "The Man Who Owns Broadway," "Little Millionaire," and others.

Couldn't Fool Him.

Raymond Wells has a camera man who knows what he knows. Raymond had a letter from his old friend Roger Bacon of Providence, the other day, asking him to picturize a play that has been in the family a long time. It was written, says Roger, by his ancestor, Lord Bacon. It is called "The Merchant of Venice." Wells told his camera man of the offer. "Why," said that personage, "the Keystone has shot every location in Venice to pieces. Not a chance! Not a chance!"

—o—

Fox Will Comedy Now.

The William Fox Company announces it is about to enter the film comedy field, the pictures to be on the regular Fox programme. Henry M. Lehrmann, former president and supervising director of L-Ko Comedies, has arrived in this city to negotiate with actors and directors.

—o—

Orientals All Film Fans.

It is rather unusual to have a multi-millionaire as the agent for anyone's business, but the Universal Film Company has two of them. One of these modern Croesuses is located in Bombay and the other in Tokio.

Tom D. Cochrane, who went to the Orient two years ago to establish exchanges for the Universal, found in Singapore a wealthy Japanese who was so interested in the motion picture industry that he decided to return to Japan with Mr. Cochrane and act as representative of the big U in his native land. In Bombay Mr. Cochrane interested a rich Hindu, and in a short time had him agree to serve the company for India. The Japanese had made his money in tin mines and rubber plantations, and the Hindu had acquired his fortune in the banking business.

The exhibitors in the Orient, says Mr. Cochrane, are making money hand over fist, due to the fact that not only are the pictures very popular, but a higher price of admission is charged than in this country. There are about 3500 theaters in the Orient. For a long time the Japanese put on only made-in-Japan pictures, but during the last year foreign films have become popular. Melodrama and slap-stick comedy are in greatest demand.

"In Japan," said Mr. Cochrane, "an odd custom exists. Each picture house has its speaker on the stage who explains the developments on the screen. The Japanese enjoy the oral entertainment quite as much as the picture. The theater that has no speaker might as well keep its doors closed."

—o—

Ruthie is "Mamma" Now.

Ruth Stonehouse, Universal star, has adopted a boy. His name is Raymond, and he is just 6 years old—a pudgy little fellow with light blue eyes and yellow hair, and he is the joy of Miss Stonehouse's pretty Hollywood bungalow. The child's mother passed away when he came into the world, and his father died in Los Angeles only a short time ago.

—o—

Girls Won't Love Him Now.

George Gebhart, well-known stage and motion-picture actor, has joined the forces of the Universal company at Universal City, and now is playing heavies in the company directed by Douglas Gerrard.

—o—

Welcome Home, Marshall.

Marshall Stedman's many friends at Universal City are delighted to receive mail advices from him that he is rapidly regaining his health, and expects to return to his desk and resume his duties as engaging director for the film company the 15th inst.

—o—

Who's Best Man?

Director Donald Macdonald of Universal City has under production a two-reel drama entitled "The Best Man." The cast consists of Lee Hill, Lois Wilson, Nellie Allen, Charles Dorian and A. E. Witting.

—o—

More Hula Girls?

A fast moving story of romance and adventure, laid in picturesque Honolulu and the more picturesque South Sea Islands is being put on by Director Otis Turner for William Fox. No photoplay released this year has more sharply delineated characters. George Walsh has the leading role, with Laura Dean playing opposite. Anna Luther is cast for a role. Others taking part are Herschal Mayall, William Burress, William Clifford, Samuel Searles, Willard Louis and Hector Sarno.

—o—

Marriage Won't Help Either.

What's in a name? Everything, says Jack Standing, Fox actor, when blessed with a patronymic such as his. "My name is just like the weather," says Jack. "I can't take six steps or talk to three persons without hearing some comment on it. Everybody takes a crack at it. I have a book filled with jests on the name, and at the suggestion of a friend have called it 'Standing Jokes.'

"One of the first jokes I recall was perpetrated while I was appearing with Olga Nethersole. A member of the cast came up to my apartment and liked it so much that he volunteered to be my room-mate. 'Oh, you can't do that,' said a friend. 'Why not?' I asked. 'Because it's a Standing room only,' was the answer.

"After that they came fast and furious. 'There's Jack Standing sitting,' is a favorite. I raise one leg to tie a shoestring and some one invariably pulls the one about Jack Standing on one foot. Only last week, my name nearly caused a girl at the photographer's to have brain fever. The whole trouble was simply that the proprietor had instructed her to make 'one sitting of Jack Standing standing.' Well, I am still standing for them!"

—o—

Joan's Debut in Movies.

Joan Sawyer's first photoplay is scheduled for release under the Fox banner very shortly. The picture deals with gypsy life.

—o—

Strong-arm Stuff.

Gladys Brockwell, the William Fox star, was limping badly a few days ago, because—here's a fine title for a song—she was lugging loose lumber for Lloyd. No director, especially Frank Lloyd, would think of enforcing such duties on an acress, of course. But the company was on a "location" near Sacramento. The lumber had to be unloaded for a "set." Laborers were scare, time was fleeting, so volunteers were called for. Miss Brockwell vowed that she needed the exercise and insisted on hauling off a joist or two.

—o—

How About Other Fellow?

After having been laid up for six weeks with torn ligaments as the result of a film fight, Herbert Rawlinson, Universal favorite, is now in position to rent or lend his crutches. He has returned to work and is being featured in Director Charles Swickard's production of "The Scarlet Crystal," written by J. Grugg Alexander. Among the other members of the cast are Edith Johnson, Dorothy Davenport and Gertrude Astor.

—o—

Score One for Lo.

For some special scenes to be used with Director Lynn Reynolds's production of the Universal feature, "The Man with a Peanut Soul," it was arranged for an Indian to sit at a camp fire while George Hernandez, who plays the feature lead, was to come to him and be invited to share in its warmth. Director Reynolds had an interpreter engaged, who told the Indian just what to do. Reynolds undertook to instruct Hernandez in his presence, and incidentally mentioned to him that the red man could not understand English.

"Keep talking to him, George," said Reynolds, "so he won't look up at the camera." "What'll I say," asked Hernandez. "I don't speak Hopi." "Oh, tell him anything. I don't care," said the director. "Tell him you'll give him your watch. But I don't suppose the old cigar sign could take care of a watch if he had one." "Don't trouble," responded the Indian, quick as a flash. "I have a very good watch."

—o—

Mention of Unmentionables.

Take it from George Hernandez, when you're going to the Grand Canyon be sure you have several relays of trousers. In one scene in the U feature, "The Man with a Peanut Soul," Hernandez was supposed to be suspended on a rope over a chasm several hundred feet deep. Reynolds made up his mind, however, not to risk the life of a perfectly good actor in this fashion, so he had a dummy built and put Hernandez's clothes on it while the actor remained behind a clump of bushes. The constructor of the dummy did not make the backbone strong enough, and while suspended in the air it broke in two with the result that the actor's trousers dropped several hundred feet into the stream below and were drowned. He had no others to wear until an obliging cowboy loaned him a pair. Even then his troubles weren't over, as he got stuck in a cactus plant and hundreds of the thorns adhered to the borrowed trousers.

—o—

Henley's June Madness.

Director Henley has completed "Little Italy," Willard Mack's story, for the U, and is now filming "June Madness," with Roy Stewart and Hazel Page in the leading roles.

—o—

Cruelty to Animals Note.

The jack rabbits and gophers are being kept awake nights this week on the 18,000-acre Ince ranch, where William S. Hart and his cowboys are filming night scenes in Hart latest "bad-man" picture. Real bullets are being used in the battle scenes, and already, it is said, more than a thousand rounds of ammunition have been exhausted.

—o—

Taylor Flits.

Director William D. Taylor has left the Morosco studios and gone to New York.

—o—

He Came Right Up.

George E. Marshall, U director, who produced "The Committee on Credentials," by Peter B. Kyne, and "Love's Lariat," an exceedingly clever and original comedy, seen a few weeks ago at the Garrick, is an example of what hard work, plus big talent, will do. A few years ago Marshall was a business man of Chicago. But he tired of routine and decided to go into pictures. Coming west he offered himself as extra man at Universal City. In three months he had become an assistant director, and recently was rewarded for his efforts by promotion to a directorship. Mr. Marshall is also a first lieutenant in the newly-formed regiment of the Coast Artillery Corps of California.

Within the last year Ruby Marshall, a former society girl of Chicago, has joined her brother in the West, and is rapidly making a name for herself in pictures. She will appear in "Mary Ann," by Ruth Stonehouse, and in "The Little Queen of Nowhere," by Raymond Wells.

—o—

Luxury Note.

Mary O'Connor, scenario writer at the Fine Arts studio, has just returned from a vacation spent at the San Diego Fair. Besides several days, she also spent several dollars on motor-chair hire.

—o—

Betty Now a Vamp.

Promising to out-vamp all previous vampires of the screen, that beautiful thirty-two-candle-power vampire, Betty Compson of the Christie Comedy Company is appearing in a shivery, quivery, hair-raising film comedy drama entitled "Hist! At Six o'clock." While the picture is a comedy, it is full of thrills.

—o—

Ethel and Carlyle Again.

"The Madness of Helen," a new World Film play, in which Ethel Clayton and Carlyle Blackwell have the star roles, contains certain "double exposure" effects, said by experts to be entirely without precedent. The hero of this screen drama is a literary man who gets $1000 apiece for his short stories, showing that he is some literary man.

—o—

Desperate Desmond.

William Desmond this week is forsaking his job of "prop" preacher at the Ince studios to become a screen Sherlock Holmes. The photoplay is by C. Gardner Sullivan, and is described as a weird detective drama, replete with thrills. The supporting cast includes Margaret Thompson, Robert McKim, J. Barney Sherry, Gertrude Claire and Jerome Storm.

—o—

Inventor, Too, B'Gosh.

Just because Paul Hurst is an actor is no sign he hasn't an inventive mind. Hurst, who plays "heavies" for the Signal Film Corporation, last week constructed a reflector for the electric lights at the studio which increase their efficiency by 35 per cent. The average studio light is arranged in such a way that a large portion of the rays are thrown up over the scene being staged. Hurst built a reflector of compo board, which was painted white and covered with an aluminum gloss. This reflector works on horizontal hinges, changing the angle to reflect the light wherever desired. It is estimated that by use of this reflector as much light can be thrown by three lights as by four heretofore.

Poor Helen.

As the result of an accident in the staging of an exterior scene, Helen Holmes will wear her right wrist in a brace for a few weeks. The action called for a jump from the vestibule of a passenger coach to the tonneau of an auto running along the road parallel to the track. The train and auto were traveling at approximately twenty-five miles an hour when the leap was made. Blankets and cushions had been piled in the bottom of the machine to lessen the shock, but just as Miss Holmes jumped the car hit a small chuck hole and lurched. She was thrown violently against the side of the machine and to save herself she thrust out one hand. She managed to keep from being thrown from the car, but her wrist was turned under her and badly sprained.

No Tin Soldiers.

The Signal Film Corporation has opened negotiations with the proper authorities for the use of Troop D of the United States Cavalry for use in the production of the next episode of the Helen Holmes feature "A Lass of the Lumberlands." Troop D is on its way back to Los Angeles from Fort Huachuca, Ariz., where they have been doing patrol duty along the Mexican border. Upon their arrival, if it is possible, they will be pressed into service before the firing squad of cameramen of the Signal.

Colin Chase, Morosco-Pallas star, was asked by an inquisitive neighbor why he wasted the fine afternoon washing his auto. "Why don't you do it in the evening?" he said. Chase looked his amazement. "Why, that's when it gets dirty," he responded.

William S. Hart soon will be seen in another of his famous "bad man" roles, in the Ince drama of the West by J. G. Hawks, entitled "The Devil's Double." The story is an uncanny tale of a bestial bad man who fights a fierce fight against temptation and wins. It recites the adventures of

The fascinating lit- has been engaged for sev- months in the making of the pretentious and picturesque filmization of a story by Hector Turnbull, suggested by one of Laurence Hope's most famous poems, entitled "Less Than the Dust." John Emerson directed. In the story Miss Pickford will be seen as a little castaway, who, having been deserted by her father, a former British army officer, is adopted by a Hindu sword-maker, and reared among the natives.

She rescues a dashing young officer when he is wounded in a conflict between British troops and the natives, and falls in love with him.

In settings the picture promises to be unusually effective. A great temple and pool of the sacred water, many picturesque by-ways and bazaars, and other bits of native scenery, as well as some curious Hindu customs, are said to add much beauty and realism to the production.

Symphony.

Lionel Barrymore and Grace Valentine, the latter a well-known Morosco actress, will be the dramatic stars at the Symphony this week, commencing today. "The Brand of Cowardice," in which they will appear, is said to have been made with the strictest accuracy as to scenic effects along the Mexican border, where the action of the play takes place, and with the greatest pains as to details of life in the American army. These details were supplied by John W. Noble, director of the picture, who entered the regular army as a West Point man, fought in the Spanish-American War, was wounded several times in the Philippines, saw service in Cuba and was in China during the Boxer uprising. Thus with an army play, directed by a former commissioned officer in the regular army, with such stars as Lionel Barrymore and Miss Valentine, and with a strong supporting cast, "The Brand of Cowardice" bids fair to be one of the sensations of the screen during the present season.

Superba.

Dainty Mary Anderson, one of the loveliest of the Vitagraph stars, will be seen, commencing today, at the Superba in a romantic film play entitled "The Last Man." William Duncan will have the name part. The story is one of army life. It opens with the faithlessness of an army officer's wife. The officer subsequently meets dainty Jeanne MacDonald, an orphan living near the army post. Jeanne and the officer flee to the Philippines, she as an army nurse, he in the service of his country. He is merely her protector. Later their feeling ripens into love. Then there appears on the scene the officer's wife. The tenseness of the drama increases from this point on, but all ends well. A native uprising, Harvey's rescue of his former wife and her husband, and finally the tender love that fills the lives of both the officer and Jeanne furnish many thrills and much romance.

Miller's.

There is a new star on the film horizon in the person of talented Gladys Brockwell, who will appear at Miller's Theater starting today, in "Sins of Her Parents," said to be the greatest Alaskan story since "The Spoilers." Miss Brockwell undertakes the difficult art of impersonating two sharply contrasting characters. The story is filled with dramatic climaxes, and is said to be a consistent and logical one. Spontaneous comedy touches add to the play. It deals with big men, who live hard and fight hard, but who play the game of life squarely.

Beside the charming star, the supporting company includes William Clifford, Herschel Mayall, George Webb, Carl von Schiller, Jim Farley and other local favorites.

The added attractions on the programme are the News Weekly and the Hans and Fritz cartoon comedies.

Palace.

"A Corner in Colleens," starring the popular Ince favorite, Bessie Barriscale, will be the feature at the Palace, starting with the matinee today. The story of the photoplay concerns the adventures of a young Irish lass who is up to all manner of "divilment" and makes life miserable for her American suitor. The ensuing situations involve thrilling fights between soldiers and rebels, with lots of romance, and more important than all, a happy ending.

A highly amusing sequence of scenes in the action shows Miss Barriscale in the disguise of a young man; but she is so palpably a forlorn bundle of femininity that all the soldiers in the regiment which captures her have to pretend that they are taken in by her deception. Charley Ray and Margery Wilson are featured with Miss Barriscale in the cast.

Fred Mace will be the Keystone comedy star in "The Lover's Night," the latest effort of Mack Sennett and his tribe of joy producers.

Tally's Broadway.

Clara Kimball Young in "The Common Law," at Tally's Broadway, broke all attendance records for this house. The showing of the picture will continue.

"The Common Law" is an excellent visualization of the novel by Robert W. Chambers, with Miss Young in the role of Valerie West, the lovely artist's model, and perhaps there is not another screen star in the world who so fully fits the ideal of the character.

Garrick.

The Garrick will be the mecca for comedy enthusiasts for this week. Starting with the matinee today Charlie Chaplin will be seen at his Los Angeles home in "The Revue of 1916," arranged frim his three notable successes of the year, "The Tramp," "His Night Out," and "His New Job." Every foot of film is jammed full of action and fun, as only the most comical scenes have been taken from the pictures so action that tickles the risibilities is continually paramount.

The comedian appears at the outset as a tramp who takes a job on a farm. He does the chores with side-splitting variations but after a time is compelled to hunt a new job. The new position is with a motion-picture company, and he unexpectedly finds himself cast as the hero. A celebration of the success develops into a decidedly comic night out with a fellow player.

Alhambra.

Ethel Clayton and Holbrook Blinn are co-stars in the much-discussed photodrama, "The Hidden Scar," to be presented for the first time in this city starting today. The story of the play is said to deal with a question which is continually presenting itself in our daily life and has never been satisfactorily answered. The manner in which this is presented in "The Hidden Scar" may not exactly coincide with everyone's views on the subject, but it will at least compel one to consider carefully before he decides for or against the solution offered, it is said.

The added attraction is a new comedy entitled "Maid Mad," which features Charles Murray, Louise Fazenda, and other Mack Sennet funmakers.

Clune's Auditorium.

No less than 10,000 people have been turned away from the box office of Clune's Auditorium during the past three weeks unable to make reservations for D. W. Griffith's colossal spectacle "Intolerance" or "The Mother and the Law," which is to begin its fourth week tomorrow. No such triumph as has marked this attraction is recorded in the theatrical annals of Los Angeles. Griffith has brought America the credit of having turned out the most marvelous and awe-inspiring picture production. It is so stupendous an affair that one fairly gasps at the every-changing scenes, the ever-increasing beauty and the ever-growing sensation of the story as it proceeds during the three hours allotted to each performance.

The splendid symphony orchestra under the direction of M. Pesce is a treat which adds materially to the success of the attraction. It is announced that the evening performances commence at 8 p.m. sharp and the matinee at 2 p.m. sharp.

Development.

EVOLUTION OF DANCE.

Margaret Edwards, of "World of Pleasure," Well Known Here from Film Work, Sees Change of So-called Classical to More Beautiful Modern.

Incorporating the incomparable grace of physical culture with the panther-like motions of the native Arabian dance, Margaret Edwards has evolved a combination that suggests development toward a perfect symphony of motion. From the carelessly interpreted so-called classical dances of the ancients will come a more beautiful modern dance calling upon the study of the body perfection, relying, perhaps, upon the ancient for basic construction, says the erstwhile Los Angeles girl, who scored a hit with "The World of Pleasure," last week.

"By an exhaustive study of books, sculpture and paintings relating to the subject in mind, I evolved my present Arabian dance," said Miss Edwards.

"If the authorities are to be believed, the dance as I worked it out must be right, and my convictions were realized when Sir Rabindranath Tagore, whom I met in Portland, told me thot my intepretation was absolutely true to Arabian nativity.

"The more strenuous portions of my dance are done as the men would dance—the more graceful as the women would. A combination of the two strikes a happy medium in the American idea."

Miss Edwards is one of the foremost woman exponents of physical culture, not only as a benefit for professional dancers, etc., but for the average individual. But 17 years old, she is, and has been for several years, a perfectly-developed girl. No one set of muscles is specially developed, but every muscle necessary to the health of the body.

"At present I am studying an Egyptian dance," she said. "And I am going to produce something entirely unlike what the popular conception of the ancient Egyptian dances were supposed to be. Believe me, the angular motions of the hands and body attributed to them have been sadly accentuated. The Egyptians had a much more graceful conception of the dance, and I shall try to interpret it when next I come to Los Angeles."

Margaret Edwards, more familiarly known to Angelenos as the "perfect girl" of motion-picture fame, represents the younger generation of the American dancer of the serious type. She tends more to the joyous outdoor expression of rhythm rather than the toe dancing in vogue with the long-invading Europeans.

Way of the World.

JUST CAN'T BE ALONE.

Little Mary Finds it Impossible at Chicago Convention to Keep Away from Throngs of Admirers—Thousands Join in Her Reception.

Recently Mary Pickford, who will be seen at Clune's Broadway Theater this week in "Less Than the Dust," the first big photoplay in which she has ever appeared, went to Chicago to be present at the convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League convention. It was announced that she would arrive at La Salle-street station on the limited, and the announcement brought out more than 6000 persons.

The little lady was unable to get to her car until ten big officers from the Harrison-street station formed a hollow square and escorted her to the street.

In the evening she attended the exposition at the Coliseum, as it had been advertised that she would be there. Nearly 20,000 persons crowded into the big building, the doorways were jammed and the windows were bulging. Four firemen took Miss Pickford on their shoulders and carried her through the struggling mass until they reached the center of the main floor, where she was placed on a table. No candidate for Presidential honors ever got a greater reception, and so closely did the crowd surge about her that her evening gown of light silk was literally torn into shreds. When she came out 5000 students met her at the University of Chicago.

Do you wonder that she likes to be lonesome? She can't be.

Clune Gets Mary Pickford's Great Feature

Most Popular of all Film Stars to Appear at Broadway Theater in "Less Than The Dust."

MARY PICKFORD, still the most popular of stage or screen celebrities, whose first appearance as a star-producer will take place at Clune's Broadway.

EVER since Mary Pickford announced that she would have her own film organization and give every detail of its work and production her own guidance, her uncounted hosts of admirers have asked but one question:

"What will be the first picture?"

Mary Pickford now puts forth her first production under the new arrangement. It is "Less Than the Dust," a picture play that will run for two hours and which will have the most elaborate production and most notable supporting cast that could be made and assembled for a motion picture.

With his usual enterprise, W. H. Clune, California's leading exhibitor-producer, has secured the local rights for the crowning achievement of Miss Pickford.

"Less Than the Dust" will be presented as the first of the list at Clune's Broadway Theater today, Sunday, Nov. 5.

On account of the elaborate character of the production and the heavy expense involved, the Broadway prices will be slightly increased for this engagement.

They will be 15c, 25c and 35c.

There will be seven performances daily, beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Scenically "Less Than the Dust" is highly picturesque and even gorgeous. Lavish expenditures stand out in the screen portrayals at every stage.

The scenes are all laid in India and England and are remarkably faithful pictures of both lands in scenic sets of great beauty and wondrous effect.

The East Indian environment is especially interesting and picturesque in that the splendid direction has brought to the screen an unmistakable atmosphere and understanding of the lives and customs of the British officers and the lower caste.

One of the scenes shows a street in an Indian city with its shops and bazaars and all of the color and ever-changing views of an oriental thoroughfare.

Another shows the British garrison and still another the great stone temple and the pool of the sacred waters, while another effective picture is made of a storm in the desert.

The story is full of dramatic force, and Mary Pickford's part is a blending of the delightful comedy, winsomeness and innocence that give her portrayals of the part such an appealing, girlish charm.

The big scenes during the uprising of the natives and their repulse by the troops are most effectively worked out, while through all of the changing scenes there is a great human love story.

In "Less Than the Dust" Mary Pickford will be seen as a little castaway, an orphan of English birth, who, deserted and alone, becomes alike to the natives and dwells among the lowest caste of the Hindoos.

At the opening of the story a rebellion, caused by some dispute over the sacred rights of the people and their abuse by the provincial goverment, is in progress, the natives and soldiers of the British garrison being in conflict.

Rhada, the girl portrayed by Miss Pickford, has been adopted by a sword-maker. During the warfare she meets Captain Richard Townsend of the local garrison. She is greatly impressed by him and looks up to the soldier as an exalted person.

Such well-known players of the legitimate and motion-picture stage as David Powell, Frank Losee, Mary Alden, Mario Majeroni, Cesare Gravina and Mercita Esmonde are prominent in the cast.

This is the first Mary Pickford play to be released since the famous star said farewell to the program system and decided to make productions independently.

The Artcraft Pictures Corporation, formed especially to distribute the Pickford pictures all over the world. Hector Turnbull, whose former photoplays have been unusually successful, has the honor of being the author selected by the famous star for her first play as an independent star.—[Advt.

RAYS FROM THE STARLIT REALM OF REELDOM.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

SURELY the lure of the motion picture is great. As announced in this paper yesterday, George M. Cohan, famous actor, playwright and producer, has decided to enter the field. The company is to be organized under the name of the George M. Cohan Film Corporation, the productions of which will be released through the Artcraft Pictures Corporation, the same concern through which the Mary Pickford pictures are being released. Quietly and unobtrusively Cohan, it is said, has been studying the art of motion picture making, in some of the large New York studios.

Among Cohan's popular successes of the stage which will be put into film form are "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway," "Little Johnny Jones," "The Governor's Son," "The Miracle Man," "The Yankee Prince," "George Washington, Jr.," "Talk of New York," "Seven Keys to Baldpate," "Hit the Trail Holliday," "The Man Who Owns Broadway," "Little Millionaire," and others.

Couldn't Fool Him.

Raymond Wells has a camera man who knows what he knows. Raymond had a letter from his old friend Roger Bacon of Providence, the other day, asking him to picturize a play that has been in the family a long time. It was written, says Roger, by his ancestor, Lord Bacon. It is called "The Merchant of Venice." Wells told his camera man of the offer. "Why," said that personage, "the Keystone has shot every location in Venice to pieces. Not a chance! Not a chance!"

—o—

Fox Will Comedy Now.

The William Fox Company announces it is about to enter the film comedy field, the pictures to be on the regular Fox programme. Henry M. Lehrmann, former president and supervising director of L-Ko Comedies, has arrived in this city to negotiate with actors and directors.

—o—

Orientals All Film Fans.

It is rather unusual to have a multi-millionaire as the agent for anyone's business, but the Universal Film Company has two of them. One of these modern Croesuses is located in Bombay and the other in Tokio.

Tom D. Cochrane, who went to the Orient two years ago to establish exchanges for the Universal, found in Singapore a wealthy Japanese who was so interested in the motion picture industry that he decided to return to Japan with Mr. Cochrane and act as representative of the big U in his native land. In Bombay Mr. Cochrane interested a rich Hindu, and in a short time had him agree to serve the company for India. The Japanese had made his money in tin mines and rubber plantations, and the Hindu had acquired his fortune in the banking business.

The exhibitors in the Orient, says Mr. Cochrane, are making money hand over fist, due to the fact that not only are the pictures very popular, but a higher price of admission is charged than in this country. There are about 3500 theaters in the Orient. For a long time the Japanese put on only made-in-Japan pictures, but during the last year foreign films have become popular. Melodrama and slap-stick comedy are in greatest demand.

"In Japan," said Mr. Cochrane, "an odd custom exists. Each picture house has its speaker on the stage who explains the developments on the screen. The Japanese enjoy the oral entertainment quite as much as the picture. The theater that has no speaker might as well keep its doors closed."

—o—

Ruthie is "Mamma" Now.

Ruth Stonehouse, Universal star, has adopted a boy. His name is Raymond, and he is just 6 years old —a pudgy little fellow with light blue eyes and yellow hair, and he is the joy of Miss Stonehouse's pretty Hollywood bungalow. The child's mother passed away when he came into the world, and his father died in Los Angeles only a short time ago.

—o—

Girls Won't Love Him Now.

George Gebhart, well-known stage and motion-picture actor, has joined the forces of the Universal company at Universal City, and now is playing heavies in the company directed by Douglas Gerrard.

—o—

Welcome Home, Marshall.

Marshall Stedman's many friends at Universal City are delighted to receive mail advices from him that he is rapidly regaining his health, and expects to return to his desk and resume his duties as engaging director for the film company the 15th inst.

—o—

Who's Best Man?

Director Donald Macdonald of Universal City has under production a two-reel drama entitled "The Best Man." The cast consists of Lee Hill, Lois Wilson, Nellie Allen, Charles Dorian and A. E. Witting.

—o—

More Hula Girls?

A fast moving story of romance and adventure, laid in picturesque Honolulu and the more picturesque South Sea Islands is being put on by Director Otis Turner for William Fox. No photoplay released this year has more sharply delineated characters. George Walsh has the leading role, with Laura Dean playing opposite. Anna Luther is cast for a role. Others taking part are Herschal Mayall, William Burress, William Clifford, Samuel Searles, Willard Louis and Hector Sarno.

—o—

Marriage Won't Help Either.

What's in a name? Everything, says Jack Standing, Fox actor, when blessed with a patronymic such as his. "My name is just like the weather," says Jack. "I can't take six steps or talk to three persons without hearing some comment on it. Everybody takes a crack at it. I have a book filled with jests on the name, and at the suggestion of a friend have called it 'Standing Jokes.'

"One of the first jokes I recall was perpetrated while I was appearing with Olga Nethersole. A member of the cast came up to my apartment and liked it so much that he volunteered to be my room-mate. 'Oh, you can't do that,' said a friend. 'Why not?' I asked. 'Because it's a Standing room only,' was the answer.

"After that they came fast and furious. 'There's Jack Standing sitting,' is a favorite. I raise one leg to tie a shoestring and some one invariably pulls the one about Jack Standing on one foot. Only last week, my name nearly caused a girl at the photographer's to have brain fever. The whole trouble was simply that the proprietor had instructed her to make 'one sitting of Jack Standing standing.' Well, I am still standing for them!"

—o—

Joan's Debut in Movies.

Joan Sawyer's first photoplay is scheduled for release under the Fox banner very shortly. The picture deals with gypsy life.

—o—

Strong-arm Stuff.

Gladys Brockwell, the William Fox star, was limping badly a few days ago, because—here's a fine title for a song—she was lugging loose lumber for Lloyd. No director, especially Frank Lloyd, would think of enforcing such duties on an actress, of course. But the company was on a "location" near Sacramento. The lumber had to be unloaded for a "set." Laborers were scare, time was fleeting, so volunteers were called for. Miss Brockwell vowed that she needed the exercise and insisted on hauling off a joist or two.

—o—

How About Other Fellow?

After having been laid up for six weeks with torn ligaments as the result of a film fight, Herbert Rawlinson, Universal favorite, is now in position to rent or lend his crutches. He has returned to work and is being featured in Director Charles Swickard's production of "The Scarlet Crystal," written by J. Grugg Alexander. Among the other members of the cast are Edith Johnson, Dorothy Davenport and Gertrude Astor.

Score One for Lo.

For some special scenes to be used with Director Lynn Reynolds's production of the Universal feature, "The Man with a Peanut Soul," it was arranged for an Indian to sit at a camp fire while George Hernandez, who plays the feature lead, was to come to him and be invited to share in its warmth. Director Reynolds had an interpreter engaged, who told the Indian just what to do. Reynolds undertook to instruct Hernandez in his presence, and incidentally mentioned to him that the red man could not understand English.

"Keep talking to him, George," said Reynolds, "so he won't look up at the camera." "What'll I say," asked Hernandez. "I don't speak Hopi." "Oh, tell him anything. I don't care," said the director. "Tell him you'll give him your watch. But I don't suppose the old cigar sign could take care of a watch if he had one." "Don't trouble," responded the Indian, quick as a flash. "I have a very good watch."

Mention of Unmentionables.

Take it from George Hernandez, when you're going to the Grand Canyon be sure you have several relays of trousers. In one scene in the U feature, "The Man with a Peanut Soul," Hernandez was supposed to be suspended on a rope over a chasm several hundred feet deep. Reynolds made up his mind, however, not to risk the life of a perfectly good actor in this fashion, so he had a dummy built and put Hernandez's clothes on it while the actor remained behind a clump of bushes. The constructor of the dummy did not make the backbone strong enough, and while suspended in the air it broke in two with the result that the actor's trousers dropped several hundred feet into the stream below and were drowned. He had no others to wear until an obliging cowboy loaned him a pair. Even then his troubles weren't over, as he got stuck in a cactus plant and hundreds of the thorns adhered to the borrowed trousers.

Cruelty to Animals Note.

The jack rabbits and gophers are being kept awake nights this week on the 18,000-acre Ince ranch, where William S. Hart and his cowboys are filming night scenes in Hart latest "bad-man" picture. Real bullets are being used in the battle scenes, and already, it is said, more than a thousand rounds of ammunition have been exhausted.

He Came Right Up.

George E. Marshall, U director, who produced "The Committee on Credentials," by Peter B. Kyne, and "Love's Lariat," an exceedingly clever and original comedy, seen a few weeks ago at the Garrick, is an example of what hard work, plus big talent, will do. A few years ago Marshall was a business man of Chicago. But he tired of routine and decided to go into pictures. Coming west he offered himself as extra man at Universal City. In three months he had become an assistant director, and recently was rewarded for his efforts by promotion to a directorship. Mr. Marshall is also a first lieutenant in the newly-formed regiment of the Coast Artillery Corps of California.

Within the last year Ruby Marshall, a former society girl of Chicago, has joined her brother in the West, and is rapidly making a name for herself in pictures. She will appear in "Mary Ann," by Ruth Stonehouse, and in "The Little Queen of Nowhere," by Raymond Wells.

Luxury Note.

Mary O'Connor, scenario writer at the Fine Arts studio, has just returned from a vacation spent at the San Diego Fair. Besides several days, she also spent several dollars on motor-chair hire.

Betty Now a Vamp.

Promising to out-vamp all previous vampires of the screen, that beautiful thirty-two-candle-power vampire, Betty Compson of the Christie Comedy Company is appearing in a shivery, quivery, hair-raising film comedy drama entitled "Hist! At Six o'clock." While the picture is a comedy, it is full of thrills.

Ethel and Carlyle Again.

"The Madness of Helen," a new World Film play, in which Ethel Clayton and Carlyle Blackwell have the star roles, contains certain "double exposure" effects, said by experts to be entirely without precedent. The hero of this screen drama is a literary man who gets $1000 apiece for his short stories, showing that he is some literary man.

—o—

Desperate Desmond.

William Desmond this week is forsaking his job of "prop" preacher at the Ince studios to become a screen Sherlock Holmes. The photoplay is by C. Gardner Sullivan, and is described as a weird detective drama, replete with thrills. The supporting cast includes Margaret Thompson, Robert McKim, J. Barney Sherry, Gertrude Claire and Jerome Storm.

—o—

Inventor, Too, B'Gosh.

Just because Paul Hurst is an actor is no sign he hasn't an inventive mind. Hurst, who plays "heavies" for the Signal Film Corporation, last week constructed a reflector for the electric lights at the studio which increase their efficiency by 35 per cent. The average studio light is arranged in such a way that a large portion of the rays are thrown up over the scene being staged. Hurst built a reflector of compo board, which was painted white and covered with an aluminum gloss. This reflector works on horizontal hinges, changing the angle to reflect the light wherever desired. It is estimated that by use of this reflector as much light can be thrown by three lights as by four heretofore.

Poor Helen.

As the result of an accident in the staging of an exterior scene, Helen Holmes will wear her right wrist in a brace for a few weeks. The action called for a jump from the vestibule of a passenger coach to the tonneau of an auto running along the road parallel to the track. The train and auto were traveling at approximately twenty-five miles an hour when the leap was made. Blankets and cushions had been piled in the bottom of the machine to lessen the shock, but just as Miss Holmes jumped the car hit a small chuck hole and lurched. She was thrown violently against the side of the machine and to save herself she thrust out one hand. She managed to keep from being thrown from the car, but her wrist was turned under her and badly sprained.

No Tin Soldiers.

The Signal Film Corporation has opened negotiations with the proper authorities for the use of Troop D of the United States Cavalry for use in the production of the [illegible] episode of the Helen Holmes feature, "A Lass of the Lumberlands." Troop D is on its way back to Los Angeles from Fort Huachuca, Ariz., where they have been doing patrol duty along the Mexican border. Upon their arrival, if it is possible, they will be pressed into service before the firing squad of cameramen of the Signal.

Blanche Sweet in "Unprotected" will be the offering at the Woodley, commencing tomorrow. The story has to do with a young girl artist, whose family disapproves of her adopting sculpture as a career. In a quarrel between the girl and her uncle the man is accidentally killed, but in such a way as to make it appear that the girl is guilty. A love affair between the girl and the Governor's son complicates matters when she is convicted to a ten-year sentence. There are many exciting situations and complications, which are said to offer Miss Sweet ample opportunity for the display of her histrionic ability. Theodore Roberts, Tom Forman and other Lasky favorites support the popular star. With scenes laid in Alabama and in Bear Valley, the production is said to be a beautiful one.

John Emerson directed. In the story Miss Pickford will be seen as a little castaway, who, having been deserted by her father, a former British army officer, is adopted by a Hindu sword-maker, and reared among the natives.

She rescues a dashing young officer when he is wounded in a conflict between British troops and the natives, and falls in love with him.

In settings the picture promises to be unusually effective. A great temple and pool of the sacred water, many picturesque by-ways and bazaars, and other bits of native scenery, as well as some curious Hindu customs, are said to add much beauty and realism to the production.

Symphony.

Lionel Barrymore and Grace Valentine, the latter a well-known Morosco actress, will be the dramatic stars at the Symphony this week, commencing today. "The Brand of Cowardice," in which they will appear, is said to have been made with the strictest accuracy as to scenic effects along the Mexican border, where the action of the play takes place, and with the greatest pains as to details of life in the American army. These details were supplied by John W. Noble, director of the picture, who entered the regular army as a West Point man, fought in the Spanish-American War, was wounded several times in the Philippines, saw service in Cuba and was in China during the Boxer uprising. Thus with an army play, directed by a former commissioned officer in the regular army, with such stars as Lionel Barrymore and Miss Valentine, and with a strong supporting cast, "The Brand of Cowardice" bids fair to be one of the sensations of the screen during the present season.

Superba.

Dainty Mary Anderson, one of the loveliest of the Vitagraph stars, will be seen, commencing today, at the Superba in a romantic film play entitled "The Last Man." William Duncan will have the name part. The story is one of army life. It opens with the faithlessness of an army officer's wife. The officer subsequently meets dainty Jeanne MacDonald, an orphan living near the army post. Jeanne and the officer flee to the Philippines, she as an army nurse, he in the service of his country. He is merely her protector. Later their feeling ripens into love. Then there appears on the scene the officer's wife. The tenseness of the drama increases from this point on, but all ends well. A native uprising, Harvey's rescue of his former wife and her husband, and finally the tender love that fills the lives of both the officer and Jeanne furnish many thrills and much romance.

Miller's.

There is a new star on the film horizon in the person of talented Gladys Brockwell, who will appear at Miller's Theater starting today, in "Sins of Her Parents," said to be the greatest Alaskan story since "The Spoilers." Miss Brockwell undertakes the difficult art of impersonating two sharply contrasting characters. The story is filled with dramatic climaxes, and is said to be a consistent and logical one. Spontaneous comedy touches add to the play. It deals with big men, who live hard and fight hard, but who play the game of life squarely.

Beside the charming star, the supporting company includes William Clifford, Herschel Mayall, George Webb, Carl von Schiller, Jim Farley and other local favorites.

The added attractions on the programme are the News Weekly and the Hans and Fritz cartoon comedies.

Palace.

"A Corner in Colleens," starring the popular Ince favorite, Bessie Barriscale, will be the feature at the Palace, starting with the matinee today. The story of the photoplay concerns the adventures of a young Irish lass who is up to all manner of "divilment" and makes life miserable for her American suitor. The ensuing situations involve thrilling fights between soldiers and rebels, with lots of romance, and more important than all, a happy ending.

A highly amusing sequence of scenes in the action shows Miss Barriscale in the disguise of a young man; but she is so palpably a forlorn bundle of femininity that all the soldiers in the regiment which captures her have to pretend that they are taken in by her deception. Charley Ray and Margery Wilson are featured with Miss Barriscale in the cast.

Fred Mace will be the Keystone comedy star in "The Lover's Night," the latest effort of Mack Sennett and his tribe of joy producers.

Tally's Broadway.

Clara Kimball Young in "The Common Law," at Tally's Broadway, broke all attendance records for this house. The showing of the picture will continue.

"The Common Law" is an excellent visualization of the novel by Robert W. Chambers, with Miss Young in the role of Valerie West, the lovely artist's model, and perhaps there is not another screen star in the world who so fully fits the ideal of the character.

Garrick.

The Garrick will be the mecca for comedy enthusiasts for this week. Starting with the matinee today Charlie Chaplin will be seen at his Los Angeles home in "The Revue of 1916," arranged frim his three notable successes of the year, "The Tramp," "His Night Out," and "His New Job." Every foot of film is jammed full of action and fun, as only the most comical scenes have been taken from the pictures so action that tickles the risibilities is continually paramount.

The comedian appears at the outset as a tramp who takes a job on a farm. He does the chores with side-splitting variations but after a time is compelled to hunt a new job. The new position is with a motion-picture company, and he unexpectedly finds himself cast as the hero. A celebration of the success develops into a decidedly comic night out with a fellow player.

Alhambra.

Ethel Clayton and Holbrook Blinn are co-stars in the much-discussed photodrama, "The Hidden Scar," to be presented for the first time in this city starting today. The story of the play is said to deal with a question which is continually presenting itself in our daily life and has never been satisfactorily answered. The manner in which this is presented in "The Hidden Scar" may not exactly coincide with everyone's views on the subject, but it will at least compel one to consider carefully before he decides for or against the solution offered, it is said.

The added attraction is a new comedy entitled "Maid Mad," which features Charles Murray, Louise Fazenda, and other Mack Sennet funmakers.

Clune's Auditorium.

No less than 10,000 people have been turned away from the box office of Clune's Auditorium during the past three weeks unable to make reservations for D. W. Griffith's colossal spectacle "Intolerance" or "The Mother and the Law," which is to begin its fourth week tomorrow. No such triumph as has marked this attraction is recorded in the theatrical annals of Los Angeles. Griffith has brought America the credit of having turned out the most marvelous and awe-inspiring picture production. It is so stupendous an affair that one fairly gasps at the every-changing scenes, the ever-increasing beauty and the ever-growing sensation of the story as it proceeds during the three hours allotted to each performance.

The splendid symphony orchestra under the direction of M. Pesce is a treat which adds materially to the success of the attraction. It is announced that the evening performances commence at 8 p.m. sharp and the matinee at 2 p.m. sharp.

EVOLUTION OF DANCE.

Margaret Edwards, of "World of Pleasure," Well Known Here from Film Work, Sees Change of So-called Classical to More Beautiful Modern.

Incorporating the incomparable grace of physical culture with the panther-like motions of the native Arabian dance, Margaret Edwards has evolved a combination that suggests development toward a perfect symphony of motion. From the carelessly interpreted so-called classical dances of the ancients will come a more beautiful modern dance calling upon the study of the body perfection, relying, perhaps, upon the ancient for basic construction, says the erstwhile Los Angeles girl, who scored a hit with "The World of Pleasure," last week.

"By an exhaustive study of books, sculpture and paintings relating to the subject in mind, I evolved my present Arabian dance," said Miss Edwards.

"If the authorities are to be believed, the dance as I worked it out must be right, and my convictions were realized when Sir Rabindranath Tagore, whom I met in Portland, told me thot my intepretation was absolutely true to Arabian nativity.

"The more strenuous portions of my dance are done as the men would dance—the more graceful as the women would. A combination of the two strikes a happy medium in the American idea."

Miss Edwards is one of the foremost woman exponents of physical culture, not only as a benefit for professional dancers, etc., but for the average individual. But 17 years old, she is, and has been for several years, a perfectly-developed girl. No one set of muscles is specially developed, but every muscle necessary to the health of the body.

"At present I am studying an Egyptian dance," she said. "And I am going to produce something entirely unlike what the popular conception of the ancient Egyptian dances were supposed to be. Believe me, the angular motions of the hands and body attributed to them have been sadly accentuated. The Egyptians had a much more graceful conception of the dance, and I shall try to interpret it when next I come to Los Angeles."

Margaret Edwards, more familiarly known to Angelenos as the "perfect girl" of motion-picture fame, represents the younger generation of the American dancer of the serious type. She tends more to the joyous outdoor expression of rhythm rather than the toe dancing in vogue with the long-invading Europeans.

Way of the World.

JUST CAN'T BE ALONE.

Little Mary Finds it Impossible at Chicago Convention to Keep Away from Throngs of Admirers—Thousands Join in Her Reception.

Recently Mary Pickford, who will be seen at Clune's Broadway Theater this week in "Less Than the Dust," the first big photoplay in which she has ever appeared, went to Chicago to be present at the convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League convention. It was announced that she would arrive at La Salle-street station on the limited, and the announcement brought out more than 6000 persons.

The little lady was unable to get to her car until ten big officers from the Harrison-street station formed a hollow square and escorted her to the street.

In the evening she attended the exposition at the Coliseum, as it had been advertised that she would be there. Nearly 20,000 persons crowded into the big building, the doorways were jammed and the windows were bulging. Four firemen took Miss Pickford on their shoulders and carried her through the struggling mass until they reached the center of the main floor, where she was placed on a table. No candidate for Presidential honors ever got a greater reception, and so closely did the crowd surge about her that her evening gown of light silk was literally torn into shreds. When she came out 5000 students met her at the University of Chicago.

Do you wonder that she likes to be lonesome? She can't be.

Clune Gets Mary Pickford's Great Feature

MARY PICKFORD, still the most popular of stage or screen celebrities, whose first appearance as a star-producer will take place at Clune's Broadway.

Most Popular of all Film Stars to Appear at Broadway Theater in "Less Than The Dust."

EVER since Mary Pickford announced that she would have her own film organization and give every detail of its work and production her own guidance, her uncounted hosts of admirers have asked but one question:

"What will be the first picture?"

Mary Pickford now puts forth her first production under the new arrangement. It is "Less Than the Dust," a picture play that will run for two hours and which will have the most elaborate production and most notable supporting cast that could be made and assembled for a motion picture.

With his usual enterprise, W. H. Clune, California's leading exhibitor-producer, has secured the local rights for the crowning achievement of Miss Pickford.

"Less Than the Dust" will be presented as the first of the list at Clune's Broadway Theater today, Sunday, Nov. 5.

On account of the elaborate character of the production and the heavy expense involved, the Broadway prices will be slightly increased for this engagement.

They will be 15c, 25c and 35c.

There will be seven performances daily, beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Scenically "Less Than the Dust" is highly picturesque and even gorgeous. Lavish expenditures stand out in the screen portrayals at every stage.

The scenes are all laid in India and England and are remarkably faithful pictures of both lands in scenic sets of great beauty and wondrous effect.

The East Indian environment is especially interesting and picturesque in that the splendid direction has brought to the screen an unmistakable atmosphere and understanding of the lives and customs of the British officers and the lower caste.

One of the scenes shows a street in an Indian city with its shops and bazaars and all of the color and ever-changing views of an oriental thoroughfare.

Another shows the British garrison and still another the great stone temple and the pool of the sacred waters, while another effective picture is made of a storm in the desert.

The story is full of dramatic force, and Mary Pickford's part is a blending of the delightful comedy, winsomeness and innocence that give her portrayals of the part such an appealing, girlish charm.

The big scenes during the uprising of the natives and their repulse by the troops are most effectively worked out, while through all of the changing scenes there is a great human love story.

In "Less Than the Dust" Mary Pickford will be seen as a little castaway, an orphan of English birth, who, deserted and alone, becomes alike to the natives and dwells among the lowest caste of the Hindoos.

At the opening of the story a rebellion, caused by some dispute over the sacred rights of the people and their abuse by the provincial goverment, is in progress, the natives and soldiers of the British garrison being in conflict.

Rhada, the girl portrayed by Miss Pickford, has been adopted by a sword-maker. During the warfare she meets Captain Richard Townsend of the local garrison. She is greatly impressed by him and looks up to the soldier as an exalted person.

Such well-known players of the legitimate and motion-picture stage as David Powell, Frank Losee, Mary Alden, Mario Majeroni, Cesare Gravina and Mercita Esmonde are prominent in the cast.

This is the first Mary Pickford play to be released since the famous star said farewell to the program system and decided to make productions independently.

The Artcraft Pictures Corporation, formed especially to distribute the Pickford pictures all over the world. Hector Turnbull, whose former photoplays have been unusually successful, has the honor of being the author selected by the famous star for her first play as an independent star.—[Advt.

countered by an eccentric artist and his wife in the Wild West, whither they go in search of health. They meet "Bowie" Blake, a bad man, and situations of an intensely dramatic nature then follow in quick succession.

Knows Peters Now.

It was some compliment; at least it was intended as a flattering compliment. It really happened like this. House Peters, the Morosco-Pallas star, asked a match from a new extra at the studio and stood talking with the newcomer. In a short time the stranger, evidently assuming Peters to be a fellow extra, made this remark: "Do you know when I first looked at you I thought you were House Peters? I always go to see him on the screen. Do you know him, or have you seen him play?"

Peters never slied as he said, "I've seen him play, but I don't think he can do any better than I."

"Well, you must simply sit up nights hating yourself!" exclaimed the extra. But he "got it" when he saw Peters begin to work.

Promotion Note.

Al Green of the Selig Company, who for years was assistant to that master director, Colin Campbell, has been promoted to a directorship, and now owns green goggles and a megaphone of his own. Mr. Green will produce "The Princess of Patches," at the Selig studios in Chicago. While the interior scenes will be taken in Chicago, the exteriors will be filmed in the Southland. Mr. Green will escort a special company of players to Southern States where scenes called for in the story will be taken. Mr. Green's apprenticeship promises to serve him well, as he assisted in the directing of "The Spoilers," "The N'er-do-Well," and other big and popular Selig features.

BY VALESKA SURATT

TO EACH one of you, my sisters, I say that never before has it been so easy to make your complexion, no matter how deficient it may be now, even more beautiful than you have ever hoped it to be. And I say more: you can be as sure of it as that the sun will rise tomorrow. I have never seen it fail. Thousands are doing it every day. It's very simple. You mix the following formula yourself at home in a few minutes. It's far more economical than buying prepared creams—and there's no comparison as to results. After all, that's what you want—results. Well, just get from the drug store one ounce of zintone and mix it with two tablespoonfuls of glycerine in a pint of water. Then it's ready. Use it lavishly and every day. At the end of a few days you'll say it is a marvel. I know whereof I speak and I want you to start today.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS.

MISS ANNA F. M.—He is right. Having hair under the arms while wearing the present styles at a dance is inexcusable. I can understand your fear of using the ordinary superfluous hair-removers. They burn and mark up the skin. I can promise the following will not. Just apply sulfo solution to the hairs and you will see them dissolve in a wonderful way. It never leaves a mark or red spot. Sulfo solution can be obtained at any drug store.

* * *

MISS DANDER—I've seen awful cases of dandruff disappear after three or four headwashes by using eggol. This is a wonderful dissolver of dandruff. You know soap and ordinary shampoos contain alkalis which really hurt hair. Dissolve a teaspoonful of eggol in half a cup of water. You can get enough eggol at the drug store for twenty-five cents to last for over a dozen shampoos. It is a marvelous scalp cleanser.

* * *

MRS. F. O. R.—Next time it happens that you can't get at the drug store the eggol for the headwash, simply send the twenty-five cents to "Secretary to Valeska Suratt, Thompson Bldg., Chicago," and I will see that it sent to you promptly.

* * *

SLIM TRESSES—I've known many cases of falling hair worse than yours. One acquaintance of mine was just having a wig made to cover the bald spots when I told her I could make her hair grow as sure as I was living. She started in using my formula and today her hair reaches below her waist and is wonderfully thick and silky. This case is no exception. I have never known it to fail. Here it is: To a half-pint of water and half-pint of alcohol (or a full pint of bay rum instead of water and alcohol) add one ounce of beta-quinol. Mix it yourself at home; it's no trouble, and you are sure of results. This costs much less than the prepared hair articles in the stores. Try it and you can bet on it that in a short time you'll look like a different woman, your hair will grow as you never knew it to grow before. You'll be proud of it.

MISS T. O. R.—Cheer up, girlie. Once I met a young lady, a mighty sweet character, with a face so covered with blackheads it looked as though she had been shot at with buckshot. I told her to go to the drug store and get some powdered neroxin, sprinkle some on a sponge and rub it on the blackheads. I told her they'd go away in a few minutes. She couldn't believe it, but they did. You try it, and you'll see for yourself, too.

* * *

MRS. PEEVISH—Don't fool with the bust, my dear. Contrivances are dangerous. If anything in this world can develop the bust, this should: Add two ounces of ruetone and half a cup of sugar to half a pint of water. Mix. Take two teaspoonfuls after meals and on retiring.

* * *

MISS MARGARET X.—There's nothing vain about my telling you that the face powder made after my own formula and now sold in drug stores as "Valeska Suratt Face Powder," for fifty cents, in white, flesh and brunette tints, is the most wonderful powder you ever used. I had it made to avoid the chalkiness found in even the highest-priced powders. It is a marvel of fineness and delicacy. You'll use no other when you try it once.

* * *

MRS. "RINKLE"—I never make a decided statement unless I know. I can assure you positively that you will get rid of your crows' feet and wrinkles in an exceedingly short time if you will make up the following formula yourself at home and use it faithfully and liberally. You can be sure of it. I've seen the results too often. Just get it at any drug store, two ounces of eptol and mix in half a pint of water with a tablespoonful of glycerine. This makes several times more cream than you can buy in prepared form at the stores and there's no comparison in the results. It is indeed remarkable. Don't fail to use it.

Plethora Note.

Kathlyn Williams will start on her second Morosco production on the 18th inst. Selection of a number of specially submitted stories has ended in picking the best three. The flip of a coin will probably decide which of the three will be put on first.

Will be a Celluloid.

Frank McIntyre is another celebrated comedian recently secured by the Famous Players. He will make his screen debut in a picturization of his most successful play, "The Traveling Salesman," by James Forbes.

She Wasn't a Court.

Now that screen actresses are helping to lift the Belgian debt and have become city mothers and everything, any old thing is liable to be asked of them. Press agents seem to have overdone the conventional mistaken identity story, but this time May Allison, the Yorke-Metro star, really was the victim of such a situation. One day last week, Mrs. Lillian Brown, accompanied by her little daughter, Marjorie, who attracted much attention at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, called on May Allison at her Hollywood home, and told her how her husband had left her without means of support, and told her she expects soon to become a mother. Miss Allison, being interested, allowed the woman to continue her pitiful story, but when it was all over inquired why the visitors called on her. "Aren't you May Allison, trustee of the Failure to Provide Court?" asked Mrs. Brown. Then the Yorke actress realized that on account of the similarity of names, she had been mistaken for an officer of the court of the same name.

Doc Cannon Shifts.

The most recent addition to the Harold Lockwood-May Allison supporting cast now engaged in the picturization of Harold McGrath's "Pidgin Island," is Doc Pomeroy Cannon, who was last seen on the Paramount programme with Dustin Farnum in "The Parson of Panamint." In "Pidgin Island" he plays the role of "Smead," father of Lester Cuneo, the brains of a smuggling outfit.

Hello, Jackie.

Jackie Saunders is back at work at the Balboa studio, under the direction of Sherwood MacDonald, who directed the golden-haired actress in "The Grip of Evil." Frank Mayo is playing opposite the star.

Back to the Rice-Cakes.

Makato Inokuchi, Balboa's clever Japanese actor, has returned to his own country to engage in the manufacture of motion pictures by and for his own people.

Irene Fenwick Too!

Irene Fenwick, celebrated stage star, has been engaged by the Famous Players, and will be starred in "Princess Zim Zim."

Burro Understudies Actors.

Take it from Enid Markey, Ince star, when a young burro desires to learn the motion picture business, it should be first allowed to ramble among the cowboys, before being introduced to the politer circle of stardom.

A baby burro, less than a month old, has been apprehended by the Culver City authorities, charged with the theft of grease paint, cocoanut cream and other make-up accessories, and has now been banished to Inceville, where it can learn the moving picture business in a less dangerous manner.

The burro was acquired by Enid Markey and company of Ince players, while on location in Bear Valley, and was brought back with them. The occurrence which caused the banishment occurred the other day. While Miss Markey was working on the stage, the animal, which was used to being petted just outside Miss Markey's door, tried to enter, found the door open, and went in. The next appearance of the animal was on stage No. 3, where the actress was working. It was, to use Miss Markey's own words, "blushing furiously," and presented a nozzle of crimson hue to astonished onlookers. A close examination revealed that the burro had been making experiments in make-up at the expense of Miss Markey's rouge box. A trip to her dressing-room disclosed a horrible state of wreckage therein, and from all accounts enough rouge, cream and other beautifiers had been wasted to satisfy the most ambitious amateur.

Wild Animal Stuff.

Ulysses S. Davis has been engaged by David Horsley to produce the first of a series of pictures in which the Bostock animals will be featured. Work on the first picture in the new series, a five-reeler, is to start at once. The story is one in which are introduced South African natives, wild animal catchers, diamond smugglers and Scotland Yard detectives. Director Davis's last picture under the Horsley management was "The Soul Cycle," produced the first of this year. Davis is also well known as the director of a number of successful Vitagraph features.

What Does He Mean?

Crane Wilbur Horsley star, to George Ovey, ditto: Have you fully determined how you are going to vote next Tuesday, George,—wet or dry?

George: Not a doubt in my mind at all—extra dry, of course.

Low Brow Note.

John McDermott and George Bronson Howard have been making a picture together at the Universal. It is adapted from the Yorke-Norroy stories of Mr. Howard, written when he was very young and was not sparing with his words. McDermott started to read the book, and after three weeks had finished only two chapters. "What else did you ever write besides this, George?" he asked. "Why," said G. B. H., "there was 'A Page From the Book of Broadway.'" "I never read the Book of Broadway," said Mack, "but if it is only a page, I'm for it. Let's do that instead."

REALISM TO FINISH.

Premature Explosion of Cannon Blinds Actor.

"The Crisis," filmed by William N. Selig from Winston Churchill's famous novel, is full of stirring scenes which a person would have to go far to duplicate or even approach. Several of the hair-raising "stunts" were pre-arranged, but others were the result of accident, and while several of these latter resulted in either temporary or permanent injury to the participants, they have had the effect of producing "realism" beyond the most sanguine ambitions.

Among these special stunts is the shooting away of a patch of ground beneath a horse and rider, with the result that the pair tumble down the side of a cliff during the action of a battle. In the portrayal of the battle of Vicksburg, a color-bearer is shown lifted bodily from his feet, and hurled to the ground with terrific force by a bursting shell.

And then there followed a most distressing accident, one hardly on the programme, but which the camera has faithfully recorded. During the bombardment of Vicksburg, in which the entire National Guard of Mississippi is used, a shell, inaccurately timed, exploded with terrific force just as a charge has been ordred. One of the soldiers is seen to stagger and then grope his way blindly out of the picture. It was realism to the fullest extent of the word. He had been totally blinded by the flash and the agony pictured upon his features was horribly real.

NOVED MOVIE SCHEME.

Advertising vaudeville acts by movies is the latest feature in a profession already stocked with novelties and innovations. Charles W. Group, an ex-vaudeville and moving-picture man, has originated the idea of photographing the acts that want booking. Any striking features are in this way more faithfully represented than by the old method of photographs. A number of vaudeville acts have incorporated the films in their publicity scheme, making the novelty work for them as an advertisement to managers and added attraction to their audiences. Mr. Group intends to build a studio for the filming of local acts wanting booking, and will probably establish branches in New York and Chicago.

From Youth to Old Age

The physical changes in a woman from youth to old age are fraught with many dangers.

The young girl, the young wife and mother, the middle aged woman struggling with the trials of "change of life," all have new physical conditions to contend with that only the hardiest withstand. The majority fall victims to some distressing feminine disorder that makes life a misery.

When a woman feels that some disease peculiar to her sex is developing in her system she should immediately profit by the experience of others and begin taking

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

For three generations this famous remedy has been helping sick women

Just as it helped these three women.

Girlhood.

Taunton, Mass.—"I had pains in both sides and every month I had to stay at home from work and suffer a long time. One day a woman came to our house and asked my mother why I was suffering. Mother told her that I suffered every month and she said, 'Why don't you buy a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' My mother bought it and the next month I was so well that I worked all the month without staying at home a day. I am in good health now, and have told lots of girls about it."—Miss Clarice Morin, 22 Russell St., Taunton, Mass.

If all young women who are not well could see in our library the great file of letters like above they would be convinced our medicine would help them.

Womanhood.

Miller's Falls, Mass.—"Doctors said I had displacement very badly and I would have to have an operation. I had a soreness in both sides and a pulling sensation in my right side. I could not do much work the pain was so bad. I was also troubled with irregularity and other weaknesses. My blood was poor. We had been married four years and had no children. After using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier I became well and strong and was saved from an operation. We are now the parents of a big baby girl, and I praise your remedies to others and give you permission to publish my letter."—Mrs. Joseph Guilbault, Jr., Bridge St., Miller's Falls, Mass.

Change of Life.

Englewood, Ill.—"While going through the Change of Life I suffered with headaches, nervousness, flashes of heat, and I suffered so much I did not know what I was doing at times. I spent $1900 on doctors and not one did me any good. One day a lady called at my house and said she had been as sick as I was at one time, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made her well, so I took it and now I am just as well as I ever was. I cannot understand why women don't see how much pain and suffering they would escape by taking your medicine. I cannot praise it enough for it saved my life and kept me from the Insane Hospital."—Mrs. E. Sheldon, 5657 S. Halsted St., Englewood, Ill.

The great number of unsolicited letters like the above prove that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is all that it is claimed to be. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

CAMERA CLICKS

The screen version of "Bought and Paid For," to be released by the World Film Corporation early in November, with Alice Brady as the star of a strong company, is highly regarded by the experts who were at the private view.

Dorothy Dalton has signed a two-years' contract with the Triangle, and will appear under the Ince banner.

William Farnum, screen favorite of the Fox company, is working now in his "straight" picture, his first of that type in many months.

In the five-reel photoplay, "Pidgin Island," now being produced by Fred Balshofer at the Yorke-Metro studios in Hollywood, May Allison gets away from the ingenue somewhat with a strong acting part.

A current art magazine just received from Europe comments upon the photograph of Rena Rogers which, made by the Hoover Art Studio of Hollywood, has received royal recognition and now hangs in the sixty-first annual exhibition of the Royal Photographic Society of Great Britain.

Tom Terriss is one of the names in eastern film circles that very shortly will be added to the west coast film roster.

Beverley Griffith is directing the production at Universal City of "Pirates of Phantom Bend," in two reels. The principal parts are taken by Edith Johnson and Fred Church.

William Canfield, well-known character actor of Universal City, has gone to New York for an extended visit.

Clara Kimball Young is married, even though her husband is suing another man for alienation of his wife's affections.

Mollie King is shortly to appear in a Pathe serial.

October birthdays: Carter de Haven, Jackie Saunders, Robert Warwick, Lillian Gish, Irving Cummings, Helen Ware, Lillian Peacocke, Yale Boss and Dorothy Phillips.

MUSES SMILE ON HIM.

Setting Designer at Little Theater Also Noted Playwright.

The wonderful, artistic, colorful stage settings and lighting effects which have been such a factor in the success of the Players' Producing Company at the Little Theater are the work of Norman-Bel Geddes. In the production of "Nju," and in fact all the productions to come, Mr. Geddes occupies a position toward the play as a whole much the same as Joseph Urban does in the theaters in which he is so important a factor.

Mr. Geddes is an American, and ever since his original work with Jessie Bonstelle at the Northampton Municipal Theater he has been considered among the foremost advocates of the new art of the theater. He is still a young man, and no native American promises so well to be the greatest factor in the future of the American drama as Norman-Bel Geddes.

In addition to his artistic ability, Geddes has a real talent for writing. His play, "The Thunderbird," which will be played at the Little Theater this season, has already scored a success in this country and in Europe.

LEAGUE TO SEE "NJU."

As the first event on a crowded and interesting winter programme, the Los Angeles Center Drama League of America, will attend the performance of "Nju" at the Little Theater in a body on Tuesday evening. The Drama League has not bought out the entire house, but it is believed that members will constitute a majority of the audience. The Drama League's Playgoing Committee visited the performance of "Nju" last Tuesday and approved of it so strongly that a bulletin was immediately published and sent to all members, urging them to patronize the performance. Saturday next, the Drama League will give a luncheon at the Hotel Clark in honor of Richard Ordynski and William Pole of London, Eng., one of the world's greatest authorities on stage technic, and founder and director of the Elizabethan State Society.

SAYS WE BECOME CRANKS ON HOT WATER DRINKING

Hopes Every Man and Woman Adopts This Splendid Morning Habit.

Why is man and woman, half the time, feeling nervous, despondent, worried; some days headachy, dull and unstrung; some days really incapacitated by illness.

If we all would practice inside bathing, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of thousands of half-sick, anaemic-looking souls with pasty, muddy complexions we should see crowds of happy, healthy, rosy-cheeked people everywhere. The reason is that the human system does not rid itself each day of all the waste which it accumulates under our present mode of living. For every ounce of food and drink taken into the system nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out, else it ferments and forms ptomaine-like poisons which are absorbed into the blood.

Just as necessary as it is to clean the ashes from the furnace each day, before the fire will burn bright and hot, so we must each morning clear the inside organs of the previous day's accumulation of indigestible waste and body toxins. Men and women, whether sick or well, are advised to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of washing out of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the indigestible material, waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Millions of people who had their turn at constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, nervous days and sleepless nights have become real cranks about the morning inside-bath. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will not cost much at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate to anyone, its cleansing, sweetening and freshening effect upon the system.

FINDS BOY WONDER.

Morosco to Feature Him in Play this Week.

Manager Oliver Morosco has a big reputation as a discoverer of stage stars. He has a representative in many large cities in the United States whose duty it is to attend all theatrical entertainments, including amateur theatricals, and if such representative sees and hears a young person who he thinks has the making of a good actor or a star to report the name and address of such young person to Mr. Morosco. In this way Mr. Morosco discovered Lenore Ulrich, Mary Servoss, Mary Baker, Charlie Ruggles, Edmund Lowe and many others.

At the Morosco last week his judgment was again put to a successful test. While in San Francisco and Oakland last summer with "Canary Cottage," Mr. Morosco attended a performance of the Orpheum stock company in Oakland. The play was "The Dummy," and little Charles Barton, a 13-year-old lad, assumed the role. Barton made a big hit with the large crowd at the Orpheum that night, but he made a bigger hit with Morosco. The result is that the 13-year-old actor has carried away the laurels of a big triumph in "The Dummy."

TO AID PRISONER.

Signal Director to Raffle Silver Bridle Made by Convict.

With a view to helping George D. Blair, a convict at the Deer Lodge (Montana) penitentiary, to start proceedings for a pardon, J. P. McGowan, director-general of the Signal Film Corporation, this week agreed to try to raffle a fancy silver inlaid bridle which Blair had made during spare moments.

To make the life of the convicts less irksome the Montana authorities have voted to allow the showing of motion pictures in the penal institutions. At Deer Lodge they chose the Signal's original railroad serial, "The Girl and the Game." Blair saw McGowan in the role of Spike, a convict, and decided that an appeal to him might result profitably.

Accordingly, he wrote to Mr. McGowan telling of this bridle, and asking whether he would care to purchase it, or to raffle it among his friends. Director McGowan replied that he will handle the bridle, either by purchasing it himself or raffling it, as Blair may choose.

HALLOWEEN PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. David Horsley are Hosts to Stars.

Mr. and Mrs. David Horsley entertained a large number of their friends among the motion-picture coterie in Los Angeles at an elaborate Halloween party at their home in Gramercy place, last Tuesday evening.

All of the guests were gorgeously costumed. Mr. and Mrs. Horsley were in striking yama yamas, Miss Ethel Davey impersonated the Queen of Sheba, and Ulysses S. Davis was a Chinese mandarin. The guests were accosted on entering by a weird-looking witch who told fortunes in a dark alcove behind a bubbling caldron. An elaborate supper was served during the course of the evening.

Milton H. Fahrney was the lucky man among the prize winners, and came away with a silver champagne opener. Mrs. John Jasper took second prize, while J. A. Woods annexed the booby. Capt. Davey piloted the good ship Water-wagon, ably assisted by First Mate Woods.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. John Jasper, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ricketts, Mr. and Mrs. Milton H. Fahrney, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Woods, Capt. and Mrs. Melville, Mrs. Wilson, Misses Ethel Davey, Grace Davey, Elsie Leeson, Florence Cronk, Hoover and Silvia M. Kemp, Capt. Davey, Messrs. Ulysses Davis, Earl Sharpless, Alfred Davey, Jack Wilson and Allan Davey.

UNIQUE IN EFFECT.

Flowers Transformed into Girls by Clever Device.

The introduction of three girls, cast as sisters in support of Bessie Barriscale in "A Corner in Colleens," which will be shown at the Palace this week, serves to offer one of the most unusual examples of difficult photography ever attempted on the screen, it is said. The feat is that of a triple-exposure dissolve and was made the more difficult by the fact that three flowers, a rose, a hyacinth, and a daisy, play important parts in the picture.

Following a title reading, "Mother Fahy's Garden," the screen is occupied by a "close-up" view of the three flowers. Slowly the hearts of the blossoms disappear and in their respective places appear the faces of Margery Wilson, Alice Taaffe and Alice Lawrence, while at the same time the words "Daisy," "Hyacinth" and "Rose" are dissolved in. The petals of the flowers, however, remain intact. The scene was photographed by Clyde De Vinna, who is said to have spent many days in experimentation before succeeding in the work.

BEAUTY PERVADES OPEN-AIR CONCERT.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CLAREMONT, Nov. 3.—Beneath the shadow of overhanging trees, the spell of music woven with fine feeling by Director Tandler and the Symphony Orchestra, captivated a big audience at the Greek Theater at Pomona College Friday evening. The spirit of the compositions harmonized beautifully with the nature of the affair. The "California Sketches" by Tandler especially seemed to find their appropriate atmosphere in the surroundings. The joyous freedom of the Symphonic Sketches by Cadwick also gained in their refreshing quality. The prelude to "Die Meistersinger," Brahms "Academic Overture," the Saint-Saens "Deluge," with the fine design of Sigmund Beel's violin solo pervading it, and the "Mache Slave" by Tschaikowsky also fitted in with mood of the occasion. This was the first time the full orchestra of seventy-five musicians has played outside of the immediate vicinity of Los Angeles.

LONG JUMP RECORD.

What is said to be a record for long jumps in vaudeville was made recently by S. W. Leveen and Alexander Cross, physical culture experts. The night that they closed an engagement in Brisbane, Australia, they found a cablegrom offering them an Orpheum route, opening in Salt Lake. By consulting rail and boat schedules they found they could make it, a journey of 10,000 miles, with forty-eight hours to spare, and that's just how it worked out.

One often hears, "Where there's a

And this despite the oft-repeat

Wills that might be described a being legally safe and sane h been written on scraps of paper, verse and in letter form. Then, wills have been written in charc

ONE POET, MANY NOVELISTS.

Ruth Comfort Mitchell's "The Night Court" with the Titular Poem that Preaches the Guiltlessness of the Strumpet—Coningsby Dawson's New and Fine Novel, "Slaves of Freedom"—Selma Lagerlof Relates a Strange and Exalted Tragedy in "The Emperor of Portugallia"—Other Novels.

"The Night Court."

WHEN Ruth Comfort Mitchell's "The Night Court" appeared in the Century it was at once praised, reprinted, and elocutionists with shrill voices—the closing lines lend themselves admirably to soprano excitation—gave readings, and the poem was among a dozen bits of verse that somebody or other proclaimed "the greatest poem of the year." Miss Mitchell (Mrs. Young) was said to have arrived."

"The Night Court" is graphic, vivid, dramatic and clangorous. It preaches the guiltlessness of the strumpet, cries havoc on the moral code with a sort of hysterical fervor that is never disagreeable to the ears of the groundlings.

This is a sexual decade in literature. The catch phrase of the hour is "real life," and "real life" invariably refers to prostitutes and libertines, not virgins and ascetics; and with a kind of Freudian evasion the public swarms about the phallic symbols in verse and novel. The evasion with which the public hoodwinks itself is, of course, that it is studying "real life."

"The Night Court" is the modern version of Christ's injunction that he who is without sin should cast the first stone at the magdalen; and as a dramatic poem it has "punch;" as a thesis, it is shallow—if not meaningless.

"Call Rose Costara!"
Insolent she comes.
The watchers, practised, keen, turn down their thumbs.

Leaning she yawns, half smiling, undismayed,
a little at the law's delay,
Tired and impatient to be on her way.
It is her eighth conviction. . . ."

The vividity of the lines command attention and respect. The verse is written with the swing and zeal that Miss Mitchell has not equaled in any of the other poems included in the volume—written with an intensity that gives them a red-hot glow. Seldom have the same number of lines presented so clear and detailed a picture as:

"Let's call the plain-clothes cop, who brought her in,
The weary-eyed night watchman of the law,
A shuffling person with a hanging jaw,
Loose-lipped and sallow, rather vague of chin,
Whose rubber-heeling at His Honor's rap,
Is set and baited and then sprung the trap."

But since it is a thesis poem, a poem not content to be dramatic and vivid—to present the picture and leave it to rouse emotion—"The Night Court" can be no finer than its thesis is logical and convincing. And the thesis is neither.

A poem of an entirely different kind, a dramatic poem without a preachment or argument in it, is "The Vinegar Man;" and still another is "The Sin Eater;" either of which is much finer as a poem than the acclaimed "Night Court."

"The crazy old Vinegar Man is dead: He never had missed a day before!
Somebody went to his tumbledown shed by the Haunted House and forced the door;
There, in the litter of his pungent pans, the murky mess of his mixing place—
Deep, sticky spiders and empty cans—with the same old frown on his sour old face.

The Vinegar Man is a long time dead; he died when he tore his valentine."

In "St. John of Nepomuc" Miss Mitchell has indulged in a debauch of slang to relate a classical story—it is forced and strained and makes one think of the infidel who used to swear in church just to shock the children. Miss Mitchell, and many others, are very much excited over the new liberties in verse which permit slang and roughness.

In "The Subway" she has made a graphic "catalogue" of what one sees in a New York crowd.

"The Sweetmeat Game" is a short, tragic play in verse around a Chinese girl in the "quarter" of San Francisco.

Miss Mitchell has a strong dramatic sense. Moreover she has a remarkable ability to convey the essential features of a picture in a series of striking, vivid phrases. As a poet she stands alone, imitating no one and having a quality of her own that cannot be facilely imitated. "The Night Court" is a slender volume. It is not much in matter of quantity upon which to base an estimate of the author's place among contemporary poets; but her personality is as strong as Amy Lowell's, and though Miss Mitchell ignores much of the delicacy that gives charm to verse, and though much of her roughness seems, and no doubt is, solicitously affected, yet already hers is one of the half-dozen names in this country that stand for something definite and valuable in verse.

"Slaves of Freedom."

The paradoxical title of Coningsby Dawson's latest novel, "Slaves of Freedom" (Henry Holt & Co.) applies to women who obstinately evade marriage, women beautiful enough not to be apprehensive of spinsterhood, who enjoy suitors rather than lovers, who accept favors with complacency and turn a cold shoulder to importunate caresses.

In "The Garden Without Walls"—a worthy book that enjoyed popularity—Mr. Dawson introduced somewhat faintly the theme that is here intensified and elaborated; and while that was a more idyllic story, this is the better novel.

Three women, variations of the same passionless but sybaritic type, and two men are the important characters; and Mr. Dawson's characterizations have never been so difficult to achieve or better made.

Vashti and her daughter, Desire, arouse intense, devoted love in men, particularly in two men, and each of the women is rather annoyed by the passionate attachment.

Teddy, from childhood, loves Desire; and she toys with him, sends him away and calls him to her, treats him with indifference and gives nothing in return for his persistent loyalty—until, when in distress, when suddenly and rudely awakened to the view that the world may take of her selfish dalliance, she calls the boy to her, and the sequel is unexpected.

The third woman, Fluffy, an actress, who is a friend of Desire, is a more common type; a woman who sportively dangles men to her belt and has a temperamental spasm when they weary of suspense and escape. But Hal, who is a slave to Vashti's freedom and the father of Desire, gets nothing from life but what may be had from the worship of a cold beauty; and Teddy very nearly—if he does not—throws away the best of his life seeking the will-o'the-wisp affection of Desire.

Mr. Dawson has remarkable charm as a narrator. The poetical quality of "Slaves of Freedom," except perhaps in the first part—Mr. Dawson has few equals in writing of childhood—which is concerned with Teddy's and Desire's early years, is not so distinctive as in "The Garden Without Walls;" but the book is stronger, the developments are fuller, and the character work, especially of Desire, is subtle and complete.

"The Emperor of Portugallia."

Selma Lagerlof's "The Emperor of Portugallia" (Doubleday, Page & Co.,) which is translated by Velma Swanston Howard, is a book of strange and subtle charm that gives personality to the shadowy shapes of fiction and invests the simple Swedish peasants with dignity, making of Jan Anderson of Ruffluck Croft a rustic Hamlet who, in his fantastic madness, becomes the gracious ruler of an imaginary realm.

With the birth of his daughter, upon whom is bestowed the bright name of Glory Goldie Sunnycastle because the sun is the godmother, Jan begins to look at the world differently, and gradually takes upon himself the queer role of Emperor. Though people say his madness comes because his daughter, the wonder girl Goldie, over whom Jan has watched solicitously from the hour she was born when his heart underwent a transformation, goes into the city and wears silk and satin and her name becomes one at which young men smile and smirk and laugh. Her mother, Katrina, is a plain and practical woman, and Goldie understands and loves her; but the father is baffling with his hallucination and earnest kindliness, so that she wishes rather to avoid than meet him.

And so "The Emperor of Portugallia" is a tragedy, exalted in spirit; and the narrative is clear and simple, strangely vivid, and one does not wonder at all that Selma Lagerlof has been awarded the Nobel prize for literature.

"The Cab of the Sleeping Horse."

When Harleston, an astute man of great importance to the State Department, stumbles onto an empty cab and finds therein a bunch of American Beauty roses, a handkerchief, a woman's photograph and a cipher message, he comes near to stirring up international complications.

The most beautiful, seductive and intelligent woman spy in the world is (as usual in affairs of the kind) involved; and though Madeline Spencer has a record of which a lady of fortune might well be proud, she does not fare well at the hands of Harleston.

How this comes about is related in "The Cab of the Sleeping Horse," by John Reed Scott (G. Putnam's Sons,) and it tells of how Harleston is visited by burglars (with whom he banters wittily) after midnight, and again before breakfast. It tells of how the message is deciphered and what precautions are taken to defeat the German agents trying to purchase secrets from American officers, and of how the brilliant Madeline is defeated in the game of love by a woman with red hair—for red hair seems to always be fatal to Madeline's projects.

The story is scarcely so dramatic as it tries to be; and Mr. Scott's efforts to tell much of the narrative through "snappy" conversation is not, on the whole, felicitous.

"A Strong Man's House."

Francis Neilson, former Member of Parliament and author of "How Diplomats Make War," which was decidedly uncomplimentary to the diplomats, seems to have designed "A Strong Man's House" (Bobbs-Merrill Company) to convince those who read that preparedness is an iniquitous policy and that poetic justice requires that munition magnates be blown to pieces by the shells they manufacture.

At least something of the kind happens to Sir Alfred Horton-Birkett, who worked himself up from the very lowest station to be a member of England's highest council. Sir Alfred is a magnate on a monumental scale, and famed for the diabolic effectiveness of his shells. But Sir Alfred loves peace, though he prepares for war on the principle that preparedness keeps a nation free from attack. When the war breaks in Europe his conscience troubles him—until he learns of the German atrocities and is able to feel that his shells will be put to a worthy use in blowing Germans off the face of the earth.

Mr. Neilson's book is less concerned with characters (though they are numerous and loquacious,) however, than with principles and legislations. Sir Alfred is a sort of personification of the English race, with typical ideas (except that in the end he renounces his profitable investments;) but the story itself is revolved around questions of error in national policies and methods, and the blindness with which war is regarded as a necessary evil.

"THE DAUGHTER PAYS."

Mrs. Baillie Reynolds has spun a variation of the mercenary-marriage theme that will give the happy-enders (meaning those persons that enjoy the ecstatic termination of a tale) a new thrill.

In a manner faintly resembling the bewildering inversions that G. Bernard Shaw practices on the commonplace, Mrs. Reynolds has switched things around in her story so that "The Daughter Pays" appears to be streaked with originality.

It is an English story and Virginia Mynors is the heroine; while the mother, also Virginia Mynors, is the villainess—is the one who makes the daughter "pay" for a grafting, mendacious, selfish character.

Irrelevantly, it may be remarked that evil mothers are not common in fiction. Mother is the one name that continues to inspire a certain respect. "Wife," "father," "brother," and all the other family names, together with "love," "marriage" and "betrothal" have lost sanctity in fiction. But the novelists are not to blame. Though some of them have cracked or flawed or distortional mirrors, yet after a fashion each of them holds a mirror up to nature, to life.

Mrs. Mynors is an evil mother, though quite respectable. Finding that a former and jilted suitor holds the mortgage on the property of her late husband, Mrs. Mynors puts on her most charming clothes and smile and goes to throw herself into his arms. But Mr. Gaunt, embittered, feeling malignant, bargains for the daughter in marriage. This is quite a shock to the mother who still feels herself to be fascinating, but Gaunt is inexorable.

Virginia, young, beautiful, capable, honest, innocent, permits herself to be pushed into the marriage with the taciturn man, who would have been her father if his rival had not had the more money. But he has prospered since those unfortunate days; and he plans that the daughter shall pay for the exacerbation induced by the faithless mother in years gone by. But Virginia, being young beautiful, capable, honest and innocent, soon shows Gaunt that she resembles her mother in no wise except perhaps in beauty; and then his heart troubles him for fear that perhaps he can never make her love him; and he is all the more troubled by the young man in the background who is undeniably devoted to Virginia.

In the end, however, Mrs. Reynolds gives the lie to the dictum that a mercenary marriage may not be happy, and to the other dictum, to which romanticists have so long subscribed, that youth and age cannot be happily mated.

One of the new Borzoi Books to be published shortly by Alfred A. Knopf is "Journalism Versus Art," by Max Eastman, editor of The Masses.

Among the illustrations is one by Art Young, that represents the wife of an Irish laborer and her husband just after he has returned from work.

"Ai gorra I'm tired," says he.

"There you go, you're tired," says she; "here I be a standin' over a hot stove all day an' you a wurkin' in a nice cool sewer."

STAGE HEROINES.

The individual careers of that galaxy of brilliant women who have graced the land of the footlights during the past half century in aristocratic fashion receive solid and painstaking consideration in Forrest Izard's "Heroines of the Modern Stage" (Sturgis & Walton Co., New York.) The account begins with that cosmopolitian and ever-fascinating queen of French tragedy, the divine Sarah, and ends with the Peter Pan of our own country, Maude Adams. With these Mr. Izard gives composite pictures of Helena Modjeska, Ellen Terry, Gabrielle Rejane, Eleonora Duse, Ada Rehan, Mary Anderson, Mrs. Fiske, Julia Marlowe and Maude Adams, and a record of their accomplishments. His citations from the many different sources add much to the critical color of his work and his own opinions are characterized by their justice and sincerity.

In one of his footnotes, Mr. Izard cites a remarkably vivid, though perhaps somewhat extravagant, impression of Sarah Bernhardt, from the pen of Edmond Rostand, which would indicate that the famous French actress, with her whirlwind rapidity of endeavor, needed no lessons on how to live on twenty-four hours a day and keep every moment filled.

Izard, himself gives a pretty birdseye view of the art of Modjeska, supplemented by sympathetic quotations from William Winter. Izard describes her art as fine-tempered, subtle and delicate. And, quoting from Winter: "To mention her name, as the years drift away, will be to recall a presence of stagely dignity, of tender poetic beauty, of exquisite refinement and of perfect grace."

Rejane, it is pointed out by Izard in an interesting chapter, has been described as the incarnation of the Parisian spirit. To see Rejane is to see Paris in its fascinating moods and customs. He has Dauphin Meunier tell us of that "fabulous being" the Parisienne, to throw light on the charm and grace of Rejane.

It is these sidelights gleaned from many sources that add much to the attractiveness of the volume. Izards' own views are direct and clear. Of Maude Adams he declares: "To say that she is the most valuable piece of theatrical property in the country is a brutally commercial way to speak of an artist; but that is the familiar and true, if one-sided, estimate of Maude Adams." Again, "She has let her acting—whatever its limitations—and her variously expressed ambitions speak for themselves, without Bernhardtian advertising. The public knows her not at all except as it sees her across the footlights. She is one of the dignified women of the theater." Equally fine judgment and understanding are displayed in the estimates of those other famous women of the dramatic stage, who are passing, Eleonora Duse, Ellen Terry, Julia Marlowe, Mrs. Fiske, Ada Rehan and Mary Anderson.

There is a very excellent closing chapter on the more recently successful actresses that brings the chronicle right down to date. Izard asserts that the newer era minus its scintillating lumaniaries is not a change for the worse, as the traditionalist would contend, and therewith defines the undesirability of the star system.

"The Quest of the Quaint" is the title of a new volume for collectors and those interested in antiques and kindred subjects, from the pen of Miss Virginia Robie, published recently by Little, Brown & Co. Miss Robie until recently editor of The House Beautiful, has made a long study of old furniture, china, prints, etc., until she has become an authority that knows their relative value as do few writers on the subject. She is the author of "Historic Styles in Furniture," "By-Paths in Collecting," etc. Her new volume, "The Quest of the Quaint," deals with such little-written-about subjects as band-boxes, silhouettes, valentines, candlesticks, and a host of other topics to delight the heart of the collector.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

"The Grasp of the Sultan."

Some months ago "The Grasp of the Sultan" was published anonymously by Houghton Mifflin Company, and it is being well received and there was much speculation as to who wrote it. The publishers announce that Demetra Vaka is the author.

Demetra Vaka is a Greek, whose ancestors lived in Constantinople for more than 700 years, many of them being government officials. All her early life she came into contact with the Turkish people. She says herself, however, that she was born with an American soul; and revolting at certain of the conditions of her home, especially at the system of prearranged marriages, she ran away to escape hers.

She came to the United States with the family of a relative, but was soon left to shift for herself. Alone, penniless, and not yet 18, she did not find obtaining work in this land of promise as easy and romantic an affair as she had imagined. At last she was given an editorial position on the staff of a Greek newspaper. Although she liked newspaper work, she soon realized that as long as she stayed with the Greek newspaper she would never learn English, which she needed in order to follow out her hope of some time studying medicine. With this end in view, she entered a private school as teacher of French, and within two years she had charge of the whole French department of the school.

She had never thought seriously of writing, although frequently urged to put her experience of eastern life into print. After her marriage to Mr. Kenneth Brown, the novelist, she one day sent to a magazine editor an account of an experience she had while on a visit to Russia. It was accepted at once, and, thus encouraged, she began to think more seriously of literature as a vocation.

Six years after she came to America, she returned to Turkey, with a return ticket well guarded in her pocket. Then, visiting the harems of her childhood friends, she looked about her with the new point of view which she brought from her adopted country. She remained there several months, and "Haremlik" was the result of that visit. The book made a profound impression, and has been translated into French, Swedish, German, Italian, Danish and Dutch. It was followed by "A Child of the Orient," an account of the author's early life in Constantinople that met with equal success.

These two books showed Turkish life as it actually is, and revealed a power of graphic description that marked their author as one of the outstanding figures of present-day literature. Now, in "The Grasp of the Sultan," she has used this gift of vivid description to give richness to the setting of pure romance. The tale of the love of an attractive young Englishman for the Sultan's favorite is of the type enjoyed by every one who likes a "good story." Set against a background gorgeous as a scene from the "Arabian Nights," it will prove equally fascinating to every reader of "Haremlik" or "A Child of the Orient."

Richard Harding Davis.

A complete edition of the novels and stories of Richard Harding Davis has just been published by Charles Scribner's Sons. It is called the Crossroads Edition after the name of Mr. Davis's place in Westchester county and into it are brought together for the first time all that succession of stories, from "Gallagher," of nearly thirty years ago, to those of the present war, as well as novels and longer stories—"Soldiers of Fortune," "Captain Macklin," "Princess Aline," "The King's Jackal," and "The White Mice."

The edition is sold by the subscription method. It was prepared according to plans often discussed with Mr. Davis and issued under conditions which make it peculiarly commemorative of the personal and popular affection in which he was held. His brother and executor have given invaluable aid in its preparation, and to the different volumes have been prefixed appreciations and brief reminiscences—tributes which perhaps no other of the younger American writers could have commanded.

The volumes have been manufactuured with the intention of making a clear, beautiful and attractive library edition, worthy of its definitive and lasting character. The set has in general the same distinguishing form and appearance as the well-known Outward Bound Edition of Kipling, the Thistle Edition of Stevenson, the Memorial Edition of George Meredith, and the Imperial Edition of Sir Gilbert Parker. Two volumes have portraits, and the others photogravure frontispieces from drawings by Gibson, Appleton Clark, Christy, Morgan and others.

Making Naval Officers.

The Putnams have in train for publication in the course of October, a volume entitled "Life at the United States Naval Academy," by Commander Ralph Earle, United States Navy, head of the Department of Ordnance and Gunnery, United States Naval Academy. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, contributes to the volume an introduction.

The book provides a detailed description of the midshipman's life at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., the great institution that educates the youth of this country for the life profession of a naval officer. It explains to boys desirous of entering the navy as officers, to their parents, and to others interested, exactly what the naval academy and the navy offers as a career and the manner in which the education and training of the midshipmen is accomplished.

A brief historical sketch is included in the first chapter, which points out how the establishment of this excellent school was gradually forced upon this nation by the ever-growing demands of the naval service.

Then follows a recital of the methods of obtaining an appointment from the Navy Department entitling the holder to take the entrance examinations that are open alike to young men in all walks of civilian life and to the young enlisted men of the Navy and Marine Corps. The education that the boy should have before attempting to enter, as well as notes regarding the advisability of preliminary coaching, are given in much detail.

A Versatile Historian.

Hendrik Willem van Loon, whose "Golden Book of the Dutch Navigators" is published this week by The Century Company, is not only a professor and historian but a journalist as well. Lecturer on modern history at Cornell and author of books like "The Fall of the Dutch Republic," he believes that journalism is simply applied history and that no one can have a correct appreciation of historical events without a familiar knowledge of the events of our present-day world. He therefore entered the service of the Associated Press as staff-correspondent in Russia (during the Japanese war) and in Belgium and Holland and France during the present war he has been a personal witness of such events as he is obliged to describe in his books. During the last two years Dr. van Loon has written a great deal in the daily press upon the subject of Dutch neutrality. His new book, however, is not controversial in any sense. It is graphic re-telling of the stories of the adventurous old Dutch navigators, who generations ago led the way across the sea to many unknown countries and laid the foundation of a colonial empire second to none.

"Tales of California."

Miss Rose Ellerbe, president of the Woman's Press Club in Los Angeles, whose story "The War Mother" was recently awarded first prize in The Silhouette short story competition, will have a book of short stories published soon by Warren T. Potter of this city. All of the stories have previously appeared in magazines. The title of the book will be "Tales of California," and the stories deal with dramatic incidents in the history of the State.

REV. STOPFORD A. BROOKE.

Eloquent Rector of the Church of England—Chaplain to the Princess Royal at Berlin—Later Distinguished Unitarian Clergyman, Ministering to the Old-fashioned Church in Bloomsbury—Author of a Dozen Volumes Pervaded with a Spirit of Joy—The Day of His Death at 83 Came as a Great Romance.

BY WILLIAM H. KNIGHT.

"THE day of my death will be the great romance of my life" is quoted as a characteristic remark of Stopford Brooke after he had reached the age of fourscore, and is the first sentence in a review of his life in the Fortnightly Review.

Why was this man, who reveled in the joy of life, who was so fascinated with human nature in all its phases that he was a tonic influence in every assembly and dispelled gloom from every heart, why was he contemplating death, not only with serenity, but with bright anticipations?

Of Irish birth, dating from 1832, he became one of the eloquent preachers of the Church of England, ministering successively in Marylebone, Kensington and St. James chapel, and was for two years chaplain to the Princess Royal in Berlin.

But when he reached middle life, in the full vigor of a ripened intellect, he seceded from the Church of England in 1880, and it is with the Unitarian Chapel in Bloomsbury Square that his name and memory will always be fondly associated by those connected with that denomination.

His healthy view of life was not in accord with the mediaeval conception of man's position and destiny as taught in the formularies of the English church. He felt the spirit of the song that Pippa flung into the troubled world as she passed by:

The year's at the spring and day's at the morn;
Morning's at seven; the hillside's
dew-pearled;
The lark's on the wing; the snail's on the thorn;
God's in His heaven—all's right with the world.

To Brooke this was no romance, but the conviction of his soul.

In 1889 I made a brief sojourn in London, and one Sunday morning found myself ushered into one of the quaint old-fashioned box pews of the then famous meeting-house in Bloomsbury Square. Rev. Stopford Brooke, then nearly 60 years of age, spoke in somewhat measured voice to a congregation that did not fill the pews. I confess that I did not bring away any new thought that lingered in my memory, but I was impressed with one thing—the sincerity of his tone and utterances. Those present listened with affection and reverence, as if they were listening to the words of a prophet. He had severed himself from the Church of England that he might indulge in that freedom of thought and of utterance which was congenial to his nature. No one can fail to respect the views of a man who, acting upon the convictions of an enlightened mind, breaks away from tradition and prejudice and the social atmosphere in which he has been nurtured, and steps forth, an unfettered soul, a free man.

Stopford Brooke, though not a voluminous writer, is the author of a dozen or so books, almost classical, and all pervaded with the joy of life. Miss Darlow, our librarian, says that she used to take the successive volumes to her father as they appeared for the bright tonic effect they had upon his mind.

His optimism, says the reviewer, was infectious. To him things seemed impossible only because men went about them in the wrong way. He said, make people happy, don't trouble so much about making them good. He acted up to this axiom, for happiness seemed to be in the atmosphere where he came, and unconsciously men and women seemed to be at their best in his presence. He was a stimulating conversationalist, says the reviewer, and whenever a little company was in his presence he would launch into some literary or artistic theme in which imagination and romance played a conspicuous part. But there was nothing academic obtruded upon his friends; the subject was alive with the warm appreciation and pleasure he felt in it, and which he imparted to others.

Mr. Brooke lived at a country home which bore the characteristic name of "The Four Winds," as inclusive in its meaning as were the liberal thoughts of the great preacher and teacher, who, while he was rector of a humble Episcopal denomination was chosen to be chaplain to the Queen of England, but who, while yet greater honors loomed before him, obeying the dictates of his conscience and his intellect, left the Episcopalian denomination and became a Unitarian minister.

He loved humanity and sympathetically understood many sides of it. His presence had something about it of the mountain top, uplifted, unapproachable, as if in a sort of Olympian calm.

Yet all his books, those on the history of literature, reviews of Shakespeare, the theology of the great poets, the studies of Tennyson and Browning, all vibrate with the joy of the author.

What could be less suggestive than a title like this: "The Old Testament and Modern Life?" Yet he finds poetry and inspiration in the dullest and most matter-of-fact narratives. Casually turning its pages we find this charming picture of rural life, a millennium or two before the time of Christ: The story is like one in a mediaeval romance. Caleb coveted a town in the Valley of Hebron, and offered his daughter Achsah as a prize to the young man who should take the town. Othniel, his nephew, went forth and valiantly took the fortress. Then Caleb led his daughter to Othniel. But Achsah had a romantic nature. Close to the place her lover had won with a strong hand, lay a green valley with a bubbling stream that rose at the height of the glen and fell down to its lowest end. Achsah set her heart on this and would not dismount from her beast and enter her husband's house till she won the blessing of the green vale with its upper and lower streams. And father and husband took it for her. Men and women alike were warrior-hearted and justified the name of "The Lion of the Tribe of Judah."

Here is one of Stopford Brooke's characteristic references to Blake, the weird artist, speaking of his "Songs of Innocence:"

"There are songs of many passions—of sorrow, of earthly rapture, of mirth, of the fine spirit of youth and age, of patriot fervor, of the beauty of the world—of a hundred things, but the song of a child's heart has never been written by a child. It is only sung within. To write it needed a man with the heart of a child; and to find that man is one of the rarest things in the world.

"The best explanation of Blake's songs is, that he was always a child at heart; and it would not have mattered where he lived, he would always have been at home. The child, if he be loved, knows neither time nor place. Transfer him to the Egypt of the Pharaohs, or to the steps of the Parthenon where Phidias worked, and he will play, with as much unconsciousness and joy as in his own garden in Surrey. All his life long Blake was like that."

Nothing could be better said, and as we read it we recall the full, melodious voice, the fling back of the head, and the note of challenge, as though he would make sure that he carried the audience with him.

Death came to Stopford Brooke last March as he would have wished, swiftly, unforeseen, without the ado of sickness to make it a humiliating thing, or long farewells to make it harrowing.

There is a picture of him, a chance snapshot, perhaps, taken when he was unaware, standing alone in the open at The Four Winds, the Surrey home that he loved and in which he died. The noble head is thrown back, the eyes raised skywards, the whole attitude one of listening expectancy. It may have been that a lark was singing above. Was he listening for the call of the angel of death?

TYPES OF MEN.

One Adapts Himself to Environment and Other Lacks Initiative.

[Engineering Magazine:] The man who is original may make a good designer, but unless he were also directive he would make a poor superintendent; he might be a good window dresser, but not a department store manager; a writer but not a publisher, an inventor but not a manufacturer, a reformer but not a Mayor. A partnership in which one man is directive and another original is usually successful. Of course, one person may possess both traits.

Then there is the man who does only what he is told to do and exactly as he is told to do it. He is imitative. He would dress every window like every other window. He might make a successful milk wagon driver, since he would have a fixed route and a bottle of uniform size to deliver; but he would probably make an indifferent drayman, since he would not have a fixed route, and originality (or ingenuity) would be needed to load and unload unwiedly boxes under adverse conditions. He might make a good machine molder, but not a good floor molder; he would probably be successful and happy at a punch press, but not in a tool room.

Then there are the two types, one of which likes to fuss with an intricate bit of mechanism, while the other wants the task of big dimensions—the watchmaker, the engraver, the inlayer, the painter of miniatures, on the one hand the bridge builder, the steel mill worker, the train dispatcher, the circus man on the other. One has small scope, the other large scope.

Some men can easily adapt themselves to any environment while others act the same under almost any circumstances. One takes the local color like a chameleon, the other is always the same monochrome. One is adaptable, the other self-centered; one a salesman, the other a statistician.

There is a distinct type which thinks and then does, in contrast to which there is the type which does and then thinks. One is deliberate, the other impulsive. The northern races are usually deliberate, the southern impulsive; one controls its passions, the other is frequently controlled by them. An army of cool-headed officers and hot-headed soldiers is a highly effective machine, but in the civilian walks of life, the impulsive characteristic is negative; that is to say, there seems to be no occupation in which it is a requisite. There are many vocations, liberate.

Delivering Goods on Approval.

[Cincinnati Times-Star:] Some Cincinnati merchants are becoming restive at the growth of the business of sending goods on approval. They feel that the custom has some very objectionable features from their standpoint—and it may be that it has objectionable features from the standpoint of the public as well.

When Mrs. Jones has a full set of china sent out to her house and gives an entertainment with it, only to return the whole lot as unsatisfactory the day afterward, the merchant alone is imposed upon. But when Mrs. Smith orders lingerie, which she wears to an afternoon tea, and then returns it, the general public has reason for objection, both from an esthetic and a sanitary point of view. The public doesn't know much about health conditions in Mrs. Smith's house—and when it buys goods at a store it expects to get them new, without scarlet fever or diphtheria trimmings.

Some merchants feel that the delivery on approval business has been overdone—and the average citizen, when he thinks it over, is apt to agree with them.

Robertson, New York, Makes Blouses

—Robertson, New York, makes Beautiful Blouses. Fancy affairs that are too perfectly charming for words to describe—Blouses that fairly Radiate Personality—Blouses that are as lovely, and as different and as becoming as they can be—

—Robertson concentrates and specializes upon blouses that are made of silk, and of lace, and of other airy-fairy fancies—that, of necessity, are more or less expensive—

—Robertson insists upon a high standard of style and of workmanship—Haphazard, helter-skelter designs will not do—

—So there is good reason why hundreds of women everywhere delight in Robertson Blouses at regular prices—

The Wonder of Wonders Is That Robertson Has Sold Bullock's Somewhat Under 1000 Blouses---at Much Under their Regular Price

PERSONAL—PROF. J. A. MURDOCK.

COR. 8TH AVENUE AND WEST 54TH ST.

THE GREATEST PSYCHIC AND YOGI MEDIATOR IN AMERICA.

50C—READINGS—$1.

WITHOUT ASKING A QUESTION, without any previous knowledge, and having no natural means of knowing who you are, whence or for what you come, he tells your name, names of friends and enemies—who are true and who are false. Tells whom and when you will marry, giving names, dates, facts and location, accepting no fee unless satisfaction is given.

Prof. Murdock is the highest authority in his honorable profession, his advice is sought by all who want to be successful in their undertakings; therefore, WAKE UP, THROW OFF THE CHAINS OF LETHARGY and consult this celebrated Psychic. His advice on SPECULATION AND INVESTMENT is sought by thousands, and he is ever ready to help and advise those with capital to find a safe and GOOD-PAYING INVESTMENT.

This he can positively do and demands no fee until the investment has paid a handsome profit to his client. Can you expect anything fairer?

Prof. Murdock's extraordinary psychic power, combined with his superior knowledge of psychic forces, enables him to read human life with unerring accuracy from infancy to old age. His powers are wonderful and indisputable; his advice is reliable, his information clear, concise and to the point in Love, Courtship, Marriage, Divorce, Sales, Wills, Patents, Journeys, Investment, Speculations, Property, Insurance, Mortgages, Oil and Mining Claims, etc., etc.

SECRET INFLUENCE.

He will teach you how to fascinate any one you desire; how to make your enemies your friends, cause a speedy marriage with the one of your choice.

(POWER OF CONTROL.)

The all-wise Creator did not endow you with high ideals, noble inspirations, desire for happiness and return for that great love-craving within your heart and breast, without at the same time placing within your reach the means for attaining those desires and wishes. PROF. MURDOCK knows how to control that POWER for your success. In this line of work PROF. MURDOCK recognizes no competitors.

He will make you

SUCCESSFUL IN YOUR BUSINESS and all other affairs pertaining to human welfare.

Permanently located at his own

RESIDENCE.

Corner 8th avenue and West 54th street.

PERSONAL—
MRS. MASSON, the noted palmist, of London, England, may be consulted at 322 SOUTH SPRING STREET, by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS, FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in everyday life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

HIGH CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

TO LET—

The BELMONT Apts.
Figueroa at Tenth st.

If you are looking for comfort—real comfort—a full hundred cents' worth for every dollar you pay—there is no place in Los Angeles where you get as much for your money as at the BELMONT.

Situated within easy walking distance of the business center of the city (thus eliminating street car fare); having the most lobby in the city, music, billiard and pool tables, the most comfortable furnished apartments; the most varied and elaborate amusement programme—in fact, completely equipped and housed, and operated by a management whose first and foremost aim is for the comfort and satisfaction of its guests—the BELMONT stands easily head and shoulders above all competition.

These are strong statements, but the facts justify them.

Our policy is to keep the house full at reasonable prices. Year in and year out there is more profit in a steady volume of business all of the time than in big business for a few months and practically empty house the balance of the year. Therefore we have made our big effort toward HOLDING our guests—we have made the furnishings and equipment of our apartments fill the needs and desires of the individual occupants; we entertain lavishly; we encourage sociability among our guests—one constant aim and endeavor is to make the BELMONT

"The place like home."

"Not how little, but how much we can give our guests" is our motto. We try to anticipate their needs and desires. No reasonable request is ever refused—many unreasonable ones are granted. Our "service" comes running, smiling.

If YOU are not perfectly satisfied where you are, would it not be worth your time and trouble to call and let us tell and show you what we can offer?

Single apartments, $35 and up.

The BELCAMP Apts.
2407 W. Ninth st. Two blocks from Westlake Park.

Everybody MUST have some sort of a home. Everybody WANTS a good home—a comfortable, pleasant, homey home.

Our mission in life right now is to provide YOU with a home which will assist in making life worth living—something in the home life better than you are getting right now, and at no greater cost—perhaps a little less.

Our apartments "are different" than the others. Besides everything the others provide we aim to furnish a real home atmosphere. We provide music, pool and billiards, and a liberal entertainment programme for our guests. We do all in our power to make our apartments something more than a space within four walls, in which to eat and sleep.

If you are not perfectly satisfied where you are would it not be worth your time to call and let us tell and show you just what we have to offer? We will gladly put our time against yours.

BELNORD COURT.
1715-1721 Wilcox ave., just north Hollywood blvd.

The last word in outdoor apartments.

The apartments at BELNORD COURT were especially designed to meet the requirements of small families (preferably man and wife, though there are two full-size beds in separate rooms,) to whom the regular apartment-house does not appeal, but do not wish the care of a house and lot. IN BELNORD COURT we furnish the happy medium.

We have provided for sunshine and fresh air, with flowers and lawn and trees, and "outdoors" generally, together with an ideal home, complete in its every appointment, containing all of the conveniences of the up-to-date residence, and eliminating all of the objectionable features of the regular apartment-house — yet relieving the tenant of all the cares attendant on a home, as to inside cleaning, daily removal of kitchen waste, etc.

BELNORD COURT is located in the very heart of "beautiful Hollywood." It is but a step to fast electric cars, which afford excellent service all over Southern California, close to schools, stores, bank, public library, garages—all the conveniences of the city, together with all the pleasures of the suburb.

BELNORD COURT is not an ordinary "bungalow court." It is "a chalet court," in that the houses each have a second-floor bedroom, equipped with (not a built-in bed) a regular "Pullman bed." The second floor also has a large dressing-room, with extra lavatory and other conveniences, and a veranda. It would be useless to try to give you a detailed idea of these homelike houses. They must be seen. As stated above, they are the last word in this class of construction.

We offer an apartment-house, furnished to the last detail, ready for housekeeping, with service, for $50 and up a month, with discount for semi-annual lease; unfurnished, $40 and up. Our authorized representative is on the property week days and Sundays. He will be glad to show you about, whether you consider renting or not. BELNORD COURT is beautiful and well worth seeing.

TO LET—NEW, UNUSUALLY ATTRACTIVE 7-room bungalow, beautifully furnished in mahogany, etc. Three sunny bedrooms, sleeping out large porch, gas furnace, garage with room and bath. FOR SALE—AT SACRIFICE—

You want to buy a car this way if you can. You want to buy one from a person who is down and out, who must sell because he needs the money. This may be right, but did you ever stop to think you would have no recourse if things were not as represented? Isn't it better to buy from a company whose business is not second-hand cars, but who are forced to sell second-hand cars because they must take them in trade on new cars, and from persons whose cars are in perfect condition, but desire to keep up to the minute, and therefore trade these cars in on new ones? A company who sees in every purchaser of a used car a possibility of a new car sale later on, and who therefore find it good business to really take care of such purchaser after as well as before they purchase? A company that is one of the strongest financially in this city, and one that never makes a statement but those which it is willing to sign in writing, and guaranteed to be the truth, and whose used-car department is managed by a man who has been eight years in the automobile business in this city, and who knows that what the purchaser wants to know is exactly the truth, and is willing to learn if the car is not perfect, and willing to purchase that car if he knows that he has been told all the bad things about it, and can bank on those statements? We say that you can absolutely depend on us. Come in and talk to us, and we believe that you will be satisfied. Open Sunday 11 to 4 p.m. Any evening by phone appointment. SCORES INTENT OF SINGLE-TAX LAW.

SPEAKER TELLS TRAVEL CLUB MEASURE'S EVIL.

Declares Prosperity Should be Brought into the State and not Turned Away by Legislation that Would Discourage Enterprise and Overburden Landowners.

Predicting an industrial panic, with millions of dollars in capital being driven from the State, should amendment No. 5 carry, and declaring it would bring hard times to practically every citizen in the State of California, Miles Gregory, speaking for the People's Anti-Single Tax League, was enthusiastically received by members of the Los Angeles Travel Club Friday. The meeting was held in the auditorium of the Brack-Shops.

Mr. Gregory said in part:

California has had enough hard times, so it is time prosperity should be brought into the State instead of turning it away, which is what would be the outcome if amendment No. 5 should carry.

I urge all of you present to study the manner in which the proposition is presented on the ballot, and see how ridiculous the measure is. Prominent men who have been speaking in favor of the single tax admit that their proposition is drastic, yet they urge good, commonsensed people to vote in favor of it.

Those in the employ of city, county and State will directly suffer if the amendment is passed, for if the taxes amounting to more than $200,000,000 now coming in on city property are cut off, as the single tax would do, the public employees will sit up nights wondering whence their salaries are to come.

I am positive that more than 100,000 people would leave our State the first year if such an absurd proposition is accepted by the voters, and in two years after the populace begins to feel the effects of the measure out-going trains would be taxed to their capacity, and not one of the passengers would have a return ticket.

Land holders and small property owners would be the only ones that would be taxed in our State, while street railway corporations, banks, office buildings and gas and light companies would escape taxation, except for the small amount of land upon which their property stands, which would be a mere nothing compared to their present taxation. In view of these facts, I expect the people to do what is necessary to protect their homes and the State of California by going to the polls next Tuesday and voting "no" on amendment No. 5.

Her Work.

WOMAN'S SUCCESS.

On Anniversary of Her Taking the Juvenile Referee Office Miss Orfa Jean Shonts Receives Congratulations from Numerous Friends.

During the first year of her office, Miss Orfa Jean Shonts, referee of the Juvenile Court, heard 1575 cases, according to the report filed Thursday by her on the anniversary of her taking office. Of this number, only three were appealed to Judge Reeve, head of the Juvenile Court and only one of these cases secured a consideration and change of opinion.

The position of referee was created in order to provide jurisdiction by a woman over the cases of all girls and small children. The position does not provide under the legislative enactment the right to judicial power of signing an order for disposition of a case, but places this in the hands of the Superior judge in charge of the department whose name is attached.

Numerous friends and particularly some of the parents of children whose care has fallen partly on Miss Shonts, called on her to pay their respects and congratulate her on the success of her work.

I CURE PILES FISTULA and all Rectal Diseases
WITHOUT AN OPERATION

For twenty-five years I have been curing diseases of the rectum and lower bowel. During that time my experience as hospital and railroad surgeon, as college lecturer and professor, has enabled me to develop a method that is superior to others. I cure without surgery and my patients are not confined in bed and seldom lose a moment's time from their business.

My method is not a "home cure" or a "correspondence treatment," but it is an application of skilled treatments administered under the most rigid antiseptic conditions in my office.

I solicit old, severe and obstinate cases of fistula, prolapsus, fissure and ulceration that have heretofore resisted all treatments employed. If you are a sufferer from rectal trouble I invite you to investigate my method thoroughly by talking or writing to any of my cured patients. If you will call at my office I will be pleased to give you the names and addresses of many well-known Los Angeles people I have cured, whom you may interview in regard to my treatment.

Read what a few well-known Southern California people have to say of my method. Many similar letters are on file in my office.

WELL KNOWN SANTA MONICA MINISTER CURED.

This is to certify that Dr. C. H. White has cured me of a distressing hemorrhoidal ailment of 25 years' duration. His method of treatment is effective, but not severe. He has the appliances, the knowledge and the skill born of many years of specialization in this fruitful source of physical disease. He accomplishes all his claims in his advertising, and at reasonable expense.

I take pleasure in heartily commending the man and his methods.

WESLEY K. BEANS, Pastor First Methodist Episcopal Church, Santa Monica, Cal.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE SUPERINTENDENT CURED.

My Dear Dr. White: I am thankful for the privilege of bearing witness to your ability to treat without pain, and with success, the delicate and disabling diseases which result from sedentary work. To all who need the services of a skillful, sympathetic and experienced specialist in your line, I heartily commend you.

Very sincerely yours

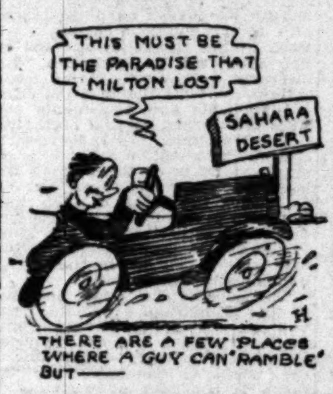
SCIENTIFIC AID FOR SPEED COPS

Ambushes Luckless Motorist with a Setxant.

Detect Violators by Means of Table of Logarithms.

Mathemathical Deduction is Ruin of Hurry-up.

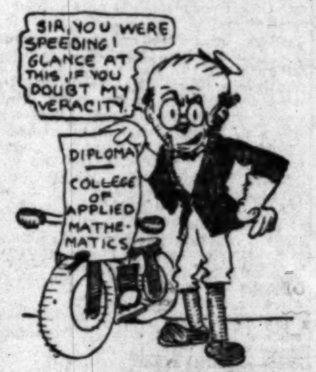
Adopting U-boat tactics, lying in wait in a concealed position and then suddenly hurtling forth, torpedo-fashion, speed cops are bringing a new and fearful grief to speed violators in various parts of the city.



THIS MUST BE THE PARADISE THAT MILTON LOST
SAHARA DESERT
H
THERE ARE A FEW PLACES WHERE A GUY CAN 'RAMBLE' BUT——

Detecting their prey by use of an instrument like a combination of periscope and sextant, the speed cop from his ambush a block away accurately times the speeders and gathers them in by the dozen where one was caught under the old system.

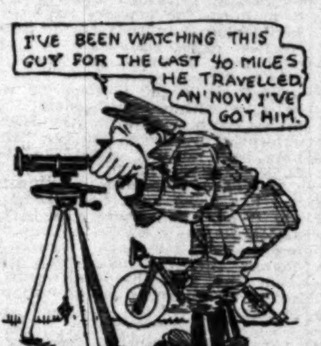
The new way of detecting violators of the traffic ordinances came to light in Police Judge Frederickson's court yesterday when a chauffeur not only denied that he had been exceeding the speed limit, but sought to impugne the veracity of the arresting policeman. It was explained to the prisoner and the court that, as the offenders had become "police wise," being able to spot an officer further than a U-boat can see one of the allies' merchantmen, the police had been forced to go into concealment.



SIR, YOU WERE SPEEDING! GLANCE AT THIS, IF YOU DOUBT MY VERACITY.
DIPLOMA COLLEGE OF APPLIED MATHEMATICS
CREATING A NEW TYPE OF COP.

HOW THEY DO IT.

The new plan works to the satisfaction of the police and the pedestrians, but brings woe to the men, who like to see the miles slip speedily away. Two policemen select a spot on one of the boulevards where the temptation to "let 'er out a little" proves greater than the fear of a $25 fine. Here they mark off a specified distance, and, by the aid of a table of measurements, the officer can figure how fast a man is driving a machine by a process nearly identical with trigonometric triangulation. If the speed is above the limit, another officer, stationed further on, is signaled and he stops the offender and places him under arrest.



I'VE BEEN WATCHING THIS GUY FOR THE LAST 40 MILES HE TRAVELLED, AN' NOW I'VE GOT HIM.
THE JOY-KILLER IN ACTION.

When you see two motor policemen stop and look at a little red book do not think they are looking up the batting averages. No, their conversation will be found to be highly scientific, containing many mathematical phrases, such as coefficient, multiple, pagination, summation, differential, algorism, rhabdology, dactylonomy, modulus, fluxional, integral and like terms. They stop at a window and gaze in rapt attention at wonderful products of the instrument makers' laboratory—instruments that will not only permit you to calculate the speed of the stars, but ascertain the movement of automobiles. Money is spent not for tobacco, but for a thesis on the integral calculus.

FOR SPEEDING.

If you see a 200-pound policeman snugly hidden behind a sheltering palm don't report him to the Police Commission, as he is engaged in timing a speeder blocks away. In a moment you will see him wave a flag that will put the "kibosh" on twenty-five "iron men" in Police Court the next day. Necessity is not only the mother of invention, but is a friend of the speed cop.

Of Course Not.

WON'T DO WHAT IS CLAIMED IT WILL.

SINGLE TAX AMENDMENT NOT CURE FOR ALL EVILS.

Speaker at City Club Luncheon Denies Oft-made Assertion that Working Classes will Particularly Benefit and Shows that Big Revenue will be Lost.

Classing the proposed single-tax measure as revolutionary and reactionary, W. J. Ghent, speaking at the City Club luncheon yesterday, urged the defeat of Constitutional Amendment No. 5 Tuesday. Taking up the claims that have been made in its favor Mr. Ghent showed their falsity and humorously remarked that the advocates of the amendment seemed to think it would cure everything from corns to famine and earthquakes.

He denied the oft-made assertion that the working classes would particularly benefit. He said it would not have the tendency to break up large land areas so that the little fellows could get a little land, nor would it do away with slums and tenement houses. Landlords would continue to put up tenements, and people would continue to live in them.

On the other hand, said Mr. Ghent, it will have a tendency to abolish a tremendous amount of revenue. He asserted that the whole scheme was really a back number and belonged to the time of stage coaches, canal boats and weekly newspapers.

John H. Ryckman advocated the adoption of the amendment. He said its purpose is to prevent the holding of land for speculative purposes. Land values are what will be taxed and not the land itself. He denied that corporations would be substantially benefited by being released from a large measure of taxation and claimed that, as far as the railroads are concerned, the amendment would mean an enormous increase in their taxes.

Probation.

MEMORY OF PARIS SAVES PRISONER.

WOMAN COMES TO AID OF A DESPERATE MUSICIAN.

Youth Who Steals Food in an Apartment-house for Sustenance, Escapes Sentence When Story of a Girl's Ruined Career in Latin Quarter is Told.

Leo Soulard was saved a prison sentence by a mere memory of a Latin quarter episode in Paris. He appeared before Judge Craig to be sentenced for burglarizing an apartment in the apartment-house in which he was living. What he took was food, having gone practically two days without sustenance and being driven to desperation through inability to obtain employment at his art, that of music.

A woman residing in the apartment-house, hearing of his trouble, investigated and finding the youth's story true, appeared before Public Defender Wood and told him that several years ago, a girl friend, studying art in the Latin quarter of Paris, was driven to similar desperate action, was arrested and her entire career blasted by the subsequent sentence and publicity.

Her last request of her friend, the local woman, was to assist any person she ever found in a similar predicament which resulted in her interest in the case of Soulard. As a result of mitigating circumstances and the appeal, Judge Craig placed the defendant on probation for two years, after it had also been stated that a place of employment had been found for him.

DIES OF PTOMAINE ABOARD LIGHTSHIP.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NORFOLK (Va.) Nov. 4.—The destroyer Cushing returned here today from hurried trip to the Diamond Shoals lightship with the body of Andrew Thisle, the lightship's first mate, and bringing also R. R. Buch, the ship's wireless operator, and G. Kemp, a seaman, both ill of ptomaine poisoning. Thisle died of heart disease induced by ptomaine poisoning. The destroyer left here after the receipt of a wireless call from the lightship, carrying a surgeon to attend the sick men. Thisle died before the lightship was reached.

AGAIN IN CUSTODY.

Francis Schlatter and August Schroeder, alleged divine healers, are again in custody of the United States Federal authorities. The men were arrested when they crossed the American border, following their deportation from Canada by the Toronto authorities. Schlatter is wanted on a bench warrant, issued out of the local Federal Court, and Schroeder has been surrendered by his bondsmen. Both men will be returned to this city to answer the charge of using the mails to defraud. When arrested both men waived examination and will be brought here on an order from the Federal Court, which will be issued next Wednesday.

THE PROPOSITIONS ON THE BALLOT

Legislation by Direct Vote at the Polls Next Tuesday. The Measures Explained, Seven of Them.

OUR GOVERNMENT in California is a peculiar mixture of democracy and republic, of government by representation and government by direct legislation. On Tuesday, November 7, the voters of the State will select a Legislature to enact laws for them and, at the same time, will act as a deliberative body to pass upon seven more or less important legislative questions.

While voting for Presidential electors, Congressmen, State legislators, county officials and city officials it must not be forgotten that there are still other important functions for the citizen to perform. There are seven propositions on the ballot that must be passed upon by the voters themselves. This year they are unusually important; a couple of blunders could easily wreck the business and industry of the State, deprive 50,000 citizens of their homes and drag the whole commonwealth to the brink of financial ruin. He who will study closely the seven propositions presented will discover that this picture is not overdrawn.

Propositions No. 1 and No. 2 are known as the prohibition amendments. The first prohibits the manufacture, sale or possession of alcoholic liquor in California except for medicinal, sacramental, scientific and mechanical purposes. Its intent is plain; it would not only stop the sale of liquor, but it would banish the grape and the hop industry by rendering production unprofitable. It would bring financial ruin to thousands who have invested the savings and the labor of a lifetime in these industries in good faith. Its proponents say the good accomplished would recompense humanity as a whole for the evil wrought. This is not the view of the chambers of commerce and other great commercial and industrial associations of the State; they assert that it contemplates a willful and unnecessary confiscation of millions of dollars of private property.

Amendment No. 2 is equally confiscatory. It was intended as a modified form of prohibition, but its restrictions are more stringent than its sponsors realized. Persons having established "permanent residence" in the State and owning their own homes could have liquor served to them in these homes provided they had bought it direct from the maker in not less than two-gallon lots. The term "permanent residence" is distinctly defined in the State law to be established only after one has lived a year in the State and six months in a county. That would bar tourists and all residents not permanently established. No liquor could enter any hotel, club, public lodging or apartment-house. This is not an anti-saloon amendment, but an anti-alcoholic liquor amendment—in other words, prohibition. The sentiment of California at the present time is opposed to the saloon; an amendment limited to the suppression of the dive and the open bar probably would carry. It is possible to close the saloons without closing the vineyards, too, but it is not possible under Amendment No. 2. This amendment, through its defective form, misses the object that a majority of its sponsors intended, and should be beaten. Vote NO.

Proposition No. 3 is the good roads act. It provides for the issuance of $15,000,000 of State bonds to complete the magnificent system of State highways now under construction, and to build valuable laterals and extensions. This act comes from the State Legislature, where it received unanimous indorsement. It is an ideal investment, for the reason that the increased taxes received from the new territory which the highway system develops will more than redeem the bonds and pay the interest. These highways cheapen the cost of food and fuel by cheapening the cost of transportation. This bond issue is indorsed by practically every commercial and industrial organization in California and is opposed by none. The act should receive unanimous approval. Vote YES.

Proposition No. 4 is the no-party bill which was passed by a special session of the Legislature in January of this year. It was subjected to referendary legislation for the reason that it represents an attempt to re-enact a bill that was beaten decisively at the polls by the electors in 1915. It is opposed because it would permit wholesale fraud and corruption in primary elections. Under its terms an elector is forbidden the privilege of stating his party affiliations when he registers. All registration is strictly no-party, just as was that of the referendumed bill of 1915. There is another highly important reason why this proposition should be beaten. A number of flaws have been discovered in the primary election act, defects which its own sponsors would like to remedy. But, if this proposition carries, the act must stand in its present form until repealed by the people at a general election. It is no longer subject to change by the State Legislature, but has all the effect of a constitutional provision. The proper procedure is to defeat Proposition No. 4 and give to the incoming Legislature a clear field for action in the construction of a primary election measure which will conserve the good parts of the present act, repealing those which are objectionable. Vote NO.

Proposition No. 5 is the single-tax amendment. It declares that all public revenues shall be raised by taxation on land values, exclusive of improvements. There are to be no more taxes levied against corporations, no more saloon or other business licenses, no more corporation or inheritance taxes. The land, and the land only, shall be taxed, vacant land at the same rate as occupied or improved land. If this passes we needn't mind about those highway bonds; the State couldn't sell a dollar of them if they were issued. The State would be left itself without a dollar of revenue on January 1, 1917, for all the State revenue is derived from taxes on the gross earnings of corporations, from licenses, inheritances and other corporation taxes. State and private corporation securities would be practically valueless and title to a piece of land would be a liability in place of an asset. Vote NO!

No. 6 is a necessary amendment to the State Constitution to prevent the bargaining of salaried State jobs for votes in the Legislature. It provides that no member of the Legislature may hold any other appointive State office during the term for which he is elected. This amendment is generally indorsed, even by those who have benefited so scandalously by lack of its observance during the last four years. During the session of the last Legislature Assemblymen stood in the lobby and bargained for jobs with the administration before they would vote on some important bill. Vote YES.

Proposition No. 7 is purely technical in form. It provides an amendment to the 1909 State Highway Bill which will relieve some of the smaller counties of oppressive tax burdens in connection with the present State highway work. It received the unanimous approval of the last Legislature, and should be adopted. Vote YES.

SELECT PRIZE POSTER DESIGNS FOR BIG WEEK.

PRIZE awards for the best poster designs submitted in the Home Products week competition, under the auspices of the industrial bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, were announced yesterday. F. E. Berier, No. 1417 Bellevue avenue, won $25 for the best design and Miss Lorita Frances Bates the second prize of $10.

The experience is not new to either contestant as Mr. Berier submitted the best design sixteen years ago in a mission contest inaugurated by the chamber and the work of Miss aBtes recently was made familiar to the people of Los Angeles during the fall fashion show. It was her poster that was selected as the official announcement of the display.

The jury of award consisted of Mrs. R. L. Craig, Mrs. Emma R. Neidig, Miss Frances Holmes, Hector Alliot, H. M. Bigelow and Fred L. Lang. So many of the fifty-one designs submitted were of prize caliber that the judges had difficulty in making selections. This was done by a series of eliminations, but after the decisions were made it was unanimously decided to give honorable mention to the eight next in line. Home Products week will be from next Monday to Saturday. During the last three days there will be a new industries exhibit at the Chamber of Commerce and the posters entered in the competition will be shown at this time.

The prize-winning poster soon will make its appearance in the downtown windows. Most of these will be devoted during the week to displaying articles made in Los Angeles. Last year there were ten miles of windows showing home products and indications are that this year there will be several miles added.

In addition to those winning the prizes the following were given honorable mention: Bayard Taylor, Pasadena; Alice Bradshaw, No. 278 West Avenue ifty-three; Harold Miles, Hollywood High School; E. Louise Chamberlain No. 310 Currier Building; Claus H. Wellenberg; Marjorie M. Smith, No. 2943 Halldale avenue; W. E. Mcee, Jr., Hollywood High School, Earl Martin, Hollywood High School.

ELECTION RETURNS.

Come to The Times Building, First and Broadway, or The Times Branch Office, 619 South Spring Street, Election Night, Tuesday, November 7.

The Times will bulletin State and national election returns on Tuesday night in front of The Times Building, First and Broadway, and The Times Branch Office, No. 619 South Spring street.

Up-to-the-minute returns will be received by special wires from every section of California and from every other State in the Union, and thrown upon large screens on the Tajo Building, First and Broadway, and the Meredith Building, opposite The Times Branch Office, No. 619 South Spring street.

The Times also will give returns by telephone to all who call.

FLOWER SHOW ARTISTIC CENTER OF COMMUNITY.

Lovers of the Beautiful are Compelled by Profusion of Color and Perfection of Form and Arrangement of Southern Aristocrats of the Soil — Scene not to be Lightly Missed.

THE Broadway Flower and House Beautiful Show, gorgeous, alluring, resplendent, with its poetic appeal to the love of perfection in color and form, has become the artistic center of Los Angeles. Here the all-pervading beauty of nature, brought to artistic perfection by the effort of man, is seen with every note of discord eliminated. Here is drawn the lover of the beautiful in nature and in art, impelled to forget dull care for a few golden hours while reveling in the realm of beauty and harmony. Here, on the second floor of the old Boston Store Building, is arranged for the delectation of the connoisseur and the delight of the casual sight-seer a display that appeals to that love of ideal perfection that vibrates in every human heart. Here, in the very midst of the bustling, clanging, toilsome commercial life of the city, has been created a fairyland, wrought by Southern California's richest treasure—the marvelous flowers, shrubs and plants that bloom and flourish in such riotous abundance in this fair clime.

The variety of bloom and blossom, leaf and bud, vine and shrub, blended into a scene of rarest beauty, fairly makes one gasp when first it bursts upon the sight. Dahlias, which strike every note of the color gamut, perfect in form, marvelous in texture and in size; superb chrysanthemums, royally rearing their beauteous heads above the throng of charmed visitors; roses that capture the senses with their beauty; pale water lilies with their message of serenity and purity and tempered joy; shy wild flowers that turn their faces to God's great out-of-doors, gently rebuking the sham and falsity and petty ambitions of the crowded thoroughfare—all these and many others are there, in well ordered profusion.

GARDEN REVELATION.

The potted chrysanthemums, each a flower garden in itself yet each containing but a single plant, urged by patient skill and loving care to develop to its full possibilities, are a revelation to the ordinary gardener. One of these plants, a bank of snow with feathery blossoms lifting their fair faces and nodding their proud heads in approval of the praise heard all day long, is alone worth a visit to the Flower Show. Then there is a pinky-lavender 'mum, of a color difficult to describe, tallest of all, a little ungainly, like a young girl in that awkwardness of first youth, that promises such grace and poise in maturity. The individuality of this magnificent plant is so marked that it fascinates one and compels repeated visits to its shrine. Such a specimen, nearly eight feet in height, is an inspiration and an incentive to all who are fortunate enough to possess even a tiny garden patch, which is seen to hold wonderful latent possibilities.

But the chrysanthemums are merely one feature of the flower show. The roses displayed merit the lyric praises of a Lovelace or a Herrick, but the ordinary mortal can only gasp and exclaim over their beauty, finding words quite inadequate. Those cut roses displayed are of such wide variety and rare perfection that ordered description is impossible, but no one who has seen them needs to be reminded of their charm. The Los Angeles rose, so long known as the "nameless" rose, has an admiring throng around it all day long. It is a pert, loose-petaled rose of delicate coral pink, a proud jade, egregiously conscious of its own compelling beauty and distinction.

REAL ARISTOCRATS.

The display of rare and choice plants from the wonder gardens of the Southland has a poignant appeal to those who seek the unique, the distinctive, the aristocrats of the soil.

The Los Angeles city park exhibit, with its tropical garden, its flowering plants banked against a background of autumn leaf and vine, gives one a new interest in the municipal play-places for the people.

The restful pergolas, with their hanging gardens and tropical effects, the miniature landscape gardens, the prize-winning groups of foliage plants, the wild flower exhibit, the lofty Australian tree ferns grouped to form a bower in which the tuneful orchestra conducted by Miss Hallie L. Beare is partly concealed, the water garden which seems of nature's own making, the wonderful collection of begonias, the hanging baskets that might adorn a temple of the gods—these are only a few of the features that arrest attention while they delight.

The horticultural artist has in Southern California a transcendent opportunity of revealing the joy of man in his work, and how nobly he has improved the possibilities vouchsafed him is attested by the flower show. From ceterach to laurisitinus, from illium to orchid, the observing eye and guiding hand of these magicians have assisted nature in outdoing all former efforts, have "understood her half-uttered words" and aided her toward the aim which, unassisted, she has hitherto been unable to reach.

The opportunity to study the results of these labors of love is one of which every sojourner in Southern California should take advantage, for it is one that is seldom afforded in the fullness of perfection that marks the flower show, which closes Monday evening.

As a fitting accompaniment to the show that is a riot of gay blossoms and unusual plants is the music which Hallie L. Beare's orchestra plays each day. The crowds throng about the musicians each day and display their appreciation of the merry tunes.

Miss Beare has just returned from Sacramento, where she took a twenty-five-piece band to the State Fair. The fair musicians made the trip north in a private car and their welcome was most cordial. Besides playing at numerous other brilliant functions they were chosen to play at Gov. Johnson's reception. Miss Beare and her orchestra also played at the San Francisco exposition and at the San Diego fair.

Besides playing each day with the orchestra Miss Beare superintends and does a cornet solo at each concert. She will shortly go into vaudeville and make a circuit tour. She has had much experience in ladies' band and orchestra work and carries a singer, a whistler and dancing soloist in her organization. She is featuring several song hits, one "Lady Claire" by Charles Fritzsche, a native of Los Angeles.

Her programme for today is as follows:

In the afternoon: Light Cavalry, "Poet and Peasant" march (M. L. Lake;) "Lady Claire" (Charles Fritzsche;) "Ballet Egyptian" (A. Lingrina;) "Ave Maria" (Gounod;) saxaphone solo, "Song of My Soul," from "Climax," Marion Simpson; "Hungarian Fantasia" (Tobani;) vocal solo, "Elegie" (Massenet,) Bernice Marcher; "Shadowland" (Leo Feist;) cornet solo, "O Sole Mio" (E. Di Cepua,) Hallie L. Beare; "Katink" (Frye;) whistling solo, Florene Froley; "Eve Star" (Tambauser;) "Firefly" selection (Friml.)

At 8 o'clock p.m.: "Repay March" (Charles P. Sveeley;) "Lady Claire" (Charles Fritzsche;) "Nocturne" (Chopin;) saxaphone solo, "Sunshine of My Soul," Florence Sparr; "Spanish Dance" (Moszkowsky;) violin solo, "Minuet Beethoven," Lottie Buisseret; "Rigoletto" (Verdi;) cornet solo, "Schubert's Serenade," Hallie L. Beare; "Orpheus" (J. Offenbach;) vocal solo, "Cupid's Love Song," Bernice Marcher; "I'm Longing for You" (Jane Hathaway;) whistling solo, "Sextette," Naomi Sweeney; "Stars and Stripes" (Sousa.)

ORIENTAL EXHIBIT.

Tasteful Products of Japan at House Beautiful Show.

A little bit of Japan, with its surpassing silken fabrics its fanciful art work, its vases, robes and a thousand and one exotic conceits, has been transported to the Broadway Flower and House Beautiful Show and is installed at the foot of the marble staircase there. It is the exhibit of the Yamato Store, No. 635 South Broadway. There is a tasteful and effective arrangement of furniture for the living-room and for the boudoir, and also Japanese tapestries, new creations in basketry, mellow-toned lamp shades, beautiful vases and chinaware.

POLITICS

The American Game.

THE WATCHMAN.

TREND OF CURRENT POLITICAL THOUGHT AND ACTION.

With assurances that Southern California will give Charles Evans Hughes, the Republican standard bearer, a safe majority, and that California will remain in the column of the dominating party, interest in local politics during the week has been confined to the "wet"-and-"dry" issue and the contest for District Attorney. The prediction made months ago that the fight for and against the proposed prohibition amendments would even overwhelm the national issue has proved true.

It is taken for granted that Los Angeles county will run true to form in the Presidential contest and for excitement our citizens must look to the populous centers of the East. What the south and the entire State will do with the "dry" measures, however, is by no means certain, and with doubt in the minds of opponents and proponents both sides are worked up to a high pitch.

The Watchman has endeavored to size up the situation without prejudice and he is of the opinion that both the "drys" and "wets" are due to receive the shock of their lives. Both are overconfident and the prediction on either side of a majority of 150,000 is preposterous. Which ever side is victorious the margin undoubtedly will be small.

The hope of the "drys" lies south of the Tehachepi. Whether they will be able to go to the State's meridian with a majority sufficient to offset the large "wet" vote of the north is the question. The north is confident of reaching the Tehachepi fully 80,000 to the good. If the "drys" are to carry the State by a majority of 50,000, as has been prognosticated by the manager of the Dry Federation, they must carry the south by 130,000. To do this would mean that the efforts of the California Prosperity League have been in vain. Such is not true. It has accomplished many and big things. Never in the history of prohibition fights has the opposition been, so thoroughly organized as it has been under the direction of the Prosperity League, and no matter what the final result is it cannot be denied that the league has held no less than 100,000 people throughout the State—chiefly in the south—in line. That is, if the Prohibs by any hook or crook should carry California by the 50,000 they have estimated the fact cannot be denied that their majority would have been 150,000 but for the work of the league. As a result its efforts cannot have been in vain and if organization amounts to anything there is an excellent chance for the "wets" to break even in the south. This is the expected result as announced by "wet" leaders. To the unprejudiced, however, this claim is unreasonable and all signs indicate that the "drys" will have a safe majority on this side of Tehachepi's top. That true, in the final analysis it must be figured what the "dry" vote will be in Southern California and then what the "wet" vote will be in San Francisco and vicinity.

Even the "drys" admit that Amendment No. 1, which provides for total prohibition in three years, will be defeated. If they had told the truth about Amendment No. 2 there would have been no question as to its fate, either. Apparently the people of the State are willing that the saloons shall be eliminated and the "drys" have taken advantage of that sentiment by preaching from the housetops, highways and byways that No. 2 is exclusively a no-saloon measure. They have irreligiously refrained from making it plain to the electors that No. 2 would close hundreds of the State's costliest cafes, restaurants and hotels; that it would obliterate the family liquor store, and that no tourist could get a glass of wine or beer within our borders. Our tourist crop possibly is the biggest enterprise we have, and the "drys" have said nothing about the effect of No. 2 upon it.

The effect of such misleading tactics has acted as a boomerang for the "wets" and there has been a noticeable change in sentiment during the past few days. Despite the change there is no getting away from the fact that the result is about as uncertain as the flipping of a coin.

The District Attorney fight has resolved itself into a question of how large will Thomas Lee Woolwine's majority be. There is no question as to who will win. That is and has been a foregone conclusion. Cap Helms, the sob sister of politics, who has tried to irrigate himself into office, is hopeless. If it is possible for a man to commit suicide more than once, "Cap" has done it a dozen times in the past two weeks, but his biggest blunder was when he started a campaign of mud-slinging. Even his former friends, men of high standing in the community, who had made up their minds to support the weeping willow, resented his unfair and disgusting tactics and turned all of their efforts to the incumbent. Repudiated by the "drys," the official Republican organization and the leading members of his own profession, poor "Cap" has been depending upon the dissemination of scurrilous accusations against Mr. Woolwine and his friends.

Mr. Woolwine happens to have an unimpeachable reputation. He is known to be honest, true and conscientious. Even his political enemies admit these qualifications. How silly, then, for the holier-than-thou candidate to endeavor to make a winning fight by casting aspersions upon a man whose record is his best recommendation. So far as Mr. Woolwine is concerned, he has a cinch. Some say his majority will be 50,000, others say it will be 100,000. No one has had the temerity to place "Cap" in the running and the county is to be congratulated upon the assurance that a really capable, fearless and honest men will guide the destinies of the District Attorney's office for another four years.

The entrance of Joy Clark, level-headed young business man, into the race for the short term in Congress from the Tenth District, was a surprise; but the biggest surprise is likely to come next Tuesday evening, when the votes are counted. No candidate was ever prepared for a more thorough campaign than Mr. Clark. He has countless friends in the district and they are working with their friends. All have decided to send the candidate to Washington and it appears that their plans will be safely executed. Loyal Republicans have been opposed to the deal made by Capt. Osborne and Henry Stanley Benedict and are glad of an opportunity to vote for a real Republican for the short term. To do so it will be necessary, only to write in the name of Joy Clark.

Political principle guides loyal Republicans when they go to the polls. For that reason Fred Frank and A. A. Weber, independent Republican candidates in the Sixty-fourth and Sixty-ninth Assembly districts, respectively, are expected to win. Their opponents are dyed-in-the-wool Progressives, who have long ago deserted the ranks of the G.O.P. and Republicans can only do their duty by voting for Frank and Weber.

Jonathan S. Dodge should carry the Fifth Supervisor District by no less than 2500 majority. Many bets have been made that he will. W. E. Hinshaw is just as sure of re-election in the Fourth, and Mark G. Jones will no doubt bury Snorton so deep that the county will be rid of him forever. May the good Lord hasten the day.

To the Voters of California

There are two candidates for the office of United States Senator from California. One is George S. Patton, of Los Angeles, Democrat; the other is Governor Hiram W. Johnson, a registered Progressive, who secured the Republican nomination in the August primary election.

Four years ago the Republicans of California were denied the right of voting for their party candidate for President. They were compelled to vote for one of two men for President, neither of whom was a Republican.

In the present campaign the election laws have been manipulated so that the Republicans of the state are unable to vote for a Republican for United States Senator.

Governor Johnson is still registered as a member of the Progressive party, and he refuses to leave that party and become a Republican until after the election.

Mr. Patton is what he has always been—a Progressive Democrat.

California is largely a government by commission. Hiram Johnson has appointed the commissions.

More than 80 per cent of the state appointees are from the north.

Will you approve the action of repealing the law that forbids the Governor of the state from using his high office to elevate himself to the upper house of Congress?

The election of George S. Patton United States Senator preserves the precedent of 24 years.

The election of George S. Patton assures to the people of all California impartial, efficient and effective representation in the United States Senate.

By voting for George S. Patton for United States Senator you vote for a man who will be in touch with the administration and with Congress; who will have beside him Senator James D. Phelan—the two constituting a force for California impossible to attain by any other course at the polls.

As Senator Phelan says: "It stands to reason that two men of the same dominant party in Washington can do more for California than one man."

This Is Plain Business Sense.

New Feature.

In this issue of the real estate and building department of The Times appears the first of a series of perspectives and floor plans of small homes prepared by different Los Angeles architects. The feature, which promises to be of interest to all prospective home builders, will be published from time to time, possibly every Sunday. The designs for the most part will be of dwellings that have been or are being built and the accompanying estimates of cost will therefore generally be based on actual construction bids. The plans presented will be confined to bungalows and houses of under $5000 in cost.

In Los Angeles, as in all other cities, there are too many houses that are merely slung together by carpenters, men who do their own planning and who are generally lacking in all artistic perception. Many persons are so intent upon saving money they would be compelled to pay a good designer that they do not give the attention and thought they should to the planning of their homes. There could be no greater mistake.

There is a famous poem which narrates how a certain man when complimented by friends upon the careful study and good taste evidenced in the lines of his house and the arrangement of his garden made the reply: "Of course! I live here!" So far as that is concerned, the idea that anyone can really save money in the long run by turning over the planning of his house to a contractor or carpenter without architectural training is entirely erroneous. Many persons in Los Angeles can testify to that fact.

The designs to be published in the series beginning today are intended primarily to show that artistically worth-while homes do not necessarily cost more than the slung-together kind devoid of originality and architectural merit. The illustrations used are to be published through the courtesy of designers interested in seeing the architectural standards of even the smallest homes raised in this city. They represent real study by men of architectural training who have given time and thought to the problems of modern house planning and construction. It goes without saying that builders will be able to find valuable suggestions in such perspectives and floor plans.

DATE IS SET.

State Realty Federation to Meet in Oakland this Month.

The annual convention of the California State Realty Federation will be held at the Hotel Oakland, in Oakland, November 16, 17 and 18. A number of members of the Los Angeles Realty Board are making arrangements to attend.

The board of directors of the State federation met a few days ago in Oakland and adopted a resolution in opposition to the single tax amendment on the ballot of November 7 and all real estate men in California were urged to work and vote against the measure. C. C. C. Tatum represented the Los Angeles Realty Board at this meeting. William H. Akin of this city was elected a director of the federation during the session.

The committee in charge of the convention is composed of Fred E. Reed, Oakland; William Laymance, Oakland, and C. C. Juster, Berkeley. Mr. Reed is president of the Oakland Real Estate Board.

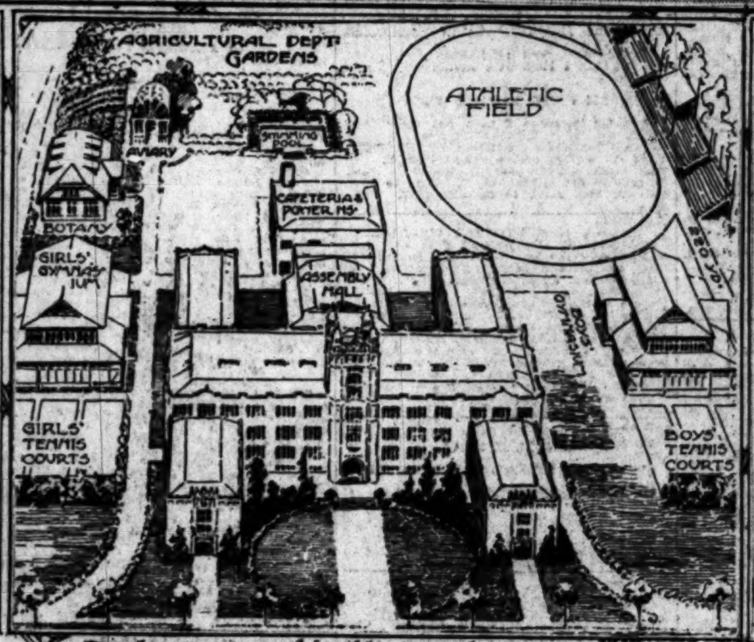
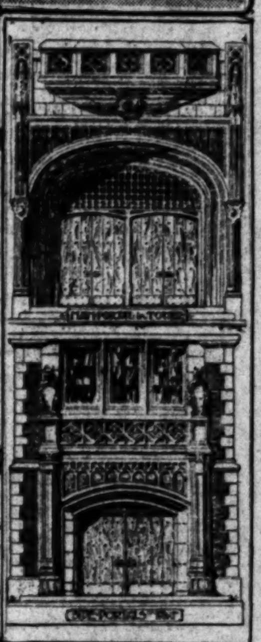
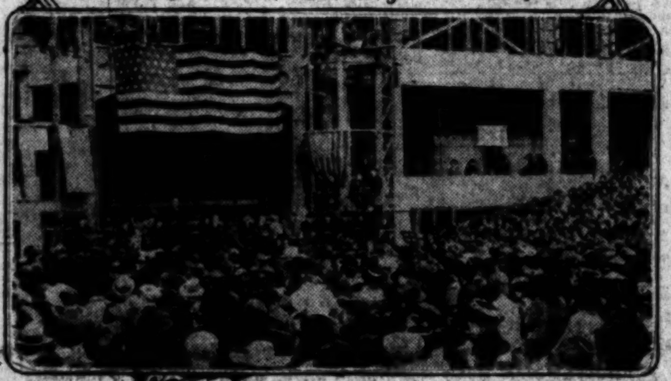
THE TOWER.



Birdseye view of buildings and campus





Splendid institution now under construction.

The photographs were taken on the occasion of the laying of the cornerstone of the school on Friday. The lower one is a "close-up" of the crowd that packed the great forecourt of the unfinished building. President Wheeler of the University of California is speaking. The birdseye perspective shows the relation of the high school proper to the various minor buildings and the athletic field of the twenty-acre campus. The other drawings show striking architectural details of the half-million-dollar main structure. The new "L. A. High" was planned by John C. Austin.

STRIKING RESIDENCE.

Attractive House of New England Colonial Architecture Completed on South Oxford—Several Places Being Planned for West Side.

A striking residence of the New England colonial type was completed during the past week by Charles D. Wagner, a local contractor and designer, for H. J. Robbins at No. 446 South Oxford boulevard. The house contains sixteen rooms and occupies a large and sightly lot. The interior finish is in mahogany and old ivory. Mr. Wagner is also completing a number of other attractive places in the Wilshire district and other west side residence sections and is starting several houses at the present time.

W. A. Bonynge, Jr., has had plans drawn for a twelve-room residence of English architecture to be built at the corner of Fourth street and Westmoreland avenue. The Cooper-Pyle-Clopine Company is planning and will build a nine-room house for Matthew Fecher on Gramercy place, between Fourth and Fifth streets. C. E. Crary & Son will this week start work on three nine-room colonial houses in the Ardmore tract at Melrose and Normandie avenues. The dwellings are being built for the market. R. W. Poindexter has let the contract for a nine-room colonial house to be built at No. 837 Fifth avenue. An eight-room house in the Italian villa style is to be started at once by Nicola Donatelli at Sixteenth street and Hobart boulevard. Henry E. Rivers has had plans prepared for an eight-room house on Westmoreland avenue, between Third and Fourth streets.

Among the smaller dwellings now about to be started in different parts of the city may be mentioned the following: Seven-room house for Frank Morrell at First and Gramercy; seven-room house for B. L. Gubser, No. 213 North St. Andrews; eight-room double bungalow for E. D. Lee, No. 626 North New Hampshire; two six-room houses for Tyler & Co., Avenue Thirty-nine and Bernice street; six-room bungalow for F. H. Parmelee, No. 1322 Orange drive; five-room bungalow for Mary A. Cox, No. 5222 St. Andrews place; five-room bungalow for Harriett Laber, No. 4275 Denker avenue; five-room bungalow for Taft Realty Company, No. 1031 North Wilton.

PLANS DAIRY FARM.

Frank B. Rutledge of the firm of A. J. Rutledge & Sons, Lancaster, reports having sold a half-section of land in the Antelope Valley to Albert Keep Isham of Chicago. The property is situated near the Portland ranch, one of the best-known holdings in the Lancaster district. The new owner, it is announced, will spend $20,000 improving the land as a dairy farm.

NEW VERMONT SQUARE.

The following recent sales are reported in the New Vermont Square subdivision in Southwest Los Angeles: Wilbur Scholes to Ovid Kern, colonial bungalow, No. 1947 West Forty-first street, $3650; J. G. Covington to Mrs. Bess S. Orchard, six-room chalet, No. 1738 West Forty-first place, $4000; David Black to S. Beck, six-room, two story chalet, No. 1763 West Forty-first street, $5200; Southwest Land Company to local buyer, lot on south side of Forty-first place, between Western avenue and St. Andrews place, $1250, through agency of M. E. Oswald; through same agency, George D. Sweetland to J. G. Covington, lot on north side of Forty-third street, between Gramercy place and Van Ness avenue, $1000; Southwest Land Company to A. J. MacLean, lot on south side Vernon avenue, between Halldale and Dalton, $1250. In the same tract, Charles F. Balerski has just begun a six-room bungalow at No. 4183 Van Ness avenue.

ACREAGE SALES.

H. R. Cowan reports the following sales: One hundred and sixty acres in the Santa Monica Mountains, near Craig's Country Club, to H. D. Lombard, $5000; 160 acres three miles south of Holtville, Imperial Valley, to E. R. F. W. Pember of Riverside, $20,000; eighty acres three miles south of Holtville, Imperial Valley, to George Winterbotham, Riverside, $10,000.

LARGE RANCH IS EXCHANGED.

TRACT ADJOINING TORRANCE CHANGES HANDS.

Is Traded for Local Apartment-house, Riverside County Land and Other Properties—Total Consideration Given at Over Half Million.

One of the most important exchanges reported in several months was concluded during the past week, when Hugh W. Bryson, general manager of the F. O. Engstrom Company, transferred to the John M. C. Marble Company of this city 500 acres adjoining the town of Torrance. Mr. Bryson received in trade the Gladys apartments at the northeast corner of East Seventh street and Gladys, a 430-acre ranch in Riverside county and a number of scattered Los Angeles holdings. The value of all the property figuring in the exchange is given at $600,000.

The Marble interests, it is announced, will, in the near future, subdivide the Torrance acreage into parcels of from one to five acres, placing the entire property on the market. H. Barcley Brown, who represented both sides in the transaction, also reports the recent sale of the Hyland apartments on West Seventh street, near Union avenue, for the Hyland estate, to a local investor for a given consideration of $35,000.

NEW DISPLAYS.

Several new displays have recently been added to those already on exhibit in the Metropolitan Exhibit of Building Materials and Appliances in the Metropolitan Building at Fifth and Broadway. These, according to Miss M. L. Schmidt, manager of the exhibit, include a display of new effects in the staining and finishing of hardwoods by Pratt & Lambert; a model bathroom exhibit by the G. H. Turner Company, featuring the Kohler bathtubs; a lavatory display by the Thomas Maddock's Sons Company; a display by the same concern of a new noiselessly-operating toilet; displays of Standard foot-tubs, Speakman's Mixo-Meter showers, Hot Stack gas heaters and White bathroom accessories; exhibits of heating systems by the Leader Sheet Metal Works and W. Swetland; an exhibit by the California Weatherstrip Company and an exhibit of Lea George window attachments.

GIANT FRAME IS FINISHED.

New "L. A. High" Ready for Facing Material.

Corner-stone Laid and Work in Full Swing.

Five-acre Athletic Field to be Laid Out.

Thousands of alumni, undergraduates and friends of Los Angeles High School turned out on Friday to witness the laying of the corner-stone of the magnificent new $500,000 main building of the old-time hilltop institution on its new twenty-acre campus at Country Club drive and Rimpau avenue. The event may be said to have marked the beginning of the second and last stage of the construction of this wonderful structure.

Those who attended the ceremony of Friday saw a vast shell of reinforced concrete, out of the center of which arose a tall skeleton of steel. They saw the building "sketched in," as the artists say, in full outline, but in the rough and entirely without detail. The block of granite that served as the corner-stone is the first of the countless blocks that will encase the steel uprights and beams of the majestic tower. The material to be used in the facing of the whole gigantic framework is waiting on the ground.

The main building of the new Los Angeles High School and Junior College group is in the shape of a capital "H" and has ground dimensions of 340x260 feet. The architect, John C. Austin, has caught his inspiration from the Tudor period of English architecture. The tower will be the dominating architectural feature of the building, rising to a height of 125 feet and lending beauty and dignity to the design.

The High School auditorium will have a seating capacity of 2000. Laboratories for physics, chemistry, biology and physiography will occupy, with their lecture-rooms, an unusually large space. The library and the history and classical departments will be located on the second story, extending across the front of the building. Space for the art and music departments will be provided on the top floor. The numerous classrooms will be large, well lighted and well ventilated.

The horticultural and agricultural departments of the school will have two and a half acres of ground for practical farming, gardening and experimental work and will also have commodious buildings of their own. Five acres will be set aside for the athletic field, which will boast a 300-yard straightaway track, a quarter-mile circular track, a baseball diamond and football grounds, together with a special outdoor playground for the use of girls. Plans for athletic buildings and other minor structures are now being studied out by the architect.

The Barber-Bradley Construction Company, which has the contract for the main building of the school, has given assurance that the structure will be completed and ready for occupancy in time for the opening of the fall term of 1917. At the time of the dedicatory exercises a $10,000 pipe organ, the gift of the alumni, will be played for the first time.

FOR SALE—

SIMPLY—CROWN HILL.

Half a mile from Broadway.
420 feet above the sea.
Best renting district in town.
Best investment in Los Angeles.

Local bank clearings for October were $112,521,057, the LARGEST for one month in the whole history of Los Angeles. The increase over October, 1915, was $24,474,340. I quote from a recent issue of the Express: "Banking and industrial institutions are elated over the prosperity that has prevailed during the last month. A banner year that will be incomparable is predicted throughout financial circles of the city." Prosperity isn't returning—it's HERE! Do I know what I'm talking about when I say CROWN HILL prices are going up after THIS FALL—or don't I? As usual, they'll all be trying to get on the band wagon after the best seats are taken.

While we're on the subject I want to call attention to another big thing for CROWN HILL—the proposed opening of Fifth street, from Hope to Figueroa. It's on the ways now, and they say it will be started very shortly. This will provide still another direct outlet from downtown to all of CROWN HILL, and that daily procession of autos up to Fifth and Beaudry will become larger than ever. And by the way, if you want to get an idea of what real activity in the traffic line is, stand at the corner of Fifth and Beaudry or Sixth and Beaudry for a few minutes, any time between 4 and 7 p.m. It looks more like a parade than anything else. And all on CROWN HILL, of course.

But as I was saying, this Fifth street opening is going to add greatly to CROWN HILL values—and prices.

You see, CROWN HILL is a place where something is going on all the time. Things never stand still. Naturally, where everything else is moving, you can't expect prices to stand still. 'Tisn't reasonable.

The next era of apartment-house and flat building—now rapidly approaching—will leave scarcely a vacant lot on CROWN HILL. Remember that in large cities, after a quiet period, activity ALWAYS starts downtown and works outwardly. How long will it take to strike CROWN HILL, just HALF A MILE from Broadway, the highest priced property in Los Angeles?

I tell you frankly, the golden opportunity for the early investor on CROWN HILL is RIGHT NOW. Never another chance like it in that famous district between Third, Sixth, Beaudry and Witmer, with the highest elevation, grandest air and best renting record in Los Angeles!

FOR SALE—
ORANGE COVE.
There is big money in citrus fruits and more in developing groves. If you are going to buy land to plant to oranges or lemons, buy the best. See that you get the right kind of soil, protection and water.
ORANGE COVE
has all three and is as near frostless as you can find in California, and navels are absolutely safe, as they are all shipped by December 20th. No fumigation and no smudge pots to worry with.
ORANGE COVE
is on the new orange belt line of the Santa Fe and is building up rapidly. Over 2500 acres now planted to orange, lemon and olive trees, in some of the finest young groves in California. 5, 10, 20 and 40-acre lots sold on easy terms.
The town of Orange Cove has good business opportunities. The Orange Cove Citrus Association is now building a splendid packing-house and will be ready to handle the fruit this season. Go with me to Orange Cove. Talk with the owners of the groves and if you don't find conditions as represented we will gladly refund the expenses of the trip.

FOR SALE—180 ACRES PRODUCED MORE THAN 3000 TONS SUGAR BEETS the past season, which delivered at MANTECA, brought almost $18,000 IN CASH. There are 294 acres in the whole tract. Balance of the land was in corn and sunflowers, heavy crop. Some adjoining land of the same quality gave returns for the season of more than $150 per acre in tomatoes for the Manteca cannery, about $100 in beans, $150 in watermelons, and $80 in alfalfa. 200 acres of this land were in melons the season of 1915, bumper crop. This land is on the Main State Highway, 1 mile from Manteca, with now about 750 people, and will at the present rate of growth have 3000 within 5 years. It is 14 miles south from Stockton, and less than 60 miles directly east from Oakland at the gateway of the great valley. Only 5 miles from tidewater navigation in the San Joaquin River. Under the best system of gravity irrigation in the whole State of California. All the water you need when you need it, and service considered, about the cheapest, in yearly cost. Best deep rich sandy loam soil, there is nothing better anywhere, no matter what you pay. This tract is leased for the coming season for sugar beets, for $20 per acre cash, and the purchaser gets the entire rental amounting to almost $6000. The price if sold before December 10th, $100 PER ACRE, $20,000 cash, balance about to suit, at 6 per cent. This land is suburban to Manteca, and to Stockton to an extent, and with the growth of the towns and the development of the district, it will soon be needed for cutting into 1, 2½ and 5-acre tracts at prices ranging up to $750 per acre. But regardless of future advance, which conditions make sure, it NOW PAYS 6 PER CENT. NET ON A VALUATION OF $250 PER ACRE. Where can you equal it? But you must act NOW, this price is good only to December 10th. W. J. WOODWARD, Manteca, Cal.

FOR SALE—
SELECT CITRUS LANDS PROTECTED FROM FROSTS, WINDS AND FLOODS.

IMPERIAL VALLEY—

FOR SALE—IMPERIAL VALLEY RANCH NOW in cotton, one of finest here. Located west of Calexico, well, leveled, bordered, ditched and improved with house, fences, corrals, gas engine, tanks and pumping plant for stock and domestic purposes. Has five acres eucalyptus 6 years old. 155 shares I. W. Co. No. 6 water stock.
Last year's cotton yield exceeded $6000 from 110 acres alone, and corn on balance realized $1000. This year's cotton crop on the whole 160 acres will probably exceed $10,000, and at present prices the right man can nearly pay for this ranch in one year.
Due to other interests this ranch can be had on immediate purchase at $130 per acre, including water stock. Would like $8000 cash, buyer to assume $7200 (German American Trust and Savings Bank first mortgage) and give second mortgage back for remainder, or exchange of good value.
Agents note: This won't last. CHAS. B. JUSTICE, owner, 690 State street, El Centro, Cal.

BUY STEIFER AND BIRTHDAY STOCKS, AND buy them now. Two big miners in the mining game. Our visit to the Steifer mine October 26 convinces us that with Mr. R. J. Buchanan, expert mining engineer from Winnipeg, on the job Steifer is going to make good this time. Birthday is showing up mighty rich, and with the new management backed up with big capital, should be selling at 25 to 50 cents per share in a few months. Buy it now at 10 cents and buy it in big bunches. We have been all over Birthday twice, and are sure this mine will be a big producer, and that, too, in a short time. Two cars of ore have already been shipped, averaging better than $80 per ton. M. D. MYERS, 318 Grant Bldg. Phone A8646.

MIDWAY.
In buying stock the shrewd investor studies many things. He studies the personnel of the people back of a company. He figures capitalization, he investigates financial conditions of a company. A shrewd investor will profit by studying the conditions surrounding the operations of the Midway Mining and Milling Company, the Oatman Company, which is now attracting so much attention. We have been allotted a certain portion of stock in the Midway Mining and Milling Company and we want to make it a point to have investors study the operations of the company before he invests. The stock is listed and operations are on in full blast.

San Gabriel.

WHO PAINTED ST. VIBIANA?

Master Portrait Mystery at Old San Gabriel.

Church Authorities Unable to Solve Riddle.

Been Hanging Fifty Years on Mission Wall.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN GABRIEL, Nov. 1.—Who painted the San Gabriel Mission picture of St. Vibiana?

For years the holy fathers of the old mission have been attempting to solve the mystery that surrounds the unsigned canvas, but without avail. And recently the matter has been taken up by others outside the mission walls. The picture has been taken down from its place of honor in the mission gallery and examined, inch by inch, but with the same disappointing results. The sorrowful, haunting face of its martyred subject is limned with a skill that indicates the master artist's work, but no signature decorates the tiniest corner of the canvas, and the archives of the "pride of the missions" throw no light upon the manner of the picture's arrival.

OVER FIFTY YEARS OLD.

The mysterious painting of which the martyred St. Vibiana is the subject cannot be more than a few years over half a century old, for the sepulchre of the young Roman maiden was not discovered until 1853 and it was more than a year after that that Pope Pius IX gave the sacred relics to Bishop Amat of Los Angeles, together with the permission to erect a cathedral in her honor at Los Angeles. The cathedral was built and the relics are said to be contained in the high altar of the structure. St. Vibiana's feast day is September 1.

It then seems probable that the San Gabriel Mission painting must date from about the time the relics of the saint were brought to Los Angeles by Bishop Amat from Rome. How it reached the mission and found its niche among the score of other sacred canvases that adorn the walls of what was at one time the padres' dining-room probably will remain a mystery for some time. Some have suggested that it may have come from the gallery in the Vatican.

The canvas is about 3x4 feet 2 inches and is framed in a rough, badly-made gilt frame, much damaged at the corners and edges. A peculiarity of the canvas is its unusual coarseness of weave. It is more like burlap than a cloth designed for painting upon. The tacks by which the canvas is fastened to the stretchers and the screws in the blocks that hold the whole in the frame indicate no great age.

COLORS ARE BRIGHT.

St. Vibiana is represented as a young girl flying with arms outstretched upon a cloud. She is dressed in yellowish green, over which is thrown a robe of brilliant red. In her right hand she carries a bunch of lilies, emblematic of her virginity, and on her head is a crown of red and white roses, the red signifying her martyrdom. A red wound at the right of the throat is believed to indicate the manner in which she met her death. The figure, personifying the piety and steadfastness of the subject, is apparently floating upward before a mass of clouds, which tone into a golden brown background.

St. Vibiana—or Bibiana, as it is often written—lived probably during the time of the Roman Emperor Decius, who reigned A. D. 249-251. One of the little band of Christians, she was slain because of her faith. In the fifth century we are told that Pope Simplicius "concentrated the basilica of the holy martyr Bibiana, which contained her body, near the palatium Licinianum." We have no further particulars of the young girl's life or death. She was forgotten until half a century ago, when a pair of eager archaeologists exploring the tomb of St. Xystus, which lies outside the ancient walls of Rome, discovered Vibiana's tomb. A year later the remains were exposed to public veneration and the name of St. Vibiana placed upon the calendar of saints.

BREAK GROUND FOR VAN NUYS CITY HALL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VAN NUYS, Nov. 4.—Today marked an epoch in the history of Van Nuys, when J. J. Backus, Superintendent of Public Buildings of Los Angeles, removed the first shovel of earth for the foundation for the new branch City Hall on East Virginia street in Van Nuys.

The building will house the city officials for the San Fernando annex.

Six years ago Van Nuys was a barley field. Today it is peopled with progressive citizens, schools and churches.

In March, 1916, the city of Los Angeles rented a twenty-foot store building to house the water department and the City Engineer. They hopelessly outgrew these quarters within eight months.

The water department collects water rentals over a territory of 87,000 acres. In 1916 there were 484 service connections in Van Nuys. Now there are 864.

Edwards Wildey Company, the contractors, expect to complete the building in ninety days.

NEAR TO ORE?

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RAY (Ariz.) Nov. 3.—Fred Bigham, foreman of drill No. 1 on the Juarez claim of the Arizona Ray Copper Company, announced today that in his opinion the drill was right on top of the ore body. If it had not been for the breaking of the water pipe which governs the water supply of the company, he said, the ore would have been broken into today. As it is, Bigham claims that he will encounter the rock before Tuesday or Wednesday.

Failure to provide for his wife was the charge for which Frank Rivet was brought before Judge Craig yesterday for arraignment. Mrs. Nellie Rivet charges that at various times he sold some of her clothes as well as his own, some of the household fixtures and to cap the climax, her gold false teeth. Judge Craig held him for trial this week.

MASS MEETING FOR WOOLWINE.

District Attorney Praised by Prominent Citizens.

City and County Civic League Indorses Incumbent.

Opposers of Bartlett are Guilty of Fraud.

Dist.-Atty. Thomas Lee Woolwine yesterday afternoon addressed large and enthusiastic audiences in Pomona, Lordsburg and San Dimas on the "Duties of the District Attorney and his relation to the public." He was accorded a fine reception, many voters taking the occasion to assure him of their support and good will on election day.

At a monster mass meeting in Blanchard Hall last evening, Dist.-Atty. Woolwine was given the greatest reception he has yet received. During the course of the address, he was interrupted frequently by bursts of applause, and the audience seemed to be with him to a man. Messrs. Frank P. Flint, former United States Senator; H. Clay Needham, chairman of the Prohibition County Central Committee; Nathan Newby, president of the Committee of One Hundred of the Church Federation and a member of the Morals Efficiency Committee, and W. J. Ford, former chief deputy District Attorney, were among the speakers.

Mr. Woolwine was indorsed for re-election as District Attorney at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the City and County Civic League. The membership consists of over 5000 members, and it is stated that it is made up of the majority of the colored voters of the city and county. The Executive Committee is composed of W. H. Sanders, chairman; Marcus Shields, Watts; J. B. Bass, editor California Eagle; G. W. Smith, Santa Monica; D. P. Brown; J. I. W. Fisher, Monrovia; E. L. Gains, Pasadena, and R. Perry.

Charges of Fraud.

Charges of misrepresentation and fraud were made yesterday by the Republican County Central Committee in the campaign in the Sixty-third Assembly District in which Assemblyman Alfred L. Bartlett is the regular Republican nominee and Douglas L. Edmonds is the Democratic nominee for Assembly. That opponents of Assemblyman Bartlett are circulating statements that he is not the Republican nominee in order to defeat him, was the charge made by Chairman Frank Doherty.

"Mr. Bartlett is the Republican nominee in the Sixty-third District and the Republicans of that district should beware of the willful misrepresentation being made by his opponents that he is not the Republican candidate," said Mr. Doherty yesterday "His opponent was defeated for the Republican nomination so he is now running on the Democratic ticket as a Democrat although he is registered as a Republican, and an attempt is being made by his supporters to foist him onto the people of the district as a Republican candidate. He is not a Republican or he would be supporting Mr. Bartlett."

That certain special interests which are endeavoring to defeat Bartlett because of his consistent and valiant fight against them in the last Legislature are responsible for the misrepresentation being made, was the charge of Mr. MacMeader, secretary of the Bartlett Campaign Committee. "Mr. Bartlett is an independent thinking man and is not controlled by any man or set of men and never will be and this is the reason why certain interests are resorting to fraud and deception to defeat him for re-election." said MacMeader yesterday.

McClellan a Business Man.

R. F. McClellan, candidate for Supervisor in the Fourth District, has made his campaign upon his record as a business man. He has been very successful and his friends believe he would make a good Supervisor. He has been indorsed by several of the men who opposed him at the primary election.

Patton is Confident.

George S. Patton, Democratic candidate for United States Senator, who is opposed by Hiram Johnson, spoke last night in advocacy of his own fight for the Senatorship. Mr. Patton declared that there is no longer any such thing as a "Johnson Following" in California, this political bugaboo having been entirely done away with when Hiram Johnson, as Governor, made it impossible for Republicans to vote for a Republican for Senator.

Mr. Patton is quite confident of his own election, believing that the Republicans of the State will vote for him rather than for a Progressive who sought to obtain his own election by preventing Republicans for voting for a Republican.

For the Short Term.

There are about a dozen candidates for the short term in Congress from the Tenth District. The latest aspirants are Alex Mueller, a mining and real estate dealer, and Albert William Simon, a manufacturer who has always been a loyal Republican.

REWARD FOR BARBER.

All-day Job and Taxi Tour for One Haircut.

Being a good barber is not without reward. Charles Neumiester, tonsorial artist at the Van Nuys, is authority for the statement.

About two weeks ago a guest at the Van Nuys submitted himself to be shorn at Mr. Neumiester's hands, after delivering lengthy instructions as to the manner in which the job was to be accomplished. So satisfactory was the result that day before yesterday, when the locks of the customer had grown long, he telegraphed from Santa Barbara engaging Mr. Neumiester's services for the day. Unable to come to Los Angeles because of a business deal, he later telephoned for Mr. Neumiester to take a taxi and meet him at a hotel in Santa Barbara.

Mr. Neumiester returned in a taxi yesterday. He refused to give the name of his patron, but exhibited the change from a $20 bill and said fervently, "May he never grow bald!"

YELLOW ASTER TO BURCHAM FACTION.

GAINS STOCK CONTROL, SAYS PRESIDENT ANCKER.

Declares He and His Associates Hold Two-thirds of All Shares and There's no Chance of De Pauw Interests Taking the Helm. Last of Discoverers Sells Out.

Control of the famous Yellow Aster Milling and Mining Company the subject of long and hard-fought litigation, is settled in the hands of the Burcham faction beyond all possibility of change, according to an announcement made yesterday by President Albert Ancker of the company. He stated that last October 20 he bought out the interests of E. D. Mooers, who at a directors' meeting of the 1st inst., resigned his office and was succeeded by Arthur Asher. This, it is declared, gives 66 per cent. of the concerns stock to Mr. Ancker, Mrs. R. L. Burcham and others of their faction, that has been opposed to the De Pauw interests in the fight for control. The deal is said to have involved about $75,000.

"With two-thirds of the stock in our hands, the De Pauw people can do nothing to break our control." Mr. Ancker said yesterday.

The spectacular Yellow Aster fight has been much in the public eye since May 20, 1914, when John Singleton one of the discoverers of the mine, died at Randsburg. He and Mrs. Singleton had separated in 1910, when she filed divorce proceedings, that were later dismissed. At the time of his death she resided in Holland. She came to Los Angeles in July, 1914, to take over a half interest in Mr. Singleton's $215,648 estate, and November 25 of that year, she married Count G. A. M. de Pauw of The Hague. A move was inaugurated to have Mr. De Pauw made president of the Yellow Aster, and a whole flock of court actions was precipitated. Last April 15, during the trial of one such action, Mrs. Burcham announced all the trouble might be ended by a sale of a majority of the stock of the corporation, but withheld details.

She is the widow and executrix of the estate of the late C. A. Burcham, one of the three discoverers of the mine. The sole survivor of the trio is Mr. Mooers, who has now been bought out.

During the early part of this year while the litigation was at its hottest, Mr. Mooers was with the Burcham-Ancker faction, but had not always been so, according to Mr. Ancker's statement yesterday. The stock of the controlling faction is said to be so closely held now, however, that their position is unshakable.

The Yellow Aster is one of the world's richest gold mines. The company was organized in 1897, with 100,000 shares of capital stock at $10 a share par. According to a statement of the company, there had been recovered to last October 1, $8,382,954.50 in bullion. Permanent improvements are valued at $730,000. Dividends paid to October 1 total $1,288,789.

POULTRY FOR HOME.

Lark Ellen Newsboys' Home, located on an eligible fifteen-acre tract on the San Fernando road, quite close to the city—whose benefactress and backer is that good and gracious woman, Ellen Beach Yaw—is preparing to raise its own poultry. The beginning will be a fine band of Rhode Island Reds just presented to the home. Other bands, whether of this breed or of any other utility breed, will be gladly received by the home management (Red pullets and young hens preferred.) Here is a fine opportunity for generous poultry men to do a worthy act, which will be highly appreciated and handsomely acknowledged by Miss Yaw. She may be addressed on the subject at Lark Ellen Rancho, Covina. Meantime any birds that may be presented can be shipped in care of the "Foothill Feather Farm," Hollywood, for custody until permanent arrangements for their reception at the home shall have been completed.

CHARM LIES IN SIMPLE LINES.

Colonial Type Bungalow Offers Opportunity for Quaintness in Design.

An interesting adaptation of Colonial architecture to bungalow designing is illustrated in the perspective and floor plan of a house recently built by the Garden City Company of California in this city and reproductions of which appear on this page. The design is the first of a series of illustrations of houses of moderate cost to be published in the real estate and building department of The Times. Arrangements have been made with various archetects to contribute sketches and floor plans of particularly attractive dwellings of under $5000 in cost planned in their offices, the series thereby promising to be highly valuable to prospective home builders.

The Colonial type of bungalow has become quite popular in Los Angeles in the past year or two and the building pictured has received favorable comment as an artistic example of this style. The Colonial effect in larger houses is one of stateliness. This is naturally lost in a measure in the small home, which, however, offers real possibilities for dignified simplicity as well as quaintness in design.

The planners of the bungalow illustrated recommend wide siding painted white and a green shingle roof as the ideal color scheme for small dwellings of its kind, together with a garden setting of old-fashioned flowers. The floor plan, as will be seen, is not complex, the attempt having been made merely to make the maximum use of the floor space available. The use of gas floor furnaces for heating is recommended on account of the economy of installation and maintenance. The cost is estimated at from $2500 to $3000, based on present prices for labor and materials and depending upon the specifications.

The company has recently issued a plan book under the name of "Ideal Homes in Garden Communities" that has attracted considerable attention in architectural circles and which is given over almost entirely to small houses.

VALLEY ACTIVITIES.

A sale a day at Fruitland Acres in the San Fernando Valley is reported by the Janss Investment Company for the past week to the following: Paul J. Sydlitz, five acres, $2000; Harry Leckie, five acres, $1500; Charles Miller and Asa Sharp, five acres, $1000; L. C. Smith, five acres, $1000; T. W. Harriman and son, eleven acres, $3000, and M. P. Nesson, five acres, $625. I. S. Sprouse, who recently purchased twenty-seven acres of the Janss San Fernando lands, is now reported to be clearing and preparing twenty-two acres of his property for the planting of clingstone peaches. The rest will be devoted to a homesite and vegetable and chicken raising.

SUBSTANTIAL GAIN.

Henry F. Wegnori, building inspector of San Bernardino, in a report on structural operations in that city announced last week that his books showed a total expenditure for new structures of nearly $300,000 for the year to date. This figure represents an increase of over $50,000 by comparison with the total for the corresponding period of last year. One of the modern improvements now projected in the Gate City is a five-story reinforced concrete business block to be erected by the Anderson Company, at the northwest corner of Third and E streets at a cost of $100,000.

EDITOR'S TRIAL SET.

Pilot of Venice Publication is to Face Criminal Libel Charge in Court Next January; Only One of Seaside City's Political Gales.

Thomas W. Aisbitt, editor of the Venice News, will be tried before Judge McCormick January 8 on the charge of having criminally libelled Edward Gerety, Mayor of the beach community. Mr. Aisbitt was arraigned yesterday and entered a plea of not guilty.

In a recent editorial in his publication, he branded the officials as a "gang of political crooks" and went on to state that the "sleepy populace has been robbed both night and day by these." He suggested that Mayor Gerety and his associates were "worthless fellows, who in private life could not conduct a peanut stand or run a 'hot dog' joint with any commendable degree of success."

Mayor Gerety declared Mr. Aisbitt had held him up to ridicule, censure and invidious comment; had injured and maligned his reputation and was otherwise guilty of defamation of character.

The entire matter is just one of the incidents that has wracked Venice political life during the past two years.

TO GUARD AGAINST ELECTION FRAUDS.

CITY AND COUNTY OFFICIALS HOLD CONFERENCE.

Rooming-house Proprietors to be Quizzed for not Reporting Complete Lists of Guests — It is Feared that Colonization of Foreigners may be Tried.

In order to obviate possibility of election frauds in any form or manner, a special conference of city and county authorities was held yesterday afternoon in the office of County Counsel Hill. In addition to the county counsel, Dist.-Atty. Woolwine, City Prosecutor Warren Williams, Sheriff Cline, Chief of Police Butler and a number of their assistants were present and helped to map out a programme to obviate the possibility of unfairness by any factions or candidates.

It was decided that Deputy County Counsel B. W. Utter and Deputy City Prosecutor J. J. Hill should be stationed at the police station throughout the day in order to settle all disputes that may be brought to the attention of the police. Chief Butler and Sheriff Cline both agreed to augment the regular staff of motorcycle officers to be stationed at the city and county jails for hurry calls to any precincts in which disorder might arise.

Registrar of Voters McAleer, who was also at the conference, announced that he had several thousand names of persons who had registered in a manner not quite regular and that these names have been sent to the proper election officers to whom the prospective voters will have to give proper reasons for permission to vote.

Should the precinct officers fail to agree, the matter is then to be taken up at the police headquarters, the county counsel's office or the parties are to be brought to jail for the purpose of further interrogation and possible arrest, should it be apparent that they are attempting fraudulent voting.

Some possibility of colonization votes was voiced by Counsel Hill, who stated that in one rooming-house in the foreign section of the city more than 200 registrations had been reported when the place can actually not take care of more than twenty-five guests. This and several similar places will be investigated even prior to Tuesday for the purpose of ascertaining the reason for such a discrepancy.

Along this line, the Criminal Complaints Committee of the county grand jury will tomorrow morning take up the matter of failure on the part of about 606 rooming-house operators in the county to file the complete list of guests. The lists were requested by the "drys," who desire to check up on voters in all of the precincts.

South Los Angeles-street Store Leased to San Francisco Jobbers.

The W. Ross Campbell Company, through F. B. Nellums of its leasing department, reports the leasing of a store at No. 731 South Los Angeles street to Cahn, Nickelsburg & Co. of San Francisco, jobbers of shoes and rubbers. The increase of the Southern California and Arizona business of the firm is given as the reason for its opening a branch store and agency here.

The same realty firm reports the leasing of a store at No. 432 East Third street to W. F. Hackett for automobile tire and vulcanizing work. A portion of the space will be used as a leather and belting works by William Porter.

BOGUS RELIGIOUS WORKER SENTENCED.

F. D. HOWARD GETS EIGHTEEN MONTHS IN PRISON.

Writer of Obscene Letters Scored by Judge Trippet as Leper Who is Menace to Society—Used Religion as Mask to Cloak Viciousness—Witness Shocked.

Floyd D. Howard, who has been posing as a religious worker in local Y.M.C.A. and Mexican Mission circles, was yesterday sentenced to eighteen months in the Federal prison at McNeil's Island, having pleaded guilty to the charge of sending obscene letters through the mails. In passing sentence, Judge Oscar A. Tribbet unmercifully scored the prisoner, stating that he was tempted to give him the full limit of the law, which is five years.

"This letter" said Judge Trippet, "is one of the most horrible things I have ever seen in print. Howard is a leper, whose soul is gangrened with leprosy. The idea of a man of his type teaching the Christian religion is obnoxious. He is useless to the world and should be incarcerated for the protection of the community."

Although several women who have been associated with Howard in local religious work testified favorably as to Howard's character the court refused to be influenced. One character witness, who has been associated with Howard in religious work in Arizona, came here to testify in his behalf. After the court adjourned, and he was shown the letter on which Howard was convicted, he was shocked.

The prisoner was unmoved by the terrible arrigment of the court.

YELLOW PINE EXTENSION COMPANY
Goodsprings, Nevada.

Producing and shipping high grade zinc, lead, copper and silver ores. Over a mile and a quarter of underground workings. Not a prospect or a myth. Adjoins the Yellow Pine Mining Co.'s property which has paid seven hundred thousand dollars in dividends this year. With new directors, capital and energy, plans are being made for greatly increased development and production which should make the stock worth several times its present market value. This is the time to buy the stock and not after the big advance has taken place. We make a specialty of dividend or near-dividend paying mining investments and the Yellow Pine Extension is selected as the next big sensation of the Yellow Pine district which is producing the dividends for the investors. You will act wisely if you confine your investments to the district that has and is making good and paying regular dividends. We suggest that you do yourself the justice of at least investigating this company. Descriptive folders with maps upon request. Buy the stock while you may at 30c per share and before it has taken a sudden advance.

The Bull Market

Another bull market is with heavy trading—advancing —and big profits for those who lowed our advice.

We have consistently advised purchase of the good stocks. We URGED purchase prices were LOW. We predicted vance in price—profit for those were far-sighted enough to opportunity and to take advantage market conditions.

BIG PROFITS

We advised purchase of:—
United Eastern, when it sold to $3.40. It sold up to $4.50 A PROFIT OF 31 PER CENT.
Big Jim, when it sold down now selling around $1.25. A OF 60 PER CENT.
Lucky Boy, when it sold down —now selling around 15½c. A OF 63 PER CENT.
Adams, when it sold at selling around 14c. A PROFIT PER CENT.
United Northern, when it sold —now selling around 20c. A OF 100 PER CENT.
Nellie, when it sold down now selling around 34c. A OF 112 PER CENT.
Carter, when it sold down now selling around 12½c. A OF 110 PER CENT.

We are of the opinion that the bull market on the Oatman stocks be in full swing right after the tion is over—that prices will higher figures than in the early of the year—AND WE ADVISE CHASE OF THE GOOD OATMAN STOCKS AT ONCE. See that ders are in our hands TOMORROW. Don't wait until the market and then pay higher prices.

We advise immediate purchase of SPECULATORS PAY HEED TO POLITICAL FACTORS.

Short Period of Trading in New York is Accompanied by More or Less Irregularity — Important Stocks, Including United States Steel, are Dull or Under Moderate Pressure.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Speculative interests were again inclined [illegible] pay heed to political factors today, the short period of [illegible] being accompanied by more [illegible] less irregularity. Important [illegible] including United States Steel, [illegible] dull or under moderate pressure, with Metals, Motors, Crucible [illegible] Pressed Steel Car, Atlantic, [illegible] and West Indies, Pullman and [illegible] issues.

[illegible] was a lessening of offerings [illegible] international bonds, but those issues were mostly irregular. Total [illegible] par value, $2,470,000. United [illegible] bonds were unchanged on call [illegible] the week.

FINANCIAL REVIEW.

The obvious feature of this week's [illegible] active market was the preponderance of professional operations. [illegible] specialties and low-priced rails were again to the fore [illegible] substantial gains. There were numerous new maximums in addition [illegible] recorded by United States [illegible] Utah copper, but these were the outstanding features. With pig iron [illegible] premium and orders rejected almost daily, it is assumed higher [illegible] soon will be announced for [illegible] products.

[illegible] for copper and allied metals, [illegible] today quoted another advance for higher-grade copper to be [illegible] in the first quarter of 1917. [illegible] inquiry shows a steady increase. The week's recessions in [illegible] war bonds probably resulted [illegible] selling by holders who desired [illegible] participate in the new British [illegible] of $300,000,000, already fully [illegible].

[illegible] Russian loan or credit of [illegible] unsupported by any collateral has been consummated, making a total of something like $2,000,[illegible] lent by American financial interests and investors to foreign countries, exclusive of South America, since the outbreak of the war.

MINES LEAD ON LOCAL EXCHANGE.

STRONG DEMAND FOR ARIZONA RAY SHARES.

Predicted that Stock will be Rapid Riser—United Northern Popular—Carter Shows Improvement—Union Oil Active—Bonds Steady.

The mining shares were again the leaders at yesterday morning's session of the Los Angeles Stock Exchange and demand on the part of the public was more pronounced than the day before. Arizona Ray was a big favorite and a total of 14,500 shares changed hands at prices ranging from 27½ to 27⅝. There are quite a number of local brokers who are predicting that this stock will prove to be one of the rapid risers from now on and they are telling their clients to purchase the issue at market. United Northern was very strong Saturday and closing transactions were recorded at 20. Bidding for this stock was very spirited toward the end of the meeting and it is expected that the quotation for the same will advance sharply this week. According to advices from Oatman the United Northern has an exceptionally rich ore body and during the course of the next two weeks the company is expected to make an important announcement regarding the present state of development work. Carter was another feature and over 30,000 shares were transferred at ruling prices of 12⅝. Iowa was up and closed at 11½ while there was a fair demand for Nellie, Ivanhoe and Oatman United. United Eastern sold at 4.50. In the oil list Union was active at 100.62½ to 101.00, and counting off-board transactions, sales of 330 shares were registered. Los Angeles Investment was unchanged at 68. The bond list was steady, although 2 Union Oil 5's sold informally at the slightly weaker quotation of 95⅝.

According to Clifford H. Dowell, trading on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange during the month of October, 1916, resulted in the transfer of 1,884,412 shares of stock of a total value of $1,443,106.97. Mining stocks led the others in number of shares sold with 1,782,622, but the value of the activity in the oil group was the greatest with a total valuation of $852,015.01. Next in popularity was the industrial and public utility list and bonds and bank stocks followed in the order named.

MIDWAY

One of the developing properties in the Oatman District that calls for particular attention is the property under development of the Midway Mining & Milling Company, located in what is known as the Moss Section.

The Midway is developing a group of fourteen claims covering one mile of the strike of the Old Moss mine and which carries the famous Moss vein for some 5000 feet.

Stock of the Midway is listed on various Exchanges and a wide market is now being made for the issue. Development is being pushed forward—and it is my opinion that the shares are one of the most attractive ever put out in the Oatman field.

Market Bulletin No. 30

Issued Tuesday.

Will contain the report of our mining expert who has just returned from a personal inspection of the

COPPER CAMPS
JEROME and RAY

The properties analyzed in this letter will be

ARIZONA RAY	RAY HERCULES
RAY CONSOLIDATED	JEROME VERDE
GREEN MONSTER	JEROME PORTLAND

And many other active companies of these great camps.

(He states these copper camps look like Goldfield during its boom days.)

This Market Letter on the copper situation is of particular interest at this time owing to the fact that copper companies are now applying for listing on this Exchange.

In addition, this letter will contain all the latest obtainable information concerning the active

OATMAN ISSUES

UNITED EASTERN	BIG JIM
TOM REED	IVANHOE
NELLIE	CARTER
OATMAN UNITED	LUCKY BOY
UNITED NORTHERN	IOWA

and

The other active stocks on the local market.

Last week when Market Letter No. 29 was issued, giving our representative's report of his visit to the Oatman district and his inspection of the UNDERGROUND workings of the TOM REED, BIG JIM, NELLIE and other properties in the district, the demand for this Bulletin grew to surprising proportions. An issue of 15,000 copies is all but exhausted.

The requests coming in for No. 30 are even greater in number, so that, AS EACH EDITION OF THIS BULLETIN IS LIMITED, A PROMPT REQUEST IS NECESSARY TO SECURE A COPY.

BULLETIN NO. 31
(to be issued about the 15th)

Will contain our representative's report on the GOODSPRINGS DISTRICT OF NEVADA
Where are located
YELLOW PINE, BOSS MINE
And other noted properties.

These special features are but a part of what this Bulletin contains each week. The general market is carefully reviewed and all general information of importance on active stocks is given in an interesting manner. A tabulation of the sales for the week, the high and low price for the week and year, and a mathematical computation of the general average value of active stocks day by day for the preceding week are also given.

The above description of the Bulletin has been made so that those who desire this form of market information may avail themselves of the opportunity.

AN ACTIVE MARKET

All indications point to a broad and active market for the fall and winter, and those who wish to keep informed may do so by having their name placed on our mailing list.

THESE BULLETINS ARE FREE UPON REQUEST.

This is what we believe enters into and becomes a part of

"MIDWAY"

We have for distribution a pamphlet containing report on above property by the well-known mining engineers, Smith, Emery & Company, and also photographs and other descriptive matter. The officers and directors of this company are composed of some of the strongest financial men in this city. They have taken charge of this property with view of making a mine. With them, associated as manager of the mine, is J. E. Eichelberger, a well-known mining engineer, who is reported to have brought in several producers in the Cripple Creek district. Information given to us indicates that they are going to make an active trader in this stock and that a large advertising campaign will be inaugurated to create a wide market for this issue. We will be glad to execute your order at the market. (Listed on Los Angeles, San Francisco and Salt Lake Stock Exchanges.)

Mojave Annex Tungsten Company

Incorporated for 250,000 Shares.

Only a few thousand more for sale at 22 cents. They are steadily advancing and there is a reason. That reason is: The money from this stock goes immediately into the erection of a 20-ton mill. We have a big, true fissure ledge, and we will start milling ore immediately upon the completion of our mill. We can pay big monthly dividends—1000 shares of stock should bring in at least $100 per month. Think this over—a good mining investment passed up is a wonderful opportunity lost. This is not a visionary mine. Everyone interested are mining men. Take advantage of the present price. When the mill is installed the stock will pass the $5 mark. Don't remember this statement to your regret, that you overlooked your chance. Take 100 shares if you cannot afford more. Read the L. A. Curb Exchange for advance in prices. Call and see us about it or write or wire your reservations.

ORO AMIGO—47½% COPPER

If this mine were in Arizona what a curb sensation it would make! Compare it with the copper skyrockets!

MAGMA COPPER—was once 30c, now $52.00.
UNITED VERDE EXTENSION—was once 32c, now $40.00.

Why is Oro Amigo stock so cheap? Because the Eastern market has not yet heard of the wondrous values of its ores—47½% copper, $25.60 in gold and $70 in platinum to the ton. The Oro Amigo is a neighbor of the Boss Mine and on the same vein system. Boss stock is advancing daily and so is Oro Amigo. There is little floating stock and the supply is getting less. It behooves you to act quickly and not wait until it gets beyond your reach.

MIDWAY MINING

The property of the Midway Mining and Milling Company, comprising 171 acres, is in the well-known Moss section of the

OATMAN

District. It is on the big mineralized belt extending from the old Moss Mine on the east to the Moss Back mine on the west.

$240,000 in Gold From the Moss Mine was taken out of a hole 10 feet in diameter by 10 feet deep. And it is stated that there is 1320 tons of ore, of an average value of $10 per ton, on the dump at the Moss Back mine and approximately 50,000 tons of ore blocked out in the mine.

The Midway is fully equipped and has been in operation for some time. It is on the same mineralized belt as that which has given the Moss and Moss Back mines their big showings of ore.

Mining engineers who have examined the Midway property state that it is traversed by a series of large and continuous veins which, from their mineralogical formation and characteristics, give every indication of continuing to depth.

Values have been secured in the shaft and official assays return from 40c to $6.00 per ton in gold. The operators believe that when the main vein is reached a big ore body will be disclosed.

Midway is listed on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange and the stock seems closely held, the market holding steady around 35c bid, 36 asked at present. Greater activity in this issue, with high prices, is anticipated.

"OATMANS"

NOW

The sensational advance of United Eastern from $4.00 to $5.25 per share has created nationwide interest and buying in the stocks of the district. We advised the purchase of

CARTER

At 9c Oct. 31, and the stock closed Saturday 12⅝c, none offered. An advance of over 33⅓% in four days.

The following telegram has just been received from the Superintendent: "Have struck south ledge full face quartz and on both sides results samples tomorrow." This ledge is referred to in report just issued by President and copy of which can be had at our office.

We believe that Monday will be last day this stock can be bought under 15c and that it will sell for 20c within the week.

Big Jim, Nellie, Lucky Boy, Ivanhoe are splendid buys for quick profits. Will loan 2-3 on present market price and carry on 33⅓% margin.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

According to advices from Santa Ana, the sugar-beet growers identified with the industry of the Southern California Sugar Company of Orange county will receive more than $250,000 for their crop this year. Without doubt 1916 will go down in history as the most profitable year since the beet-sugar industry was established in California. A total of approximately 46,000 tons were produced in this district. At the beginning of the season the price fixed to be paid the growers was $4.50 a ton for beets. In addition two bonuses of 50 cents a ton apiece will be paid the producers, one bonus to be paid on delivery and the other after the close of the season. A premium of 30 cents a ton is also being paid those growers who brought in beets running better than 15 per cent. saccharine matter. The early rains in October did not seriously damage the beets in Orange county and the production was fully up to expectations. It is stated that the sugar plants of the Southern California Sugar Company will close about the 15th of the present month.

A decline has set in in the potato market and from all indications prices will not advance sharply for some time to come, if at all. Both yesterday and the day before the quotation for northern Burbanks was reduced 5 cents a hundred for all grades. California tubers are not moving as fast as they were a few weeks ago and outside demand has fallen off materially. Also the local spuds are now coming on the market in this city in ever increasing quantities and for that reason the available supply of potatoes here should be augmented considerably. Lompocs continue to rule as the fanciest potatoes on the market and dealers are demanding $3 to $3.10 a hundredweight for the extra fine sorts. Idaho Russets are bringing high prices but are not selling as rapidly as usual, as the northern Burbanks are regarded as being just as good by a majority of the local trade.

There was no trading on the Produce Exchange Saturday morning and the session was hurried through in record time. Quotations for eggs and butter remained the same as the day before. According to Secretary Stanley, the receipts comprised 102 cases of eggs, 46,000 pounds of butter, 3550 pounds of cheese, 1700 sacks of potatoes, 645 sacks of onions and 100 sacks of beans.

WHEAT MARKET HAS A SETBACK.

DUE TO THE FALLING OFF IN EXPORT SALES.

Varying News Concerning Crop Conditions in Argentina Causes Alternating Rallies and Depressions—Provisions Finish Irregular from Decline to Rise.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—After being alternately depressed and rallied today by varying news in regard to crop conditions in Argentina, the wheat market finally underwent a setback due largely to a falling off in export sales and to continued arrival of Canadian wheat in Minneapolis. Prices closed weak ⅜ to 2½ net lower, with December at 1.82¾ to 1.82⅞ and May 1.84 to 1.84⅛. Corn lost ⅝ to ⅞ and oats ¼ to ⅜. Provisions finished irregular, ranging from 5 decline to a rise of 15. Corn eased off with wheat.

GOODSPRINGS MINING CO.

Incorporated 1910—under laws of Utah.
Capitalization $100,000.

Located in Yellow Pine District

This company owns the well-known Milford & Addison group of properties, consisting of 8 full claims, which are among the largest shippers in Yellow Pine District, Clark county, Nevada. It is not a new promotion due to present boom in Yellow Pine. The properties originally cost 40% of present capitalization in cash, and are worth many times that amount today. They were among the first properties sought after in the Yellow Pine District by Mr. J. F. Kent, now President of Yellow Pine Mining Co. (which has already paid its stockholders so far the present year $700,000 in cash dividends) and at one time were owned by him. The late A. G. Spalding, well-known sporting goods man, previous to his death, was also heavily interested in the Milford & Addison properties, now owned by the Goodsprings Mining Co. These properties heretofore were operated continuously under royalty leases, which expired August 15th this year. With the high price of lead and zinc today the Goodsprings Mining Company will hereafter mine and ship their ores instead of leasing, and should make handsome profits. Remember, this is not a prospect. It is a proven mine and a big one. Past production is about $175,000 on $100,000 capitalization. Original copy of smelter returns on shipments to date, showing values as high as $4400 per car, with metal prices lower than today, also original assay sheets of Utah Ore Sampling Co., showing 74.3% lead and 42.755% zinc are on file at 229 I. W. Hellman Bldg. Development work consists of tunnels, cross-cuts, drifts, stopes, with incline shaft 150 feet deep, which is now in ore. There are also tons of ore on the dumps, and many, many tons yet to be mined, some of which is high-grade "ribbon zinc." Equipment consists of engine, hoist, blacksmith shop, 500-foot tramway, tracks, ore cars, ore bins, assay outfit, boarding-house and bunk-houses. A good road runs direct to property. Water is available within 1500 feet.

A small amount of Goodsprings Mining stock will be underwritten by a group of local brokers at 20 cents per share. If you are really looking for a real chance to make money during the great wave of mining activity throughout the West, you will take advantage of this opportunity immediately and buy Goodsprings Mining Co. stock at 20 cents per share. With efficient management it should equal the wonderful record of the big Yellow Pine Mine. Orders for the purchase of the stock may be sent to any prominent member of the Los Angeles Stock Exchange or San Francisco Stock Exchange or Leslie C. Monks & Co., 229 I. W. Hellman Bldg., Los Angeles, and Goodsprings, Nev. Prospectus showing views of properties, smelter returns, etc., sent on request.

MIDWAY

Investors Attention:

The Oatman Field offers a great many opportunities.

Have you taken advantage of the numerous attractions that this field presents?

Have you studied the many properties that are operating in the field?

Have you studied the Oatman map. The "lay of the land," so to speak, the reports of mining engineers?

The vein system of Oatman is one that requires study. Surface showings mean a lot but it don't always mean that where there are rich surface showings that there is a big mine in the making.

The United Eastern has $10,000,000 worth of ore in sight yet they had little or no surface showing. The Big Jim had small values on the outcrop yet development proved a big mine. The Tom Reed has little or no surface showing yet in six years they paid better than $5,000,000 in dividends.

The Midway has 5000 feet of the famous Moss vein. They have a shaft down 140 feet and in values ranging from 40c to $6. They have a property under development that promises to be a big mine. They have all the ear marks of a winner.

This Company is developing and from all indications have a big mine in the making.

Investigate the Midway.

PINAL is Different

$20,000 Worth of Machinery Ordered

Main Tunnel 1400 ft..

Two Shifts Working for Over a Year

An Actual Producing Mine

Located on Same Mineral Belt as Famous Magma Mines

Do You Realize that the European War is Rapidly Exhausting the World Supply of Copper?

FOR years to come copper will command a high price—it is a natural result of the war. The man who buys PINAL COPPER stock now is bound to reap a rich harvest.

This is Your Copper Opportunity

Investigate the claims of the Pinal Development Co. Let us explain WHY Pinal stock is the best copper stock offered today.

The Pinal property was located 17 years ago and held by the original owners until recently acquired by Pinal Development Co.

These wonderfully productive mines are located on the richest copper belt in the world and already over 400,000 pounds of practically virgin copper has been taken from the upper workings and is ready for shipment.

Capital, $1,500,000. Value of stock based on one year's development work. One of the few mining stocks issued by permission of and under supervision of California Corporation Commission.

We'd like to have you visit the property. Come in and talk it over.

"ADAMS"

Located in the Black Range District, Oatman, adjoining the NELLIE (which recently is reported to have opened up a large body of commercial ore.) This property is steadily working and the shaft is 330 feet deep. Crosscutting will, so we are informed, be started at 400-foot level. Surface indications point to opening up a good mineralized vein. The stock has steadily advanced during the past three weeks. We have on hand a few pamphlets containing report on property made by the well-known Mining Engineer, C. H. Palmer, Junior, which we will be glad to hand out to those making the request. We will be glad to execute your order at the market.

COPPER RESULTS

The six great Porphyry Mines of America have created a legitimate stock value of over $500,000,000, with a known reserve representing profits back of that value of from $930,000,000 to $2,478,783,000 with less than $25,000,000 expended in primary and preparatory work.

These properties are:
RAY CONSOLIDATED,
Arizona.
INSPIRATION,
Arizona.
MIAMI,
Arizona.
UTAH COPPER,
Utah.
CHINO,
New Mexico.
NEVADA COPPER,
Nevada.

STOP AND CONSIDER that the property of Arizona Ray Copper Co. has been pronounced by eminent engineers, including Frederick E. Young, one of the most noted copper experts of the West, as being in the PROVEN PORPHYRY COPPER ZONE of the Ray Consolidated and Ray Hercules. Remember, the Ray Consolidated has 90,000,000 tons of ore blocked out and is earning and paying enormous dividends to its stockholders—yet only a few years ago this stock was offered for only a few cents per share, now selling on the New York Stock Exchange for $29 per share.

THERE HAS NEVER BEEN SO MUCH QUICK MONEY MADE IN THE WORLD AS IN THE PORPHYRY COPPER DEVELOPMENTS IN THE UNITED STATES.

We believe that ARIZONA RAY offers the same opportunity that Ray Consolidated and the other great Porphyry Copper Mines did in their original development stages.

Wire your orders to us for this stock at 28c per share, following with remittance by mail. Complete Engineers' Report and Map mailed free on request.

CALIFORNIA—LAND OF PAVED HIGHWAYS; THE PARADISE OF MOTORIST.

California to date has spent $18,000,000 for paved highways and on Tuesday proposes to vote $15,000,000 more to complete the job. The voting of the new bonds will insure for California the completion of its already unsurpassed and unapproached network of smooth, far-reaching boulevards even now recognized as the highest example of the road-maker's art.

Not only has this State a wonderful system of highways upon which to travel both for pleasure and profit, but in Southern California special pains have been taken to make travel easy for the motorist as well as for his car. Within the last year the Automobile Club of Southern California has erected more than 14,000 signs on less than that many miles of road so that "he who rides may read."

Not only are the miles of highway a splendid source of pleasure and interest because of their smoothness and the beauty of the country through which they pass but they are also a tremendous source of revenue to Southern California. According to figures compiled last year approximately 30,000 motoring parties visited the State in the course of the twelve months and they spent, it is estimated, in the neighborhood of $20,000,000 during their stay.

WHITTIER WINS FROM POMONA.

FINCH AND MURRAY PENETRATE HUN LINE.

Elliott Makes Place Kick for Sagehens and Saves Them from Goose Egg—Left Side of Line Gives Way Before Long Forward Pass of Sixty-five Yards Works.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CLAREMONT, Nov. 4.—Fighting desperately but hopelessly, the Pomona Huns went down in defeat before the onslaughts of "Bull" Finch and the Whittier Quakers this afternoon by a score of 14 to 3. For the entire first quarter, the Huns were successful in stopping the rushes of the hard-hitting Whittier backfield, but the Quakers were not to be denied. Just as the second quarter started, half-back Murray took the ball on Pomona's 30-yard line, and placed it between the goal posts for the first score of the game. This proved to be sufficient, for though Whittier added another seven points on a 65-yard run by Finch later in the game, the best the Huns could do was to score three points on a kick from placement.

The game was an exhibition of straight football from start to finish. Only when the Huns became desperate in the second half did they resort to open work. The prettiest play of the afternoon resulted when Elliot threw a beautiful forward pass to King for a gain of 65 yards. It was all done in vain though, for the Huns were not able to advance the ball beyond the 10-yard line. Whittier went through the game without completing a successful forward pass.

As usual the deciding feature of the game was the desperate line plunging of "Bull" Finch. Time and again, the Huns held Whittier for three downs, only to have Finch take the ball on the fourth down, for 5 and 10 yards. Murray proved a worthy running mate for the Whittier full-back, while Abbott ran the team in his usual steady manner.

The bright feature of the game from a Pomona standpoint was the wonderful comeback of "Rowdy" Elliott, the star Hun half-back. His punting averaged better than 40 yards for a dozen boots. His place kick in the third quarter was kicked from the side lines on the 30-yard line, after Pomona had recovered the ball on a fumble. His forward pass to King was the longest ever seen in Southern California college football.

The Huns lost because the left side of their line could be penetrated with ease by the Quakers. Whittier soon found that no ground could be gained over Green and Shellenberger or around the ends, so Abbott began to pound the left side of the line. The game was won through these tactics.

ROAD BONDS NEEDED FOR COMPLETION OF HIGHWAYS

Many Main Lines of Travel are Only Partially Paved with Good Roads, and the Completion of These Arteries is Necessary—State Highway Bonds Would Finish up the Work Already Begun.

A SPEAKER, standing on an orange box in the commercial district of Los Angeles, demanded of the surrounding crowd—"What have they done for Southern California—all these good roads we are building?"

"I dunno," a bystander replied, "I don't own a ottermobile!"

He didn't own an automobile but he was working every day in a great warehouse where daily shipments of oranges were sent eastward in carload lots. Next to him stood a man whose daily labor was expended in a bean factory—a place where tons of lima beans were put into cans and sent broadcast over the country.

THE SOURCE.

Those oranges and those beans had come into Los Angeles by rail—and by good roads. Owner of an automobile or not the man who answered the "good roads" speaker could trace, if he had thought, the source of his villihood very directly to the good roads which Southern California has built, is building and needs to build.

This is not an argument for better roads, for there can be no argument when there is only one side to a question. It is concerned more directly with considering Southern California's status in the eyes of the world as the heart of America's good road system.

Just as a man's heart is not located in the divisional center of his body by necessity, so could this corner of the United States be the "heart" of the good roads movement and accomplishment. In other words, why not make Southern California the place always thought of when excellent tours and splendid highways are mentioned?

Beginning in 1900, when the Automobile Club of Southern California conducted its first "good roads run" from Los Angeles to Pomona, the movement for better highways has swept the southern portion of the State—one county after another voting bond issues and providing highways, and then finally the State voting $18,000,000 for the beginning of a system which was planned to be completed later with another issue. This is to be voted on Tuesday, and will call for $15,000,000, to finish the State Highways so well begun.

STANDS ALONE.

Southern California now stands almost alone in its wealth of long tours. This part of the nation is acquiring a reputation for three and four-day trips by motor over paved and macadamized highways, and with the completion of the State roads under the new bond issue these distances will be practically doubled.

An idea of this road wealth is shown by a short survey of what the various countries have to offer the visiting and local automobilists. In San Diego county, for instance, there are 1800 miles of travelable roadway—enough to keep a motorist completely occupied for nine days. Of these, 402 miles were built under a county bond issue of $1,250,000. They were constructed of natural granite material and include mountain and coast routes. There are forty-eight miles of paving in that county.

Kern county and the State Highway Commission have supplied the motorists with 144 miles of paved road, of which sixty miles was built by the State. It has twenty-five miles of macadamized road and eighty-seven miles of graded highway. When the county system is completed there Kern county will have 325 miles of excellent highway. Of this, sixty miles is now under contract. This does not mean that the visitor to Kern county will find only 256 miles of good road, however, as much work has been done there by incorporated cities and private interests.

These roads, mile by mile, are increasing the commercial supremacy of the territories through which they run.

A motorist systematically touring about Riverside county will find more than 200 miles of paved, macadamized and improved dirt road, according to a report made yesterday to the Automobile Club. Of this 100 miles is concrete and 60 miles macadamized.

San Bernardino county will offer the visitor approximately 300 miles of excellent highways, and additional mileage over mountain roads. Of these, 200 miles are concrete built by the county and 25 miles built by the State.

COMPLETE.

Orange and Los Angeles counties have completed their work under the county bond issues, and hundreds of miles of excellent boulevard are the result. Orange county and Los Angeles have worked together, as have all southern counties, in providing long, continuous tours of special interest. Santa Barbara county provides tours which attract many motorists and is planning more good roads, as in Ventura county.

A few years ago the motorist never thought of touring to the Gen. Grant or Sequoia National parks, but with the road development in Tulare and Fresno counties these beauty spots have received large attention from motor tourists during the past year.

Along this line it should be pointed out that one of the most tremendous influences to promote touring in this part of the State has been the activity of the Automobile Club of Southern California in erecting sign posts on new roads as fast as they are completed and in promoting travel over these roads.

BIG WORK.

It was pointed out yesterday by Secretary S. L. Mitchell that the club has erected more than 14,000 signs and posts on more than 12,000 miles of road and in one year has answered 76,229 inquiries for route information. No motorist can con-

POUND U.S.C. TO EXHAUSTION WITH PLUNGES.

Methodists Play Brilliant Defensive Game for One Half, then Give Way—Brooks and Foster Human Battering Rams for Berkeley.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

California yesterday defeated U.S.C., 27 to 0, and was not forced to resort to wooden horses or other subterfuges in order to overcome the Trojans. A steam roller served the purpose very well.

The Bears won on straight, old-fashioned, rough-neck football of the vintage of 1905, with slaughter-house trimmings, and the Trojans retorted in kind as far as they were able to retort.

Both elevens were almost entirely free from guile, and the players appeared to have nothing up their sleeves except their elbows. The only new football displayed was at the beginning of the game, and at the start of the second half, at which time new footballs were thrown into the arena.

The corn-fed athletes from Berkeney were simply too stout for the Trojans and left them a thoroughly-cleaned and renovated football team, with nothing but their uniforms and a few black eyes by which to remember the occasion.

For the first half it was an even thing, the elevens holding each other to an 0-to-0 draw, while in the second quarter the Trojans outplayed the Bruins to the extent that they had the ball in the enemy's territory practically all the time.

MISLEADING.

However, these appearances were misleading, and in the second half California hammered the Trojans into submission, or rather into a state of physical exhaustion, for there can be no question marks placed after the word "gameness" when applied to the U.S.C. athletes.

This state of physical exhaustion became so complete along toward evening that, following a California charge, the limp forms of cardinal and gold-clad athletes could be seen scattered all over the field in the early moonlight in all stages of dilapidation. At times it was like a glimpse of "No Man's Land." Then all of a sudden the dead would arise and, taking their respective positions in the line, dispell the illusion.

For the first two periods California acted rather mild as bears go, and those present were inclined to believe the story published the other day to the effect that the last grizzly in California had been killed. However, a little raw meat between halves began to take effect toward the end of the third quarter, and after Speed Sharpe, a welterweight from Siskiyou county, had with a forty-yard run, carried the ball within striking distance of the U.S.C. goal, California drove it over against a resistance that bent only as a steel girder would bend before some superior force. Montgomery toed the ball between the posts for a goal and one more point.

ADDING UP.

California ran up its remaining twenty points in the last quarter, crossing the line three times against

AN OPPORTUNITY TO VOTE FOR PROGRESS.

BY DON LEE,

Cadillac Distributor of California.

THE voter of California will have an opportunity November 7 of voting for progress or against it.

To extend the elaborate system of good roads now under way, a fifteen-million-dollar bond issue is necessary. From personal observation I believe this amendment authorizing this bond issue will pass by a tremendous majority, but at the same time we must not permit ourselves to grow over-confident, and it is absolutely necessary that every motorist not only vote for the bond issue himself, but must work among his friends and especially among the women voters to make sure they vote the right way.

NEED MORE.

California is one of our most progressive States and is already known the world over for its magnificent system of roads and boulevards. It is true that we have hundreds of miles of well-built road, but there still exists a great deal of territory untouched as yet by our highway system.

The people of California should not consider the building of good roads from a standpoint of pleasure touring. It is true that the new highways that will be built will open up some of the most beautiful districts in the world to the pleasures of the people, but the most good will be done in the development of the country and the back districts of the State.

It is an apparent fact that the most prosperous communities and States have good roads. The prosperity of the country can generally be judged by its roads. This is true in any city, county or State.

It should not be necessary for me to go into detail as to the benefits of good highways to the farmers of our State. The demonstration in this point has already been made and is a proven fact.

INCREASING.

There is one automobile in California to every nine people and the number is constantly increasing. The motor car is being used more and more each day for inter-city transportation, and the building of our roads and their upkeep has in a few years become one of the most important functions of our State government.

The issuing of these bonds will not bring a hardship upon the taxpayers of the State, and the returns will be ten fold to every man and woman.

From the standpoint of the lover of the great outdoors, California is the most wonderful country in the world. Within the boundaries of our State are to be found scenes that surpass in grandeur the most famous of the picturesque European spots.

We have some highways in the High Sierras, but not one-fiftieth of what we should have. Hidden mid the hills are the most beautiful of lakes; rushing mountain streams provide fishing in all sections of the State, and with the improvement of our roads into the mountains, thousands who know little of what a real vacation is, will be able to enjoy the camp life that is unequaled any place in the world.

Vote for the bond issue; it means prosperity for the State, health and happiness for our people and will proclaim again to the world, "California leads."

Romantic Flavor.

NOVA SCOTIA VISITED ON CROSS-COUNTRY JOURNEY.

"FROM California to Maine" has been the slogan of more than one automobile party, but it remained for the little Ford to add the romantic flavor of being the first car ever to make the trip from California to Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, and return.

A few afternoons ago Mr. and Mrs. M. Bird "chug-chugged" up Broadway on the last lap of the 10,398-mile journey, having left Los Angeles on June 5. It took just six weeks to make the trip to Cape Breton and the same amount of time for the return trip.

They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Stein of Oakland.

Mr. Bird has been in the hotel business all his life, and vowed that he would not stop in a hotel until his return. He had his car equipped with a large tent, which would cover the machine on one side, the other side being used for sleeping quarters; four folding army cots, a folding table, and a collapsible stove.

Whenever night overtook them they would hunt the nearest country schoolhouse, wood and water most always being available, and make camp in the school yard—provisions having been purchased in the different cities and towns through which they passed.

The route followed was by way of the National Old Trails as far as St. Louis, Mo. From that city they went to Enfield, Ill., and then traveled through Southern Indiana and Kentucky, where they encountered roads that were simply fierce. From Shelbyville, Ky., their route went through the center of Ohio and on to New York State. Then they went to Massachusetts, passing through the Berkshire hills to Boston. Following up the Atlantic Coast they entered Canada at St. Stephen, New Brunswick, arriving at North River Bridge July 29. After leaving Bath, Me., it rained almost continuously and in New Brunswick they traveled over seventy-five miles of road that was nothing but mud and slush coming almost to the hubs of the wheels. A hundred miles from their destination they broke a couple of springs and had to make the rest of the trip on low, which was not an altogether pleasant experience.

After leaving Turo they had no chart to go by and, losing the road, they traveled sixty-five miles out of their way. At the Straits of Causo Mr. Bird was compelled to run his car down a steep bank and onto a large, flat-bottomed rowboat, which was towed across by a sail boat. The water was very rough and at times it seemed as though the boat would capsize.

Automobiles are a rare sight at Cape Breton and parts of Nova Scotia, and lots of horses were terribly frightened. During their stay at North River the neighbors had what is known as a "milling frolic" in their honor, and over 300 attended. A sumptuous repast was served.

On the return trip they went to New York City, from which place the Lincoln highway was traversed as far as Salt Lake City. In crossing the Rocky Mountains after leaving Laramie, Wyo., they encountered a blinding snowstorm, through which they drove all day. At Ogden the Steins had cold feet on account of the severity of the weather and took the train from there, leaving the Birds to make the balance of the trip alone. After two weeks' travel over the Midland Trail, through rain and snow, mud and slush, they arrived here.

In speaking of the trip Mr. Bird said that their greatest trouble was from dirty gasoline and broken springs on account of the heavy load. He spent only $53.87 for repairs and new parts, including the installing of two new rear wheel, the old ones having dried up in crossing the desert, and $14 for new springs. In covering 10,398 miles, 503 gallons of gasoline were used, averaging 20.6 miles to the gallon. The cost of this was $135.22, an average of 26.7 cents per gallon. It was interesting to note the prices paid in different cities. The cheapest gas purchased was at Council Bluffs, Neb., where only 16 cents was charged, while in Cape Breton the precious liquid was selling for 45 cents per gallon. It was 35 cents and 40 cents all through Nevada and Arizona. Twenty-one gallons of oil were consumed during the journey. The tire expense amounted to $146.71, and $15.24 was spent in crossing ferries and paying tolls.

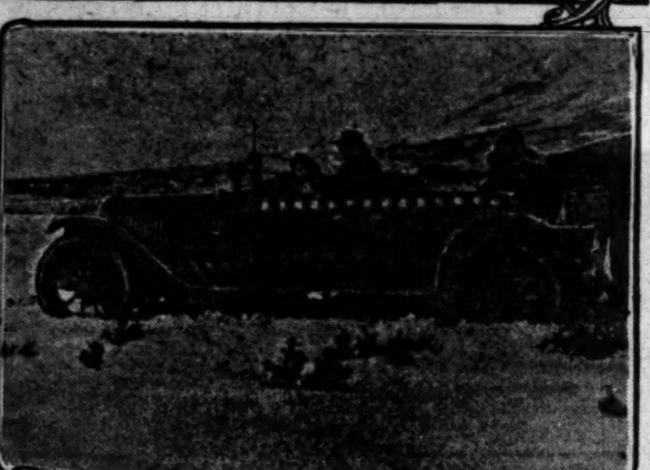
Mr. Bird had used the car around the streets of Los Angeles for two years before starting on his long trip, and with a few minor repairs it will be good for many another mile.

At St. Louis, Mo., the ladies went shopping and during their absence so great was the crowd that gathered around the car that the police were compelled to break it up.

AMERICAN DEALERS SUPPLY 'EM ALL.

With all the countries in Europe which are not at war business is generally in excellent shape, and several neutral countries are literally rolling in wealth. With this condition it is not surprising that there is an unprecedented demand for automobiles and accessories.

In filling this demand the United States is the greatest possible source of supply because scarcely one of the neutral countries can be classed as a manufacturing country. Spain has one or two factories and there are one or two in the Scandinavian countries.



Which do you prefer?

Above is shown a sample of Southern California's touring possibilities in the winter, while below are given a few winter scenes in other States. It certainly proves that when it comes to winter touring, Southern California is in a separate and distinct class. The pictures were taken on a trip with the famous Packard "Cactus Kate." Above is one of latest model Packard twin sixes on Wilshire boulevard.

Interesting.

DECIDED ADVANCES IN STEAM MOTOR VEHICLES.

A PAPER on "Steam Motor Vehicles" was read by Abner Doble of the General Engineering Company of Detroit before the Cleveland section of the Society of Automobile Engineers and proved doubly interesting due to the fact that this was the first paper on steam read before the S.A.E. in some time.

Mr. Doble's paper covered in brief the period of nine years spent by him in overcoming the objections formerly held against steam cars.

Mr. Doble's paper read in part as follows: "One great disadvantage that steam cars labored under, was insufficient mileage on the amount of water, which could be conveniently carried.

"We found that no one apparently had considered using a honeycombed radiator, which would in the same size give approximately six times as much radiating surface.

"By using such a radiator in conjunction with a fire tube boiler in 1913, we ran our car 1000 to 1500 miles on one supply of twenty-four gallons of water. The boiler, in its operation, was entirely oblivious to the fact that all of the oil used by the engine cylinder was pumped into it.

"By using regular gasoline engine cylinder oil for the lubrication of those parts in contact with the steam, we were able to make a steam generating and condensing system of this kind practical. After it is introduced it rapidly goes into an emulsion with the water, due to the violent agitation and intimate contact. No scale will stick to a surface coated with oil, so that the interior of the boiler is absolutely protected from scale or rust.

"The steam generator, which has been worked out, is a flash generator in theory, and yet has the appearance of a water-tube boiler and carries a water-level in the evaporating zone.

"This construction, besides being absolutely without danger of explosion, is cheap to manufacture.

"Perhaps the greatest disadvantage of steam cars was that known as 'firing-up,' or getting the burner started.

"After a fairly discouraging series of experiments, we discovered that kerosene could be ignited by an electric spark with absolute certainty and regularity, if certain conditions were observed.

"The engine of a steam vehicle should stand up under many years of hard service. Steam-car designers, however, have had a disposition to ignore the maximum conditions and the operation by inexperienced drivers, and to feel more or less secure with construction hardly stout enough for normal service.

"It has proved to be a relatively simple matter to provide ample dimensions to the working parts so that the mechanism is safe for continued operation under maximum conditions of load.

"Gearing the engine direct to the axle with a 47 to 49 ratio, enough torque can be produced to slip the driving wheels on dry ground. The resultant low engine speed makes elaborate lubrication systems superfluous.

Road Bonds.

scientiously continue to use club signs and club benefits without joining the organization and thus help with its activities.

But more vital than anything else at this time is the imperative need of voting $15,000,000 in road bonds for the completion of the state highway system on Tuesday. Any motorist who has toured from Los Angeles to San Diego over the completed coast route, easing along over a road as smooth as velvet, can understand why California must provide funds to finish up other long routes which would be as splendid.

The State has built 933 miles of concrete highway under the original bond issue of $18,000,000—it has built 129 miles of wonderful macadam and 33 miles of asphalt, while there have been graded 395 additional miles of highway, making a grand total of 1490 miles.

NEED THE BONDS.

Every voter who is interested in the welfare of Southern California should carefully consider the issue before entering the polls. Outside of the fact that the voting of the bonds does not mean any additional taxation for the people, there is the overwhelming effect the successful passage of the bonds would have upon the various sections of this part of the State in particular.

The funds provided would, in the first place, complete the great highway trunk lines known as the coast and inland routes between San Diego and San Francisco and northward. The boon this is, not only to resident motorists, but to the thousands of visitors as well, is easily recognized by any who have cause to travel between these points.

Furthermore, their completion will give a cause to those who would otherwise stay at home, and travel means a first aid to prosperity. According to Automobile Club figures, approximately 30,000 motoring parties visited this part of the State last year, spending in the neighborhood of $20,000,000.

It is a known fact that Florida and many other States are determinedly providing miles and miles of good roads to attract the great tourist travel of the nation. Southern California, situated as it is at the southwesternmost corner of the United States can ill afford to overlook an opportunity to provide completed paved highways. The completion of these long trunk lines would mean many more thousand visitors here every year, and it would encourage the completion of a great transcontinental route.

COMMERCIAL VALUE.

A trip through the orange groves to Riverside or through the bean fields in the vicinity of Irvine hastily shows what the commercial value of good roads may mean.

With the passing of the bonds the paved highway leading from the Imperial Valley through rich territory to Los Angeles will be built. The trunk lines which have been started will be finished and every county in Southern California will benefit.

Officials and directors of the Automobile Club have given of their time and energy in pushing a campaign of education to bring to the attention of the public the need for the passing of the bonds. Other large and public-spirited organizations have also entered the field unselfishly to help increase the prosperity of this part of the State. It will remain with the voters at the polls day after tomorrow to prove whether or not these large-spirited efforts have been in vain.

RAW GASOLINE IS THE REAL STUFF.

Raw gasoline vapor is better for starting when the manifold and cylinders are cold than a mixture of gasoline and air. That is the function of the choker. Of course, a certain amount of air must enter the cylinder, even with the choker closed, because the gasoline will not burn without oxygen and the oxygen comes from the air. The reason a rich mixture is superior to a lean one for cold weather starting is because there is more gasoline in the mixture; with an even temperature the condensation will be constant, and so there is a greater surplus of gas that will not condense. Furthermore, with the choker applied, there is a greater suction concentrated on the gasoline and it is this increased suction that draws the vapor from the liquid in greater quantities.

For the same reason it is an assistance to cold weather starting to prime the motor. The gasoline is then right on top of the piston where the first bit of vapor will be fired by the plug.

INITIAL AUTO SHOW TO OPEN.

Under the auspices of Santa Monica Bay automobile dealers the first auto show of the beach district will open next Saturday evening at the Ocean Park Dome auditorium and continue until the evening of November 14, two days before the Vanderbilt race at Santa Monica.

The dealers have chosen these dates, just prior to the races, as the most desirable time for the show, when the minds of beach people especially are concerned with automobiles. Some thirty different makes will be on exhibition on the main floor, while the basement will be devoted to accessories. All the automobiles to be entered are from the local dealers' showrooms.

The famous Studebaker golden chassis will in all probability be on exhibition at the beach show, according to the bay district Studebaker dealer, G. G. Bundy.

All cars are to be placed in the Dome November 10, giving that day and the morning and afternoon of Announcing

The Complete Line of Jeffery
Motor Trucks

This new and complete Jeffery Line enables us to solve every haulage problem.

Come in now! Let us show you these trucks—what they are—what they can do. We have a lot of claims to make for them—and we stand ready to demonstrate every claim by actual test.

THE JEFFERY RAPID-SERVICE WAGON, a fast-going, easy-riding, economical delivery wagon—remarkably quick on the get-away—electric starting and lighting — high tension magneto ignition—35 x 4½ inch tires.

Chassis—including driver's seat, fore doors, hood and wind shield, equipment complete—$965 f. o. b. Kenosha.

THE JEFFERY ALL-PURPOSE TRUCK—By using this truck you get minimum gasoline cost, because the duplex governor—the "automatic chauffeur"—governs the supply of fuel necessary for any speed below fourteen miles. The driver has nothing to do but keep the accelerator way down—the duplex governor does the rest. If hills, mud or sand or snow are encountered the duplex governor is on the job with just enough fuel to give the required power. Internal gear drive. Odometer, duplex speed governor and over-sized pneumatic front tires.

Chassis—complete with electric starting and lighting, driver's seat, fore doors, wind shield, etc.—$1465 f. o. b. Kenosha.

THE JEFFERY QUAD, no one today needs an introduction to the Jeffery Quad. Built first as a military truck for the United States army—"to go anywhere a four-mule team could go"—its amazing ability to solve unusual haulage problems quickly brought it to the attention of business men who were looking for better methods of transportation.

The Quad easily negotiates mud, sand, snow and hills that are impassable to rear-drive trucks. 3500 have been built and put into service in two years. The new model is now ready. Two-ton capacity. Chassis price—$2850. F. O. B. Kenosha.

Auto Club Maps Help Tourists See the Boulevards.

Activity at the Auto Club.

of the experts at the club grinding out the maps and getting 'em y to grind out. It is shown by a report of Secretary S. L. Mitchell Automobile Club of Southern California that this section of the States is more completely "mapped for motorists" than any section of the country of equal size. Through the efforts of the mobile Club practically every road in the southern part of the is mapped, and the club is continuing to supply additional maps w roads as rapidly as the roads are being completed. Last year Automobile Club distributed more than 380,000 road maps showing ways throughout Southern California and including the principal of the United States. All road maps now being completed at club are also being printed on the machines at headquarters. It pected that at the completion of the fiscal year more than 400,000 will have been distributed to visitors and club members and . These maps not only show accurately the routes of travel, also indicate the location of garages, hotels and gasoline stations de of cities. Motorists who have come into Southern California declared that the maps of the Automobile Club of Southern Cali are the most complete and accurate of any issued by any motor organization and they are something for this part of the State to proud of.

Proper Spirit.

CAMPAIGN IS A BIG SUCCESS.

Members Line up from All Over the South.

Eastern Motorists Show Decided Interest in Club.

New Auto Club Branches to be Started Soon.

Returns are in for the first twenty days of the big membership campaign of the Automobile Club of Southern California and all records for membership growth have been broken.

Apparently, never before have motorists been so awakened to the need of supporting an organization which fundamently represents the best interests of all motorists.

BANNER MONTH.

According to a statement issued yesterday by Secretary S. L. Mitchell, the month of October is a banner month in the history of the club. So successful has been the start of the campaign that many plans for the future now stand a much better chance of being carried out than they did before the campaign began.

One of the features of the gain in membership is the interest being taken by communities outside of Los Angeles, Riverside, San Bernardino and Ventura counties in particular adding scores of new members to the club roll. It is now assured that branch offices will be established in these counties since the interest in club work there warrants it.

President Fred L. Baker of the club yesterday stated that a glance at the membership files of the organization shows the names of hundreds of eastern motorists, who, through gratitude to the club for its work in sign-posting the roads and giving touring information, have taken out memberships so that their dues might go to help in the work which remains to be done.

LIFE MEMBERSHIPS.

Many prominent eastern visitors have taken out life memberships and regularly send in the amount of the dues every six months from their eastern homes. When they come to California with their cars they say it is like coming home to step into the Automobile Club headquarters or any branch office and receive maps and road information completely up-to-date.

"If the club's work were all done, if there were no more roads to sign, no more maps to provide, no more stolen automobiles to recover or thieves to catch, if there were no more roads to build and no more laws to make—then there would be no more need for the club—but there is so much more work to do of this kind that the organization must grow in membership so that it can grow in activity," said Mr. Baker yesterday.

"The club has erected more than 14,000 signs and posts on more than 12,000 miles of highway, but its work is really only well under way in this activity. If it were all finished then the members and other motorists could not possibly derive any benefit from belonging to such an organization.

INCREASED SERVICE.

"But the directors feel that the club is really only in its infancy so far as increased service is concerned, and every motorist who is a member realizes the type of service being given by the various departments.

"But there should be even more departments and there can be more service with the growth of the membership roll. There must be a public conscience among the motorists who use the signs and then are content to let loyal club members pay out of their pockets for their erection.

"It is this public conscience which the club is trying to awaken through the medium of the present membership campaign, and from the October results it looks as though it would succeed."

Every automobile owner who uses the roads of Southern California and thus is bound to use club signs can do himself and all of this part of the State a valuable service by seeking membership in the club.

SALESMANSHIP CLUB IS A BIG SUCCESS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The New York Salesmanship Club, which is an outgrowth of the World's Salesmanship Congress, held in Detroit in July, has been formed and held its initial meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria with about 2000 men present.

The club is one of a number being formed throughout the United States for the "betterment of business through the betterment of salesmanship." Its work will include meetings over two weeks at which practical sales workers will speak and answer questions in an open forum. The plan is similar to that worked out by the Detroit club, which fathered the congress last summer. It is proposed to have a permanent home for the club as soon as funds are available.

The membership list is growing rapidly. Life sustaining memberships may be purchased now by paying $250. The other memberships are: Sustaining, $50 a year for five years; associate, $10 a year until December 31 and $20 a year thereafter.

Initiation will be $10 after the membership list begins to assume proportions.

This makes it possible for the individual salesman to get in now for $10 and enjoy a year of membership; thereafter it will cost him $20 a year.

MOBILITY TEST IS BIG SUCCESS.

In a test of the mobility of motor cars, made recently on the border, 128 motor trucks transported the First and Second Kansas regiments, which had been stationed at Eagle Pass, to San Antonio in thirty-two hours' running time. It is 200 miles from Eagle Pass to San Antonio, and to march the men that distance would have required two weeks, while cavalry would have taken one week.

INSPECTION IS BADLY NEEDED.

That every motor car owner be compelled to submit his car at regular intervals to a duly appointed county inspector of automobile brakes and steering gears is a safety first measure advocated by Teddy Tetzlaff, the racing driver. As part owner in active superintendence of the White Garage Repair Shop, Tetzlaff says he has had more than sufficient wreck-rebuilding experience to convince him that a faulty condition of those two mechanical units is responsible for the major portion of the appalling number o fautomobile accidents which occur each week.

"Fewer wrecks," he insists, "are due to inexpert or careless driving than are the result of insufficient mechanical knowledge or indifference to the known defective state of some part of the mechanism. Consider how often you've heard the drivers of cars in which you were riding say, 'That rattle? I don't know; guess it's one of the steering rods,' or 'I've got to drive slowly around here. My brakes haven't been working very well lately.' It's not long after you hear one of those speeches before the repair shop gets a telephone message at any time of the night or day to send a service car out to jack up and skid a wreck in to the shop for some front-end repairing and replacing. The repairing of the car would seem to be expensive enough, without mentioning, in some cases, the hospital and morgue bills, to cause drivers to be sure that their brakes and steering mechanisms are in perfect order—but it isn't.

"I am thoroughly convinced that a compulsory inspection of the steering parts and brakes of all cars after every 1000 miles would very materially reduce the number of automobile accidents."

SCINTILLATORS TO SHINE ONCE MORE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO BREAU OF THE TIMES, Nov. 3.—The blaze of light which made the San Francisco exposition of 1915 the most beautiful by night that the world ever has seen, will be repeated this winter when the Pacific Automobile Show opens its doors. During the entire ten days from February 10 to February 18, while the latest models of motor cars are being shown, the great bank of scintillators that lighted the exposition will flash across the night sky from civic center, Manager G. A. Wahlgreen announced last week.

ectric car and automobile is forcing the tiny and artistic to the wall in Japan. Not long ago Tokio was filled rikisha runners. Wealthy boasted of their kuruma these fast runners, tall , are now scarcely met the Japanese gentleman afford neither carriage nor car, has a bright-looking kuong on glittering bicycle with huge pneumatic tires. With the reduction of the number, the price of the public rikisha has steadily increased until it has almost become a luxury for the masses of the people. The two-passenger kuruma which used to figure in elopements and double suicides has entirely disappeared.

WIRE WHEELS ARE GROWING POPULAR.

At present it is estimated that about 55,000 new cars have been equipped with wire wheels in 1916 and the manufacturers expect that fully 200,000 will use them in 1917.

A Remarkable Demonstration
STATISTICS compiled by the Automobile Club of America show that 97% of the daily tours of gas cars average 68 miles. A Beardsley Electric will travel nearly double this distance on a single charge if properly handled.
This has been conclusively and definitely proven by repeated tests. During Automobile Show Week, a regular stock model Beardsley Electric with Hobbs Battery equipment was driven every day for the six consecutive days, on six charges, averaging over 125 miles per day. Six disinterested observers, appointed by Show Director Conwell, vouch for the performance.
We guarantee to show any purchaser of one of these same models a duplicate of this performance, before paying for the car.
Our service records show the average maintenance cost on 20 Beardsley Electrics to be $16.15 per month. We suggest that you check up the maintenance cost of your gas car—just for comparison.
We will be glad to demonstrate a Beardsley to you.

Before You Buy Any Car You Need to Know:

(1) How much the car is going to cost you after you have paid its purchase price.

A Maxwell recently ran 45.6 miles on a single measured gallon of gasoline between Oakland and San Jose. Mr. Reed, editor of the San Fernando Democrat, drove 76 miles on two gallons last week. Other figures averaging more than 35 miles per gallon are constantly being made. The extremely light weight of the Maxwell and the wonderfully efficient Maxwell motor make for an economy of gasoline, oil and tires not known with other cars.

(2) Whether the car comes complete, or will you have to buy additional equipment at once?

The Maxwell comes ready for the road—with many additional items of equipment not found on other cars of the Maxwell price. Electric starter, electric lights, speedometer, high-tension magneto, dash light, gasoline gauge, storage battery, demountable rims, rain-tight windshield, one-man mohair top and a score of other "extras" are a part of the regular Maxwell equipment. At $595 the Maxwell is the lowest priced car with complete equipment it is possible to buy.

(3) The factory's stability. Will you soon have an "orphan" on your hands?

The three immense Maxwell factories located at Detroit, Dayton and Newcastle constitute one of the largest manufacturing institutions the world has ever known! Since the company was founded each year has seen the output of these great factories doubled, until now more than five hundred complete Maxwell automobiles are manufactured every working day. Financially the company is without a peer—securely founded upon the rocks of integrity and honest dealing and enjoying a good will which reaches to the ends of the earth.

(4) How much will the car endure? What is under the hood?

The Maxwell holds the official title of "World's Champion Endurance Car." It won this recognition by recently covering 22,022 miles without a motor stop, establishing a world's non-stop record. This run was made over Los Angeles county roads, and the car was stopped only long enough to take on supplies, the engine running continuously for 44 days and nights. Then this same car, with the same motor, was driven as a trail blazer from Mexico to Canada, and is about to start on an 18,000-mile tour of the U. S.—still in good running condition! This was an absolutely stock car taken from our salesroom—the exact duplicate of the cars we are delivering every day. No car with a poorly constructed motor could make such a record—and the non-stop record is but one of many records held by the Maxwell.

(5) Has the car reserve power? Hill climbing ability? Is it good looking? Is it comfortable?

The Maxwell answers all these requirements. It glides over roads good and bad—up hills, down grades, swiftly, silently, surely under perfect control every moment. The car is stylish, smart looking and the new spring construction, deep cushions and longer, wider seats make it one of the easiest riding cars to be found.

Finally, when it comes to actual dollar for dollar value there has never been a better buy known in the automobile market than the Maxwell at $595 f. o. b. factory. Let us take you for a demonstration ride today—Phone Home 10845 or Main 5470.

NEW CAR FINDS OLD FRIENDS HERE.

"Previous to the auto show it was supposed that the Velie was not very well known in this part of the country, having never had an efficient representation here, but facts which show that the reputation enjoyed by the Velie in the Central States has filtered to this section and that there are already a great number of Velie boosters and enthusiasts here, were brought out in talking with the visitors to our exhibit," said Harry A. Lord of the Lord Motor Car Company yesterday.

"Indeed, I was surprised to find out how much the people of Los Angeles know about the Velie's reputation for performance. Many of them told me of the great number of Velie cars to be seen on the roads wherever one may travel in the Central West.

"We think we made the record for quick sales at the show when a Velie roadster was sold without demonstration, in just seven minutes, to Mary J. Coulter. Velie sales have far exceeded our most sanguine hopes. We were not able to display the handsome four-passenger cloverleaf roadster during the first days of the show as we sold all the cars of that model we had planned to exhibit, and had to wait for a further shipment to arrive from the Velie factory."

Word was received from the Velie factories yesterday that ground had been broken for several new buildings to take care of the doubled production of Velie pleasure cars planned for next year.

How to Do It.

CARBURETOR ADJUSTMENT IS EASILY REGULATED.

THE new Kingston carburetor seems to have been discarded by the Ford factory, for the latest Fords on the market are equipped with the Holly carburetor. Simplicity of construction is the feature of both makes, but in the Holly, it is to be noted in a more accentuated degree.

The disc has been done away with and in its place is a small wire lever that governs the mixture. With the disc in use it was necessary to mark a point on its face so the control could be returned to its original position. With the wire lever, a fair amount of practice makes it possible to make any adjustment with almost perfect precision.

The discarding of the disc is undoubtedly due to economy in manufacture, as well as convenience, for the latest contrivance can be made at a greatly reduced cost.

Like the New Kingston, the Holly has but one adjustment, and that is at the dash. A Ford carburetor expert is authority for the statement, that if more care was given to this adjustment after the engine had been warmed up, that it would not be a difficult matter to get twenty-five miles on a gallon of gasoline instead of twenty-two miles. Many drivers, he said, are satisfied to let the adjustment of fifty-fifty made in the morning, remain at that point during the day, rather than go to the trouble of making the change. This condition, he declares, is noticeable with beginners, who fear they may get the carburetor out of adjustment through "monkeying" with it.

ANTIDOTE FOR BAD TAR SPOTS.

With the advent of tar-covered country roads, many motorists are encountering difficulty in removing the spots of tar which fly onto the car body. The tar may be easily removed by applying the following antidote:

First, if the car is dusty, hose it done wherever the tar is sticking, preferably with luke-warm water. Dry off with a chamois by dabbing, making no attempt to pass the leather back and forth across the body surface. Having done this take a piece of soft material, such as the best woolen waste or linen, and soak it with vaseline or unsalted butter. Rub the tar splashes until they disappear. It will be found necessary to change the rag frequently, and do not hesitate to use plenty of grease.

Then wipe off all superfluous grease, and wash the car down with luke-warm water and a good body soap. On no account should you leave the car standing with the spots on longer than absolutely necessary. They should be removed immediately upon your return home. If allowed to set the tar will permanently mark the varnish.

TRACTOR INVENTOR IS AHEAD OF TIME.

The caterpillar motor that is creating such a stir in the war world was invented twenty-five years ago by Bijah Taylor, an eccentric character of Mason City, Ill. He conceived the idea, but his models failed to attract capital and he died in poverty. The truck invented by Taylor was operated by a steam turbine, invented by himself. The model carried its own track, very much like the successful machines of today. Taylor's dream soon faded. He believed that his invention would revolutionize railway transportation, doing away with ties and tracks. The engine was planned to operate upon city and country roads, pulling a train of wagons. Taylor simply was ahead of the times, anticipating the needs of the public by twenty years.

EASTERN STARS ARE EN ROUTE.

and Aitken Expected Here Tomorrow Morning.

Monica Entry List Grows with Decided Speed.

Promise to be Greatest Ever Staged Anywhere.

Dario Resta, "Happy" Aitken, Eddie Rickenbacher, Wilcox, Ralph Mulford and more of the eastern speed are on their way to Los An the Santa Monica events, the Cup and International Prize events to be held on ber 16 and 18 and the Ascot takes to be held on Thanks Day, promise to be the great racing events ever held in With the five above named forming the vanguard it is that many more of the Class drivers will make their the Coast for the season. sixteen entries have been for the cup classics on the Monica course and it is esti that before entries close on of this month that at least drivers will be signed for the The races in Southern Cali will form the last lap in the the titular honors conferred American Automobile Asso and the $13,500 prize money Bosch and Goodrich companies. It was predicted several months ago that the Santa Monica and Ascot events would be the deciding events in the contest for the title of "Champion Driver" and this prediction is proving correct.

The entries for the Santa Monica classics include:

De Lage, Barney Oldfield.
Mercer, driver unnamed.
Mercer, Glover Ruckstall.
Mercer, Eddie Pullen.
Mercer, Joe Thomas.
Mercer driver unnamed.
Stutz, Earl Cooper.
Hudson super-six, Clyde Roads.
Car unnamed, Cliff Durant.
Hartman Special, Rea Lentz.
Hercules, Emil Agraz.
Duesenberg, M. J. Moosie.
Chowchilla Special, William Bolden.
Price Special, S. L. Price.
Duesenberg, Eddie Rickenbacher.
Duesenberg, William Weightman.

The course at Santa Monica is nearly completed and Commissioner of Public Works Carter states that it will be faster than ever before. Work on the grandstand commenced last Monday morning and this will be completed before first practice starts next Thursday.

That the interest in the two big events is great is evidenced by the reservations for grandstand seats which are pouring into the office of the race committee at the beach city. Already over 800 seats have been reserved for race fans who will come from as far north as Seattle and Tacoma. A special train will be run from Tacoma, picking up special cars at Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Fresno and Bakersfield. The Oakland Chamber of Commerce through Al G. Waddell, American Automobile Association representative, has reserved 500 seats in the grandstand. Maj. Harmon D. Ryus has asked that 150 seats be set aside for San Francisco while many smaller reservations have been made from the San Joaquin Valley. Mayor Davies of Oakland will act as manager of Cliff Durant's pit at the classics according to advices.

MILLIONAIRE DRIVER TO MAKE BID FOR FAME.

WITH a flock of racing drivers due here from the East today and tomorrow, and such as Pullen, Oldfield, Cooper, and others already on the King Speed is due to "hog" spotlight for the rest of this

The well-known K. S. will start activities at Ascot Speedway to when the preparedness ad in the speed colony will be up their mounts for the Cup and Grand Prix at Santa Monica next week. the beach course is opened practice the pilots will be al to use the big concrete course hearts' content, and action be in order every morning afternoon.

fans hailed with delight announcement that Eddie Rick would be an assured start the local events, and that millionaire patron, William man III, also would enter speed game as an active participant and drive one of his own Duesenbergs.

Just because a man has money is no reason why he can't drive. Take the case of David Bruce-Brown, or of Frank Croker, or Spencer Wishart, all killed in their quest for glory in a flying racing machine. Or come nearer home and look at Caleb Bragg, who gave up the strenuous track grind for the more peaceful sport of aviation.

Any one of these ranked the equal of any professional in the game. They all had nerve and skill, and the fact that they had unlimited wealth did not deter a single one from getting right down in the pit with the lowliest of mechanics and working in the grease to adjust any motor wrong.

So William Weightman III of West Virginia may be another Bruce or another Spencer or another Caleb. He will be given his test at Santa Monica and Ascot—and the test will be a severe one. Never were such formidable fields of champions lined up in the history of western racing. If William the Third makes any kind of a showing he can be classed with William the Conqueror.

Valuable.

EFFICIENT SCORE-BOARDS TO KEEP TAB ON RACES.

NEVER before in the history of automobile racing has so elaborate, unique and, at the same time, efficient plan of disseminating race news and of keeping in close touch with every driver on the course been devised, as that which will be in operation during the Vanderbilt and Grand Prize races, to be held on November 16 and November 18 on the world famous Santa Monica course.

The particular feature of the race originated by, and will be conducted and operated by the service department of the Ventura Refining Company, makers of Ventura gasoline, which has carried many famous racers to victory since its advent on the market.

The main thing about this news announcing feature of the race, which the general public is interested in, is that Mr. General Public will get more for his admission money to these two Santa Monica events than he ever has received before. The news services means that every spectator around the course will know who is leading the race every lap and all other details that are of interest to the race fan's mind. In previous years, only those spectators who sat in the grand stand opposite the scoreboard and the judges stand knew what was going on. The vast majority of the spectators, scattered in autos around the eight-mile course knew nothing of the vital happenings of the races that they attended. Thousands drove home without knowing who won the races they had witnessed.

And now comes a system of news service to dispel this mantle of ignorance that enveloped former events on the famous course.

Small "announcing stands will be built at the most advantageous points around the course. These stands will serve a two-fold purpose—to procure information about the race and at once to give it to the throngs around the course.

Each announcing stand will be connected by telephone with the private exchange next to the judges' stand and on each announcing stand will be stationed a telephone operator and an "announcer" with a huge megaphone in hand, to disseminate the race news as fast as it is received.

Every inch of the race course will be watched by operators on one or more of the announcing stands, so that every incident of the races will be observed and related to the spectators all about the course as soon as it happens.

As a part of the news service feature, the mammoth scoreboard, towering far above the huge palms that line Ocean avenue opposite the grand stand, will be operated at lightning speed by a corps of expert scorers. This scoreboard will show the leading drivers and every important detail of the races from start to finish. The scoreboard information will be supplemented also by the Ventura "announcing" service for the big grand stand.

TRACTORS KILL ONE MORE OCCUPATION.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) Nov. 1.—A farm correspondent of a local paper writes from Delphos, Kan., in the Solomon River Valley, that the very general use of tractors in that vicinity is making a difference with the future of the youths of the community. Many had planned to become veterinarians, but the last two years they have seen the "hoss doctor" business drop and they are taking up mechanics.

The same day brings news from Chicago that a course has been established in the High School there to teach the pupils the proper control of traffic and an appreciation of traffic laws and requirements. Thus it would seem that Old Dobbin soon will be without his family physician.

KEROSENE LOOKS LIKE A SOLUTION.

Independent oil men are arranging to appoint in each large city a committee to convert existing motors into kerosene cars and may make them the repair shop for the change. This is the outcome of a resolution adopted by the Independent Oil Men's Association during its convention in Chicago recently, and the result of a report of a committee appointed last April known as the Gasoline Relief Committee and consisting of Prof. Lucke, head of the engineering department of Columbia University, Prof. Metzler of the same institution, and M. J. Byrne, Waterbury, Ct.

This committee came out very strongly on kerosene as the most favorable present solution, stating that it was its opinion kerosene offers the most hopeful fuel supply for motor use. It has examined a large number of devices and has recommended two specifically. One is the invention of John Good, and the other a device owned by the Holley Bros. Company of Detroit.

The convention, which is the eighth annual, was the best the oilmen have had, there being over 800 present and papers of great interest to motorists were presented. Excerpts from these papers will appear in the next issue of Motor Age.

What can you make in 'er, Johnny?

Here's the old boat that "raised" Johnny Aitken when he was an infant at the motor-car racing game. In spite of the fact that it has lost some of its old-time speed and pep, Aitken still keeps the old buggy as a reminder of the early days.

Well, Well!

FAMOUS "CRADLE" STILL MANAGES TO RAMBLE.

JOHNNY AITKEN, the famous race driver and auto designer, had a 1904-model National for a "cradle." Not one in which he was lulled to sleep when an infant in years, but the one that "raised" him when an infant at the motor-car racing game. Today he is a full-grown motor-racing giant, with good chances of being the champion of this season's speedway contests, due to his remarkable winning recently at Cinccinnati, Indianapolis, New York and Chicago tracks. He has won $30,000 prize money since September 1. No amount of money would part company between Aitken and his "cradle," which he says is still in first-class running order. It was back in 1904 that Aitken began coaxing speed from motor cars on race courses, the year that this National model was built. Aitken began on the Indianapolis fair grounds track and helped establish a world's twenty-four-hour record. Since then his racing career has been as sensational as successful. Since then Aitken has been employed at the National Motor Vehicle Company's factories, where he has worked from the bottom up to a responsible position in the experimental and engineering departments.

Aitken has been the teacher of many successful race drivers, sending Joe Dawson across the tape at the wheel of the famous National No. 8 on the Indianapolis track in 1912. Not satisfied with being a past master at instructing drivers how to get the most out of their cars in contests, Aitken has devoted himself to the study and practice of how to put the most quality into cars, under the leadership of the National's engineers. This peculiarly qualified him to take hold of the Peugeot team that came here from Paris in 1913. Their cars needed fundamental factory work done upon them and Aitken, with other National men, did this work, getting the French machines in perfect running order, and incidentally picking up a great deal of valuable mechanical information from the manner in which the Europeans build cars. Then in turn Aitken took the Peugeot pit at the speedway and coaxed Goux to victory. Both Goux and his team mate, Boillot, have been in the war since it started. In fact, Aitken was in Europe as a National engineer, visiting these men, when the war broke out. Goux is now driver for Gen. Joffre.

Finally Aitken re-entered the sport at the wheel of a Peugeot car. He was well informed on the construction of this type of car, and, after having "worked it over" under the expert supervision of the National engineers he felt confident of success. His winning has vindicated his theories. At Cincinnati he had a "walkaway," at Indianapolis he took all three events, and at New York he broke the world's records by driving the 250 miles at a speed better than 104 miles an hour.

SUSTITUTES ARE NOT FIRST-CLASS.

The English market has been flooded with gasoline substitutes since the use of gasoline has been restricted by law. The Engineer (London) states that nearly all these substances consist of kerosene with a small admixture of some other substance, and need an admixture of an equal quantity of gasoline before they are readily usable. It is also stated that some "substitutes" are mixtures of kerosene with turpentine. It would be interesting to know the exact function of the latter liquid.

ASSETS INCREASE MILLIONS.

An increase in Packard assets of $11,830,505 during the fiscal year ending August 31, was reported to Packard stockholders at a meeting held October 19 in Detroit. More than $6,000,000 was added to the surplus and a general prosperous growth is displayed in the consolidated balance sheet. An increase in vehicle production of 186 per cent. over the previous year was reported.

BUSINESS GOOD.

A large shipment of Vesta batteries and Vesta plates was received this last week by Alls S. Hamilton of the Los Angeles Ignition Works, who reports a larger volume of business than at any previous time.

OIL MEN ADVISE USE OF KEROSENE AS FUEL.

THAT the utilization of low-grade fuels by motorists is the only solution for the high price of gasoline was the conclusion embodied in a resolution passed last week by the Independent Oil Men's Association in their eighth annual meeting in Chicago. The use of kerosene was recommended by the oil men, and arrangements will be made by them to establish a service station in every large city in the East, where cars will be adapted to the burning of kerosene. More than 800 oil men were in attendance at the convention, which was the largest and most successful the organization has yet held.

"Many people thought we were radical when we announced that the new series twin-six Packard would operate perfectly on distillate and recommended its use," declared Earle C. Anthony last week in commenting on the Chicago dispatch. "As a matter of fact we were conservative, compared with the action of the eastern oil men. California distillate is a far more volatile fuel than kerosene.

"The truth of the matter is that the use of lower grade fuels by automobile engines is imperative. There is not going to be any choice about it in the next few years. The car that will not handle fuel of a grade as low as distillate will be practically worthless in 1918.

"Packard engineers simply stole another march on the industry when they recognized this fact and designed the new series twin-six to handle low-grade fuels.

"There are devices and attachments undoubtedly such as the oil men recommend which will adapt a car to the use of low-grade fuel. But it is hardly likely that any such attachment will give the same satisfaction as is to be obtained with the Packard, where every feature of the motor and carburetor design has been worked out with this end in view."

VALUE OF ADVERTISING PROVEN AT AUTO SHOW.

"IT MAY seem unusual, that in our large space, and with the remarkable color bodies the Paige factory is producing at our disposal, our show exhibit of the Paige should be confined strictly to stock models. But public interest satisfied us that this policy was popular," said C. F. Smith of Smith Bros., Paige distributors.

"Comment of visitors who were at the show with a definite object was most frequently directed to the points of Paige value and completeness of equipment, which we have featured in all our advertising. This gave us a new viewpoint on something that seems to contribute most to the satisfaction of the buyer when he comes to the point of actually paying for his car. The Paige is complete in the stock model—the most completely equipped car in America under $2000.

"When a man has made up his mind to buy the car as we exhibited it in the show, and at the price advertised as the stock car price, he does not get any surprise in the shape of a call for more money for extras when he calls at the store to complete the transaction. Incidentally, this proved to us that many people had formed a correct understanding of Paige value from merely reading our advertising, although they had never been to our store or ridden in a Paige.

"When they checked the car up point by point against our advertising claims, they readily saw just where its superiority was, and many rode in the car and bought it within twenty-four hours after their call at our exhibit.

National HIGHWAY 12

THERE is no sham, or make-belief about the National. Sixteen years' success has made National a definite leader among the better grade cars.

In no other car is there such visible worth, such grace of design and careful finish.

The Twelve is the solution of the multi-cylinder problem.

The Twelve takes the intermission out of gasoline. Makes a smooth, even, flexible power that flows without jumps or jerks.

It prevents the power from racking the machinery that creates it.

The Twelve motor lives longer and this means a longer-lived car and a more economical one.

When Your Car Needs a New Bearing

Your car is worth no more to you than the pleasure or profit you derive from its use.

When laid up for repairs, it is neither a source of pleasure nor profit—but rather an annoyance and expense.

It is now no longer necessary to lay up your car for a bearing replacement.

Through the local branch of the Bearings Service Company you can obtain Hyatt, Timken or New Departure bearings to replace practically every type of anti-friction bearing in your car.

Miss Neva Gerber, moving-picture actress, taking a ride on the "cow-catcher" of a speedy Hudson. This is the same kind of a machine that was driven from San Francisco to New York and back in a trifle more than ten days. One of the strong talking points of the Hudson people (and they demonstrate it, too,) is that you can run at a snail's pace on high gear in traffic, or so fast on the boulevards that the speed cops will hit your trail. In the picture, Miss Gerber is riding on the front end of the car while it is being driven on high at about two miles an hour.

Regular Go-getters for Him.

"GIVE ME BRAINY MEN, NOT PLODDERS"—LEACH.

IF THE caliber of the various members composing the units of an efficient sales and service organization stand as a basis for prophetic opinion, then the Leach Motor Car Company, Southern California distributors of the King eight and Dort cars, takes rank among the epoch-making concerns of the Southwest.

In casting about for men to fill in the niches of the organization, M. A. Leach has baited his hook for thinking men—men with brains, men who know the automobile game and use their wits. Mr. Leach says:

"I would rather have one man with me who used his thinking machinery than twenty men who gained results only through plodding. The plodder is an expensive luxury—the thinker is an asset and no matter what he costs you he will continue to be an asset.

"I do not often indulge in bouquet-tossing, but I honestly believe that the men whom I have selected to assist me in making the Leach Motor Car Company the biggest and most aggressive on the Pacific Coast represent in the aggregate, as brainy and thoroughly trained a lot of red-blooded automobile men as were ever gathered together here or any place else.

"Among the other members of the organization, each selected for his particular fitness, there is included T. J. Duncan, an up-to-the-minute old-timer in the wholesale field, as is also Ernest Hughes of El Paso. L. J. Burrud will be the publicity manager.

"From Chicago, formerly a special representative of Harry Newnan, Inc., comes L. A. McConnell, to take up his duties here as sales manager. I know of no one man whose schooling has been such as to better qualify him for the position of sales manager, and the results obtained by him with Harry Newnan Company, Inc., justify me in placing him at the head of the department of salesmanship. To him falls the duty of keeping his local salesman, the tendrils of the business, keyed up to that pitch that is bound to make the Dort, a newcomer here, the most popular low-price car on the market, and to continue the King along its road of increasing popularity.

"The workers who are expected to make automobile history under Mr. McConnell's able direction are: H. A. Davis, sales manager, King line; T. A. Tibbott, E. L. Hughes, T. G. Duncan, A. C. Beatty, R. C. Emerson, A. J. Woodill, sales manager, Dort line; R. G. Whitney, J. L. Breese, Jr., G. K. Traynor, R. P. Pennock, J. W. Miller and W. B. Felix.

HERE'S NEW JOB FOR WOMEN WHO DISPLAY GOOD TASTE.

ALL hail the advent of the feminine in the construction of automobiles! The passing auto show brought out very clearly the extreme necessity of a woman's taste for the beautiful when it comes to planning and executing the interior finish of the palatial closed cars that were exhibited. Never, perhaps, in the history of automobile building has such variety of clever ideas in color schemes, fabrics and innovations for milady's toilette been seen as this year.

"O how beautiful!" "Isn't that dear!" "What a darling!"

These and scores of similar expressions became so frequent at all the exhibits of closed cars that one need but close his eyes and imagine that he was standing amidst a crowd of fashionable women at a dress goods counter on Broadway.

"There is no doubt in my mind but what the fashions that are set by the women of the United States have come to stay in the automobile line," said A. C. Robbins of the Greer-Robbins Company. "The action of the Chalmers Motor Company in engaging Lady Duff Gordon to select materials for the finishing of the interiors of their closed cars has set the pace for all other closed car builders. The cars that have come from Detroit have the touch of feminine exquisiteness. Those of us who have been in the automobile business purely as a business are finding out that there is now a wonderful sphere for women in interior finishes. It has become an art.

"The somber, severe and unlovely colors have entirely disappeared. The old leather seat covers are passe. The straight-away tops are almost curiosities on the road. The painting of bodies, once entirely black, has drifted into colors that were once unknown, tints that we never heard of before now and daring schemes of decoration that, yesterday, would have been snubbed as entirely too bizarre."

Many automobile dealers in Los Angeles are ordering all of their cars shipped from their factories instead and offering to finish every car to suit the individual taste or choice of the buyer. This fact accounts for the almost infinite assortment of colors, finishes and special equipments that are as frequent as they once were seldom.

THOUSANDS INSPECT AND PRAISE NEW CAR AT SHOW.

THE Turner-Whitford Company, the first in Southern California to exhibit the Ross automobiles, had their display in shape at the Automobile Show in spite of all manner of difficulties.

Shipped by express from the factory, two cars and one chassis reached Los Angeles Saturday morning at 2:10 o'clock. Marred in transit, they were rushed to the plant of Chanslor & Lyons and work was started on them at 5 o'clock. Only a few minutes after the stroke of noon the cars were on their way to the show and when the doors were thrown open at 2 o'clock were on the floor and ready for the inspection and praise they received from thousands throughout the week.

The seven-passenger touring car and the roadster, both eight-cylinder and eighty horse power, show class in every line.

"It may sound fishy, but it's a fact nevertheless, that four of our best prospects are named Ross," said Whitford.

BIG SUPPLY HOUSE TO HAVE BIRTHDAY.

A Los Angeles house that has grown from a $100,000 a year business to $4,000,000 will celebrate its twelfth anniversary this week. The Chanslor and Lyon Motor Supply Company, the largest accessory house on the Pacific Coast, was organized in Los Angeles twelve years ago by Phil Lyon and Waller Chanslor.

A special reception and display will inaugurate anniversary week. The salesroom and windows will be appropriately decorated and Phil Lyon will be on hand to meet those who may come to shake hands and talk over old days.

TIRE COMPANY TO ENLARGE PLANT.

In order to adequately care for the increasing demand for Norwalk tires and tubes throughout the United States, and more especially here in Southern California, the Norwalk factory in Connecticut is being enlarged, making it possible to triple the present capacity. This is indeed a record without parallel, as the factory has only been in operation a little over a year.

Half a million dollars is to be invested in new buildings and new equipment and the factory will be one of the most complete establishments in the world engaged in the exclusive manufacture of high-grade casings and tubes.

Los Angeles girls posing in Topanga Canyon.

Norma Gould, who enjoys the distinction among Southern California dancers of having her public work under the direction of L. E. Behymer, is doing some work that raises a noteworthy question in artistic circles. It has to do with the development of the dance toward the ideal. Painters have always idealized the dance. Miss Gould is turning the tables, and idealizing with the living figures of her advanced pupils, groups and compositions of famous painters. This work carries Miss Gould and her pupils into faraway mountain nooks, and along the sandy shores of the northern beach district. Of course, an automobile really makes this advanced work possible. How else could several locations be reached and used in a day and photographic records made for study and development? In this case it happens to be a Peerless Eight. It goes far and fast, Miss Gould says, and is so luxurious that it relieves the strain that comes from posing and working on ground which has not been smoothed in the dancers' path. California's wealth of scenery is made available by the automobile in a way that is not only permitting notably advanced pictoral work, but assists Miss Gould in her favorite plan of developing the spiritual attainments of pupils. The out-of-door work helps to give expressional ability. The photograph shown is recognized by motorists as the interesting cascade scene, about a third of the way up Topanga Canyon. Its possibilities have been developed by Miss Gould's method, which is raising the question whther California dancers may not actually surpass in present day actualities the ideal works of painters who created imagiinative scenes and figures.

LTS AND JARS GOOD TEST FOR ALL NEW CARS.

YOU want to test a new car—it. If you want to see whether it's ready for the purchaser, try on the roads—all kinds of . And then, if anything is you'll discover it and the parts need adjusting can be properly care of.

This sums up the advice offered by Stratton of the I. H. Stratton pany, distributors of Westcott . In relating his experience at factory, where every car is test- thoroughly, Mr. Stratton said: "In addition to the very rigid given the Westcott-Continental by their builders, promptly arrival at the Westcott factory motor is given a block test of five to six hours' duration. This the motor up nicely for the actual road test, after the chassis has been assembled.

"The chassis is given a test run from fifty to 100 miles over va- country roads, especially se- for determining hill-climbing speed, and low-speed performance on high gear. A generous supply of ruts and bumps is also included for proving frame and spring construction. This run tests out the various units, limbers up the springs and permits of minor adjustments to the motor, carburetor, ignition, etc., chassis.

"The final test occurs after complete assembly. In the hands of a Westcott expert tester the car is taken for a final spin in the country of from twenty to twenty-five miles, and must secure the O. K. of the chief inspector before it can be released for shipment.

"The point is this," he added. "The Westcott Motor Car Company considers it most essential that each and every Westcott car be thoroughly 'worked in' by expert drivers. The car is first limbered up with the utmost care, then gradually brought up to a workout equalling the usual service requirements, and finally called upon for its entire capacity. This final performance proves to the Westcott company that the car is now equal to any emergency to which a motor car can be expected to respond."

OIL EXHIBIT AT SHOW INTERESTING.

One of the exhibits that attracted considerable attention at the Auto Show was that of the Puente Oil Company. Long glass tubes, filled with various grades of Apex, Pennsylvania, and Western motor oils, through which compressed air was forced to show the specific gravity of each, held the attention of many visitors.

Obliging attendants explained the process and answered questions put by thousands who were interested in the exhibit.

HISTORY QUOTED BY J. L. IRVING.

MULTIPLE-CYLINDER MOTOR ISN'T NEW AT ALL.

Ten Years Ago Speed of One Hundred and Forty Miles an Hour was Made at Ormond Beach—Two-mile Record of Fifty-eight Seconds Established.

The number of multiple-cylinder motor cars on display at the show was one of the surprises to those who have not kept close tab on the progress of the industry. More than a dozen different makes of this type of cars were shown, and the fact there is a growing interest in the V-shape motor was apparent by the number of prospective buyers who visited the exhibits which included the eight and twelve-cylinder motors exclusively.

When one of the visitors asked James L. Irving distributor of the Cole eight, if the multiple-cylinder car has been made long enough to really establish its superiorities he took the occasion to enlighten his questioner with a bit of history.

"The eight-cylinder motor is nothing new to those acquainted with the development of the gasoline engine," he explained. "It was used in Europe as far back as 1902 and some were built in America as early as 1903. Of course, at that time all types of gasoline motors were largely an experiment and the single and double-cylinder motors were used more extensively because they were easier to construct.

"The capability of the eight-cylinder motor for speed was demonstrated as far back as 1906, when M. Demogeot, at Ormond Beach, Fla., covered two miles in approximately fifty-eight seconds. It was the first car ever driven two miles in less than one minute, and it is said that on short spurts this eight traveled at the rate of 140 miles an hour, a speed that has not been equaled since then."

BLIZZARD HAS NO EFFECT ON TIRES.

Driving from Los Angeles to Caspar, Wyo., in his big powerful touring car, G. G. Smith writes that he encountered the worst going one could possible imagine, but in his letter to B. F. Wade of the Wade Tire and Rubber Company, pays high tribute to the Dayton tire, which is handled in California by Mr. Wade.

Mr. Smith, is known as Los Angeles's newest millionaire—he was made extremely wealthy recently by a big oil deal involving some of his Wyoming lands.

Some idea of the tough going encountered may be had from the fact that he was twenty-one days in making the trip, three days of which he was tied up in a snow storm and one day he spent in Salt Lake City, while the rest of the time he was constantly on the road.

Amazing Feats Easily Made With HUDSON SUPER-SIX

Worth While Records

The Hudson Super-Six has broken all worthwhile stock car endurance and speed records. Every achievement has been made under A. A. A. supervision. Their official representative certified to the stock character of car and chassis.

Terrific Strains

Most stock motors go to pieces attempting speedway tests; also in hill climbing feats and 24-hour endurance runs; not so with the Hudson.

Speed and Endurance

The Hudson Super-Six motor, after thousands of miles of terrific strain, showed no appreciable wear. Yet it broke all touring car speed records up to 100 miles. It made the longest and fastest sustained drive the world has ever seen; nearly two thousand miles in one day; maintaining 76 miles an hour continuously for 24 hours; an endurance test never before approached in the history of the automobile.

Double Transcontinental

The Hudson Super-Six broke the ocean to ocean both-way records solely because of its endurance. It ran from San Francisco to New York in 5 days, 3 hours, 31 minutes. Then the same 7-passenger Super-Six turned around and went back to San Francisco, making the double transcontinental in 10 days, 21 hours, 3 minutes; the first car ever to finish in a coast to coast round trip against time.

Last Spring the best one-way time made by a famous "8" was 7 days, 11 hours and 52 minutes. It took the Hudson Super-Six only 3 days more to make the round trip of 6952 miles—twice across America—mountains, deserts, mud, bridgeless streams, heat, cold, every known road condition; and at that it lowered the best previous record both ways.

Achievement Never Equaled

That tremendous endurance test was America's greatest motor car achievement. No test of endurance ever equaled that record. Your Super-Six can do likewise.

Why Men Buy the Hudson

That's why men buy the Hudson Super-Six—men wise in motor cars. Not for excessive speed or power, but to render every day performance without vibration, wear or effort. The Hudson Super-Six at half capacity can match another car's supreme exertion. That means a long-lived motor, low upkeep, small repairs.

It Has Ended Vibration

The great fact is that the Hudson Super-Six has almost ended vibration. It has reduced motor friction to almost nil. And that invention alone accounts for its 80% greater efficiency.

World's Undisputed Champion

The Hudson Super-Six is undisputed champion. It outsells any other car with a price above $1100. In six months the Hudson Company has quadrupled its output. It now manufactures 3500 cars per month, but still fails to meet the demand.

We pleaded with the factory for a stock for the Auto Show, and got a few extra ones. Come and see them—they are ready for delivery but won't last long.

"THE CAR OF A THOUSAND SPEEDS"

THE OWEN MAGNETIC

THE PASSING OF THE GEAR-SHIFTING

Half the delight of motoring lies in the pleasure of driving. Those of you who own one or more cars of the ordinary type and who know the pleasurable thrill of sitting in the driver's seat with your hand on the steering wheel while the powerful pulsating motor sends you along some smooth even highway, free from the congested traffic that necessitates the constant shifting of gears, will appreciate the OWEN MAGNETIC above all others.

You who have never driven a car because the multiplicity of its gears and pedals have lead you to believe that such an operation is the function of a locomotive engineer rather than the delights of recreation, will instantly recognize, once you have received a demonstration that the OWEN MAGNETIC is the fulfillment of the ultimate in motor car construction reduced to the greatest degree of simplicity.

In this car you may thread your way through the thickest maze of traffic without the shifting of a lever or the pressure of a clutch pedal—in fact, this "car of a thousand speeds" has neither gear lever nor clutch pedal, yet it glides along noiselessly without a jerk or a jar. It is a delight to take this powerful car through the crowded traffic of Broadway, and, with scarcely a conscious effort drive so slowly, that, but for the stationary objects along the way, its motion would be imperceptible—so flexible is the OWEN MAGNETIC.

And yet, this marvelous car, combining the power and efficiency of the gasoline motor, the flexibility of the steam engine and the simplicity of the electric, is but a new application of a very old principle—the same principal which governs the operation of a trolley car with one exception—and this is important; the OWEN MAGNETIC is not an electric car. It gets its power from a fine and well balanced six-cylinder gasoline engine. We carry the electric forces of the lighting and starting mechanism one step further than the ordinary car you know, and make it serve us in providing a smooth, silent, consistently efficient force for accelerating or retarding the speed of the car without shifting gears—yes, without gears at all.

Other manufacturers, in responding to the popular demand for flexibility, have introduced eight and even twelve-cylinder engines. This amounts to practically an additional engine to the one that has heretofore been recognized as standard, but even this multiplicity of cylinders does not secure the flexibility sought; it merely reduces by a fraction the number of gear-shifts with the attendant disengagement of the clutch in the ordinary driving.

Every operation from the starting of the car, thence to a veritable crawl and so on up to a speed of seventy miles an hour, is regulated by a single, simple little lever attached to the steering wheel.

The OWEN MAGNETIC, beautiful structurally and perfect mechanically, excites wonder and admiration wherever it is seen because of its fine lines and its freedom from levers and pedals common to other cars. Yet, novel as it is to the general public, it is by no means a recent accomplishment. Electric generators and motors for starting and lighting are regular equipment for the cars you know, and have long since proved their practicability. We have added no additional electrical equipment, we have only made the electrical units larger, more simple, and so designed them to serve the additional purpose of furnishing the speed variations.

The OWEN MAGNETIC is the last word in flexibility; it solves the important problem as no number of cylinders—be they eight, twelve or twenty-four—can ever hope to solve it.

The OWEN MAGNETIC has been tested out in motor cars for seven years. In one car alone it has operated for over 175,000 miles. We have installed it into cars to be run side by side with similar cars having old-style transmissions. We have run those cars in comparison over mountains, crossing State after State, over clay roads and sandy. We have compared them by economy tests, by hill-climbing. And in every form of test applied the OWEN MAGNETIC has exceled.

The car we offer—THE OWEN MAGNETIC—is already owned and driven by hundreds of the most prominent motorists in America. It has met the approval of hundreds of experts. So this innovation, which has come to revolutionize motoring, must be accepted as a demonstrated fact. Five minutes at the wheel will convince any man that all we claim for it is true, and that gears and gear-shifting will soon be a thing of the past.

But no description can ever convey to the interested prospective purchaser of a motor car the ultimate range and ease of operation of this marvelous car; one must take a ride in the seat beside the driver to appreciate it. This you are cordially invited to do at any time. Then consult some of the people who have bought and driven these cars thousands of miles and convince yourself that the OWEN MAGNETIC mark the end of multiple cylinders with their complicated parts and attendant troubles; that it spells the finish of back-breaking, annoying gear-shifting, likewise the passing of the leg-tiring, engine-jarring, dangerous, old-fashioned clutch.

The mechanical supremacy of this car is matched by the artistic supremacy of the bodies with which it is equipped—either from stock or to order.

Your request for a demonstration or for literature will be promptly complied with.

One Hundred Dollars Advance in Price on Roadsters and Touring Models

COLE 8

Months ago, our dealers were notified that an advance in the list price of Cole 8 motor cars would become effective on delivery after January 1st.

It is known that the advance on the Touring and Roadster Models will be one hundred dollars a car.

On or before January 1st, we will announce the advance in the price of other models.

In line with our announced policy at the beginning of the season, present models will be continued until January 1st, 1918, without change.

Present prices will prevail on all cars delivered before January 1st, 1917.

All cars ordered for delivery after that date will be at the new prices.

The same high grade material will be used throughout in Cole construction, with refinements in minor detail from time to time, as is our custom.

Delivery fleet of big firm increased.

The large delivery fleet of auto trucks operated by Barker Bros., the well-known Los Angeles furniture house, was increased last week by five Jeffery trucks. Delivery was made by the Hartwell Motor Company, distributors in this territory for the Jeffery pleasure cars and trucks. The order included three rapid-service, three-quarter-ton and two all-purpose, one and one-half-ton trucks. One truck with a specially-built panel body will be used for delivery purposes by the city office of Barker Bros. The balance will be operated from the large warehouse. The bodies of the trucks are painted dark green and the wheels yellow. The combination of color is an attractive one. The five Jefferys were only ordered after Barker Bros. had made a thorough investigation of the merits of the trucks. One feature that appealed to the furniture company is the large assortment of parts that the Hartwell concern carries in stock. This fact means that in event of accident, it will not be necessary to send to the factory for new parts.

DOLL UP YOUR CAR! ALL ABOARD FOR ATLANTIC CITY.

A TRANSCONTINENTAL tour early next summer of California motorists, is the timely suggestion of Al G. Faulkner, local Marmon agent, who has twice made the trip from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Faulkner is enthusiastic over the trip and says that judging from the many inquiries he has received from motorists contemplating the drive and the talk among the Marmon owners he knows it would be possible to startle the East with one of the largest motor tours this country has ever known.

Faulkner believes it could be done on a big scale and proposes that committees be appointed to work on the proposition during the winter.

"We talk of boosting the California roads and the touring joys of the coast," said Faulkner. "Here is one of the most effective ways possible to accomplish this. There are always a great maany motorists who make the trip during May and June and I believe these would enter into the spirit of the affair and join in one monster tour. There are a great many who do not contemplate the trip who would go if they were assured of a good pilot and an emergency repair car to look after minor troubles which might arise.

"This could easily be arranged as I feel sure the local civic bodies throughout the State would co-operate in making the tour a success.

"I would gladly act as pilot for the tour and speaking for the Marmon owners I know of at least twenty who will make the run. Dustin Farnum has offered his services and as he is familiar with the road he would be found a valuable assistance in planning and arranging the details of the trip."

Nowhere in the world do the people enjoy their motor cars as they do in California. Thousands tour the State and of these thousands who delight in long runs a large majority look forward to the day when they can make the run to the Atlantic Coast.

His Middle Name is Optimism.

HOWARD SEES NOTHING BUT SUCCESS AHEAD.

THAT the demand for Buicks is so great the Howard Auto Company can sell every car shipped to the Pacific Coast was a statement made by C. S. Howard, president of the company, just before leaving several days ago for San Francisco.

Mr. Howard spent a week here, watched the salesmen rake in checks for cars, visited the auto show and beheld a big crowd around the Buick exhibit, played a few games of golf, allowed that "all was well," and then took the train for San Francisco.

The Howard company distributes Buicks all over the Coast, from the Mexican line to the Canadian line, and in some of the States in the West which do not border on the Pacific.

Mr. Howard claims it's a case of take orders and fill them as soon as possible—take more orders and do the same thing—then start all over again and repeat. Just one continuous round of pleasure, and the demand increasing for Buicks instead of showing any sign of letting up.

Now, that's what one might call optimism of the first water.

WANT PERFECT BATTERIES.

Arrangements have been made by the Electric Equipment company, automobile electricians, to inspect and bring to perfect condition all batteries on Overland cars so equipped. This is being done so that an Overland owner can start with his battery in an absolutely perfect condition.

The Work of the Perfected "FOUR"

Possibly you didn't know it, but in every part of the country where performance really counts, the Perfected "Four" Hupmobile is setting the standard of performance.

The Hupmobile climbs the hardest hills around Los Angeles on high gear.

The Perfected "Four" goes over some particularly vicious stretches of road on high.

It pulls through some very noted sand and mud-holes on high.

Everywhere, the result is the same. Some of the others are able to duplicate the Hupmobile performance.

We are always glad to show how the Hupmobile can perform on these same hills, in these sand and mud-holes and on these roads in and about Los Angeles. We also invite you to ask the other cars to do the same.

CLIMBS PIKE'S PEAK WITH FIVE IN CAR.

W. H. Emmons of Denver, Colo., writes concerning the performance of his Empire touring car to the Empire Motor Sales Company, local agents, as follows:

"I left Denver recently with four people besides myself and driving to Colorado Springs met the members of the Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo Rotary clubs, and we all started for the top of Pike's Peak.

The first nine miles of the road leads through Ute Pass, and every foot up grade, and then on up to Pike's Peak, a distance of eighteen miles, which is a constant climb where one makes an ascent of over 6500 feet.

The next day we drove through Ute Pass again, thence across the mountains to Deckers and then back to Denver. As I had driven my car over 9700 miles before making this trip, and considering the fact also that I have never spent a dollar for repairs, I thought my experience might prove of interest to you."

NEW TIRE FOR COAST.

John G. Boss, president and manager of the Portage Rubber Company of California, Coast distributors for this popular brand of tires, announces that he has added a new tire which he is to handle in conjunction with his present line. This tire, the Summit, is made at Akron, O., and during the time that it has been tried out and tested here, has made an excellent showing while throughout the East where it has been used for a long time it has become very popular and the sales have been large.

BUYERS AND PROSPECTS ATTEND BIG AUTO SHOW

THAT hundreds of people in Southern California delayed buying automobiles until the show is the declaration of Froman Speers of Beekin-Speers, agents in this territory for the Haynes and the Grant cars.

"It was noticeable the large number of subagents who put in their appearance during the show and not a few brought their prospects with them. And those who had wives brought them along and I imagine that hubby's bank roll was depleted after the stores had been visited."

As evidence that prosperity is abroad in the Southland Speers points to the fact that sub-agents have been freely ordering cars the past week and at the same time demanding early delivery. J. H. Rice of San Diego has ordered one carload of Haynes, while the Grace Motor Company of Pasadena has ordered one carload of Grants. Lanse & Matthews of Santa Ana have asked that one carload of Grants rushed to them, and J. A. McC

DETROIT MAN TELLS HOW COMPANY SPENDS PROFITS

IT'S ONE thing to build an automobile factory, and make the output fit it, and quite another to figure on the output in advance and build a factory large enough to accommodate all the cars turned out. Arthur N. Green, vice-president of the Saxon Motor Car Corporation of Detroit, who is here on a combined pleasure and business trip, tells how his company planned their new factory:

"Last year we turned out 45,000 cars, and because of the growing popularity of the Saxon we knew a factory with a capacity of 100,000 cars a year would be none too large.
Therefore we built a factory of size. The result is we have of room, there is space for facturing the various parts, sembling, painting and all of the er processes a car goes through the time the raw material is until the finished product is plete."

According to Mr. Green, it is the aim of the factory to big dividends, but to put the back into the business, into the themselves, as they are building wards the future, and dividends be declared after the world nizes that the Saxon has brought to perfection, he says.

"It's nearing that stage now,"
Mr. Green, "but we are still putting our profits back and making a car each year."

Among the claims made for the company is this one:

"We have, with one exception, largest and most expensive engineering and experimental department the industry can boast of. And bringing results, as anyone can by carefully examining a Saxon, putting it to the test."

Mr. Green thinks, as everyone thinks, that the Los Angeles show is just about the greatest of its kind on record. And have been at least a few other shows in the past, you'll admit.

Eventually drawn.

A—An old move, rather fallen into disuse, which I favored for some time and which I frequently played against my present opponent when I had the Whites. See my analysis in the British Chess Magazine, pages 129 and 130, of April, 1916. It can at least be said of it that it yields a game chuck full of complications.

B—I give B-K2 as best.

C—12—BxP ch; 13—K-R1 (if RxR, KR-K1 compels White to give up queen.) KR-K1; 14—Q-B4, P-KR3; 15—KtxP, B-K3; 16—Q-Q3 ch, K-K1 should win for Black, or KR-K1 would have been better than playing the queen's rook.

D—B-Q3 would have the exchange, for after 15—Q-R5 ch, K-K2, White cannot play 16—R-K1 on account of B-KKt5; 17—Q-R3, B-Kt5.

E—This level game, after all those thrusts and counter-thrusts, comes with startling abruptness. One of the liveliest draws I ever played.

"WAIT A WEEK? NO, SIR!" SHE WINS.

Because a woman is privileged to have her own way with automobiles, as well as other things, the exhibit Ralph C. Hamlin planned for the motor car show was short one car last week. It was a Scripps-Booth roadster that had been "dolled up" with seat covers in cream and light green tapestry and a victoria top lined with the same material.

The day previous to the show cars being taken over to the big tent, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thomas of Las Vegas, Nev., visited the Hamlin sales room to inspect the new series Scripps-Booth. Mrs. Thomas chanced to see one of the show cars that was in the garage in the rear. It made such an impression on her that she decided at once she wanted to buy it.

Explanation that it was intended for the show was futile, so Mr. and Mrs. Thomas left for their home in a car that certainly will make the Las Vegas folks sit up and take notice when they see it on the streets.

HELP! SEND MORE CARS IMMEDIATELY!

Walter M. Brown answered the question, "Does an automobile show pay the dealer?" with an emphatic "yes." The reason for the emphasis is due to the fact that every Stutz car received by him in the shipment that was rushed from the factory so that it arrived only two days before the show opened, has been sold. The roadster that was on display was bought by Garfield Jones and the bright red touring car by J. T. Conger. The other turtle-back roadster that came in the carload was sold to W. H. Stimson and the turtle-back roadster was claimed by Motley Flint.

"To prevent losing orders, I'll have to have another shipment right away," Brown wired the factory and he received a reply to the effect that just as soon as possible he will get more of them. President Harry Stutz intimated in his answer that Brown should bear in mind there are other Stutz dealers in the country and he need not expect the entire output of the Indianapolis plant to be sent to him exclusively.

OUR LURE GETS 'EM.

Succumbing to the lure of Southern California, C. H. Werick, his wife and their son arrived in Los Angeles yesterday in a 1916 Haynes roadster from Buffalo, N. Y. Leaving Buffalo October 2, the party made the trip by way of Cleveland, St. Louis, Kansas City and the Santa Fe trail. The speedometer on the Haynes car showed a total of 3126 miles for the journey.

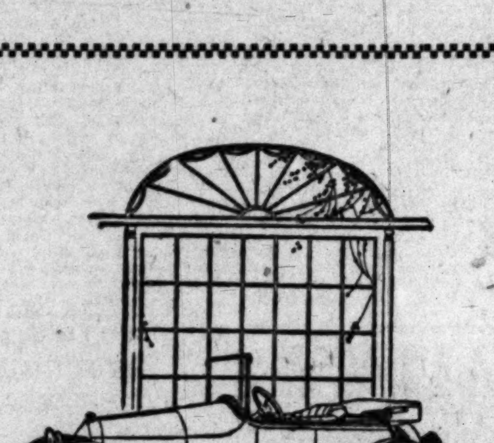
We're strong for this kind of shopping.

Here's good news for the man who has to "tag along" while dear wife peers in the shop windows. You know what it means. You've been there, old scout, and you'll agree that it's some job—just trailing along, waiting, and watching, and hoping, and cussing, because you have to use up thirty minutes in walking one block. Well, if you can afford a Pilot car, like the one in the picture, you won't have to walk, for this car can travel as slowly as one mile an hour on high, or even slower if you insist—beg pardon—if your wife insists, and you can see the shop windows from the car. The Pilot is sold by the Pearl Motor Car Company.



At the Auto Show

you have undoubtedly admired the beautiful lines, the luxurious equipment, the many evidences of distinctiveness shown in the

Scripps-Booth Roadster

These qualities attract the eye, but there are other qualities peculiar to the Scripps-Booth which only a visit to our salesrooms and a demonstration of the car bring out.

Let us show you why the Scripps-Booth OFFERS ALL THE ADVANTAGES OF THE HEAVY AND EXPENSIVE CAR without the abnormal first price and with astonishing economy of operation.

If you should feel that a car which makes such a strong personal appeal may not have the proper factor of mechanical reliabilty, read some of the unsolicited letters we have received from owners who have made trans-continental trips; plowed through the mud into Arizona; negotiated the distance from San Diego to Canada; all without mechanical trouble of any kind.

Behind the Scripps-Booth car you will find an organization willing to work with you from the beginning of your investigation, through your purchase and through your ownership of the car.

FOUR TIRES LAST TWENTY MONTHS.

About twenty months ago Howard and Smith, the large nursery firm, equipped one of their outside salesman's car with a set of Racine country road tires. Since that time the car has been run over 25,000 miles without a single blowout, or a change of tire except for a puncture—the tires thus averaging over 25,000 miles and running until they were worn out.

This company has had such uniform success with this make of tire that on all of their cars and pneumatic tire trucks they use the Racine country road tires exclusively.

It might be well to add that a good portion of the success thus obtained is due to the care which this company takes of their tires, because a tire cannot be misused and give good mileage and service at the same time.

ARMSTRONG GOES EAST.

Earl V. Armstrong, president of the company that bears his name, the distributor for the Chandler Six in Southern California, has left to visit the factory of the Chandler Motor Car Company at Cleveland, O. Before returning home, Mr. Armstrong will continue to New York City in the interest of his other business connections.

DON'T forget Hendrie Tires are guaranteed to outrun any tire on the market.

Studebaker

Advance in Prices of Studebaker Cars

On or about December 1st, the prices of Studebaker cars—both the FOUR and the SIX—will be advanced from $75 to $100 over prevailing prices.

In the face of the rapid increase in the cost of the raw materials entering into the construction of Studebaker cars, present prices have been maintained. But now conditions in the industry have reached a point where Studebaker is forced to add a substantial increase to these prices.

For the past eighteen months there have been rapid advances in the cost of all raw materials entering into the manufacture of automobiles—especially on steel of all kinds, pig iron, castings, stampings, sheet metal, aluminum, leather and upholstering materials. And these advances range all the way from 40% to 150%.

Studebaker has always been satisfied with a small margin of profit—and you may rest assured that, even with a substantial increase over prevailing prices, both the FOUR and the SIX will still be the most powerful seven-passenger cars in the world at their prices. And you will still have to pay from $300 to $600 more to equal them in power, roominess, economy, beauty of design and all-around dependability.

Our allotment of Studebaker cars at the present prices is very limited and is likely to be exhausted at any time. So, if you want to save from $75 to $100, we urge you to come in at once.

The Automobile Sensation of the Year

THE announcement of the new Westcott Sixes came like a bomb into the camps of motor car enthusiasts. The mere statement of the new Westcott specifications astonished seasoned veterans of the automobile game. Never before has a Six of light-weight tendency embodied so many features of exclusive excellence.

Throughout the entire car there is not one detail in which quality has been sacrificed to manufacturing economy—not one place where strength, safety, durability, efficiency or good looks has been skimped in the interests of reduced overhead.

One chassis; six bodies; $1590 upward. 125-inch wheel base; chrome vanadium springs; torque arm; Timken Bearings and axles; Delco Equipment throughout; adjustable foot pedals and steering wheel; and a body second to none in completeness of appointment and refinement of luxury.

HENRY FORD TELLS WHY HE WOULD SPEND MONEY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DETROIT, Nov. 4.—Henry Ford, in a statement made public here today, denied that his plans for greatly expanding the Ford Motor Car Company's business could be considered "reckless and unwise." His statement was in reply to the temporary injunction which Horace and John F. Dodge, automobile manufacturers, obtained against the Ford company last Thursday, restraining the company from using its assets to develop its business along lines recently announced by Mr. Ford.

In their injunction petition the Dodge brothers, who own 10 per cent. of the Ford Motor Car Company's stock, demanded that most of the company's immense surplus should be paid out in dividends to stockholders. They allege that Mr. Ford's plans to buy iron mines, establish blast furnaces on the Detroit River near here and double or treble the capacity of the Ford plant in Detroit were "reckless and unwise."

Mr. Ford declared that the keynote of his company's success has been its ability to sell a tremendous number of automobiles at a small margin of profit on each car. This idea, he said, was to be carried out in his expansion plan. Speaking of the Dodge brothers' assertion that the proposed plan would bring financial injury to them, Mr. Ford said:

"They own 10 per cent. of the stock and I own about 58 per cent. I can't injure them $10 worth without at the same time injuring myself $58."

The injunction case is to be heard here on November 11. It has temporarily tied up about $52,000,000 and seeks to compel Mr. Ford to distribute about $39,000,000 of this amount in dividends.

Have a look, folks.

Barney Oldfield, master driver of the world, is exhibiting to his many friends this week a wonderful reproduction of a photograph taken ber, 1902, showing himself at the wheel of the famous Ford 999, with Henry Ford, the famous automobile manufacturer, standing by of the history-making speed monster. The painting, a great reproduction, bears significance to these famous men of the automobile it marks the beginning of two remarkable careers—one that of Barney Oldfield, who has withstood the onslaughts of countless racing drivers who sought to relieve him of his racing crown, but in vain—the other that of Henry Ford, whose wonderful achievements automobile world are too well known throughout the world to need further mention. The artist, M. J. Berdnikoff, worked diligently for months to reproduce this famous photograph taken fourteen years ago. Oldfield, who owns the painting and has it on display at his business in this city, will ship it East in the near future, as H. S. Firestone of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company will place the production on exhibition at the New York and Chicago automobile shows in January. The master speed pilot values the painting at many who are qualified to speak of things artistic declare that it is a wonderful piece of work.

CHAFFEY DEFEATS RIVERSIDE ELEVEN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

RIVERSIDE, Nov. 4.—Six hundred Chaffey Union High School rooters, yelling against 2000 local fans, their football team romp away with victory this afternoon on Poly stadium and shatter Riverside's hopes, based on the Pomona victory last Saturday, for a walk-away with the Citrus belt title. The score was 17 to 6 in favor of Chaffey, and the best team won.

The Chaffey back-field, with Miller and O. Nedham as the particular stars, was too heavy and too fast for the locals, and they tore through Poly's shattered line and around the ends almost at will. They resorted to the forward pass but few times, unsuccessfully, and won on straight football.

Poly's only score was made on a prettily executed forward pass in the second quarter. Riverside showed its best form in this period, battering through the visitors to the 15-yard line, where an attempted field goal was blocked, but recovered. A long pass from Shipley to Garcia, the two Indian stars of the local team, gave them their only score, Phillips missing the goal try from a difficult angle.

Miller scored Chaffey's first touch down in the first quarter, after an irresistible parade up the field, and Evans converted. The second score was made on a trick play near the end of the second quarter, Arnett dashing through a scattered field for touch down which Evans again converted. The second half was fiercely contested, Riverside showing up well both on offensive and defensive, but Chaffey added three more points to the long end of the score when Evans scored a goal from placement in the last quarter.

NAVY WALLOPED BY SOUTHERNERS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 4.—Washington and Lee took Navy's measure in football today in such style as to give the latter's confidence a severe jolt. Although having the advantage of weight and the added benefit of a wet, slippery field, the sailors were outclassed more than the 10 to 0 score indicated.

SAN FERNANDO AN EASY WINNER.

San Fernando's football team defeated the Lancaster High lads yesterday on the San Fernando field by a score of 44 to 0.

Charles, captain of the winning team, was the star of the game, making five touchdowns. Boyll and Johnson also scored one each, while Flynn added two more points in kicking goal.

SANTA ANA AND LONG BEACH TIE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONG BEACH, Nov. 4.—Playing their heavier opponents off their feet in every quarter and presenting the most dazzling attack and exhibition of clean tackling that has been seen here this year, the reconstructed Long Beach High School football team made good today and surprised several thousand gridiron fans by holding the big Santa Ana eleven to a 7 to 7 tie.

Led by Marsile their giant 207 pound guard, the impressive appearance of the big men composing the Santa Ana team squelched the hope of Long Beach fans, as the visitors trotted out on the field with an air of confidence. By a brilliant attack the visitors pushed their way through the center of the local line and occasionally around an end for the first touchdown of the game. Before they got the ball over, Long Beach made a gallant stand on its 1-yard line and held the pluging backs of the visitors without a gain for three downs. On the fourth attempt, Fall, Santa Ana left half, did and the oval was measured and found to be over the line by a scant inch. Irvine kicked goal.

Largely through the efforts of "Shorty" Rogers, Long Beach's stocky 130-pound half-back, who carried the ball two out of every three times for the locals, Long Beach worked the oval to its opponents 1-yard line early in the second period. Here the heavy Peatlanders made another stand, but on the fourth count Baker of Long Beach went over for the first league touchdown of the year. Hawks kicked goal, tieing the score.

POLY BOYS BLANK SAN BERNARDINO.

Minus the services of its star player, the Poly football team defeated the San Bernardino eleven yesterday by a score of 14 to 0. Poly scored in the first quarter when Mata at right end got away with a 20-yard forward pass to a touchdown. Rightmire scored the second on a short-line buck. He also kicked goal on both occasions.

HARVARD SWAMPS VIRGINIA ELEVEN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CAMBRIDGE (Mass.) Nov. 4.—Harvard's football team beat the offense of the University of Virginia today for a total of 51 points, the Crimson's high score of the season, while an impervious defense held the southerners at midfield the entire game, except for a few moments.

Seven touchdowns were made, with goals from six of them, and Bond also kicked a field goal standing thirty-two yards away.

REDLANDS THROWS A SCARE INTO CHAMPS.

Brooks and Batz Star for the Tigers Throughout the Game. Redlands Break Loose in Third Quarter and Shove Neat Touchdown Across the Line.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

REDLANDS, Nov. 4.—Redlands went football crazy this afternoon when the light University of Redlands team held the lightning fast and smashing Occidental team to a 21-7 score. Brooks and Batz played a terrific game for Occidental and their drives through the line were features of the game. Weed, Redlands and Turrill made big gains through the line for Redlands. [illegible], the quarterback, was playing the game today. He made his gains even when his interference was down on him. Brooks scored and earned it, for he went right through the line for five and six-yard gains until he carried the ball over. He kicked the goal.

Creswell slipped through a broken field for the second touchdown, and Brooks kicked goal. It took Occidental twelve minutes to make the first touchdown and fourteen minutes to make the second. Redlands swept the Tigers off their feet in the third quarter. Haddock made a touchdown and kicked the goal. [illegible] made a touchdown in the last quarter, and Brooks kicked the goal. The teams lined up as follows:

WHENEVER and wherever you drive your car on Goodrich Black Safety-Tread Tires, you know they are going through dust or mud to a toe-hold safety.

You know on a good road they double your safety, and on a bad halve the hazard.

Stop and think that the difference between safe and dangerous motoring is not the summer or winter skies above but the tires beneath — Goodrich Black Safety Tread Tires.

Look carefully over their simple effective non-skid tread. The common sense of the parallel five fingers and cross-tie pattern shows you convincingly why a Goodrich tire grips through muck and mud to bed-rock safety.

Rain or shine, it puts fair weather under your motor car.

Rescue your car from any idleness—save yourself loss of investment, comfort and convenience—by equipping it with—

REDLANDS LOSES TO POMONA HIGH.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

REDLANDS, Nov. 4.—The football carnival held here this afternoon did not pan out well for Redlands, for Pomona High slipped one over on the local High School and won the game. The score was 13 to 0, representing two touchdowns and one goal kicked.

Redlands gave Pomona one of the scores in the last quarter. It was Redlands' ball on the 10-yard line and the crowd was begging for a touchdown. But Redlands fumbled the ball and Avis, who had broken through the line, scooped it up and started off down the field. No one was near him and he ran about eighty yards for the touchdown.

Weismore played the big game for Redlands and in the second quarter he broke away and ran sixty yards. A Pomona man lunged for him and just managed to touch his foot and trip him.

The line-up for the game was:

Redlands.		Pomona.
Sawyer	R.E.L.	Cline
Willis	R.T.L.	McClellan
Powell	R.G.L.	Glenn
Wynne	C.	Nesbit
Lockwood	L.G.R.	Esterly
Clock, Weld	L.T.R.	Deems
Patrick	L.E.R.	Avis
Lloyd	Q.	Goodell, Braunel
Seltzer	R.H.L.	Reeder
Weismore	L.H.R.	Kimiwell
Gash	F.	Tracy, Benham

PURDUE BEATEN BY STAGG'S MEN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—The University of Chicago football eleven defeated Purdue University, 16 to 7, here today. Coming from behind at the start of the second half, Chicago displayed a flash of its old-time form and scored a touchdown and a field goal. Shafer booted a drop-kick squarely between Purdue's goal from the 30-yard line. Huffine plowed through Chicago's line for a touchdown in the first period for Purdue's only score.

MINNESOTA IS GIVEN BEATING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 4.—Minnesota's hope for a clear claim to the Western Conference football championship was shattered today when Illinois, already defeated by Ohio State, sprang one of the biggest surprises of the gridiron season, humbling the reputed powerful Gophers, 14 to 9. Illinois scored two touchdowns in the opening period and kicked two goals, while Minnesota counted its nine points with a touchdown, goal from touchdown and a safety in the third period.

DENVER'S HOPES BADLY DASHED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DENVER, Nov. 4.—The University of Denver's chances of attaining the championship of the Rocky Mountain Intercollegiate Conference went glimmering today when they were defeated by the Colorado Agricultural College champions, 31 to 13, in one of the most stubbornly fought games seen here in years. The Aggies fought a defensive game almost the entire first half.

THE TRUCK OF PROVEN QUALITY

SIGNAL WORM DRIVE

The quality of Signal trucks is shown first of all by the high grade of materials which goes into their construction, such as Brown-Lipe transmissions, Timken David-Brown rear axle, Ross steering gear, etc., because there is nothing better procurable.

In the second place their quality is proven by their ability to stay on the job day in and day out at a minimum of upkeep, as so many are doing daily right here in Los Angeles.

CARROLL LOST TO CARD TEAM.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Nov. 4.—Stanford University defeated the Olympic Club of San Francisco, 29 to 0, at Rugby football here today on a wet field, and in so doing incurred a loss which campus fans said would greatly weaken the team in its big game next Saturday against the University of Santa Clara.

Danny Carroll, mainstay of the Cardinal outfield, was forced out of the game with a dislocated shoulder. Doctors at the hospital where Carroll was taken said tonight that he would be out of the game for at least a month.

Baseball.

"CHAMPS" ARE TO CELEBRATE.

Chance Day Promises a Big Bill of Fare.

Players and Manager Both are Honored.

Large Crowd Expected at the Big Game.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

This is the day we celebrate—the "we" standing for a list of fans almost as long as the city directory.

"Chance Day" in Los Angeles comes only once in a lifetime, and it is to be some occasion, and it is hoped with the accent on the "sum," for the sake of the players.

Los Angeles as a whole has been lax in recognizing the achievement of Johnny Powers, Frank Chance and the Angels in bringing to this city a championship which is prized more highly than any outside of the two major leagues. The Coast League pennant is the blue ribbon of minor league baseball.

No sooner had the championship been cinched than San Francisco sent an emissary here with a request that prominent business men of that city be permitted to give a banquet in honor of the Angels. These men have no love for the Angels, and knew that the invitation would not be accepted. It was nothing more nor less than a bald-faced attempt to show us up—a left-handed swing at our lack of genuine baseball spirit.

And we will have to admit that the punch landed on the solar plexus of our pride. And what made it the more painful was the failure of prominent fans here to immediately wipe out the implied insult by giving the boys a monster send-off.

Powers went down in his own pocket and saw that there was a banquet, and he will finance the celebration today, despite the fact that he had done all that could be asked of any magnate when he provided a pennant-winning team. A splash of public spirit would help some, and if we are not mistaken there will be a delayed splash of some dimensions today. Los Angeles fans are the most critical in the world. Failure to win a championship throws them into a pessimistic grouch that does not thaw out until the following spring. Now that they have been rewarded with a championship, it would be extremely appropriate for them to make a joyful noise.

Praise Powers.

Powers could have secured a cheaper man than Frank Chance, but he preferred to go after big game. The addition of the P.L. did much to raise the league out of the "bush" class in the minds of eastern fans, a majority of whom seemed to regard this as a sagebrush and cactus circuit. Chance and Los Angeles are getting columns in Chicago and New York, whereas formerly they passed up the Coast League with a three-line mention of the result at the end of each season.

Unquestionably the coming of Chance was the beginning of a new era in western baseball.

Chance and his men set a standard of sportsmanship on the ball field, and there was not a taint of "dirty" ball in their work at any time.

There are two types of "fighting" managers. One type fights the umpires and the crowd. The other "fights" merely by keying his men up to the highest pitch of clean aggressiveness, and in that way playing the other clubs off their feet. Chance represents this type, and it is these methods which have made his regime something of a revelation. "Husk" made mighty few kicks, and only when he had them coming. He made his fights on the ball field, took everything that came his way, gave the best he had in return, and then forgot it. Never, after a game when things were going the worst, and even his opponents admitted that he was getting the ragged edge of the umpiring, did he murmur a complaint.

Shake.

It was a tough scrap—a finish fight—but that is past. Let everybody shake and give the winners a rousing reception this afternoon.

This is going to be a regular show, as witness the following list of events:

Band concert.
Aeroplane arriving with testimonial from Los Angeles fans to Frank Chance.
Fungo hitting. Base running.
Long-distance throwing.
Catchers throwing to bases. Relay vs. time.
Golf driving exhibition.
Monte Austin of Majestic Theater, the man who sang from Tower of Jewels.
Orpheum Four Quartette.
Barney Oldfield, driving Pierce-Arrow, 1909 model, first Pierce auto built by Pierce factory, against unknown (a surprise.)
Burlesque baseball game, motion-picture stars in line-up (every throw a laugh.)
Los Angeles Coast League champions vs.
Major League Stars.

While named "Chance Day" the affair is a testimonial to the team as well as to the P. L., with the athletes deriving all the financial gain. Chance went down in his own pocket and dragged out a $100 bill to help the thing along, while Powers forked over several of the same denomination. Every peso taken in will go to the players. There is a flat admission of 50 cents, this entitling the fans to seats either in the grand stand or bleachers, with an extra 50 cents for box seats.

Los Angeles will today advertise to the world whether it is a regular baseball town, or merely in the Coast League.

BEAR FRESHMEN SMEAR TROJANS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BERKELEY, Nov. 4.—Freshmen from the University of California administered a drubbing to the baby eleven from the University of Southern California today on Berkeley oval, the final score being 21 to 6. Part of the game was played in a drizzling rain.

Both teams relied principally on straight football and the only successful forward pass of the day resulted in Southern California's only touchdown in the last quarter.

The star play of the game was the interception of a forward pass of Talbot of the Berkeleyites and his subsequent 80-yard run for a touchdown.

the stubborn, but futile and constantly ebbing resistance of the Cardinal and Gold. Pat McGuire, a substitute thrown in late, provided the climax when he grabbed one of Malette's punts and ran sixty yards to a touchdown in the gloaming, leaping over prostrate forms and touching only the high spots.

This was really the closing act of the drammer, but it was the Sharpe party who proved to be the real bete noir of the Trojans. Three times the Siskiyou welterweight by long runs placed California in a position to score. In the third quarter he shook the field for two forty-yard runs, and in the fourth was on the forward end of a long pass from Brooks, plunging across the line just as the powerful Kelly descended upon him. This was the only really high-class forward pass engineered by either side, although it was tried repeatedly. As a rule, the passers simply trusted to luck, and it was about an even bet as to which side would catch the ball. Usually, however, it proved to be the side which was not supposed to catch it. Then in the same final quarter Sharpe got rid of some more excess energy with sprints of thirty and twenty-seven yards.

HOME TALENT.

Brooks, a former Los Angeles High School boy, played a sterling game for the visitors, and with Foster made a specialty of drilling holes in the line when there were short, but extremely important gains to be made, while his kicking was very classy. It was plain to be seen that his toe had been educated by Eddie Mahan, who, according to eastern reports, used to be some kicker himself.

Maleette probably played the best offensive game for U.S.C., and proved to be a slippery cuss. This slipperiness resulted in many a visiting athlete tackling nothing but empty air and falling down on his face. The punting of Fox was strong until his leg wore out. Malette then took the job off the tall Trojan's hands, or rather off his feet.

The Bears seemed to regard Fred Kelly as a bright and shining mark, and at times the husky hurdler could not be seen for the several layers of visiting athletes on top of him. Fred, having a constitution which is above the ordinary, bore up under it well.

Neither team played a highly scientific grade of football, and at times it reminded one of a couple of powerful pork-and-beaners swinging from the hip and trusting to main strength and akwardness.

Toward the finish, when the combat was sewed up, Andy Smith head coach, being a kind-hearted man, tried to work all his side-line warmers into the game and give them a chance to land a few wallops for their alma mater as well as get their names in the newspapers.

He made so many changes that he lost track himself. Finally, he would simply walk over to where the second string athletes were huddled, and say: "Who of you hasn't been in the game?" Then the athletes who hadn't been in the game would hold up their hands, and chirp, "Me, me." Of course that wasn't good grammar, but they don't teach grammar in universities, and there are a lot of varsity football players who never went to grammar school.

We had our first look at Eddie Mahan, and, of course, were somewhat disappointed. After having read so much about him we sort of expected that he would do something unusual—lick seven or eight people or tear down the bleachers just for diversion. It was impossible to conjure up a picture of the former Harvard bone-breaker remaining passive during a football game. But he did. Eddie was a picture of passivity. Yesterday he would have taken milk out of a bottle. All through the game he sat hunched up with his overcoat collar around his ears and looked for all the world like he was freezing to death.

The crowd was large, but the premises were not packed to their full capacity. Many stayed to watch the dry parade, intending to come out later. However, watching the drys march made some of them so thirsty that they had to go and get a drink, and by that time it was too late to go to the ball game.

U.S.C. won the toss, and elected to kick off from the south goal, which seemed to be fully as good as the other goal for the purpose. Sharpe ran the pig-skin to the Bear 20-yard line, and then, to use a new expression, the fun commenced. Soon after, Sharpe went around left end for twenty-five yards on a fake forward pass. Brooks, Sharpe, Foster and others intimately concerned, carried the pig-skin down to within eleven yards of the dead line, when U.S.C. held. Despairing of getting any farther on land, Montgomery laid back for a drop kick and missed the target. The ball, now belonging to U.S.C., was brought out to the 20-yard line. Wilson made a low pass to Kelly, who had dropped back, presumably to punt. This was not surprising, as the Trojans hadn't had hold of the ball before and didn't know how to handle it. Anyway, before Kelly could pick it up, Gordon, the great Senegambian tackle, fell upon it, and the same was in California's possession on U.S.C.'s own 5-yard line, which is too close for comfort. The Trojans made a mighty stand under the shadow of their own goal, or where the shadow would have been had it not been cloudy, and finally repulsed the enemy within one yard of the U.S.C. trench. Fox kicked out of danger, and in the last five minutes of the quarter the Trojans had the ball in California territory.

They kept it there in the second quarter, also. For resorting to the hammerlock, toe hold, full-Nelson and other well-known grips, the Bears were penalized so much in the first half that they traveled father backward than forward. It is estimated that they were penalized all the way from here to Pomona, which is a long trip walking backwards. In the second half they devoted their attention more exclusively to football, and did better. Nothing in the way of rule infractions seemed to escape the Argus-eyed referee, Mr. Braddock. This is probably because he wore large tortose-shell goggles about the size of a couple of saucers, and of great magnifying power.

Between halves the crowd was entertained by an incipient fire on the outside of the Ponet Hotel, which abuts on the gridiron. Some guy who was watching the game from a third-story window inadvertently dropped a cigar stub on a second-story awning. The fire was not curbed until a negro bell hop had squirted several gallons of water on it from an upper story. It was a thrilling spectacle. The awning was a total loss, and not covered by insurance.

The line up:

OHIO STATE IS AGAIN WINNER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

COLUMBUS (O.) Nov. 4.—Ohio State University increased its chance of winning the western conference football championship by defeating Wisconsin University, 14 to 13 here today. The Buckeyes are now tied with Northwestern, the only other undefeated eleven in the conference. These teams meet Novmber 25.

Ohio won from Wisconsin through the spectacular playing of Harley, right half-back.

COLGATE NEARLY WINS FROM YALE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 4.—After Colgate had decisively outplayed Yale in the first two periods today the blue came from behind and won a hard-fought contest 7 to 3. Colgate's eleven was powerful and splendidly drilled, giving Yale the stiffest opposition of the season.

The visitors scored in the second period when West kicked an easy goal from placement. Yale's touchdown came in the last period on a forward pass to Legore.

FIELD GOAL IS THE ONLY SCORE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

COLUMBIA (Mo.) Nov. 4.—The University of Missouri defeated the University of Texas today, 3 to 0. Peeples made the only score from the field.

ELECTION RETURNS.

Come to The Times Building, First and Broadway, or The Times Branch Office, 619 South Spring Street, Election Night, Tuesday, November 7.

The Times will bulletin State and national election returns on Tuesday night in front of The Times Building, First and Broadway, and The Times Branch Office, No. 619 South Spring street.

Up-to-the-minute returns will be received by special wires from every section of California and from every other State in the Union, and thrown upon large screens on the Tajo Building, First and Broadway, and the Meredith Building, opposite The Times Branch Office, No. 619 South Spring street.

The Times also will give returns by telephone to all who call.

THROOP SURPRISES SHERMAN INDIANS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

RIVERSIDE (Cal.) Nov. 4.—Throop College met another defeat this afternoon when the Sherman Indians beat them, 16 to 14, but it was a defeat in which there was no disgrace. It looked like it was all Indians the first quarter, when the Redskins sent Nelson dodging through a scattered field for a touchdown in the first two minutes of play, and then romped down the field and sent Attache through the line for the second touchdown. The latter was converted.

Facing a 13-to-0 lead the second quarter, the Throop team played heroic ball and, with Clemens, Mosher and Lavagnino tearing holes through Sherman's line, scored on a pretty forward pass, Mosher to Pease. A second score was made a few minutes later when Pease picked up a fumbled ball and dashed across the line. Both goals were converted by Mosher and the half ended with Throop in the lead, 14 to 13.

Sherman went into the second half with Coach Hadley's scathing words still ringing in their ears and had things pretty much their own way. The winning points were scored by a goal from placement in the third quarter, and a further score was only saved when the final whistle stopped the Indians within five yards of another goal. The line-up:

Sherman.		Throop.
Stevens	L.E.	Stelling, Renshaw
Jefferson	L.T.	Harris
A. Enos	L.G.	[illegible]
R. Enos	C.	[illegible]
Owlinguish, Malado	R.G.	[illegible]
Cascara	R.T.	[illegible]
Attaidibye	R.E.	[illegible]
Brown	Q.	Fisher, Woodbury
Nelson	L.H.	Pease (C.)
Pablo, Hillman	R.H.	Lavagnino
Attache	F.	Clemens, Mosher

Referee, E. N. Forsythe, Washington and Jefferson; umpire, R. W. Warner, Wisconsin.

WASHINGTON IS STILL UNBEATEN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EUGENE (Or.) Nov. 4.—Coach Gilmour Dobie of the University of Washington's football team has yet to meet a defeat on the gridiron of the Pacific Coast. This afternoon his squad was held to a scoreless tie with the University of Oregon on the local field.

The game for the most part was devoid of thrills for the sloppy condition of the field was such that sure footing by any of the players was an impossibility. A heavy rain started soon after the last quarter began and from then on neither team took any chances.

The outstanding feature of the contest was that no substitutions were made by either team and time out on account of injuries was taken but three times.

CARNEGIE TECH SCARES CORNELL.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ITHACA (N. Y.) Nov. 4.—Carnegie Technology fought every inch of the game with Cornell here this afternoon and the Red and White had difficulty in defeating the fast visitors by a score of 15 to 7.

Aitken Wins 100 mile Sheepshead Bay Race with Miller Carburetor

For close to the hundredth time the Miller carburetor demonstrated its supremacy last week when Johnnie Aitken won the great 100-mile race at Sheepshead Bay, New York. After the race Mr. Aitken rushed a telegram to us in which he said, "The Miller is the king of carburetors." The Miller solves the high-cost-of-gasoline problem. It is automatic in action, economical in operation, simple in construction and permits instant "get away;" uses distillate as well as gasoline.

Whether or Not You Buy a Paterson

—find out all about it, if you are interested in motor cars. For you are going to hear a lot about Paterson cars this season, and it's worth while to be posted on this coming car.

That's why we want everyone in this city who is interested in motor cars to drop in and examine the Paterson, point by point.

The beauty of the Paterson appeals to the refined taste. Its big, comfortable seats mean more than ordinary ease and comfort. Disappearing auxiliary seats can be furnished, when desired, as an extra. Its long, rangy "greyhound" lines indicate a car built for the road.

As to its speed and power, what more need we say than mention the powerful six-cylinder Continental motor?

Every detail of its mechanical construction is standard, high-grade material. Continental Motor, Delco Electric Lighting System, Stewart Vacuum Feed, Stromberg Carburetor are but a few of the names that will indicate to you the standard that has been set in Paterson design and construction.

Only a careful investigation will show you the real merit of this car, and we urge you to make that investigation soon, whether or not you are ready to buy a car just at this time. For it is a real pleasure for us to show you the Paterson car; we are sure of your approval in advance.

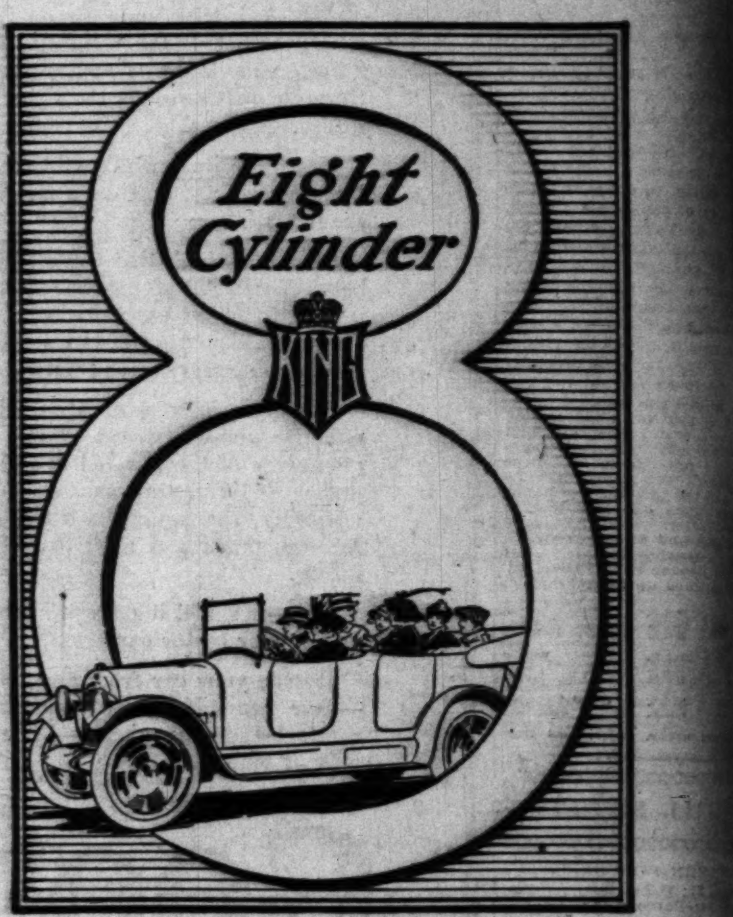
Announcement of Advance in Price



On January first the price of the King Eight will be advanced.

Since our previous announcement there have been enormous increases in the cost of materials.

Practically every material and manufacturing cost has gone up.

Consequently the price of the King Eight will be advanced proportionately with the increase in the cost of manufacturing it under prevailing conditions.

Present prices, however, will prevail on all cars delivered prior to January first.

MR. TWEE DEEDLE

1.—After Dinky Sauriss had dropped the General's house Mrs. Gum Gum went inside and found nothing broken. "Everything is all right!" she cried joyfully and began to dance. This made all the rest feel happy, so they all danced.

2.—Suddenly they stopped dancing, for in the distance they saw Dinky returning with his mamma. "Into the house, quick!" cried Mrs. Gum Gum as she led the way.

3.—Mamma Sauriss and Dinky came up in front of the General's house and sat down. "They are inside!" Dinky cried. Mr. Twee Deedle put his head out of the door. "There's the one who put the salt on my tail, Mamma!" Dinky began crying again.

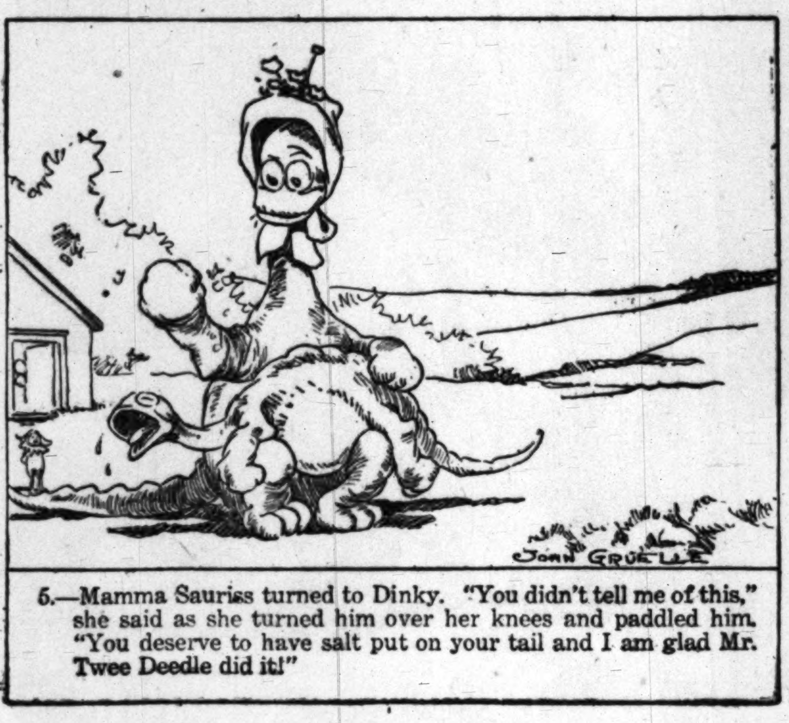
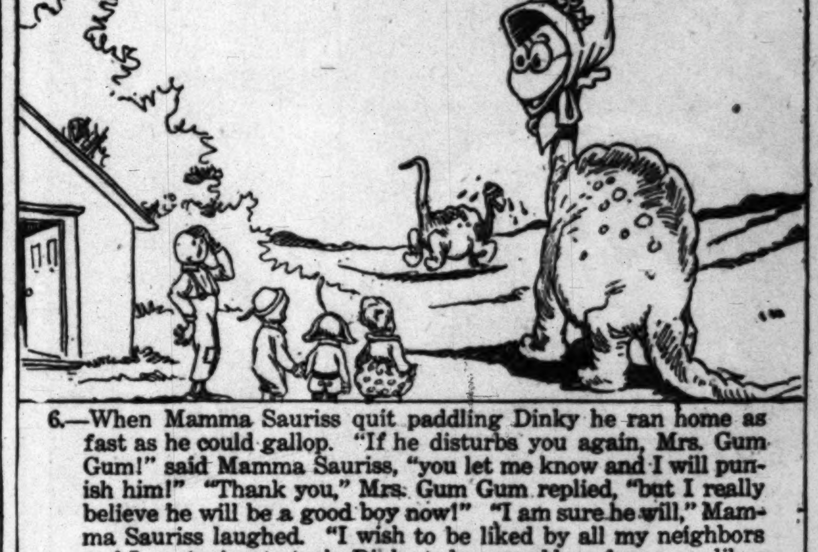
4.—"Why did you put salt on Dinky's tail?" Mrs. Sauriss asked Mr. Twee Deedle as he bravely walked out and faced them. "Because he took the General's house in his mouth and shook us out of it!" replied Mr. Twee Deedle.



JOHN GRUELLE

5.—Mamma Sauriss turned to Dinky. "You didn't tell me of this," she said as she turned him over her knees and paddled him. "You deserve to have salt put on your tail and I am glad Mr. Twee Deedle did it!"



6.—When Mamma Sauriss quit paddling Dinky he ran home as fast as he could gallop. "If he disturbs you again, Mrs. Gum Gum!" said Mamma Sauriss, "you let me know and I will punish him!" "Thank you," Mrs. Gum Gum replied, "but I really believe he will be a good boy now!" "I am sure he will," Mamma Sauriss laughed. "I wish to be liked by all my neighbors and I am trying to train Dinky to be a good boy, for no one likes naughty children!" "The Aid meets at my house next Tuesday. I hope to see you there, Mrs. Gum Gum!" said the kind Mamma Sauriss as she walked away.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME EDITED by MARION HARLAND

AN ANCIENT AND HONORABLE INSTITUTION.

THE letter of C. E. A. concerning spanking for children has called forth such a flood of correspondence that I cannot undertake to print more than extracts from the many letters. They are all interesting and come from teachers, parents, and children.

The post of honor I award to the one who is probably the oldest of the contributors to the question. She states her age at 86 and writes a long and interesting letter, giving her experience with the orphaned family of a sister who died leaving a houseful of little children to be taken charge of for some years by our correspondent. She went with her husband and her 3 year old boy to the bereaved home and did her best to fill the place of the mother.

The first clash arose between the aunt and a girl of 10 or 11 who was insubordinate and impertinent. The aunt did her best to persuade the child to repentance, but without avail. The morning of the second day of effort and argument the strongest appeal possible was made. She said:

"If you are sorry and will tell me so and will promise that so long as I am with you in your mother's place you will obey me and never be impertinent to me again, it will be all right."

"I appealed to her in every way I could," writes this correspondent, "but nothing I could say or do helped the situation. It grieved me, for I had felt we were at one in our bereavement. Her lips were set tight, her eyes were cold as ice, and no word would move her. This was after twenty-four hours of pleading and consideration.

"Lying snugly under my bolster were three good peachtree switches I had provided in case they were needed. I had prayed that they would not be wanted and that God would help us both to do what was right, laying the whole thing on his shoulders. I realize now that he had already done his part in giving me a conscience and brains wherewith to do my duty.

"When I saw she was immovable I quietly turned the key in the door, took out the switches, and told her I was going to whip her. I cannot describe the astonishment in her face and the dismay as she met my eyes. After a moment she came to me, putting her arms around my neck and her face on my shoulder. She promised me with tears and caresses and from that day she kept her word strictly and never, by word or look, did she ever treat me with disrespect. I have now many valued letters from her thanking me for what I did for all of them."

The writer, who signs herself "Grandma," tells of a somewhat similar experience she had with a much younger child who was rebellious and how a spanking brought her to terms. She concludes her letter:

"I have to this day visions of my heels flying in the air when my good, wise mother spanked me when I deserved it. Yes, spanking is an 'ancient and honorable institution,' and I will add, a saving ordinance."

The next letter is much briefer, but to the point:

"I read with pleasure and approval the article on spanking and proper upbringing of children, particularly the comprehensive letter from your interested and interesting correspondent. I thoroughly agree with C. E. A. and deplore the recent tendency to let children do as they please and grow up as they please, much to their own detriment, as well as to that of their parents. Any one going along the streets of any city or village cannot fail to see many instances where the proper enforcement of discipline by spanking or any other means is and was sadly needed, but neglected.

"Take the spectacle of gum chewing 'movie' fiends, young girls especially, that are at large, smart or educated in impudence and general ill-breeding and disregard for anything but their own selfishness. They surely ought to have it spanked out of them!

"Yours for civilized young people,
"Mrs. G. M."

The next letter is no less positive in its utterances:

"The letter written by C. E. A. and printed in the Corner has greatly interested me, and I should like to voice my views on the subject. I most decidedly indorse the old fashioned method of punishing disobedient or unruly children, and I am a mother of five precious ones. My dear parents used the strap or whip on me as well as on my six brothers and sisters, and I do not think there is one of us today who thinks he or she was unfairly dealt with by our parents. For my part, my childhood days are not in such a remote past that my memory fails to recall just how necessary a little 'strap oil,' as my dear daddy used to say, was in my bringing up, and if there was ever any ill feeling toward my parents it was only temporary.

"Like C. E. A., I too think it a shame that this good old fashioned punishment should not continue in the rearing of our young. It is true that a great many parents mete out this sort of punishment only in anger, and of this any sane person would heartily disapprove. From remarks made by my children, after one of them had received a sound spanking, I was brought face to face with the fact 'that it just makes me 'shamed of myself to have to be whipped.'

"Every one who comes in contact with my children notices that they are more dependable than the majority, and although I do not say it is entirely due to the use of the rod, I do claim that it holds a valuable place in our household.

"Mrs. E. B. M."

Another letter takes much the same line of thought, although expressing it differently:

"Your correspondent's letter and your comment on the same are most interesting to all persons who must have a hand in the training of the young. I believe that I have had as much experience as the average person with children. During twelve years as a teacher I made a careful study of psychology and child nature while trying to select the best forms of punishment to be effective in enforcing obedience and industry. I now have four children of my own, and feel that they should not all receive the same kind of punishment and that the same child cannot rightfully be punished at all times or for all offenses by the same punishment. I do not believe in trying to reason with a child after the second offense of the same nature, but I do believe that unless some milder form of punishment is entirely effective the spanking should be administered freely enough to enforce respect for authority.

"I feel sure that the right to spank should not be denied the teacher, because my experience taught me beyond a doubt that some children never need correction if they know a spanking is coming, but would be beyond control by any other means.

"It is to be regretted that we have no way of determining what per cent of crime and miserable poverty is the direct result of home training. I do not believe that the child who has its own will for its guide has anything like an equal chance for moral and intellectual development with the child that is reared under proper discipline in the home.

W. F. D."

Another teacher advances her views:

"I would like to say a few words on spanking from a music teacher's view. When a mother gives me her child to teach, during that period the child is mine, to correct in bad habits as well as in music. That is my duty as a conscientious teacher. The mother of some child may say, 'A teacher shall never whip a child of mine.' But if your child has been under your control for six years and remained a disobedient child there is not much chance of its being any better if wholly under your control for six years longer.

"Then who is going to help the child if the teacher doesn't and how in the name of common sense is the teacher going to correct a child all the time without having to spank or use the switch? There may be a few children whom spanking will not help, but you cannot always tell which they are. If boys and girls could grow up to be perfect men and women without being whipped, why did the Bible say: 'The rod and reproof get wisdom, but a child left to himself brings his mother to shame'? We spank the children because we love them, and I think we owe it to the next generation to spank when it is needed.

A mother gives her views:

"I have read the talk on spanking and must say I agree with C. E. A. I have a boy 9 years old and a girl of 11, and I don't hesitate to say that when they are disobedient they get their spankings in the old fashioned way, although I don't believe in punishing children before company. I am as firm a believer in spanking for naughty children as my dear old auntie who raised me after my mother died, though I am not in favor of it at schools, especially when boys and girls are in the same class.

Mrs. M. H. D."

I have already quoted a grandmother and here is a letter from a mature mother, who holds decided views on the question under discussion:

"'I was raised in an old fashioned spanking family. The punishments were always given wisely and with love and true kindness. They were severe enough, and I know in my case at least were most edifying and helpful. I was often deterred from wrongdoing by remembering what the consequences would be if I transgressed.

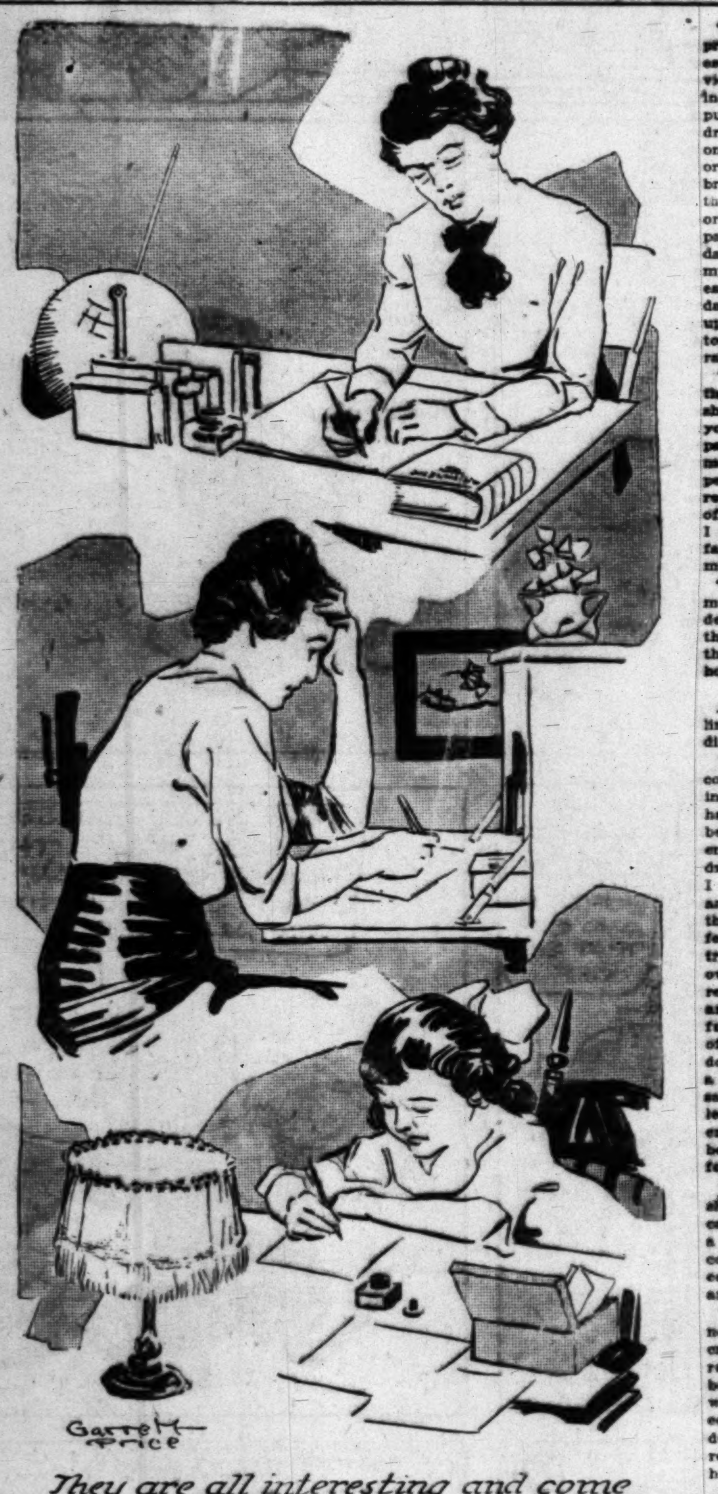
"Always administer the punishment with love and never with anger; take the child to a quiet, secluded room or closet and tell her plainly what you are going to do and why; then administer a sound whipping. A half whipping is no kindness, for it must be somewhat severe to be effective.

"I am 57 years old and have several grown children, who all owe in great measure their good manners and popularity to my never sparing the rod when I thought they needed it. Moral suasion will not always work with a child, or a grown-up either, and to treat a boisterous girl or boy as a finished, experienced person who only needs a few well chosen words to put him or her right when a sound spanking is indicated is not only foolish but is not even true kindness.

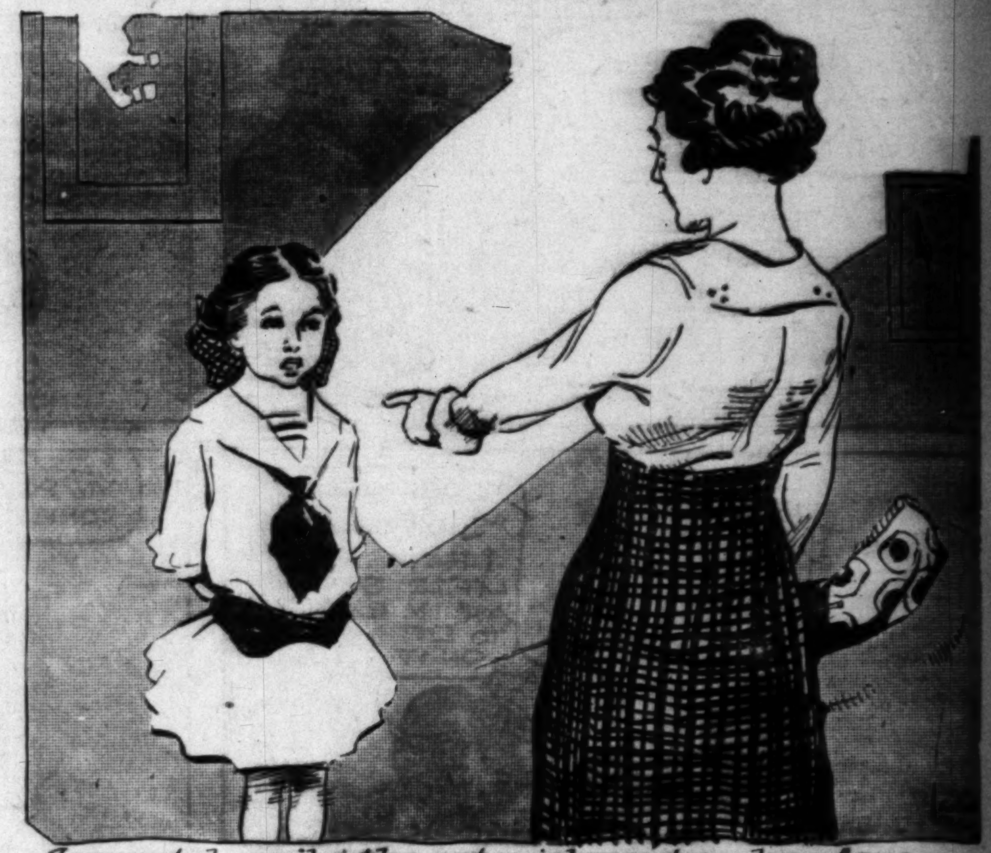
"Mrs. E. G."

I wish that space had permitted me to print more from the letters of which I have used parts. The communication from the last writer was especially rich in examples and incidents.

Let me say frankly that I have been astonished to receive so many letters in favor of spanking and switching. I have had to pick and choose the quotations I would use and discard much that would be entertaining and instructive. In order that each side should have a show, I will give next week the opinions against corporal punishment, although they are in a small minority as compared with the advocates of the old form of discipline.



They are all interesting and come from teachers, parents, and children



I cannot describe the astonishment on her face

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

When an address or other information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send parcels to the office.

Lonely and Wants Letters.

"I AM 15 and live in a little country town, but am lonely and would like some good correspondents. I do love to write and my friends all say I write the dandiest letters! I do hope some of the Cornerites will write to me soon. E. M. K."

Always in printing such requests as these I feel that I must utter a warning. I cannot put young girls in touch with correspondents unless these can show satisfactory records, so to speak. I do not wish to be the means of introducing girls to the wrong kind of friends, even by letter, and although I have no fear of genuine Cornerites I dare run no risks of wolves in sheeps' clothing getting into the flock. I am sure this will be understood and that those who desire to correspond with E. M. K. or others like her will be prompt to write a little account of themselves when requesting her address.

Some Things to Give Away.

"I have wanted to write many times and tell of the real happiness I take in reading the Corner and to speak of the help it has been to me and the longing it has created in my heart to help others. I have wondered what I could do and find I have carpet rags I should be happy to give and some new sample silk pieces I would love to pass on to some dear old lady. I also have a large dictionary and many magazines. If you will put me in communication with some one desiring any of these things I will gladly pass them on, providing the transportation is paid. I am sorry not to be able to do this, but times are a little hard for us just now, but I do not despair, and things are never so hard but in some way one may hold out a helping hand. If any one is in doubt on this let that one read what the Cornerites have to say. The work is a blessed one and God will bless and prosper it. I don't know if what I have written is worthy of space, but such as it is I give to thee, hoping the things I have offered may go to those who will really like them. From time to time I will write of anything else I have that may be useful. I may add that I have an old fashioned electric iron, in perfect order, and it would be fine to have in a sewing room where there is a family in which much pressing is done. It would save carrying an iron back and forth. G. A. J."

This is another one of our generous readers and what she offers is sure to be eagerly accepted. I hope the silk samples may go to the "dear old lady" who is sought. I thank the correspondent for what she says of the Corner and the constituency. Such words of encouragement do us all good.

To Make Home Attractive.

"We have a little home we want to try to pay for during the next two or three years. It will take hard work, but we want to be making the home attractive while we are paying for it. I would like much to receive some flower seeds and cuttings. I have little to offer in return, but I think I could send some china berry seeds to any one who wanted them. We think they are pretty. There are four of us in the family, my husband and myself and two little girls. One is old enough to go to school. A. L. H."

The china berry seeds seem always to be in demand, but even without those I am sure there are some of the constituency who have flower seeds to give away, especially at this season.

Recipe for Malt.

"Can some one send me a recipe for malt—the kind that is used in beer? "M. H."

Can some one supply the recipe for malt? I do not think I have ever seen one.

Conversing with the Deaf.

"Several times lately I have seen in the Helping Hand letters from persons who are deaf. I am a teacher in one of our state institutions for the deaf. There is such a school in every state, free to children of school age living in the state. There are in many states schools or classes for older people whose hearing is gone or is becoming impaired.

"Several ways exist to converse with the deaf. There is the sign language. I can secure a book giving pictures and descriptions of these signs for any one wishing it. The cost of the book is $2. There is also the manual alphabet, or spelling on the hands. Many of you have learned this means of communication in schools and such signs are pictured in the book referred to. Often they can be found in an old dictionary. Many persons do not know these alphabets, but it is always possible to write on paper in order to make known what you wish to say.

"Many of the deaf are learning lip reading, and it is by far the best means of communication. Schools and classes are conducted where lip reading can be studied and there are text books that are a great help if one cannot afford a teacher. The main thing is to be anxious to learn and to try hard to understand every day what people say by watching the lips. It takes a great deal of hard work for some persons to learn this and others acquire it rapidly. But by all means try this method and do not give a thought to remedies and ear trumpets which are in many cases a fake.

"If any of you wish to know more about lip reading or these books or where these schools are, write to the Volta bureau, Volta place, Washington, D. C. Its services are free and any questions will be gladly answered and help given in any way possible. Its advice is always to be relied upon. Or I will answer any letters sent to me. I hope this information will be helpful to Mrs. P. F. H. and to many others. I. B."

This letter should be most welcome to all deaf and near deaf. It is written by one who has nothing to make by the information she gives and the address she supplies of the Volta bureau in Washington is not that of an institution for making money. The counsel is all furnished without cost. I wish to indorse all that is said of the advantages of lip reading over any method of communication between the deaf or between those who are hard of hearing and others who are not. While some ear trumpets and aids of this kind are of undoubted value, there are many cases of deafness absolutely beyond help by any of these means, whereas lip reading is of assistance to all who have the use of their eyes. I shall be glad to send the address of I. B. to any one who writes for it, inclosing this clipping and a stamped and self-addressed envelope for reply. Will those who send her questions kindly accompany their letters by postage and thus spare her expense? It is little enough to do for one who is ready to answer queries.

More Music Wanted.

"I just now read in the paper that L. L. had music which she would be glad to send to any one who would pay the postage. I am a great lover of music and would be delighted to pay postage upon it. "M. M."

I am sorry to say that the music offered by L. L. had been given to another applicant before the above letter was received. Has not some one else music to give this correspondent?

Shirking Home Duties.

"You asked opinions some time ago upon shirking home duties for literary work, for which Mrs. J. M. H. feels she has a talent. Your advice to her, to do her duty first, was good. Instead of allowing herself to dislike the household tasks, why not plan articles or stories while washing dishes or dusting? The mechanical part of housekeeping surely leaves the mind free. I know personally of one woman who propped her songs before her as she ironed and committed the words to memory, practicing her vocal exercises while washing dishes. She also evolved stories, articles and plays while going about her daily work—not tasks! At odd moments, or in the evening, she put her ideas on paper, pruning and correcting as she could. Now, at 60, her children grown, she has hopes of realizing her ambition to please, amuse and help others by her talent. Some of her articles have been published, and her plays have been produced by clubs.

"If Mrs. J. M. H. must write, let it be to make people happier. We do not need 'problem' plays and stories—we need to laugh! The world is so full of hate just now—please induce every one to make some one else laugh from sheer good nature.

"I think Mrs. J. M. H. will find her salvation in the garden she enjoys. Let us hope that it is large enough so that she may grow something to sell or to give away, or both. If she writes now, in her mood of dissatisfaction, she will be likely to express herself and her mood instead of the happy thoughts she really wishes to send out.

"There is so much need for patience and love and so many women neglecting their duty for the sake of selfishly expressing themselves.'

"Do any of you make mint sauce for beets? Here is a recipe for it: One cup of minced mint leaves soaked in one cup of vinegar for an hour, then strained. Boil together the vinegar, half a cup of sugar, one teaspoonful of cornstarch, a little salt and pepper. Pour over the hot sliced beets. It can be served hot or cold.

"I have some music which I shall be glad to send to A. C. if she will tell me what she has studied. Already I have an ordinary music roll, which she may have if she is not already supplied. I am late in my offer, but have just moved to a ranch and have been busy.

"Here is my new motto [from Whittier]:

Give fools their gold and knaves their power;
Let fortune's bubbles rise and fall.
Who sows a field or trains a flower
Or plants a tree is more than all.

"E. R. P."

I am delighted to print this sunny and optimistic and common sensible letter. It ought to help others besides Mrs. J. M. H. I hope A. C. may see the offer of assistance with her music and of the music roll. I am sure a number of us will try the mint sauce with our beets. It is new to me. The last page of E. R. P.'s letter will furnish me with a suggestion for a talk which we shall have before long.

Vocal and Instrumental Pieces.

"I would like to have some songs and instrumental pieces, and I am ready to pay the postage. V. U."

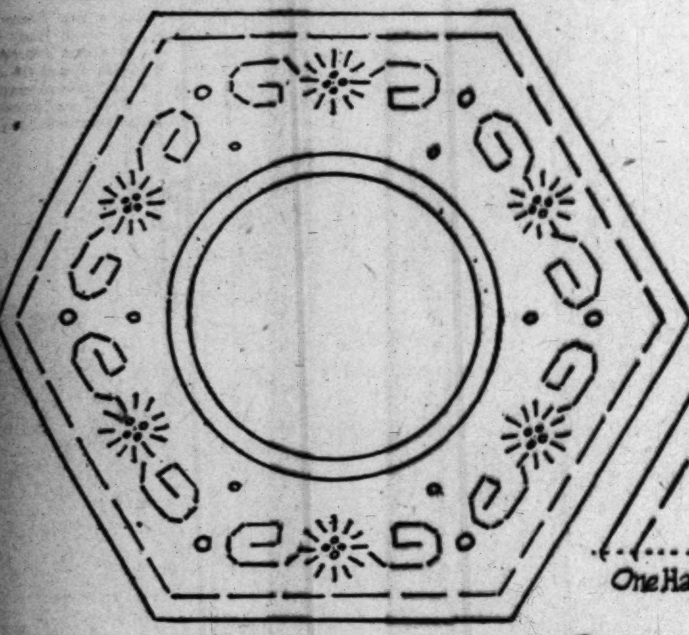
Will some one answer this appeal?

FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

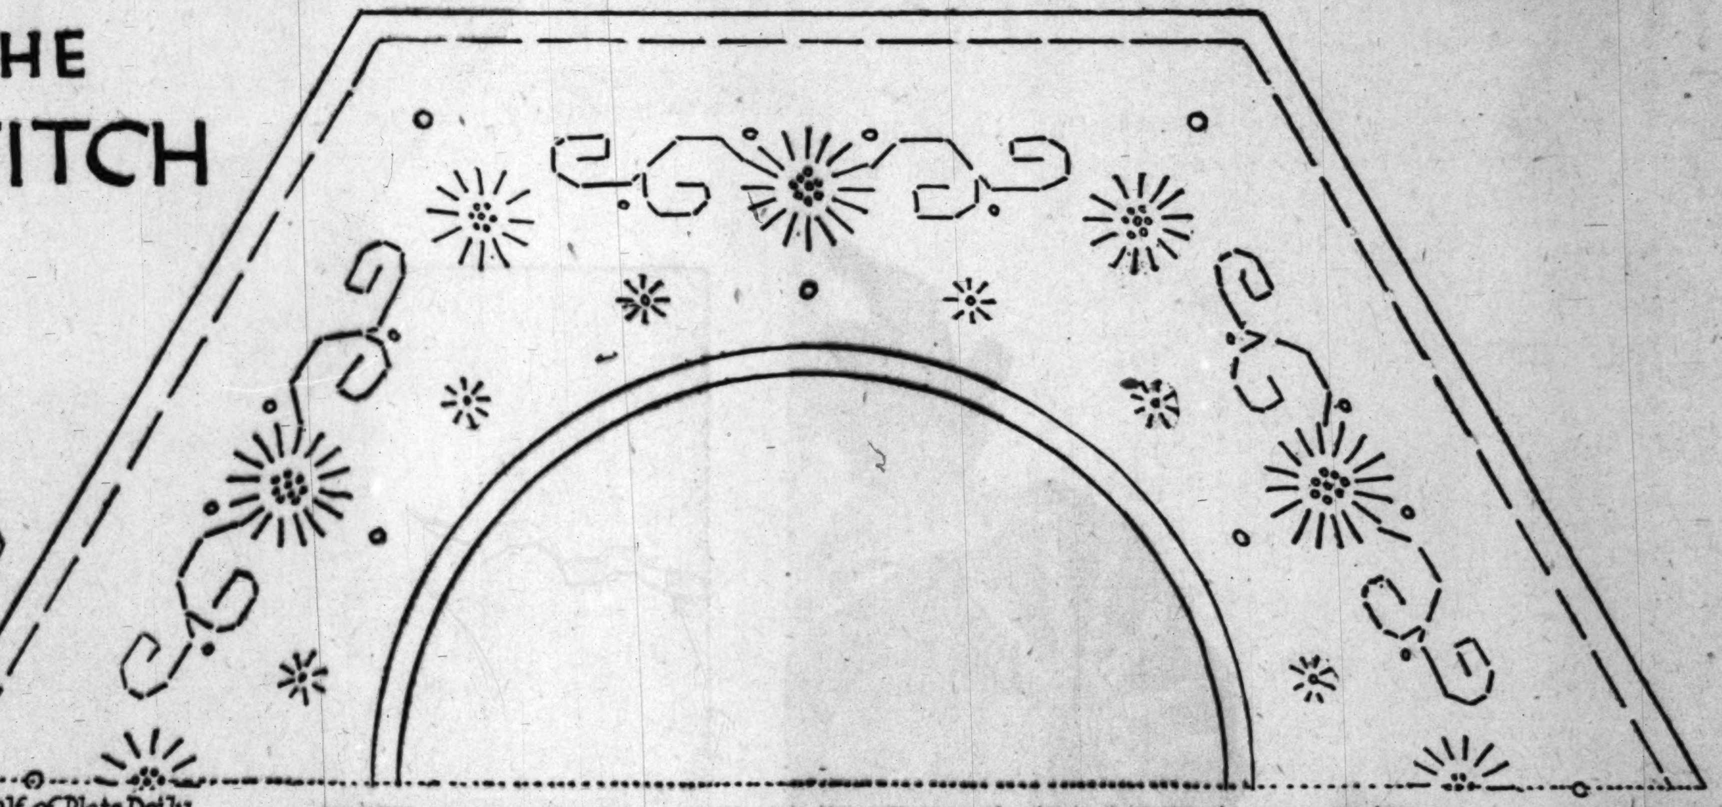
BY ADELAIDE BYRD

DOILIES IN THE POPULAR ONE STITCH

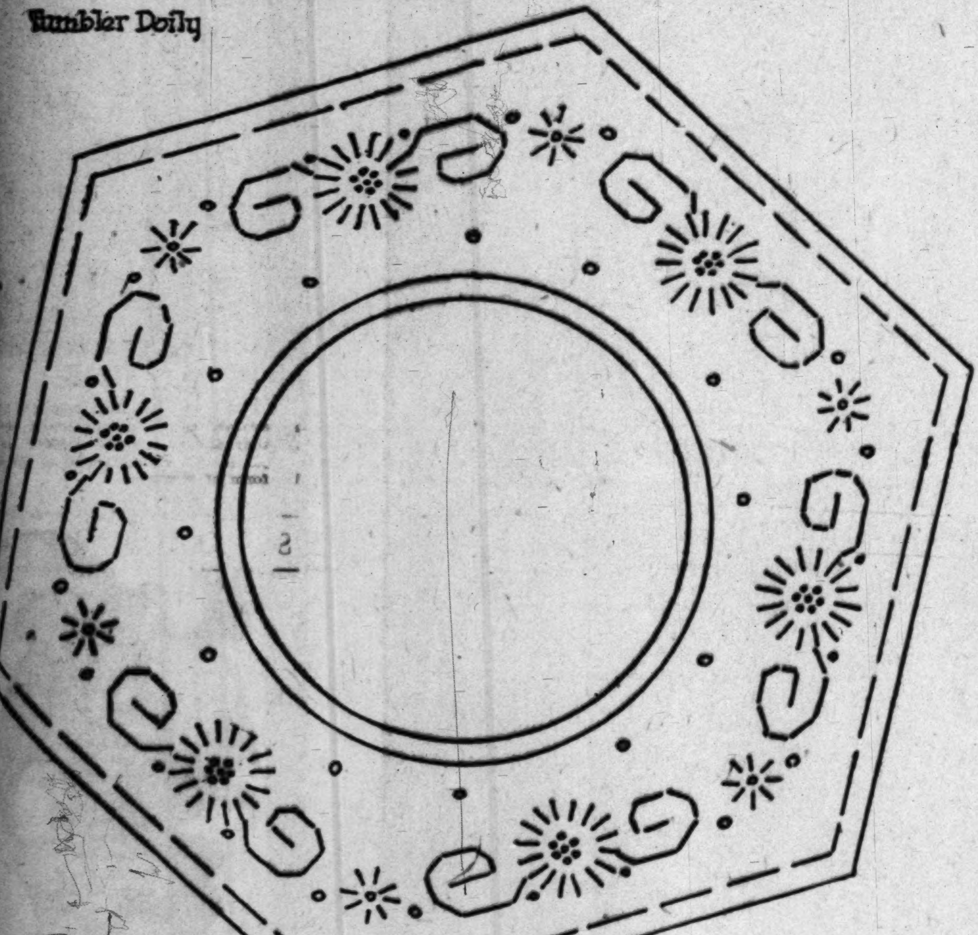
DESIGNED BY E. J. BUCKMAN



Tumbler Doily



One Half of Plate Doily



For the Bread and Butter Plate

THERE are many varieties of embroidery stitches, but the one which has the strongest hold on women just now is the one-stitch. It is easy to understand why this is the case. The stitch is easily executed and the result is very pleasing. This stitch has been the incentive for the offering of the three doily designs which appear on the page today. Besides the attractiveness of the stitch there is the unusual shape of the doilies to be considered. We have given you round doilies and square doilies, but the six-sided ones are novelties.

The matter of introducing color into the set is a personal one, but I believe the result will be more effective if color is used. Can you picture the set embroidered in blue, with here and there a touch of black? Or, if you intend to use the set with yellow or brown tinted china, either color could be used. Or, if a Dresden effect is desired, a number of colors might be introduced very cleverly.

The one-stitch might be called the kindergarten stitch, so easily is it made. For instance, when using it on one of the straight lines giving the sunburst effect, bring your needle up from the wrong side, at one end of the line, carry the thread over to the other end of the line and insert the needle thru to the wrong side, and so on with each line. The broken lines forming the scrolls are worked in the same way. The cluster of tiny circles in the center of the radiating lines should be filled in with French knots; the larger circles scattered about call for the same kind of work. Outline each of the two rings near the center of each doily. If desired, fill in the spaces between the rings with slanting stitches.

A very pretty finish for each doily is the buttonholed edge. When the buttonholing is completed outline the inner edge of the stitches with single stitches, as indicated by the broken line. A crocheted edge is another suggestion for finishing each doily. The edge resembling tatting would be a desirable one, adding a lacy touch to the work.

The following key may be a help in placing the colors, if you desire to use several: Work the scrolls in black; the radiating lines, blue; the centers, yellow; the two circles in the center, one blue and one black. Buttonhole the edge in blue and let the inner broken line be black.

The rapidity with which this work can be done will make it possible for you to begin right away to make a luncheon set for a Christmas gift. The design is here applied to the doilies for the plate, the bread-and-butter plate and the tumbler. Later on you will have it applied to the centerpieces and to asbestos covers. Keep a lookout for these additions to the set.

Let me suggest other uses to which the design for the middle-sized doily might be put. It can be used for a doily for the cup and saucer. It will also be appropriate beneath the finger bowl or the sherbet glass.

And then, if I may jump from articles of the dining room to clothes, I would like to suggest that the motif of the design would serve admirably for ornamenting collar, belt and pockets of your winter frock. I can see it worked up in wool or in beads. You can use the long tube beads for the long lines and the flat beads for the tiny circles.

A GOOD BEGINNING

IF YOU have not yet given thought to your Christmas gifts, begin now and consider the possibilities of a luncheon set. The doilies are offered today. Other articles to complete the set will be given later. And then remember how useful and ornamental an apron can be. There are many suggestions here for the home maker of gifts.

Odd Stitches Distinguish Linens

IT IS the unusual thing that catches the eye, and for this reason every housewife should aim to have the designs which she chooses for her household linen just a little bit out of the ordinary. It may take a little longer, but the result is worth the extra time spent in searching.

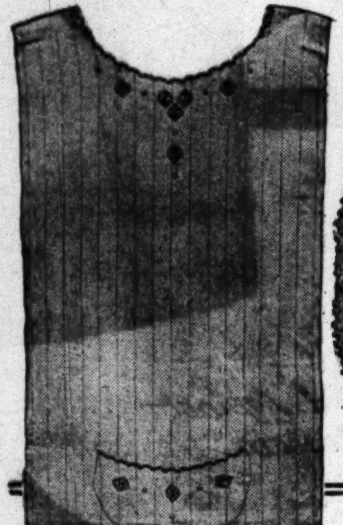
A very attractive square doily can be made by embroidering on it in cross stitches the figure of a Dutch maid or a Dutch boy. Either character provides an opportunity to introduce blue, red and black. For instance, the clothing might be blue, the cap white for the girl and black for the boy. A background of flowers or boats can be tinted with red and the other two colors. The edge of the doily should be finished with crochet stitches.

Net always adds to the appearance of an embroidered article. It is applied in a very unique manner on a centerpiece which is decorated with roses. The roses are placed in groups of two between two deep scallops and the stems of each two are allowed to extend beyond the line of scallops. Beyond this scalloped edge another scalloped line appears, and it is between these two lines that the net is basted on the right side. After the linen is cut away the effect is that of a round net border between the two uneven edges. The stems of the roses are embroidered on the net.

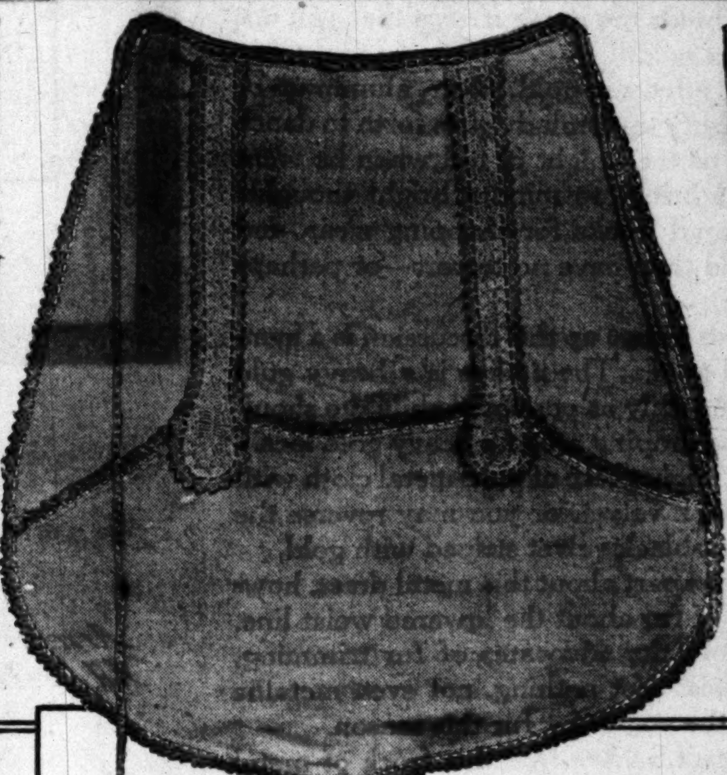
You can make a most exclusive set of guest towels for your home or for your friends' homes by embroidering mottoes on them instead of floral designs or monograms. These mottoes can be quickly embroidered in French knots or outline stitches.

Put These Aprons on Your Christmas List

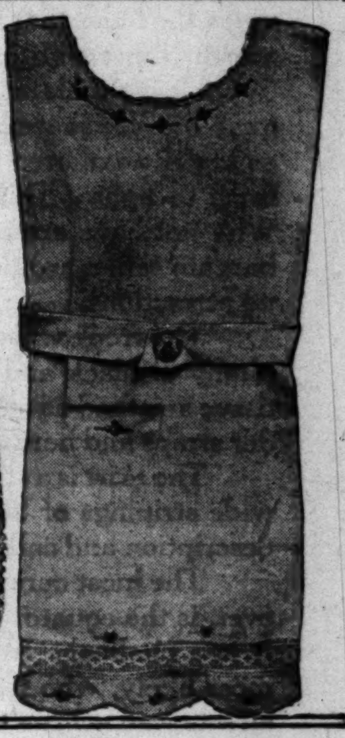
APRONS always make acceptable gifts. As a proof of this, think back over former Christmases and remember how pleased you were over your apron gifts. They always suggested a certain practicality, as well as being artistic and gifty. Goodness knows, there are so many gifts which are foolish, that no wonder one welcomes a nice, sensible apron as a change.



Dish Toweling Makes a Practical "Fudge" Apron



Crochet Trims the Apron Mending Bag



Filet Insertion in Chafing Dish Apron

Last year saw the debut of the fudge apron; this year sees it developed into more than usual artistic effects. Two of the photographs shown with this article are of the well-known fudge or chafing-dish apron variety. One is made from striped dish toweling, and suggests from its very make-up a convenient and becoming little apron, which one can hand to the comfortable guest when she comes into one's kitchen to help with the Sunday evening dishes.

The fudge apron made of toweling is really quite enveloping, and protection enough, surely, for casual dishwashing or the making of fudge or some other chafing-dish concoction. Where the red-and-white striped apron is ornamented only by a little red embroidery in the form of scallops and some conventional designs around the neck and on the pocket, placed conveniently in front, the other panel apron calls for an inset of filet lace crochet.

This apron is made from a linen or soft crash toweling in natural color. The tiny bunches of flowers are embroidered in French knots and lazy-daisy stitches with vari-colored cottons. Around the neck, the pocket top and the scalloped bottom of the apron is a finish of crochet stitches, which may be done with the crochet needle or cleverly imitated with the embroidery needle. Blue cotton is used, and the edge may be either single crochets and a series of chain stitches thru the material, with an occasional picot, or the same effect in buttonhole stitches.

The filet pattern is simple, and is crocheted just long enough to be set into the apron bottom. It is done with white or natural-colored linen thread. The back of this apron finishes like the regulation fudge apron, being pleated into the belt, which passes around and buttons in the front.

Of linen or crash is the round mending apron so daintily finished with crochet stitches. The apron is first cut in the shape photographed, and the pocket also. The two are laid together and buttonholed into place, the same buttonholing being used to finish all the rest of the apron edge as well as the edge of the pocket. After the buttonholing is finished, a white crochet thread is used to work a filet mesh with the crochet needle all around on top of the buttonholing. Then a blue thread is crocheted in shells thru these filet loops, each "shell" consisting of one single, one double, a picot of one chain, a double and a single again.

The pocket is not attached to the apron, except at the edges, being held in place by the crocheted straps of blue-and-white cotton hung from the belt. Any expert crocheter can make a strap of this kind by crocheting a sufficient length of chain, working on both sides of it with single crochets, thru these singles small loops of chains, thru these chains groups of doubles, then a filet mesh and then the colored edge of shells. To make the rounded end of the strap, it will be necessary when filling the chain on both sides with singles to gradually enlarge toward the end with doubles, triples, double triples, quadruples, etc., according to the descriptions of these stitches in any crochet book.

A beading is made at the top with regulation filet mesh stitches, and thru it is run a blue cord of heavier blue cotton floss, merely chained the proper length and finished with a blue crocheted ball.

Listen, Filet Workers!

HERE is something that will interest you in your search for the different in filet crochet. It is called "rose filet," and might be described as filet with a rose point. The pattern is easily followed, for it being a mathematical design, every [illegible] a group of four meshes in [illegible] square being filled in solid with [illegible].

The roses are made separately and about as easy crochet work as one could wish. A circle of six or [illegible] chains is first crocheted and [illegible] spokes of doubles with chains [illegible] make an open wheel. The [illegible] of this wheel is gone over with [illegible] and picots to form an edge [illegible] the whole rose is merely tacked [illegible] on top of the square of solid [illegible]. It gives the same effect as [illegible] roses in Irish crochet, and you [illegible] to coax the rose to stand out [illegible] the filet after it has been [illegible].

A nightgown or chemise yoke in [illegible] is too pretty for words, and [illegible] a suggestion for the crocheter [illegible] hates to follow too involved a pattern.

Embroidery Imitates Japanese Prints

THERE is a new embroidery pattern which has, without a doubt, its inspiration in one of the lovely Japanese prints. The effect is accomplished by embroidering on a smudgy background of brownish black (looking like a scorch) a chrysanthemum and [illegible] design in black, white and pale [illegible] colors. The soft background always seen in Japanese art is done here [illegible] a color print process; but a girl [illegible] knows enough of oil paints, or of dyes, could get the same effect [illegible] a soft wide brush. Her embroidery design should be stamped afterward and worked always in pale Japanese tones of lustrous silks. Cherry [illegible], wistaria or any of the familiar Japanese patterns could be treated the same way.

THE LITTLE GIFT

ADD these to your gift list for Christmas:

A silk shirt for a girl friend. Many girls are making these of white or flesh-colored jersey silk. Each vest requires three-quarters of a yard of material. They are made perfectly straight, with a facing at the top thru which a ribbon is run. Ribbon straps are added for the shoulders. A silk edge may be crocheted to make them more ornate, and a spray of embroidery in self-colored floss will add wonderfully to the general effect.

A man friend or member of the family will not stick up his nose at a crocheted collar box. Buy a round wooden or tin box large enough to hold a generous supply of collars, and deep enough for a collar at least three inches high. Make a round disk of tan linen large enough to just fit the bottom. To this crochet around and around a plain filet mesh in ecru thread; or, better still, use a filet banding with a simple pattern and attach it to the linen bottom afterward. The top of the lid should be a round medallion of filet crochet in the proper size, helped out with a band of linen around the side of the lid if time is a consideration. Otherwise a small linen banding may be crocheted separately and attached to the medallion top. The box should be lined with a dark brown or green sateen.

Gifts the Children Will Like

IT ISN'T a bit too early to begin those important decisions about Christmas gifts. What to give Uncle Harry and Cousin Nell will keep you awake nights unless you begin now to register all suggestions for gifts, keeping them in mind or in your shopping note book until you have occasion to use them.

You will have several young nieces or nephews on your list without a doubt. There are many very appropriate things to keep in mind for them. First there is a bubble set, all packed neatly in a little painted wooden box. Buy a small sugar or salt box, and with a little oil paint give it a coat of bright color. When this is dry paint a black silhouette figure of a little child blowing bubbles. You can get your idea from an advertisement in a magazine or elsewhere. Then buy several wooden or clay bubble pipes, a cake of good white soap and a rubber apron, making the latter from rubber sheeting if you prefer. Wrap each in a separate piece of colored tissue paper and pack in the painted box. A wool set can be treated in the same way. The box is painted with two children playing horse. Inside are hanks of bright wools with a spool for weaving the horselines which all children love.

Another gift idea for the older boy is a tool apron. Make it of heavy denim or jean and bind it with cotton tape. The shape of the apron is an oblong, with two bound flaps, which tie around the waist when the apron is opened. Across the entire front a pocket is stitched into many compartments, into which small tools of every description are placed. The bib ties around the neck with tape. When the apron is removed, the side flaps may be folded in and the apron rolled into a compact tool kit, the bib wrapping round it and its strings of tape serving to tie the rolled kit securely.

The little girl will be made happy with a doll dressmaking outfit. Take a cardboard box of good heavy material about three inches deep and a foot square. Cover it all with a small printed cretonne and line it with a bright-colored cambric. With straps of the cambric stitch compartments to hold such things as several varieties of materials, thimble, scissors (not too sharp), a small needle book, tiny spools of colored silks and cottons, bits of lace and ribbon, etc. Add to this box one of the small "dressable" dolls, and your little girl will crow with delight so early on Christmas morning.

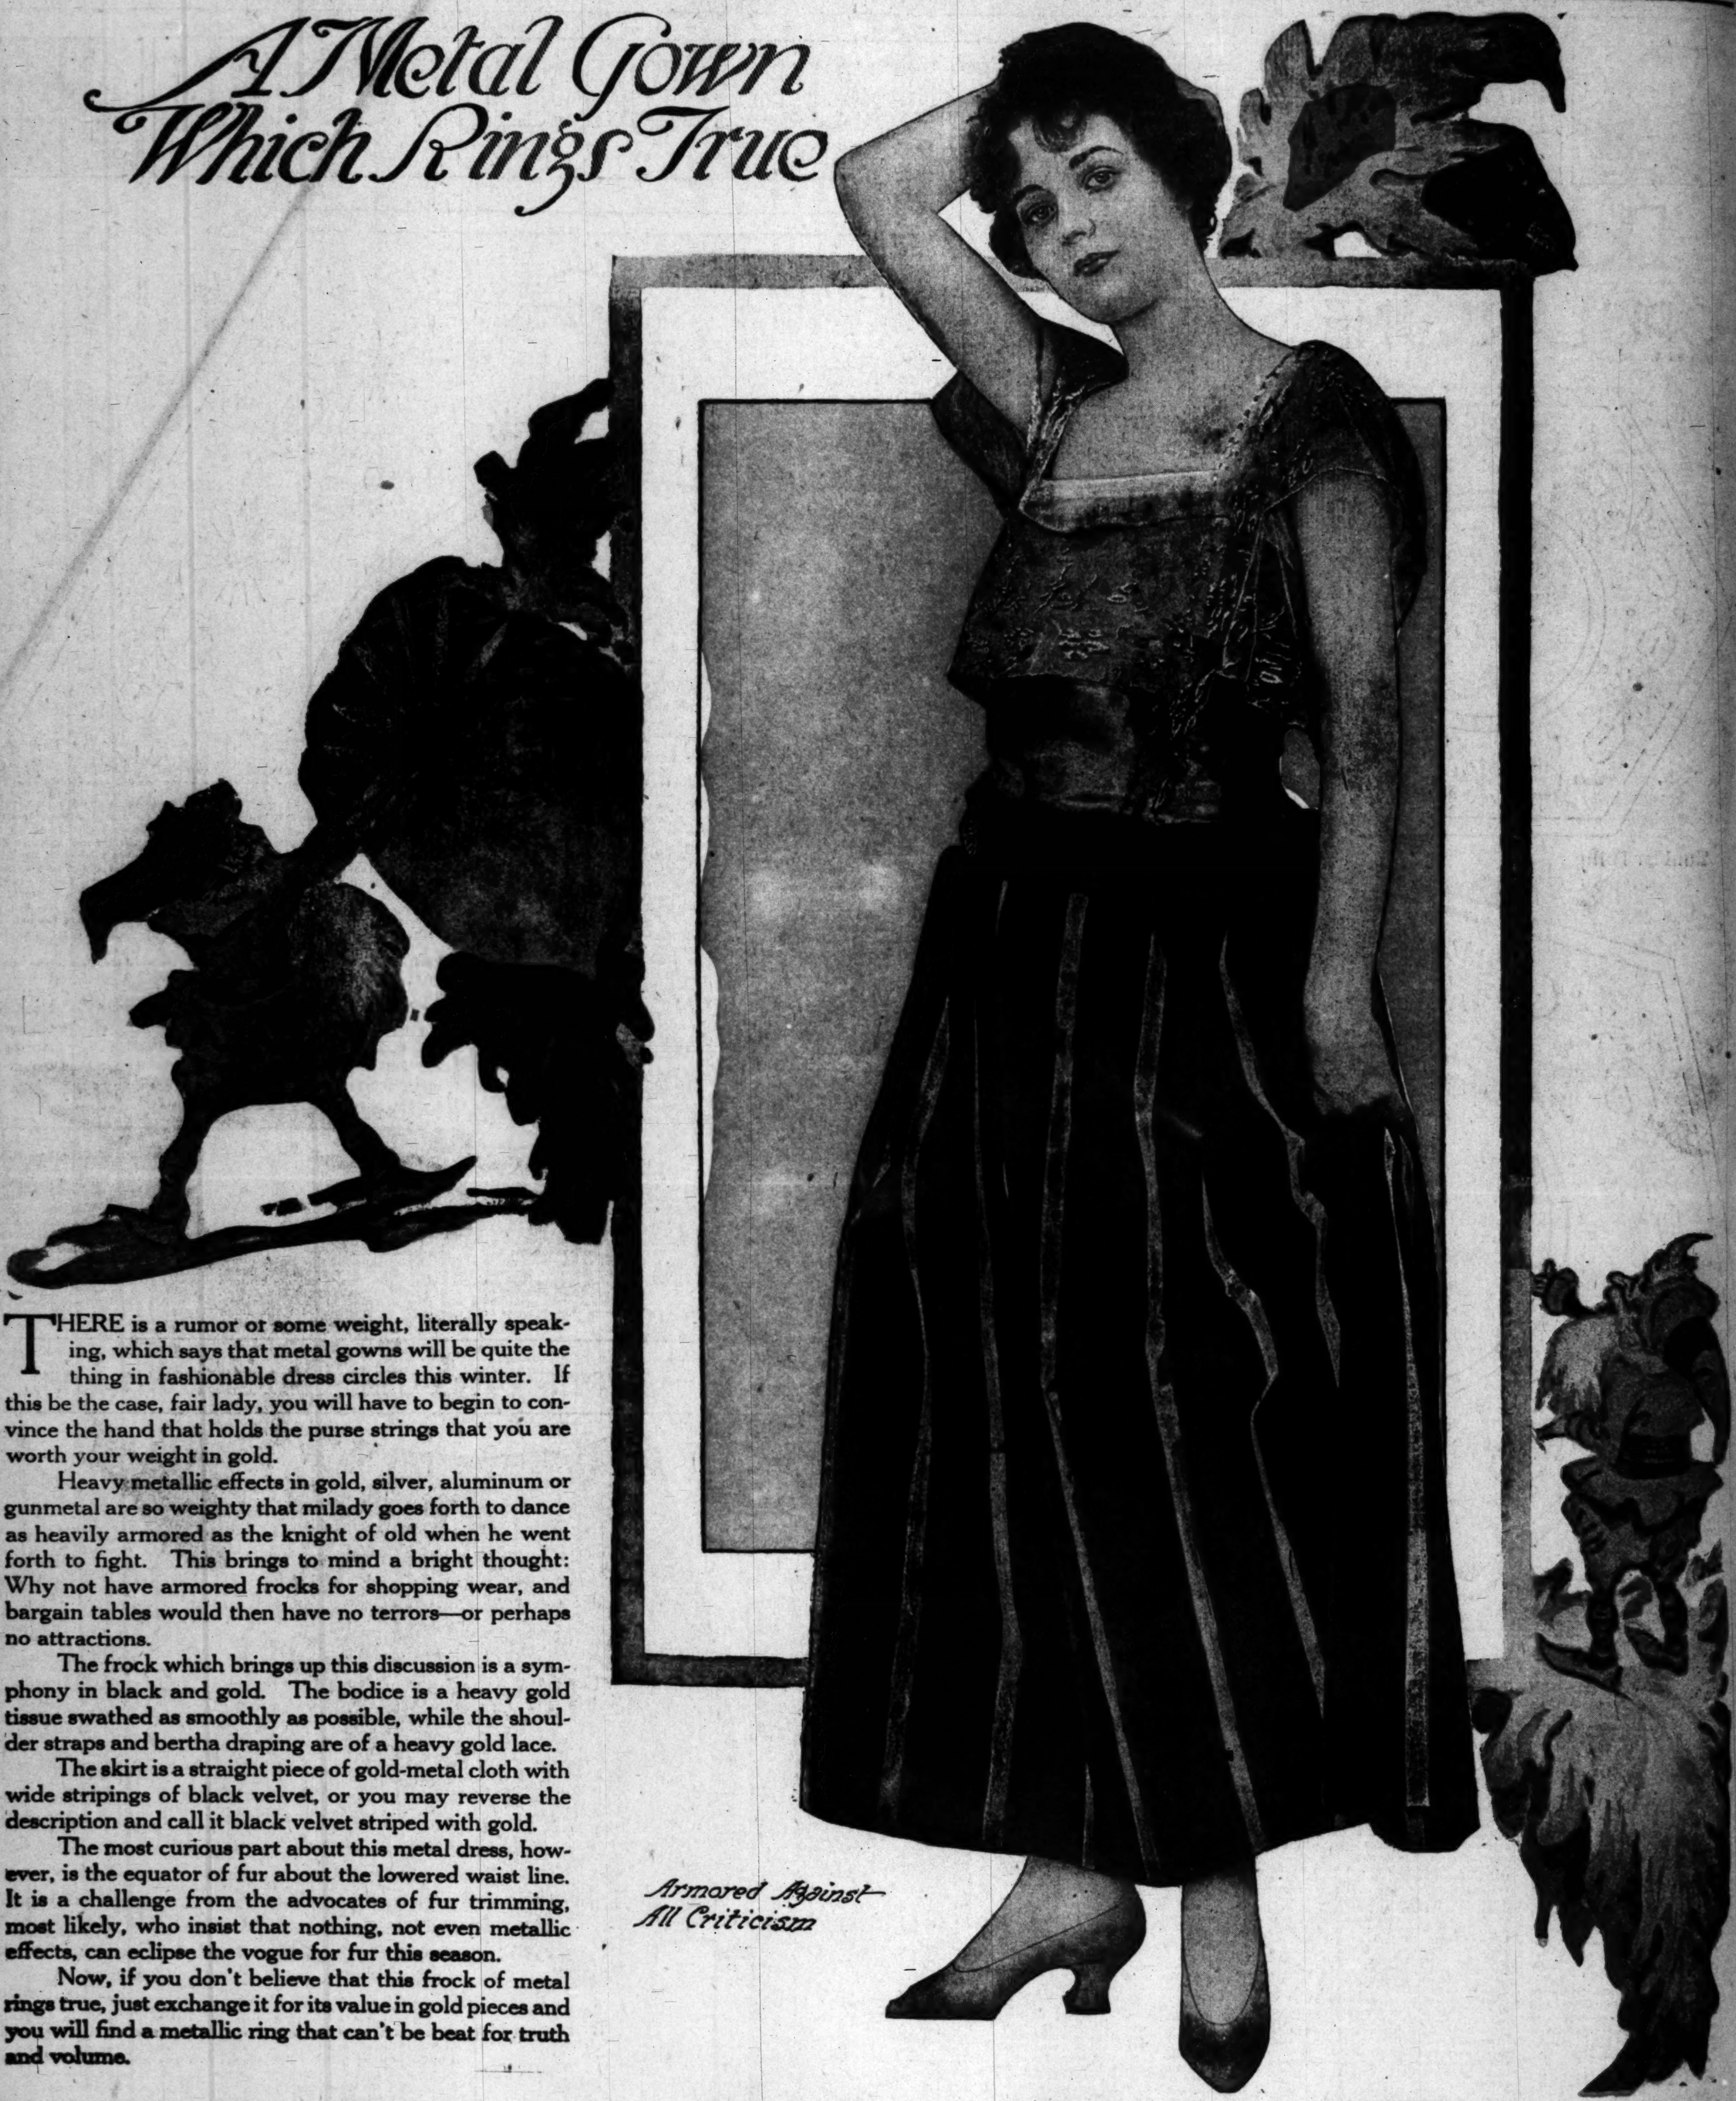
How to Transfer

HERE are suggestions for transferring the design before you to any material.

Perhaps the easiest way is the "window-pane" method. This is successful when the material is thin, like linen, batiste, etc. Pin the sheet of paper and the material together and hold them up against the glass of a window. With a sharp pencil draw on the material the design, which can be easily seen thru the goods. If one-half of the design only is given, unpin the paper and turn the other side to the fabric.

If you have carbon paper you should place the sheet between the fabric and the newspaper. The latter is on top. With a sharp pencil go over the outline of the design. The impression will be left in fine lines and will last until worked.

A Metal Gown Which Rings True



Armored Against All Criticism

THERE is a rumor of some weight, literally speaking, which says that metal gowns will be quite the thing in fashionable dress circles this winter. If this be the case, fair lady, you will have to begin to convince the hand that holds the purse strings that you are worth your weight in gold.

Heavy metallic effects in gold, silver, aluminum or gunmetal are so weighty that milady goes forth to dance as heavily armored as the knight of old when he went forth to fight. This brings to mind a bright thought: Why not have armored frocks for shopping wear, and bargain tables would then have no terrors—or perhaps no attractions.

The frock which brings up this discussion is a symphony in black and gold. The bodice is a heavy gold tissue swathed as smoothly as possible, while the shoulder straps and bertha draping are of a heavy gold lace.

The skirt is a straight piece of gold-metal cloth with wide stripings of black velvet, or you may reverse the description and call it black velvet striped with gold.

The most curious part about this metal dress, however, is the equator of fur about the lowered waist line. It is a challenge from the advocates of fur trimming, most likely, who insist that nothing, not even metallic effects, can eclipse the vogue for fur this season.

Now, if you don't believe that this frock of metal rings true, just exchange it for its value in gold pieces and you will find a metallic ring that can't be beat for truth and volume.

Mary Pickford Art Panel

POMPEIAN BEAUTY

Mary Pickford—"The Queen of Motion Pictures"—has granted to the makers of Pompeian toilet preparations the special permission to offer the first Mary Pickford Art Calendar. Size 28 x 7¼ inches. Art Store value, 50c. Our price 10c. Please clip the coupon below.

To Miss Pickford:—We here publicly acknowledge our gratitude. We deeply appreciate the trust you have placed in us, and assure you that we have spared no expense to produce in exquisite colors an Art Panel worthy of the girlish charm and beauty of you, the world's most popular woman.

"Don't Envy; Use Pompeian"

Many men and women wonder how certain people always look so attractive as to complexion. Such people merely envy,—and stop at that. Don't envy; use Pompeian MASSAGE Cream or Pompeian NIGHT Cream.

Very likely you are not really faithful in trying to overcome the effects of worry, climate, dust, hard-water or oncoming age.

Be good to your skin, and things will be lots easier for you, because you will then look successful and attractive, and that is half the battle in winning friends and promotion. "Don't envy; use Pompeian."

Some people like one of our creams; some like both. Samples sent for you to test. Use the coupon, please.

Clear Skin, Youthful Glow, comes from

Pompeian MASSAGE Cream

As Pompeian MASSAGE Cream rolls in and out of the skin in its own peculiar way it brings a clear athletic glow that suggests healthy vigor and clean living.

Oily skins in particular are benefited by Pompeian MASSAGE Cream, because it cleanses the pores of oily secretions.

In short, Pompeian MASSAGE Cream invigorates, purifies and youth-i-fies the skin. Jars, 50c and up, at the stores. (This cream is pink.)

Velvety Softness of Skin comes from

Pompeian NIGHT Cream

The habit of nightly use of Pompeian NIGHT Cream will make and keep the skin fair, soft and youthful. But you must be faithful. A little left on the face every night brings beauty while you sleep.

Dry skins in particular are benefited by Pompeian NIGHT Cream. So pure! So soft! So white! Try Pompeian NIGHT Cream tonight.

It also solves the complexion problem of women who motor. Motorists' tubes 25c. Jars 35c and 75c, at the stores.

Samples of both creams sent with each Mary Pickford Art Panel. Please use the coupon.

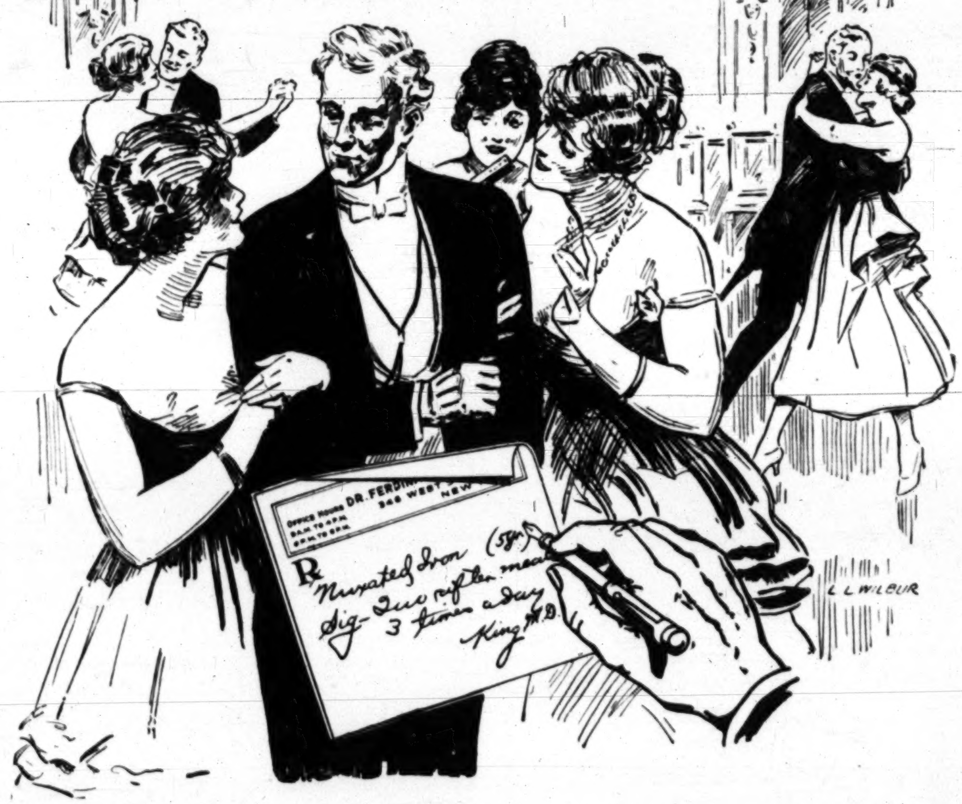
Nuxated Iron to Make New Age of Beautiful Women and Vigorous Iron Men

Say Well-Known Physicians---Quickly Puts Roses Into the Cheeks of Women and Most Astonishing Youthful Power Into the Veins of Men---It Often Increases the Strength and Endurance of Delicate, Nervous, "Run-Down" Folks 200 Per Cent. in Two Weeks' Time.



A Wonderful Discovery Which Promises to Mark a New Era in Medical Science.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Since the remarkable discovery of organic iron, Nuxated Iron or "Fer Nuxate," as the French call it, has taken the country by storm. It is conservatively estimated that over five million persons daily are taking it in this country alone. Most astonishing results are reported from its use by both physicians and laymen. So much so that well-known doctors predict that we shall soon have a new age of far more beautiful, rosy-cheeked women and vigorous iron men.

Dr. King, a well-known New York physician and author, when interviewed on the subject, said: "There can be no vigorous iron men without iron. Pallor means anemia. Anemia means iron deficiency. The skin of anemic men and women is pale. The flesh flabby. The muscles lack tone; the brain fags and the memory fails and often they become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy. When the iron goes from the blood of women, the roses go from their cheeks.

"In the most common foods of America, the starches, sugars, table syrups, candies, polished rice, white bread, soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti, tapioca, sago, farina, degerminated cornmeal, no longer is iron to be found. Refining processes have removed the iron of Mother Earth from these impoverished foods, and silly methods of home cookery, by throwing down the waste pipe the water in which our vegetables are cooked, are responsible for another grave iron loss.

"Therefore, if you wish to preserve your youthful vim and vigor to a ripe old age, you must supply the iron deficiency in your food by using some form of organic iron, just as you would use salt when your food has not enough salt."

Dr. Sauer, one of the most widely-known physicians in this country, who has studied abroad in great European medical institutions, said: "As I have said a hundred times over, organic iron is the greatest of all strength builders. If people would only throw away patent medicines and nauseous concoctions and take simple nuxated iron, I am convinced that the lives of thousands of persons might be saved who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, consumption, kidney, liver, heart trouble, etc. The real and true cause which started their disease was nothing more nor less than a weakened condition brought on by a lack of iron in the blood.

"Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with a blood pressure of a boy of twenty and as full of vigor, vim and vitality as a young man; in fact, a young man he really was, notwithstanding his age. The secret, he said, was taking iron—Nuxated Iron had filled him with renewed life. At thirty he was in bad health; at forty-six he was care worn and nearly all in. Now at fifty a miracle of vitality and his face beaming with the buoyancy of youth. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking, just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while double their strength and endurance and entirely rid themselves of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this, after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate, or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. The iron demanded by Mother Nature for the red coloring matter in the blood of her children is, alas! not that kind of iron. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete and prize-fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the affray; while many another has gone down in inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron."

Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques another New York physician, said: "I have never before given out any medical information or advice for publication, as I ordinarily do not believe in it. But in the case of Nuxated Iron I feel I would be remiss in my duty not to mention it. I have taken it myself and given it to my patients with most surprising and satisfactory results. And those who wish quickly to increase their strength, power and endurance will find it a most remarkable and wonderfully effective remedy."

NOTE—Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians in such a great variety of cases, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians both in Europe and America. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in nuxated iron, that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron, and increase their strength 200 per cent or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed by all good druggists.—Adv't.

Are Your Nerves Always "On-Edge", Are You Cross, Irritable?

If that's your condition it's time to take immediate action. To ignore Nature's warning may mean a nervous breakdown that will require weeks and months of rest and a complete cessation of all business activities to overcome. No man can properly attend to his business duties or fight life's battles with shattered nerves. His whole system is affected—digestion becomes impaired, blood impoverished and he loses self-control, courage, poise.

The Strain of Social Life Draws Heavily on the Nerves

Balls, parties, receptions and other social functions, as well as business cares, draw heavily on the nervous system. This, in time, affects the digestive organs; insomnia comes on and general nervous breakdown follows. Men and women in all walks of present day life need a mild tonic and sedative that will soothe as well as strengthen the shattered nerves. Equally urgent is the need of concentrated food that will aid digestion and build up the wasted tissues of the emaciated body.

Pabst Extract is an Ideal Tonic and Sedative and meets the requirements of nervous cases perfectly. It is the choicest hops and barley malt fortified with calcium hypophosphite and iron pyrophosphate. It is the one perfect tonic and nerve food. It soothes and strengthens the nerves, aids digestion, enriches the blood and gives tone and vigor to every part of the body. Best of all, it insures quiet, peaceful sleep which is so essential in overcoming nervousness. The hops have an excellent tonic value and stimulate the digestive fluids. The way is thus prepared for the proper assimilation and digestion of the food you eat and hastens your recovery. Pabst Extract, The "Best" Tonic, is tissue-building food as well as a tonic, and is endorsed by leading physicians throughout the United States.

Try a Dozen Bottles. Order From Your Druggist Today

—and be sure to insist upon Pabst Extract—The "Best" Tonic. One bottle will not repair the ravages of months and years but its continued use means an even pulse, clear eye, good digestion, sound sleep, accurate thinking. Take a wineglassful before meals and at bedtime—you will be more than pleased with results. Pabst Extract is also recommended for insomnia, anaemia, dyspepsia, old age, motherhood and for convalescents.

One Dozen Bottles

We will be glad to send you a free booklet explaining all the benefits and uses of Pabst Extract if you will write for it.

"Taken the pearls"; she seemed unable for a moment to understand the truth of the matter or grasp the full infamy of it. Then it came to her in all its horribleness and nakedness. Her father, lying there dead and helpless, had been robbed. The pearls were his treasure, his pride, the things he had worked and slaved for, his chief possession. Not for a moment did she think of herself or what the loss would mean to her.

She sat down by the table and buried her face in her hands. Markham, standing before her, waited motionless, listening to the inferno of sound that was developing outside. The wind had risen to hurricane force. It was coming from the south and was passing over the island from the lagoon mouth northward, and its lamentable cry had risen now to a scream, the steady, ceaseless scream of a maniac, a sound that, once heard, could never be forgotten. It had beaten the sea flat, but now it was piling the waves before it, helped by the tide; the whole Pacific seemed crowding up to enter the lagoon and the waves on the inner beach were falling ten feet high.

He knelt down beside the girl and took both her hands in his and kissed them.

"Listen," said he. "They have gone out into that. Listen to the lagoon! If it is like that here, what must it be outside?" It seemed to him that the wrath of Levasseur was out there in the night.

IV

At daybreak the wind, no longer a hurricane but a full gale, had blown nearly every rag of cloud from the sky. Markham, who had gone back to his hut and who had fallen into an uneasy sleep, was suddenly awakened by the crying of the natives outside. He made out the words "Ship—ship," and coming out he saw the blaze of the newly risen sun across the reef, the blue sky, the great green, racing waves, and bearing into the lagoon, lifted on a great roller, the Cormorant.

She had fought the storm, but her rotten spars had betrayed her; then, almost dismasted, in the trough of the sea, she had managed, by some miracle, to put her stern to the gale and run before it with a rag of canvas on her main mast stump.

Markham saw her lift and vanish and lift again, but the tide, which was flooding out of the lagoon, made a tumble with the incoming rollers that slewed her round and twisted her with a movement sickening to see. She turned broadside onto the watchers and then rolling over in a great boost of spray, shewed her weed-grown copper to the sun-blaze; the keel shewed and Markham at that sight, forgetting everything but the horror of it, cried out and gasped for breath like a man who is being dashed with ice-cold water.

Nothing is more awful than the sight of a capsizing ship, keel to the sky.

He watched the horrible humped mass washed like the back of a whale; then from the stern came a jet of foam just like the spouting of a whale and then—there was nothing.

Nothing but the tumbling green water and dark spots of wreckage.

* * * * *

Towards noon the body of Kitchin was washed up on the beach, a life-belt round him and the two cash-boxes tied to him with a lanyard. Not a pearl was missing.

They buried him in the grove to the north of the house, and the pious Kanakas, who erected a wooden cross over the grave, completed their business by a touch of quite unconscious humor, for they hung wreath-wise on the cross the life-belt that had failed to save its wearer's life and on which was written in white letters the word:

CORMORANT

No tomb ever bore a more fitting inscription, and Markham let it stand. During the destruction of the schooner he had felt as though watching the rage of Levasseur materialized a wreaking vengeance on the robber, and now the fortuitous erection of this inscription seemed to him as though it were an emanation of the dead man's humor, for Levasseur, besides his ferocious temper, had possessed a very lively and caustic

After the War—What?

By James Davenport Whelpley

Author of "The Trade of the World," etc.

THE material interests of the people of America are deeply concerned with the outcome of the war in Europe, for at its close the foreign trade of the world will be reconstructed along unfamiliar lines. It is impossible to prophesy accurately what is going to happen, but certain facts have already established themselves, and from these it is not difficult to make a number of deductions startling in what they suggest as to the possibilities of the future.

There is nothing in the present situation to warrant the belief that the annual foreign trade of the United States in manufactured goods will be any greater for some time after the war than it was in 1913. The figures of the war period must be ignored entirely in making any estimates as to the total trade to be had in the days of peace to come. They may be used, however, in estimating certain losses which are inevitable.

In the after-the-war imports of all European countries will be reflected the effects of conditions prevailing during the war period. There will be for a time a large import of such goods as have been denied to the warring peoples, and also of commodities the home production of which has been decreased or entirely suspended owing to the war. The totals of these will not be sensationally great, however.

The enormous import and manufacture by the European nations of all kinds of machinery during the war will constitute a supply ready to hand which, with some modifications, will serve for the days of reconstruction. At the present time England, France, Germany, Austria and Italy are vast workshops employing millions of skilled mechanics and trained laborers and equipped with the best and all the machinery that could be made or bought anywhere and at any price. Munitions of all kinds, mechanical army equipment, clothing, boots and shoes and everything else that is used in carrying on a war is being turned out in quantities far beyond the normal absorptive power of all the nations ordinarily engaged in foreign trade. These plants can be adapted not only to supplying the home needs of the people in many lines of manufacture but to produce for export in large quantities and at low price. Plans have already been made by some of the old established firms, whose factories are now many times larger than they were two years ago, to meet these after-the-war conditions.

WHEN hostilities cease all the countries now at war will be quickly in the market for increased food supplies to reduce the cost of living. Germany will probably be the most eager buyer of raw material. While the export of these raw material supplies and food stuffs from America may be unusually heavy for a time, it is not a kind of export especially valuable to America, as it keeps prices up to the benefit of a few and increases the cost of living to many. It represents the minimum employment of labor as compared with the value of the output.

What America wants is an increased foreign trade in manufactured goods, and to get it will require even more effort in the future than in the past. In Europe every thought and effort not given to carrying on the war is now concentrated upon the making of plans and even actual preparation for the near future when industry is to be rebuilt along normal lines, several million men are to return to work, and the individual and national income will need to be developed to the highest possible point to meet the burden of taxation that will remain as an aftermath of the struggle at arms.

During the war America has gained some foreign trade in South America at the expense of Europe. Some of this, but not all of it, may be held, but when England and Germany really settle down to the business of getting back the trade they have thus lost, the same reasons that prevailed for America not having this trade before the war will operate largely to prevent her from holding it. It has been acquired through the temporary weakness of trade rivals and not through any sudden or special development of strength on the part of the foreign trading ability of the United States.

IN western Europe there are about four hundred million people, who in ante-bellum times, imported two billion dollars' worth of goods more than they exported. The purchasing power of all these peoples, with the possible exception of the Russians, is going to be less in the immediate future. In other words, the war will set Europe back in the matter of purchasing power to where it was in the days of Queen Victoria and the return to the point reached in 1913, while comparatively rapid, will take from five to ten years. New habits of economy have been inculcated in many European families that will not be entirely abandoned even when stern necessity is relaxed, and it will be found that the coming ten years will not be a decade of such riotous luxury and extravagance as was characteristic of life in all large European cities in the decade ending in mid-summer 1914. Strenuous efforts will be made by the people of every country in Europe to encourage home industry, increase export and conserve the resources of the various countries in every way possible.

There is another reason that goes even deeper into human consciousness. The people of Europe have for two years been face to face with a great crisis in their lives and in the enduring power of their systems of Government. The fierce and scorching light of adversity has beaten in upon the soul and burned away much of the tinsel. With a greater democracy ruling in the spirit of government, with the more fundamental things of human life brought into view with startling clearness, the people of Europe will live a simpler existence until time has brought a measure of forgetfulness of the horrors and privations of these days, and that will not be for another generation. These things may seem far removed from matters of foreign trade, but they are not, for their effects will be written into the laws, the economic life of the people and into the annual statistics of import and export.

WHEN the American manufacturer ventures forth again to meet his former European rival on neutral ground, he will find him an even more formidable antagonist than before, for the European trader will have behind him a government more willing to co-operate, a people keener for his success and a competitive power largely increased by what was learned in time of war as to how things could be made quickly, cheaply and out of home-found materials, or practical substitutes for what was formerly imported and considered as essential.

The tendency in America today is to look upon the great industrial nations of Europe as having undergone something that will decrease their future competitive power in the markets of the world for many years to come. Never was there a greater error for, barring the comparatively short period of reconstruction, they have gained something that will make them stronger than ever in the field of manufacture for export. At no time in the industrial history of Europe has there been so much machinery at work, so many trained workers, or have the peoples been so ready in determination of spirit, not only to get back what has been lost, but to add a profit thereto.

Rich and indifferent, America waits superciliously for the end of the war that she may dictate the terms upon which the world shall resume business. We have a great awakening coming to us, and after it has come and we have learned our lesson, we may be able to win our proportionate share of the foreign trade of the world, but not before.

The Cormorant

sheet of yellow light, hard, with a tinge of lemon in it; a bad sky for the time of year. The breeze still held and was even strengthening, and now as darkness fell and the stars came out, lights began to appear on shore, the lights of the native huts, like glow-worms in the foliage, and the lights of the house where the dead man lay.

Then, one by one, the lights began to go out, and in an hour not one was left, and the shore, blue-black and pearl-gray, lay under the starlight, voiceless, except for the tune of the surf on the outer beach.

The boat in which they had brought the fruit had been hauled up and the dinghy lowered. Kitchin, who had gone below for a moment, came up now; he was wearing a pair of soft-soled deck shoes. Jewel, who had rousted out the watch below and given the Kanaka boatswain his instructions, led the way to the side ladder where the little boat was moored, followed by the Captain.

A moment later, the dinghy, with Jewel sculling from the stern with a single oar and Kitchin crouching in the bow, detached itself from the schooner. Jewel had muffled the oar, and the boat, as noiseless as a water beetle, passed across the surface of the lagoon, ruffling the star-lit water. It grounded on the soft sand, and Kitchin, getting out and leaving the mate in charge, came up the beach towards the house.

He was not a coward, yet his heart was alive in him and fluttering like a caught bird; every shadow seemed to hold a watcher; the night itself seemed to observe him and the appearance of indifference to all things mortal, so distinctive of the darkness and the stars, seemed now the cloak of an ambuscade.

against it. But Kitchin had no scruples whatever on the score of the robbery, or the dead whom he had robbed, or the innocent whom he had defrauded; besides that, his mind was not in a condition for reflection. Making across the soft sand with his burden, he felt now that curious paralysis which comes to us in dreams, when we are trying to escape from unknown dangers, and are held and clogged at every step.

He reached the dinghy, wading into the water to meet her and clambered in, nearly upsetting the little boat.

"Done it?" whispered Jewel.

"Quick!" replied the other.

The single word told everything, and Jewel, working the scull, the dinghy made its way back swiftly and noiselessly across the water.

Kitchin climbed on board. The boxes were passed to him, the dinghy brought on board, and now a watcher on the shore might have seen the old Cormorant spreading her wings to the night.

Scarcely a sound came to the shore as the fellows hauled on the throat and peak halyards, and the mainsail hung slatting to the wind, then the foresail shewed and the jib, and now the Cormorant, with Kitchin himself at the wheel, began to move and break the star-silvered water. There was no clank of windlass or sound of anchor's being hove up; they had knocked the shackle off the anchor chain, leaving the anchor as a token of their visit and departure. Soundless as a ghost, the Cormorant went on her way across the lagoon, rising gently to the heave of the sea at the break in the reef, and dissolving from sight in the voids that lay beyond.

AT the door he paused. Not a sound was to be heard except the reef murmur and the movement of the foliage of the groves beneath the wind. Then, feeling gently for the latch and placing his hand on it, he pressed it.

It went down with a click that shot through his brain like a bullet. It seemed to him that the whole house rang with the sound, and he waited, wavering between the impulse to fly and the pull of the plunder so close to his hand.

No sound came from the house. House, beach, groves, and island still maintained that sinister silence of which he felt himself to be the center and, more than that, the cause. At any moment that silence might spring alive with shouts and the whistling of spears; at any moment his retreat to the boat might be cut off; yet moment after moment passed and nothing happened, and then all at once, a feeling of security came to him. This island of Innocence was, in reality, as innocent as it looked, an island of boobs.

He pushed the door gently; it opened without sound, revealing the room, tenantless except for a rigid form lying upon the couch, the form of Levasseur, covered with the French flag.

A night-light burning in a cocoanut-bowl on the table lit the room dimly, and fronting Levasseur the bureau stood, its press doors closed on whatever the shelves might contain.

Levasseur, who had lived in uprightness and honor all his life and who, on the island, had no fear of robbers, who, moreover, saw in Kitchin a friend in need, had told him of the pearls, pointing to the bureau to emphasize his words.

It remained to be seen whether they were still in the bureau's keeping.

Crossing the room swiftly, Kitchin turned the little latch which held the doors of the bureau closed, and opened them. The cash-boxes were still there undisturbed. He made a swift examination of the shelves without discovering anything of value and then, a cash-box in each hand, he made back for the door.

It had closed a bit. Opening it with his left elbow, he sidled out into the night.

The thing was accomplished; it seemed to him now incredible. The very ease with which the business had been done,

III

THE blow began an hour after midnight. An hour and a half after the departure of the Cormorant, the wind lulled and died to a dead calm that lasted for ten minutes, during which the heave of the swell mounting the outer reef, increased till the boom of it filled the night. Then through the calm came the wind; it came in puffs and it was as hot as the breath of a panther; it had shifted and was coming now, dead from the west where not a star was to be seen, and for an hour it held like this. The night seemed to breathe hard and in gasps.

Markham in his hut felt the electrical tension; it awoke him from sleep. He dressed and came out on the beach for a breath of air, and, as he stepped onto the sands, a great light suddenly filled the world and vanished. It was as though some giant had flashed his lantern on the sea.

He saw the lagoon brilliantly lit from reef to reef, and he saw that the Cormorant was gone.

Then, as he stood, a sudden inkling of the truth came to him; he turned swiftly towards the house, reached it, and found the door open. The night-light in the cocoanut shell was still burning on the table; it shewed the press doors of the bureau open and the cash-boxes gone.

The dead man, rigid beneath the flag, gave the last touch to the picture. Markham knew quite well that the vanished pearls had been Levasseur's main standby; the shell and the few pearls already exported from the island had brought in a good deal of money, but the expenses had been considerable and there was not a very large balance in the bank at Sydney. The stolen pearls had been the pick of the fishing, the cream of the labor of years, and now they were gone forever, lost, owing to his, Markham's, stupidity.

He went to the foot of the stairs, knocked, and called out to Mademoiselle Levasseur. She had lain down fully dressed; the storm had awakened her, and now, in response to the call, she appeared at the head of the stairway.

"Come down," said Markham. "We have been robbed."

When she reached him, he pointed to the open bureau.

"The schooner has gone from the lagoon," said he. "That man has taken the pearls. It is my fault entirely."

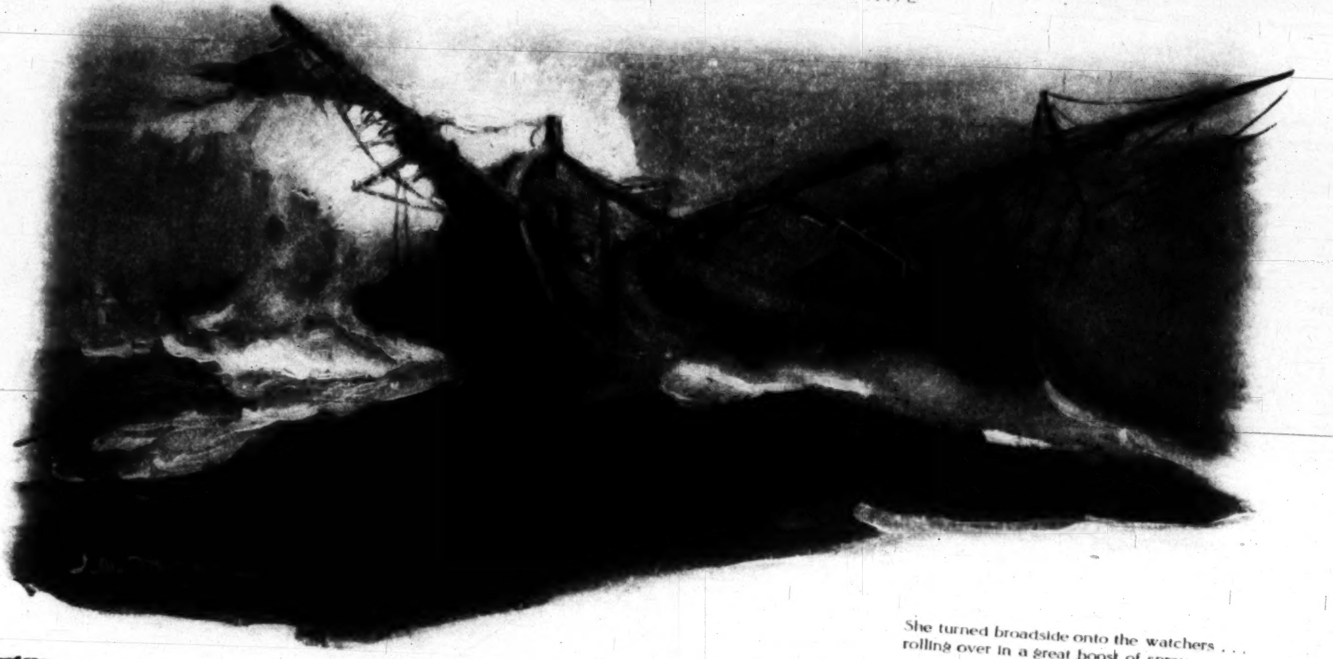
THE CORMORANT

A Story of the Pacific—By H. de Vere Stacpoole

ILLUSTRATIONS BY J. O TODAHL



She turned broadside onto the watchers . . . rolling over in a great boost of spray

THE schooner Cormorant was a free lance of the Pacific and she looked it. She had been built at Sydney in the days when sandal-wood trading was at its last gasp and copra was coming to its own. She had carried a cargo of sandal-wood and she had been used in the copra trade, these honest jobs falling to her in her virtuous youth; then she had broken away from the narrow path and had left honest trade for labor recruiting in its worst form. Labor recruiting, opium smuggling, gun running, pearl poaching, all these had formed chapters in her unwritten history; she had unloaded rifles for revolutionaries in the blue waters off Valdivia, filled up with forced labor in palm-shadowed lagoons, and run from the Bonins with a Japanese gunboat in pursuit, firing practice shells over her and round her, saving herself by running into the arms of a white Pacific fog.

Ships like men have characters and personalities; there are wicked ships and good ships and mediocre. Clever and stupid ships and sheer brutes neither to hold nor to bind if they drag their anchors, nor to reason with coming into dock.

There are also lucky and unlucky ships.

The Cormorant was an unlucky ship. Lucky for herself, inasmuch as she had always managed to save her skin; unlucky for her owners and captains. Two had been drowned and one had been killed on her deck by a spear down in the Solomons. She had got a name, and being now pretty old and abused by the sea and scrimpy owners, with dry rot rampant and to use the expression of one of the 'Frisco pilots, "all rats and roaches," Kitchin, her present possessor, had got her dirt cheap. Filling her up with a cargo of dirt cheap trade, he had come down to the Marshalls and done a good stroke of business, selling his stuff for cash on the nail to a German firm, after which he had set a course for the Solomons with an eye to recruiting.

Kitchin had started life as a sailor man, had left the sea for dock-side courses, swindled his way into possession of a low public-house, prospered in the triple capacity of crimp, publican and unlicensed pawnbroker, and now had taken to the sea again as captain and owner of the Cormorant, with a fat balance in the Bank of California and a half-caste wife looking after the public-house business in Tallis Street, down near the China Docks in 'Frisco. A most unlovely record, yet the strange thing was that the man had parts of a sort, being self-educated, speaking fairly correct English, unaddicted to drink or tobacco and with little trace of the dock side or the sea about him. He was stoutish, wore side-whiskers, and possessed a bland manner that, blending with his other external attributes, gave him the air of a trustable and fatherly man.

He inspired confidence in the minds of illiterate and simple people, and as those were the people he had chiefly to do with, this power was for him a big asset.

The Cormorant, when she had reached the latitude of the Bismarck Archipelago, had been blown out of her course by a storm that swept the Pacific from Mindanao to Fanning Island. She was now northwest of the Ellice group steering a westerly course on a sea sapphire blue, breeze blown and heaving to a far-spaced and slumbrous swell.

KITCHIN was on deck; it was noon, and he had been taking the sun. Jewel, first, second and third mate in one, was standing by the steersman, a coffee-colored Kanaka with old scars caused by ringworm on his arms and breast; McKay, the second mate, had stayed behind at the Marshalls, preferring freedom and his chance on the beach to the Cormorant, Kitchin, Jewel, and the cockroaches—especially to Jewel, a red-headed runt, to use McKay's description of him, which somehow fitted.

The Captain was about to turn down below to work out his position, when a thin cry, like the cry of a sea gull, came from forward. It was the Kanaka look-out who had sighted land.

"It's one of them islands dotted about here-away," said Jewel, going forward with Kitchin. "Some of them ain't marked on the chart neither. That's it." He was shading his eyes. "You see that glitter in the pale of the sky—that's it—one of them ring islands and not a tree-top showing."

The Captain called for one of the Kanakas to bring his glass; then he climbed with it into the rigging.

"It's maybe twenty miles off," said he, coming down. "Keep her head to it; we'll maybe drop in and pick up some fruit if it's a likely place."

He went below, and the mate, having given directions to the steersman, lit a pipe, and, leaning against the weather-rail, fixed his eyes on the great sun-smitten, honey-colored trapezium of the main sail.

The sunlight came through it as it bellied to the breeze, marking vaguely the reef point shadows and the curving lines of the stitching. There are few things finer to look at than a clean, new, well-made sail, filled with the wind and touched by the sun, but Jewel had little thought for the beauty of the thing; his mind was far away. He had a small share in the takings of the Cormorant, and he was speculating on the Solomons and the chance of finding labor there.

The Cormorant was making seven knots, and in an hour or so the island had lifted, shewing through the glass the palm tree tops like beads strung on the sea line.

It was an atoll island, just a ring of coral enclosing a lagoon and unmarked on the old, out-of-date charts of the Cormorant.

"It's not much of a place," said Kitchin, "but good enough to put in. It's ten to one uninhabited and so we'll get all the fruit we want for nothing. We can do with some bananas."

"Sure," replied Jewel. "Anything comes in handy one can get for nothing; besides, one never knows what pickings is to be found in out-of-the-way places off trade tracks. I've heard of chaps pickin' up shell lagoons and guano islands worth a fortune and lyin' there only waitin' to be took. You see, a lot of these out o' the way islands aren't visited except by whalers, and whalers hasn't eyes for anythin' but whales."

"I reckon there's not much to be got in the Pacific nowadays by picking up," said Kitchin. "The missionaries come poking round most places and they have a keen eye for what's to be got; between them and these Admiralty surveys and chaps hunting for copra wherever there's more than a dozen palm trees, the place is fairly skinned."

"That's so," assented Jewel.

In another hour they were well up to the island. From out here there was little to see but the white beach and sheeting foam of the encircling reef, and the break in the reef shewing a glimpse of the calm mirror of the lagoon.

"This breeze will take us right in," said Kitchin, "and there's no fear of reefs; the tide scouring always gives a good channel at the opening."

The Cormorant heaved to the sea at the break and then came in swimming like a swan across the calm lagoon.

It was like coming into a great voiceless, deserted harbor, a harbor a mile and a half wide, bounded on all sides by the white inner beach of the reef and the green of foliage, artu, bread-fruit, pandanus, mammee apple, all shaken over by the breeze-swept cocoanut palms.

To the right of the entrance and about a mile from it, appeared a frame house with a flag-staff to one side of it, and on the other some native huts thatched with palm leaves, the whole forming a little colony half bowered in trees.

"They've seen us," said Jewel. "Whoever they are; look, there goes their flag."

A black ball was climbing to the truck of the flag-staff. It broke out into the French flag. The Cormorant shewed the Stars and Stripes and altered her course slightly. Under reduced sail, she came swimming gently over the clear emerald-green water

FOR THE BEST DESSERTS CANDIES ETC USE THE BEST EXTRACT—SAUER'S PURE FLAVORING EXTRACTS

Food Department

By Phoebe Burbank

DESSERTS may be likened to the ruffles or trimmings on a garment; they must be used with judgment or they will spoil the entire meal. Avoid very rich, or heavy, desserts where meats have been served abundantly; light desserts not containing albuminoids are to be preferred. For instance, with a roast-beef or bountiful steak dinner, do not serve a cup custard or a dessert rich in eggs, or the dinner will be unbalanced, containing entirely too much nitrogenous foods. Substitute whipped or frozen cream, or a fresh fruit pie in season, light cornstarch or plain fruits. With a vegetable dinner, serve desserts rich in eggs and milk.

Never forget that the primary purpose of dining is to provide fuel for the body—fuel in the right proportions to develop energy. Do not end a simple dinner with an elaborate dessert, and when a dinner is very elaborate, it is better to omit the dessert and serve coffee, wafers and cheese, or an omelette soufflé or syllabub—a dainty, light, attractive dish.

Rich and highly seasoned dishes please the palate and induce the thoughtless—the slaves of appetite—to take greater quantities of food than can be assimilated; too much meat, too many starchy foods and sweets with too few vegetables and fruits produce torpid or overworked livers. Men, as a class, eat too much meat, and are prone to kidney and liver troubles; women eat too much starch mixed with sugar and cooked butter, as in cakes, preserves and puddings, and are prone to corpulency and indigestion.

Huckleberry Roly Poly

1 teacup of buttermilk or sour milk
½ teaspoonful of soda
1 heaping tablespoonful of lard

A little salt; flour to make a nice dough. Knead and make into two parts. Roll out part one in a thick layer to fit in a pan about 4 by 8 inches. Butter the dough and put most of one quart of huckleberries previously cooked a little and sweetened; add nutmeg. Roll out part two of dough in a slightly thinner layer, placing it on top of the fruit; butter the top of this and bake as you would a pie.

When done, serve with hard sauce and a spoonful of the left-over cooked fruit on each dish, and also make a dip as follows: Tablespoonful of butter in saucepan; add teaspoonful of flour. Cook this, then add one-half teaspoon of sugar and about a teacup of hot water. Flavor with nutmeg.—Mrs. E. F. Sayler, Park Station, Cincinnati, O.

Fruit Blanc Mange

Four tablespoonfuls of cornstarch to one quart of milk. Dissolve the cornstarch in part of milk. In remainder of milk put five ounces of sugar, half cup of sultana raisins, half cup of chopped figs and a pinch of salt. Heat to near boiling, then add the cornstarch, stirring briskly, and boil five minutes. Pour into mould and when cold serve with custard.—Mrs. M. S. B., DeSoto, Mo.

Pineapple Fluff

1 cup of diced pineapple
¼ lb. marshmallows, cut up
½ cup English walnuts, chopped
1 pt. of whipped cream

Sweeten to taste. Put a pinch of soda in cream before whipping.—A. L. R., 10089 Republic Court, Cleveland, O.

Fig Tapioca

Soak two-thirds cupful of tapioca in three cupfuls of cold water, overnight. In the morning add one and a half cups of sugar, one cup of diced figs, two-thirds cupful of chopped English walnuts and a small piece of butter. Steam an hour in a double boiler, adding a tablespoonful of vanilla. Turn in dish, chill and serve with cream, plain or whipped.—Mrs. R. M. M., 163 Loomis St., Burlington, Vt.

Dutch Peach Pie

Drain liquor from a can of peaches. Cut them into eighths and set to drain while making crust.

1 pint of flour
2½ teaspoons of baking powder
½ teaspoon of salt

that shewed the coral and sand spaces of the lagoon floor as if seen through glass.

In five fathoms of water and quarter of a mile or less from shore, the anchor was let go and the rumble-tumble of the chain through the hawse pipe came back in faint echoes from the groves. Kitchin ordered a boat to be lowered, and getting into it and leaving Jewel in charge, he started for the beach where half a dozen natives were standing, among whom could be seen the figures of a man dressed in white clothes, and a girl also dressed in white and wearing a broad-brimmed hat. A panama, Kitchin judged. He was very much interested by these figures, the very last he expected to meet with in this desolate spot, and when the boat was run up and he jumped out on the hard, white sand, his interest was turned into a sort of mild amazement at the beauty of the girl, the refinement of her dress, and the fact that the man, young, good-looking and dressed in white flannels, was a gentleman. A nob.

"I'd have come out in a canoe to meet you, only I saw the boat being lowered," said the young fellow, after he had greeted the newcomer. "My name is Markham. I was wrecked here three years ago and have been here ever since. This is Mademoiselle Levasseur, the daughter of Captain Levasseur who owns this island. Captain Levasseur is very ill. Do you know anything about doctoring, by any chance?"

"Well, I know a little," said Kitchin. "Ought to, seeing I've used the sea for thirty years and more. Ill is he? Sorry to hear that. Nothing infectious, I hope."

"Oh, dear me, no," replied the young fellow. "It's chest trouble." He took Kitchin aside and walked him along the sea-edge beyond earshot of the girl. "It's consumption, and I don't believe there's the least thing to be done for him. All the same, your coming is a blessing; you know how hard it is to see a person die without any medical help, and I want you—if you'll excuse me for saying it—to make out that you are better at the medical business even than you are—it's for the girl's sake I say this. Then there's another thing. We have been on the lookout for a ship; very few ships touch here; just a whaler now and then, but Levasseur feeling himself in a bad way has been wanting to settle up his affairs. He is a rich man and he has made a will disposing of his property, but he has no one to witness it. There's no one here but Kanakas."

"HOW about you?" said Kitchin.

"The bother is, he wants to leave me a bequest. I don't want it, but there you are—I will be quite frank with you. I am to be married to Miss Levasseur and we are each to share equally in the Captain's property. He has been a father to me since I was tossed ashore here. I have worked for him, worked hard for him, I will say that."

Markham broke off and was silent for a moment; the sound of the surf came from the reef and the crying of gulls from the lagoon, mixed with the rippling of the little waves on the sand, wavelets scarcely three inches high and each crystal bright as a jewel.

"What was the work?" asked Kitchin.

"Pearling and shell. We have a schooner, the Tarpon. It comes twice a year for shell; it's not due for a month and a half yet. The Captain has been at this lagoon now for six years; it's pretty well done and he has cleared a lot of money out of it. It was very rich in pearls."

"And what did he do with the pearls, if I may ask?"

"Oh, he sent a lot to Sydney, but we have the takings of the last two and a half years here now."

"You must have handled a lot of labor."

"We have thirty men and their women-folk, quite a little colony, and when I leave here and bid good-bye to the island, the place will be theirs."

They were walking back now along the sands towards the house.

"Well," said Kitchin, "he's been a pretty lucky chap, the Captain, in striking a place like this and working it so well without interference."

"Oh, there was no one to interfere with him," replied Markham. "When he came here first, he found the place inhabited and he bought the pearling rights from the Chief."

"Paid him a stick of tobacco, I suppose," laughed Kitchin.

"I don't know what he paid him," replied Markham, rather stiffly, "but of this I am sure—he didn't swindle him."

"No offense meant," replied the other. "I wasn't thinking of swindling, which is not in my line, but [illegible] this: a stick of tobacco is more use to a Kanaka than a hat full of pearls, and if you can buy the one for the other, it's not swindling, it's just trade."

"Maybe," said Markham. "Well, shall we go in and see the Captain?"

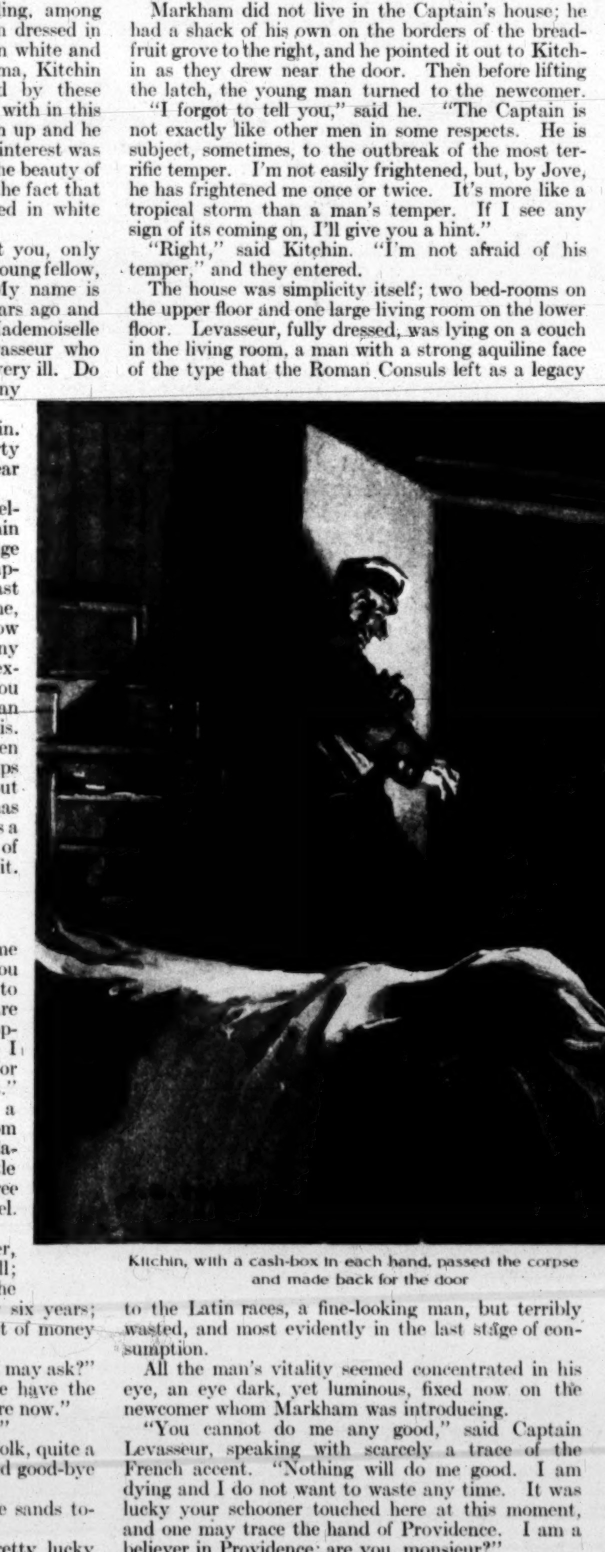
Kitchin assented, and they turned to the house. Mademoiselle Levasseur had disappeared and the knot of natives had dispersed, leaving only one or two before the house door.

Markham did not live in the Captain's house; he had a shack of his own on the borders of the bread-fruit grove to the right, and he pointed it out to Kitchin as they drew near the door. Then before lifting the latch, the young man turned to the newcomer.

"I forgot to tell you," said he. "The Captain is not exactly like other men in some respects. He is subject, sometimes, to the outbreak of the most terrific temper. I'm not easily frightened, but, by Jove, he has frightened me once or twice. It's more like a tropical storm than a man's temper. If I see any sign of its coming on, I'll give you a hint."

"Right," said Kitchin. "I'm not afraid of his temper," and they entered.

The house was simplicity itself; two bed-rooms on the upper floor and one large living room on the lower floor. Levasseur, fully dressed, was lying on a couch in the living room, a man with a strong aquiline face of the type that the Roman Consuls left as a legacy to the Latin races, a fine-looking man, but terribly wasted, and most evidently in the last stage of consumption.



Kitchin, with a cash-box in each hand, passed the corpse and made back for the door

All the man's vitality seemed concentrated in his eye, an eye dark, yet luminous, fixed now on the newcomer whom Markham was introducing.

"You cannot do me any good," said Captain Levasseur, speaking with scarcely a trace of the French accent. "Nothing will do me good. I am dying and I do not want to waste any time. It was lucky your schooner touched here at this moment, and one may trace the hand of Providence. I am a believer in Providence; are you, monsieur?"

"Lord, yes," said Kitchin, somewhat taken aback at this unexpected question. "I'm a Baptist—but now, as to this complaint of yours——"

Levasseur did not seem to hear him.

"I have seen the evil of men dying without having made an arrangement of their property, but fool that I was, I did not draw up a will when my schooner was here on her last visit. Then I felt myself so well in health that I reckoned, as strong men do, to live forever. In two months, my malady took this acute form—and now you see me. George, fetch me that paper."

Markham went to a press bureau without lock or key, opened it and took from it a paper. Kitchin, watching him, saw, among the other things in the bureau, two tin cash-boxes.

"This is my will," said Levasseur, taking the paper from Markham. "It only waits to be signed—but I require two witnesses."

Markham clapped his hand to his forehead. "I never thought of that," said he.

"Well," said Kitchin, "that's easily settled. If you take the boat over to the schooner, you can fetch Mr. Jewel, my first officer; he'll come, and welcome."

Levasseur thanked him, and Markham started off. In half an hour or less, he returned, accompanied by Jewel; the will was signed and witnessed, and Levasseur with a sigh of relief handed it to Markham.

"That is yours," said he. "Keep it in your possession. It is yours and Celestine's. Captain Kitchin, you have my thanks." He drew a valuable ring from his finger. "And this small token of my esteem, if you will accept it. Medicine? Oh, no, you have given me the only medicine I require—pray, take all you will from the island in the way of fruit or provisions; we are well stocked; and now I think I will sleep a little." He held his hand out to Kitchin and the mate turned on his side and closed his eyes.

When Kitchin and Jewel got back to the schooner with a boat-load of fruit, the Captain of the Cormorant took the mate to the after-rail. A shark was hanging about the stern of the schooner on the look-out for scraps, and Kitchin, after watching the creature for a moment, broke silence:

"There's forty thousand dollars' worth of pearls in that chap's bureau," said he, "in two tin cash-boxes a child could lift. He told me all about them when we were talking together and you were being fetched."

"Forty thousand dollars' worth?" said Jewel.

"Forty thousand," replied the Captain.

II

AN hour later, having finished tea, Kitchin and his companion came on deck. In the evening light the lagoon and inner beach looked more beautiful than a picture; away across the water the French flag still fluttered to the breeze, but it was no longer at the truck; it was at half-mast.

"He's croaked," said Jewel.

"Seems so," replied Kitchin.

Then the two began to talk.

"The wind has shifted a bit," said Jewel. "Right fair for our getting out; it seems like Providence, don't it?"

"That chap asked me if I believed in Providence," said Kitchin, "and I told him I did. Well, if we pull this thing off, I'm going to clear from 'Frisco; there'll be lots of time before these mugs can do anything—I'm getting fed up with 'Frisco, and trade's not what it was. I'll sell everything, and Captain Smith of Macassar will be my name and station. I've got a liking for Macassar. There's trade to be done that way."

"How about that woman of yours?"

"I reckon she'll stay in 'Frisco."

"The only fly in my unction is the weather," said Jewel. "There's a big change coming; the glass has taken a big jump."

"God bless you," said Kitchin. "If we get off tonight with whole skins, you needn't bother about the weather. That chap Markham is sure to be armed, and you know what those Kanakas are when they're up."

"You've got your six-shooter," said Jewel.

"I have, but I want no shooting," replied Kitchin. "If you and I slide ashore in the dinghy and I go up to the house, why, it's a friendly visit. If the girl's not sitting, keeping watch by the body, who's to know? Of course, they may become suddenly mistrusting and get a hiding fit on, tuck the stuff away somewhere for safety, but I don't think so. They're the trustingest lot I've ever struck outside the shareholders of a boob and boodle company. Not that I'd take the advantage of them in ordinary ways, but this isn't so. What right have they to those pearls? They've picked this lagoon same as if it was a pocket; I'd take my oath, that if they were put in a witness box, they couldn't substantiate their claim. Old Levasseur diddled the Kanakas into selling him the fishing rights and, back of that, what claim have Kanakas on fishing rights, anyway?—fishing rights! Why, they ought to be down on their marrow bones praising their Creator they're not between hatches being took off to work on plantations, same as Bully Hayes would have treated them."

"That's so," said Jewel.

The sun had vanished beyond the reef now and all the West was a great [illegible]

With it packed in a valise he could slip down the river and be back long before he could be missed.

Suppose he was arrested; the money would never be found, but would be always waiting for him when he got out. He could be very careful how he spent it, not to excite suspicion. He would go to some distant country, but would Mollie go with him?

So he had to commence all over, again and again, deciding that each plan was a good one and could not fail.

No, he wouldn't take the money.... He knew he had never intended to take it.... He would lock the bank and run to the cashier's house, and tell him.... No, he would go to the president's or the assistant cashier's.... But suppose it wasn't a mistake; what would happen when he left the bank?

While he was going to the president's, the cashier would be off with the money. He could see the face with its shifting colors and angry lights gloat over the stack of bills. It would be safer to go to the cashier's and tell him; but somehow, the thought of the silk hat and Prince Albert alone with the money, was even worse.

If it wasn't a mistake, they were all equally in it, and he alone stood in the way. The old gun looked good to him; he turned another leaf in Bishop, and this time stole the money in a way that was absolutely proof against detection.

Suppose it was not a mistake, but that the money was left in the chair for the express purpose of having him try to steal it!

A bank robbery well advertised, and the robber caught with the goods on him, might be a very useful thing in the way of sound banking. How could he tell?

During all these hours Buck says the moral question, so far as he was concerned, did not trouble him once. Could he steal the money and get away with it? That was the question.

Suddenly he looked at the clock and knew what he was going to do——

It was morning. He put out the lights, and opened the shutters. What should he do with the revolver? He put it in its old place in the cashier's desk, and then waited in his own room until he heard a key turn in the front door; softly and quickly the overcoat was taken off the chair, and he was hanging it in the directors' room when the bookkeeper came in, said "good morning", and passed through the directors' room to his own, behind the big counter. Nothing came of his entrance. He would not see the money unless he went to the front counter, and not then until he turned.

Presently came the assistant cashier, and in he went, and up to the front counter, as Buck could hear. Then he heard him say, "My God!" After that, a silence followed that was not broken until the cashier came. Through the little room, into the big room, on he went, when, "Well, I'll be damned!" testified to his discovery.

Then Buck knew that they knew, and went out sick and scared.

So Buck said he didn't like to sleep at the bank.

"But didn't the officers of the bank ever say anything to you about the money?"

"No, if it was a mistake, they very likely thought I didn't know the money was in the chair."

"Didn't you ever tell the bank how you stood guard over its money?"

"No, if it was not a mistake, it would never happen again."

"What was it the cashier said?"

"'Well, I'll be damned!'"

Without a word Bill started across the street and was gone some time.

BUCK AND THE BANK

A True Story — By P. S. Victor

ILLUSTRATED BY P. D. JOHNSON

IT was a good town for a bank. In a prairie State where rival railroad towns quarreled as to the relative length of their corn cribs measured by the mile, and the cattle and hogs were there to eat the corn, the tide of money was always on the move, coming in, or going out, and like other tides broke on the bank.

Not a large town; it was, however, a very good town for a bank.

The president was a deacon in the Congregational Church; he wore a Prince Albert coat and a silk hat. Tall and slender, with a smooth upper lip and a chin whisker, he had made his money in the town without making friends. This, however, did not hurt him as a bank president; it was a decided asset. He voted the republican ticket; he never talked politics or religion, but attended the primaries and prayer meetings.

The assistant cashier was an active, ambitious young man with several business irons in the fire. His life was cut out on model lines. Superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School, with a hand-made smile under a big mustache, and a shocked look at command, he voted the republican ticket with the same high sense of duty seen and done that he handled discount.

The bookkeeper could not be mistaken for anything else. He was not any older than he had been for some time. The years touched him lightly. When he was on the street his lips were doing sums that had no answer. He was a republican and an episcopalian, but in the church service often said "total to balance" instead of "Good Lord deliver us." He was a good man, and took the first prize at the county fair for the best Plymouth Rocks.

It was a good bank, but better because the cashier was not a good man. He was a democrat and had a red nose; that is, his nose was red, and he looked like a democrat. He did not belong to any church; he had been seen coming out of Schmit's place. His face was red, with liver-colored spots, or liver-colored with red spots, sometimes one way, sometimes the other. The change was more sudden than agreeable, and words of both colors went with it. He gave an element of safety to the bank that was hard to understand, but without which it would not have been the good bank it was.

THE bank building was a two-story brick structure, facing the public square on the main street. The upper floor was occupied by a doctor's office in front, and a lawyer's at the back. The main floor of the building was flush with the street, and all used by the bank. On one side of the bank was an open alley; on the other, the wall of an adjacent store. A high counter with an iron rail went across and down the banking-room.

At the farther end of the room was the directors' office, through which only was access possible to the railed-in space back of the counter, out of which opened the door to the money-vault. The construction of this vault, with its various provisions against thieves and fire, had been much advertised by the bank. It was known in the town that the combination which opened the outer door of the vault was divided between the cashier and assistant cashier, so that the presence of both was necessary to effect an entrance. The burglar-proof safe inside the vault was closed by a time lock which, until the appointed hour arrived, recked not of keys, nor combinations.

All good banks take these, or similar, precautions against evil-minded, strong men, and incidentally, against themselves.

In the directors' room stood an old iron safe, used formerly by the bank, but displaced by the vault and more modern burglar-proof safe. A few chairs, a table for the use of the directors, and a bed, made up the furniture of the room.

I was the junior member of a law firm, and the directors' room was my sleeping apartment. It was a good enough sort of place for a sound sleeper who was not nervous. After you went down into the cellar and looked into the coal hole, and then made the rounds of the iron shuttered windows, all you had to do was to go into the counting room and get an old revolver out of the cashier's desk, put it under your pillow and go to bed. Then, as I say, if you were not nervous, and had the price of a week's board in sight, there was no reason why you should not sleep, and dream of bank robbers and things.

One night I dreamed the president of the bank came into the room, dressed in a nightshirt and a silk hat, climbed onto the old safe, stamped a hole through the top, pulled out a ham sandwich and said, "Let us give thanks," and swallowed the sandwich himself at one time and in two motions.

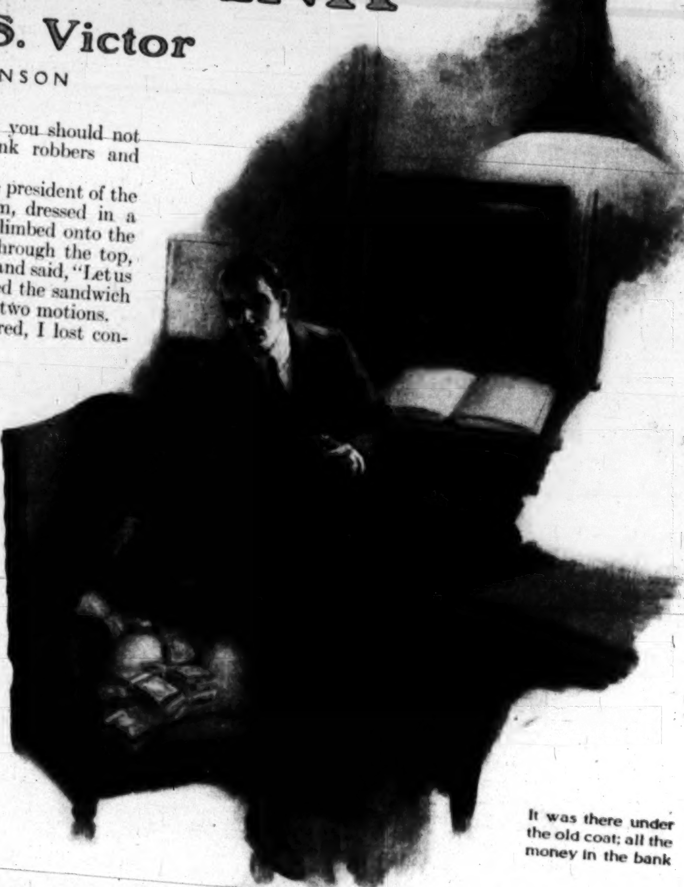
The whole thing considered, I lost confidence in the president, got married, and gave up the room.

About this time Buck (his full name is not of consequence to the story) began to "read law" in our office and to sleep in the bank.

There is not so very much difference between "reading" and "practicing" law as one might think. A good many lawyers never do either very much, and yet manage somehow to get along.

Buck was never intended for a lawyer. Come to think of it, probably no one ever was. He did not sleep very long in the bank, and when I asked him if he had bad dreams, he said he didn't know whether it was a dream or something else, but he was sure it would never happen again.

Now this is the tale of Buck and the Bank.



It was there under the old coat; all the money in the bank

ONE night when he was in the little back room reading law, the president, the cashier, and the assistant cashier came in, and, passing through his room, went into the banking-room proper. They seemed to have some matter of interest and dispute under discussion. Without being noisy or loud in their talk it was evident that a disagreement existed.

About half-past nine they all came out; said good-night to Buck, and went off laughing and talking together.

By this time Buck was sleepy, and so, having explored the coal hole in the cellar, and fastened the iron shuttered windows, he went into the banking-room for the cashier's revolver. As he turned to go back, he saw something in a chair that made him forget he was sleepy. It was a high backed old office chair with square set arms. It stood there in its regular place quietly enough.

Buck stepped softly around the chair, keeping as far from it as he could, crossing over to the door of the vault, and tried the knob. No use; the vault was locked. On tiptoe he slipped into the directors' room and got an overcoat which he carefully spread over the chair. He took a long breath—in fact, several before he wondered what was the matter with his knees.

They seemed wobbly, so he sat down to think about it. Presently he came to a decision. Once more he went down into the cellar, this time carrying the revolver; once more he tried the windows and their iron shutters. He tried the front door; it was locked, but he shot an inside bolt. Everything was all right. Once more he went into the banking-room, with a law book for company. He sat down at a table facing the coat-covered chair; he looked at the old revolver with affection and respect; he raised the hammer and turned the cylinder slowly. Yes, the gun was old, but it had a business look about it that he liked as he laid it on the table before him.

He opened the law book; it was good old Bishop on Criminal Law, and for eight hours, some long and some short, committed all the crimes that involve violations of the ancient command, "Thou shalt not steal." He gloried in them, varied in their manner of execution, but never in result. He always stole the money, and best of all, got away with it.

In dreams when you find money you always wake up before you can spend it. But this was not that kind of money. It was there under the old coat; all the money in the bank, piled up in a good round stack of bills, done up in bundles, bank-fashion, each with its little band of white; some, dirty bundles; others, clean and fresh, but all money! money!

Why did he cover it? Perhaps God knows. Buck shook his head when I asked him, and it's no use to ask God.

How did it come to be in the chair and not in the safe?

If it had been in its proper place at the close of the day's business, how could it find its way into the chair through bolts, combinations and time locks? It was not in its proper place, or the safe was not locked. What was going on in that banking-room when president, cashier, and assistant cashier gathered there that evening? No, the bookkeeper was not there, and for some curious reason Buck was sorry. Why was the money in the chair and not on the table or money-counter? Oh, yes, it would not be in sight there from door or window. Why was the money in the chair and the vault locked? Did each officer think the other had put the money away and all had neglected to do it?

WAS it a mistake, or —? Well, it was such a good bank that Buck thought it must be some kind of dreadful mistake that had befallen the officers of the bank; but in the meantime there was the money and he went on stealing it.

If they all left the bank, thinking the money was in the vault, and he stole it, what evidence would there be against him? Each officer would be sure the money had been in its proper place at the close of business, or at least be compelled to say so, and the safe would be found fast locked in the morning. What other tale would the bank officers dare to tell and expect to be believed? But, suppose it was not a mistake? Buck took a look at the revolver, turned a leaf of Bishop and went on stealing the money.

There was a hollow tree up Crazy Creek, about two miles from town. . . . . The hole was well up in the tree, out of sight from the ground. . . . . The pair of rubber hunting boots in the back room would be just the thing.

He heard foot-steps. Some one was coming up the alley. Was it the president? No, it wasn't, and it was not the cashier, nor the assistant cashier. It was only old lame Cooney; he knew the dragging foot that scraped the ground.

There was a cave down the river which he had found years ago and had kept secret. That was the place to put the money.
